In the meantime it was a good thing to have two strings to her bow.

Nigel was a good second. If worst came to worst, and she was unable to make a friend of Baldy and influence him to her designs, she could fall back on Nigel, perhaps even marry him. It was as simple as that, by Peggy's romantic reasoning: opportunity at her feet, just waiting for her to kick it whichever way it suited her.

The fact that Nigel's eyes were searching the shore for someone else did not greatly disturb her, nor did the fact that his thoughts were elsewhere.

It was she who suggested that they should land on the island and swim and dry in the sun. The island was a great slab of rock rising from the lake, with round smooth surfaces near the water and hollows in the center that the centuries had filled with silt from which grew a tangle of undergrowth and a cluster of fragrant pines.

The rock was warm and the air full of the tangy smell of the woods, but the water was cool. Nigel was a good swimmer, and while he gave Peggy a demonstration of diving she slipped the knot of the canoe and, diving after him, challenged him to a race. It led, naturally, out of sight of the drifting canoe.

He did not notice it as they climbed out, cool and refreshed, and lay on the warm rock to dry in the sun.

"Are you going overseas?" asked Peggy, opening her campaign.

Nigel turned and looked at Peggy as she lay on one elbow on the sunsplashed rock. She had slipped off her bathing cap and her dark curls tumbled free. The impish amusement in her green eyes caught his eyes and held them for a moment. Then he looked at her as though he were seeing her for the first time.

Her swimming suit, two draped strips of violently colored pattern against a dark red background, suited her remarkably well and showed off in sharp contrast the contours of her young body with the lithe slimness of a dancer. His eyes turned away from hers with a sudden embarrassment. He had not given Peggy a thought before this moment, so full had his heart been of another girl, a well-groomed girl with a serene, easy beauty so different from this gay child who gave the impression of a coil of wire ready to spring with restrained vitality—who was so stimulating in her frank enjoyment of every moment.

"Yes," he said. "I expect to be

KNITTING NEGLIGEE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

PASTEL tints in the Renoir feeling make the palette for this rayon taffeta negligee. Model is zipper-closed in front; solid color apron ties on separately, and is fashioned as a three-pocket knitting bag. Misty green, blue, gold and rose are the color choices.

The government has gone on record to the effect that vast and indiscriminate knitting of precious wool isn't to be encouraged . . but the Red Cross and other relief agencies are still assigning considerable knitting which authority agrees is necessary.

The average good knitter has learned to produce while she chats; it's the five minutes or the short hour of pick-up work throughout the weeks which gets a knitting project finished and another begun.

Here is one of the prettiest appetizers for more and better knitting yet conceived . . The negligee with knitting apron attached for both style and efficiency. In the teagown tradition which makes it useful for dinner and the evening at home, it yet is a simple negligee, basically, and it's practically a budget item.

MEDAL FOR STOKER

LIVERPOOL—(CP).—James C. Kane, a ship's fireman who swam ashore through heavy seas when a trawler grounded on rocks and then ran barefooted over rock-studded ground to get help, has been awarded the Bronze Medal for Gallantry in saving life at sea.

How To Get Rid Of ATHLETE'S FOOT

If you want the quick, sure way to clean up a case of Athlete's Foot, on either the hands or the feet, go to Tamblyn's and get a bottle of Cortisol. The first application will stop the itching and burning and a few days' use will completely kill the germ causing the infection. Easy and pleasant to use, not expensive, Cortisol must please you or your money back. A day or two will convince you and we take all the risk because we know what Cortisol will do. Try it to-day.—(Advt.)

BORN

ALLISON. — At Nicholls Hospital, on Thursday, April 30, 1942, to Mr. and Mrs. H. Allison, a son, William Eric.

DIED

ROWLAND, J. L.—On Friday, May 1, 1942, at Nicholls Hospital, James Levi Rowland, of 530 Bolivar street, beloved husband of Eva A. Garnett, in his 66th year. Funeral service on Saturday, May 2, at 2 p.m. from the Nisbett Funeral Home, 347 Charlotte street. Rev. E. W. Rowland officiating. Interment, Union Cemetery, Port Hope.

IN MEMORIAM

OLIVER.—In loving memory of my dear brother, David Oliver, who died one year ago today, May 1, 1941.

The blow was great, the shock severe,
I little thought the end was near.
But only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
More each day I miss you, brother;
Friends may think the wound has healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within my heart concealed.
—Ever remembered by his two sisters, Mrs. Alexander Trotter of Buffalo, and Mrs. Annie Evans of Peterborough.

Greeks Strike Out

LONDON, May 1. — (CP) — A spokesman for the Greek Government said today that small bands of Greek guerillas had been attacking isolated German, Bulgarian and Italian outposts in occupied Greece in the areas of Thrace, Macedonia and the Peloponnesus.

He said word reaching London was that the guerillas had been particularly active against the Bulgarians in Thrace because the Bulgarians were repeating deportation practices of the First Great War, in which thousands of Greeks were sent from their Thracian farmlands to rocky inland areas of Bulgaria.

Do Friends Forget You?

She thought it was the right thing to do to say, "Where are you RESIDING?" and "I always RETIRE early." She thought this was ultra-refined and wondered why so many of her former friends seem to "cut" her.

But discriminating people don't use such pretentious words. They say, simply, "GO TO BED" and "LIVING." To them an affected speaker appears ill-poised, of poor background.

The oddest part of it is, people who "converse" rather than "talk" are the very ones who make crude errors like "borrowed off" for "borrowed from" and "leave go" for "let go."

While avoiding such obvious slang as "guy," they still give themselves away with "soup-and-fish" for formal dress," and "gadget" for—almost everything.

Cultivated people are specific in their speech. The "gadget" is given its right name—and other adjectives are used besides "nice" and "awful"!

Yet anyone can learn to speak in a cultivated manner. Our 32-page booklet helps you enrich your vocabulary, lists frequent mistakes in English and pronunciation, with correct forms. Explains words often mis-used

For your copy of "How To Improve Your Vocabularly" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Examiner's Home Service Department, Peterborough. Be sure to write your name and address plainly, and the name of the booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

TO HURRY OR GO SLOW?

IN CERTAIN kinds of hands, and in certain bidding situations, it is usually best to bid as gradually as you can, whereas with others it is best to go as far as you can at once. The former tactics usually apply to hands of generally distributed strength, whereas the latter generally serve best if you have a very long suit or a fine fit with your partner's suit, and very little high-card strength. In one case you want to shut the opponents out of the bidding, as a rule, and in the other, you want to give them every chance to stick their necks out.

North: ♠K 7 ♥J 7 5 2 ♦J 9 ♣Q J 8 6 2

West: ♠A 5 4 3 ♥A Q 4 3 ♦A Q 6 3 2 ♣None

East: ♠10 9 6 2 ♥K 10 9 8 ♦K 8 7 4 ♣9

South: ♠Q J 8 ♥6 ♦10 5 ♣A K 10 7 5 4 3

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

	North	East	South	West
1.	Pass	Pass	1♣	Dbl
	4♣	Pass	Pass	Dbl
2.	Pass	Pass	1♣	Dbl
	2♣	2♠	4♣	4♠
	Pass	Pass	5♣	Pass
	Pass	5♠
3.	Pass	Pass	1♣	2♣
	5♣	5♥

There you have three entirely different kinds of bidding produced at three duplicate tables. Notice how at Table No. 1, North crowded the opponents with his jump to 4-Clubs, too high for either of his vulnerable opponents to feel like risking a call, and putting West in a spot where all he dared do was double, and score a set of one by taking two tricks in diamonds and one each in the majors.

At Table No. 2, where West also doubled South's 1-Club, North made a weak interference bid of 2-Clubs, which was not enough to stop East, with his two kings and four cards in each of the other suits to assure a fit. North and South could not now prevent the opponents from reaching 5-Spades, which they made, with the loss of two trump tricks. Of course, a sacrifice by North-South at 6-Clubs would have paid, but they thought they had a chance to beat the contract.

At Table 3, West observed a somewhat different principle to show at once what he had, by bidding the opponents' suit on a hand not quite soundly strong enough to compel a game by his side. After that, North's jump to 5-Clubs was not even enough to shut out East, who bid his hearts in preference to spades, so that his partner could shift to the other major if necessary. That contract also was made, with the loss of only two tricks in spades.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠K 10 9 4 2 ♥Q J 10 2 ♦10 3 2 ♣A

West: ♠Q 7 6 ♥A K 8 6 3 ♦K 7 ♣Q 7 5

East: ♠J 8 5 ♥7 ♦A Q 9 6 ♣K J 8 6 2

South: ♠A 3 ♥9 5 4 ♦J 8 5 4 ♣10 9 4 3

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

Analysis will show that, with normal defense, East can make 3-No Trumps on this deal, but West cannot. What does that prove, if anything?

2 Independents Win In U.K. Over Gov't Men

LONDON, May 1 — (CP). — Two more by-election victories were scored in the revolt against Britain's wartime political truce to-day when Independent candidates were elected to the House of Commons from Rugby and Wallasey.

In Rugby, W. J. Brown, secretary of the Civil Service Clerical Asociation, defeated Col. Sir Claude Holbrook, Government candidate, 9,824 votes to 9,145.

In Wallasey former Mayor George Reakes polled 12,596 votes to 6,584 for John Pennington, Government nominee, and 1,597 for Major L. H. Cripps, Independent, and brother of Sir Stafford Cripps.

"I won because the people are sick and tired of the party machines which took us into the war unprepared and have led us from disaster to disaster since," said Mr. Brown after he was declared elected in Rugby.

"My election is a call to the Government to settle its political differences with Russia to achieve unity of strategy and a command to open a second front and win victory this year."

The Rugby seat was vacated by Lt.-Cmdr. Reginald Fletcher and Wallasey by Lt.-Col. J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon, both elevated to the peerage. In 1935 Fletcher, Labor, polled 33,237 votes against 28,000 for J. Moores, Conservative, and 7,384 for W. T. Stanton, Liberal. Moore-Brabazon polled 27,949 votes to 13,491 for J. Airey, Labor.

To-day's Independent victories brought to three the number of Government defeats at the polls in recent weeks. Last month W. D. Randoll, Independent, was elected from Grantham over Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Longmore, Government candidate.

Ask Ottawa Rule If Police On Draft List

TORONTO, May 1 — (CP). — Federal military authorities will be asked to rule whether or not police and firemen in Ontario are subject to military duty, Attorney-General Gordon Conant said today, following a petition from Mayor Joseph Meinzinger of Kitchener. In Kitchener, the mayor informed Mr. Conant, the problem is serious because 11 policemen are eligible for call for military service and two already have received notice.

"Policemen and firemen are considered to be front rank men as far as our own country is concerned," the mayor said in his communication. "These men have all been highly trained in drilling and first aid work and due to the fact that we have many war industries in Kitchener, the Hydro plant, and other important utilities along with No. 10 Base Training Centre, where many soldiers are stationed, I feel it is very important to maintain an efficient police and fire department."

"It is a matter for the Department of National Defence," Mr. Conant said. "I am not going to take any stand by word or deed as to recruiting for the armed forces, which are our first consideration."

Mr. Conant said he ould confer with Maj.-Gen. Constantine, officer commanding Military District No. 2 on the issue. Ottawa must rule, he said, as to the relative importance of policemen, firemen, civilian defence, and other services.

In England, he said, there is a selective service board which deals with whether a man is to remain in these services or serve in the armed forces.

New Plumbing, Heating Limited

OTTAWA, May 1 — (CP).—The Wartime Prices and Trade Board today announced an order standardizing varieties of plumbing and heating equipment and estimated the ruling will release enough metal to make 250 infantry tanks.

The order limits manufacture of boilers, heaters and hot water tanks to a prescribed range of sizes and types. Lines in little demand and for which standard sizes can be substituted have been cancelled.

The board's announcement said that in the radiator field alone an overall reduction of 84 per cent or 1,189 varieties, has been accomplished. Number of lines has been cut from 1,414 to 225. Boilers, in which some standardization has already taken place, are cut from 19 to 14. Sizes and square boilers from 10 to eight widths. Number of sizes of bungalow heaters is cut by half.

Grim Reminder Of Oklahoma Tornado Where 100 Died

Suddenly the winds gathered and ripped through two Oklahoma counties killing at least 100 and injuring hundreds more. Suddenly they stopped, leaving these scenes of grim desolation. This is at Pryor, a town that was growing with boom-like speed because of the war. It was hardest hit. At the TOP, autos, nosed into the curb, were demolished, as were the buildings behind them. But the wierdest caprice of it is shown at the BOTTOM where the whirlwinds hurtled the caskets into an empty lot from an undertaking establishment many blocks away. Here, too, the house in the background has been knocked askew by the winds.

MacArthur Aide, Writer Die In Crack Up

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 1 — (CP). The death in an airplane crash of Brig.-Gen. Harold H. George, 49, of the United States Army Air Force was announced today by United Nations headquarters. The crash occurred late Monday but details were withheld for the time being.

Also killed in the crash was Melville Jacoby, Time and Life magazine correspondent, who came to Australia from Bataan last month with his wife after living with the beleaguered U.S. and Filipino forces defending the peninsula against the Japanese invaders.

A First Great War hero, Brig.-Gen. George was chief air officer with Gen. MacArthur and had accompanied him on his daring dash from Bataan to Australia. He began his military career with the National Guard at Niagara Falls, N.Y. A lieutenant in the air corps in the last war, he won the Distinguished Service Cross for shooting down five German planes.

He sailed for Pacific duty April 21, last year, and was promoted from Lieutenant-Colonel to Colonel en route. He was promoted to Brigadier-General in January, 1942, and was assigned to Gen. MacArthur's forces in the Philippines.

Brig.-Gen. George entered the army in 1916 during the Mexican border crisis.

He was married in New York in 1910. Mrs. George and a daughter, Peggy, 19, live in Redlands, Calif. A son, Robert C., 21, is a private in the U.S. Army.

Went To Orient In 1939.

Jacoby, a graduate of Stanford University, went to the Orient soon after the outbreak of war in 1939 and was stationed at Chungking, China, as a newpaper and radio correspondent.

He later went to French Indo-China where, in November, 1940, he and a United States Vice-Consul were arrested by a Japanese sentry for taking pictures. They were not released until after the State Department in Washington had protested to French Indo-China.

Jacoby later went to Manila. Last November he was married there to Annalee Whitmore, of Buffalo, N.Y.

The couple fled to Corregidor just before the Japanese occupied the capital of the Philippines and were on that fortress island and with the American forces on Bataan Peninsula until last month, when they made a perilous 20-day voyage to Australia, leaving just before Gen. MacArthur and his party departed on their dash by motor torpedo boat and airplane.

With the Jacobys on their trip was Clark Lee, Associated Press correspondent.

Reject Limiting Of War Profits

WASHINGTON, May 1 — (AP). —By a single vote margin, the United States House of Representatives naval committee rejected today a measure to limit war profits, lift the statutory work week limit from 40 to 48 hours and freeze the status quo of closed and open shops for the duration of the war.

The vote was 13 to 12, and came shortly after Chairman Carl Vinson (Dem.-Ga.) told the members that "the American people are going to have something to say about this racketeering in war plants and in labor unions in every congressional district in the nation in the November elections.'"

The action, climax of two months of stormy hearings on the profits-labor issue, backed up President Roosevelt's message to Congress earlier this week that no labor legislation was necessary at the time.

It left the question of limiting war profits up to the Ways and Means committee, now studying the President's suggestion for a $25,000 ceiling on individual incomes after payment of taxes, along with other proposals for sharp increases in the excess profits levy.

Leaving Trondheim

London, May 1 (CP)

THE R.A.F.'s great air raids against Trondheim, Norway, on Monday and Tuesday nights have caused a mass exodus of the city's inhabitants, the Stockholm's Tidningen said today, according to a Reuters dispatch from Stockholm.

The newspaper reported several thousand persons left their homes for the shelter of woods the last three nights.

So great has been the evacuation from the city, it asserted, that German authorities posted notices forbidding workers in many industries to leave under any circumstances.

Raiders Get 20 Grounded Jap Planes Near Lae

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 1 — (CP). — —Allied planes destroyed or damaged 20 Japanese planes on the ground and started large fires in an attack yesterday on an enemy air base at Lae, New Guinea, it was announced to-day.

The assault was announced in a United Nations Headquarters communique which also said that Japanese planes had attacked Port Moresby, New Guinea, three times yesterday. Only minor damage was caused at Port Moresby.

In addition to the attack on Lae, Allied planes made a relatively light raid on the Japanese base at Kupang, capital of Netherlands Timor, the bulletin said.

Reporting on tite situation in the Philippines, Allied Headquarters said the Japanese had landed reinforcements from five transports at Parang on the west shore of Mindanao Island—apparently in a determined effort to crush the small American and Filipino forces which still are maintaining gallant resistance there.

Corregidor Fortress, the communique said, again underwent heavy bombing yesterday and the surrounding fortified islands were extensively shelled. The guns of the forts answered the Japanese fire, silencing three batteries and destroying a truck column on the Luzon shore, the Headquarters said.

No change was reported in the situation on Panay Island, where American and Filipino forces also are continuing resistance.

Rushing Tripoli, Haifa Railway

JERUSALEM, May 1 — British military authorities are rushing completion of a 160-mile railroad, from Haifa, Northern Palestine, to Tripoli, Northern Lebanon, destined to become one of the great Allied supply routes to the Middle East, it was revealed today.

The new link, costing millions of dollars, will be part of a strategic system of communications providing an alternative to existing hinterland railways from the Persian Gulf to Russia and Syria. When peace returns, the railway will be a permanent economic asset to Asia Minor.

Gangs of workers from the South African gold mines, assisted by thousands of native laborers, are driving spikes, carting off huge masses of earth, and building stone embankments and bridges along the shores of the Eastern Mediterranean. The tracks will run parallel to a highway, far excelling Mussolini's famed road along the Libyan coast.

When completed, the railway will be part of the Europe-Africa "4 C's" system, connecting Calais and Constantinople to Cairo and Cape Town.

Jap Silence Policy

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1 — (AP). — Japanese fliers who attempt to surrender after being shot down are killed by their colleagues, the Melbourne radio said last night in relating an interview with a young Australian fighter pilot.

"In a recent dog-fight over the New Guinea area, this pilot was flying an Australian Kittyhawk fighter when a Japanese Zero was shot down into the sea in flames," said the pilot. "Some minutes later we saw the Japanese pilot swimming toward shore from the wrecked plane. Another Zero immediately dived and machine-gunned the struggling pilot, who disappeared beneath the waves. It kept him from talking."

Suggest Beaver Was 'Indiscreet'

LONDON, May 1 — (CP) — Members of the House of Commons suggested today that Lord Beaverbrook was indiscreet in advocating a second European front in a New York speech April 23, but failed to obtain an expression of approval or disapproval from Prime Minister Churchill's spokesman.

Under sharp questioning, Clement Attlee, Dominions Secretary, told the House only that the Prime Minister had seen newspaper reports of the speech and his authority was not required, since Lord Beaverbrook was free to express his own opinions.

The British publisher is in the United States on a special mission.

He told the American Newspaper Publishers Association a week ago that the Allies, to ease the load on the eastern battlefront, should:—

"Strike out to help Russia. Strike out violently. Strike even recklessly."

Four Conservatives—Cmdr. Robert Bower, Francis Douglas, Earl Winterton and Maj. Victor Casalet—wanted to know whether Mr. Churchill approved the speech and precisely what Lord Beaverbrook's status was in relation to the gove[rn]ment.

One question implied the spe[ech] might do "incalculable harm."

Mr. Attlee replied that Lord Be[av]erbrook was not holding a defi[nite] appointment.

"He was undertaking a spe[cial] mission of an informal kind and is not in the same position as so[me]one directly in the employ of [the] government," the Dominions Sec[re]tary said.

There was laughter when he c[on]cluded:—

"He is still doing certain inform[a]tion work."

17 Die As Big Airliner Hits Utah Ridge

By OTIS J. PSUEY
Associated Press Staff Writer.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 2—(AP). — A Sleeper United Airlines transport plowed into a storm-lashed ridge within sight of Salt Lake City's airport late last night, killing 14 passengers and a crew of three.

George Gearhart, watchman at an inn on the highway about a mile below the site and first to reach the scene, said one man lived for a few minutes. All others, including one infant, apparently were instantly killed.

Scars on the groud indicated the plane struck on the edge of a shallow gully near the summit of the ridge, approximately 4½ miles from the airport, destination of the east - bound San Francisco transport.

Wreckage was scattered over a wide area. Some bodies, mangled, were thrown clear. Others lay in the debris. Bodies in the wreckage were charred by a gasoline-fed fire that flared up as the big liner smashed against the rocky slope.

One body, entirely nude, lay in the bottom of the gully, untouched by fire.

One wing, broke off, came to rest parallel to the ridge. The other pointed toward the valley.

Gearhart said he watched the plane circle and glide along the ridge, apparently headed for the airport. Airlines officials said visibility was good. Gearhart said a light rain was falling, but the clouds were high and he could see the plane's wing lights.

"I watched the plane fly along the mountain and saw it hit. I could tell it hit the side of the mountain 'cause the lights in the plane seemed to bounce.

Flash And Plane Burns.

"About two or three seconds after the plane hit, there was a huge flash and the plane began to burn."

Gearhart estimated it took him 25 minutes to reach the scene. He found one man alive and tried to talk to him.

"I think the man knew I was there but he couldn't talk. He opened his eyes. He was groaning and waving his arms. I found some blankets near the wreckage and covered him up. I looked around to see if anyone else was alive."

Finding none, Gearhart returned to the inn and called officers.

A wind-driven sleet storm which bore out an earlier published forecast was in progress on the mountainside but the fire was clearly visible from a long distance. Only light rain fell in the valley.

The ship had come in from San Francisco for a landing and was circling the valley. A crash crew from the airport, police and fire department rescue crews were quickly on the scene.

City officers borrowed four-wheel drive army army truck in an effort to negotiate a roundabout road to bring out the bodies. Mud bogged down regular equipment.

A guard was established through the early morning.

2 Suspected Nippon Planes Scout Area; Allies Raid Gasmata

United Nations Headquarters, Australia, May 2 (CP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today that two suspicious planes which flew far down Australia's east coast over the port of Townsville were fired on by anti-aircraft batteries yesterday while Allied airmen again were raining bombs on the enemy airdrome at Gasmata, New Britain.

As Australian and American planes kept up their daily assaults on Japanese bases threatening Australia, a correspondent of the Melbourne Herald warned that the Allied air force is facing heavy odds and urgently needs more planes, men and bombs in order to keep strategic Port Moresby, New Guinea, secure.

The planes sighted over Townsville, about 700 miles south of Cape York, Australia's northeasternmost area, were not identified and the communique said attempts to intercept them were unsuccessful.

The planes were at an altitude of about 30,000 feet in a cloudless sky—ideal for aerial photography or scouting. The region around Townsville immediately was put on the alert for a possible air raid or invasion attempt.

An Important Channel.

Gasmata lies about 240 miles northeast of Lae, Japanese base on the New Guinea coast at which Australian and American airmen have struck repeatedly during the last week. Together the two bases give the enemy a measure of control over the 100-mile-wide passage between New Guinea and New Britain, strategic gateway to the waters immediately north of Australia.

The bulletin announcing the Gasmata raid also reported the destruc-

Reds In Baltic Sink 115th Transport

Battleship Among 447 Ships Sunk; Blow To Finn Front

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, May 2. — (AP)—The Red Navy's Baltic fleet has sunk its 115th Axis transport, a 9,000-ton German craft, and Soviet land and air forces have further battered Hitler's war machine, the Russians said today.

The Soviet Information Bureau announced destruction of the Nazi transport in a communique broadcast from Moscow.

This followed up a May Day radio announcement that 447 German vessels, including a battleship and a cruiser, had been sunk in Baltic fleet operations in the effort to sever German-Finnish communications and cut the flow of troops to northern fronts.

(The toll presumably covered the full course of the Nazi-Soviet war. The announcement did not say specifically.)

Suspect Nipponese After Assam Road Now Burma Line Cut

NEW DELHI, India, May 2—(CP)—Battered back by the Japanese thrust into the heart of the Kipling country, British and Indian forces were withdrawing to-day north of the big bend of the Irrawaddy virtually at the outskirts of Mandalay, destroying the important rail lines and highway bridges 10 miles south of the former capital of Burma's kings.

(Japanese headquarters claimed that Mandalay had been captured yesterday along with the remaining military stores cut off there by severing the Burma Road to China at Lashio, 135 miles north-east.)

Although the battle apparently is developing almost in the outskirts of the colorful city of Kipling's song, it has become a sideshow to the invaders' northward drive from Lashio creating a grave new peril for Free China.

The communique said fighting still was continuing "in and around" Onywa, 50 miles west of Mandalay, but that "on the Mandalay front all British troops are being withdrawn from the position north of the Irrawaddy."

During the enemy's rapid penetration northward, the war bulletin from the Burma front declared, "The Japanese have carried out systematic and indiscriminate bombings of towns in Central Burma" which caused only "negligible" military damage but set towns afire and inflicted severe civilian losses.

City In Pocket.

Mandalay actually was pocketed, with the invaders now standing northwest as well as northeast of the city and the British forces falling back, systematically blowing up bridges and putting every possible barrier in the enemy's path.

(The Tokyo radio claimed today that Japanese troops already are in possession of Mandalay, but authoritative quarters in London said there was no immediate confirmation from British or Chinese sources).

After a 50-mile withdrawal in the south along the main Rangoon-Mandalay railroad from the Meiktila-Thazi area, British forces have linked up with forces in the east,

U.K. Calls 83,000 Off Civil Defence For War Industry

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 1—(CP)—Underscoring the need for still greater production as the corollary of any offensive against the continent, Britain is drafting 83,000 men from the Civil Defence forces and placing them in expanding war industry.

Part-time personnel, called up by the government will fill the gaps in the defence lineup under the direction of Home Security Minister Herbert Morrison.

Announcing the decision to reduce civil defence forces by one third, Mr. Morrison said his intention was to use the men of A.R.P. staffs and casualty clearing and rescue squads for "offensive action instead of defensive thinking."

Full-time civilian defence workers who are not released for work in war industry will be required to do such work as snow-removal and coal delivery where able. Persons released will be obliged to return to whole-time civil defence in the event of heavy air raids.

A Year of Ease.

For nearly a year this army of potential workers has had little to do while across the channel the heavy industry on which the German Army relies has taken such a pounding from the Royal Air Force that some 1,500,000 Germans have been "pinned down" or immobilized for defence work.

"The country is burning to get on with the offensive and the home front is quiet," said Mr. Morrison. "If any risk of weakening our civil defence is involved it is a risk which I know the country is more than ready to take."

The press welcomes the move to end what is viewed as extravagant use of manpower in civil defence when raids are confined to nuisance attacks. Also, experience has shown there can be no complete immunity from danger no matter how many are engaged in civil defence duties.

Consolation to the already hard-working Britons is evidence that

Commando Raid May Open Attack

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

There is a growing feeling among military observers that an answer to the Russian appeal for the opening of a second front in Western Europe may be developing through the daring and devastating raids onto the continent by the tough British Commandos, coupled with the heavy air offensive which has been opened against the Nazis by the Royal Air Force.

The expectation is that there will be an increase in these astonishing stories of the black-face Commandos.

It is likely that as conditions warrant we shall see not only one but several raids simultaneously up and down the continental coast, destroying strong enemy positions and prodding for weak points in the German defence. Some day one of these raids will capture a port, and the Commandos will get their feet firmly enough on the ground so that they can stick in the face of enemy counter-attacks.

That will provide a spearhead which can be followed up quickly with other troops and equipment.

Labor Shortage Big B.C. Worry

VANCOUVER, May 2 — (CP). — Nearly every industry in British Columbia anticipates a labor shortage this summer and in many cases the pinch is being felt already, it is shown in a province-wide survey by The Canadian Press.

Aggravating the shortage on workers outside the urban districts of Vancouver and Victoria is the wide-spread circulation of a rumor that labor may shortly be "frozen," pinning men to whatever jobs they now occupy. Although there has been no official indiction such action is contemplated hundreds of men are said to have left mines and camps in remote districts for cities which they would find more congenial if such an event occurred.

Fires Sweeping East Coast Bush

BOSTON, May 2.—(AP).—A destructive forest fire that had raged for two days near Coventry, R.I., was reported under control to-day, but new outbreaks were reported in Connecticut.

With the damage from scores of woodland fires in New England in the last few days estimated unofficially at more than $2,000,000, Connecticute State Forester Austin F. Hawkes told reporters:

"Our facilities are greatly over-taxed and fires seem to be breaking out all over the eastern section of the State."

The Coventry fire, which extended into the Sterling, Conn., area, destroyed 1,500,000 [illegible] of government-stored lumber and razed at least 14 farm homes.

Brig.-Gen. Peter Leo Cannon, who directed Rhode Island State Guardsmen at the fire, said that in his opinion the fire was set.

Escaped German Aviator Caught In Texas

DETROIT, May 2—(AP).—John S. Bugas, agtent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation here, said today that Lieut. Peter Krug, Nazi flier who fled from a Canadian war prisoners camp and crossed into the United States at Detroit, was captured Friday night in San Antonio, Texas.

Krug, the F.B.I. agent said, registered at a small San Antonio hotel whose owner became suspicious and called police. The fugitive Nazi made no attempt to resist, Bugas said, when two F.B.I. men and two San Antonio detectives burst into his room.

Krug escaped from a prison camp at Bowmanville, Ont., April 16 with Erich Boehl, another German flier. Boehl was recaptured at Niagara Falls, N.Y., but Krug made his way to Windsor, Ont., where he stole a small boat and rowed across the Detroit river.

F.B.I. agents said the flier went to the home of Mrs. Marguerita Oertelmann who communicated with Max Stephan, operator of a restaurant on Detroit's east side. Stephan, German native who is a naturalized American citizen, was quoted by F.B.I. agents as saying he fed Krug, gave him money, took him on a round of beer gardens and finally, on Sunday, April 19, put him on a bus for Chicago. Stephen is held under $25,000 bond on charges of harboring an enemy alien.

To Chicago, East Coast

Bugas said that from papers found in Krug's possession at San Antonio, agents learned he had gone to Chicago and from there to the east coast, before making his way to Texas en route to a Mexican address. In Krug's possession, Bugas said, agent found a pistol which the Nazi had obtained in Chicago.

The F.B.I. agent here said the fugitive first denied he was Krug but admitted his identity at 2.30 a.m. today.

U.S. district attorney John Lehr of Detroit has recommended that Stephan be charged with treason for harboring Krug here. Mrs. Bertelmann, whose name Stephan said Krug obtained from presents she sent to the Canadian prison camp, is detained by U.S. immigration authorities. She was given a hearing before the alien enemy board, and the testimony was sent to U.S. attorney-general Francis Biddle who is to determine whether she will be interned as a dangerous alien, placed on parole or released.

Fears of 2nd Mystery Raid Upset Tokyo

Despite Pledge To Keep War Away, Jap Cities In Range Of U.S. Bomber Bases

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(CP).—For two weeks the military rulers of Japan and the Japanese people, themselves, have been left to worry about one of the major mysteries of the war: Whose planes bombed Tokyo the night of April 17?

The Tokyo announcement merely referred to 'enemy bombers.'

Washington has maintained silence about the raid—neither admitting nor denying they were American planes—for what are believed to be psychological reasons. Men who are familiar with the Japanese people say they have almost a morbid fear of attack from the air and it is to capitalize this national psychosis that Washington has never made an official admission about the Tokyo raid.

To understand Japan's fear of bombing, it is necessary to remember that the Japanese literally live in houses of tinder. Their bamboo and paper houses make their cities more vulnerable to air attack than the cities of any other nation. Fear of fire is bred in the Japanese people.

Because these combustible cities with their teeming millions make an ideal set-up for air attacks, the Japanese militarists began to drill the people in air raid precautions long before any other country went in for them. But more than that—and this accounts for the psycological tinge to the whole account of the Tokyo raid—they promised the Japanese people they would carry the war far beyond the range of bombers and that the land of the cherry blossoms would never be a target for incendiaries or high explosive bombs.

Apart altogether from the fire-trap features of Japanese cities, Japan's wartime industry is concentrated in a small area and to destroy it or cripple it would be to destroy Japan's ability to make war.

Although the Japanese have increased their margin of safety by conquests in various directions, particularly in the Southwest Pacific, Japan is still within effective range for big, four-engine bombers. It is only a jump of 675 miles from Vladivostok to Tokyo and 1,500 miles from Petropavlovsk on the Kamchatka peninsula. Fortunately for Japan, both bases are on Russian soil and the Soviet is still officially at peace with Japan, but few people here believe this state of affairs will last.

Japan is within easy bombing range of many areas of China that could be developed into effective air bases. Japan, undoubtedly, has been straining every resource to close the Burma Road and China's alternative supply links with the outside world primarily to block the flow of planes that have gone to China and will go in ever-increasing numbers by one channel or another.

Apart from the Asiatic mainland and taking no consideration of carrier-borne naval bombers, Japan is still within range of American bases in the north Pacific. The air distance between Dutch Harbor in the Aleutian Islands and Tokyo is 2,900 miles and the United States probably has other bases among the islands, perhaps the Attu group, that would reduce the flight to 2,100 or 2,200 miles.

Darwin in northern Australia is 3,375 miles from Tokyo and Pearl Harbor in Hawaii, 3,850 miles.

All these distances, it is admitted, are extremely long even for mod-

5th Column Ruse For Raids

'Spy' Nabbed About To Signal In Mock Raid

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, May 2.—(CP)—Canadians tried fifth column tactics in a recent mock raid of a "Viking" force against British Commandos and home guards during combined operations training.

But the secret agent, Lieut. Bill Scott of Windsor, Ont., wound up in a Commando guard house.

Three days before the night of the assault Scott was sent to an island off the British coast which was the Canadian target. The air force and the navy helped him to his destination.

In civvies, posing as a United States officer on leave, he reconnoitred the whole area and checked the landing spots. He planned to signal with a flashlight when the raiders approached.

A police inspector questioned him as a suspicious character but Scott satisfied him. Then the Commandos grabbed him near their headquarters. The colonel questioned him and released him in custody of two big Commandos. Scott escaped while his guards were having dinner and slipped to the beach where he hid.

The night the raiders neared the beach Scott left his hiding place to signal them but three Commandos popped up and grabbed him.

Scott was taken back to Commando headquarters, lectured by the colonel and thrown into the guardhouse. He escaped again after cuffing a lax sentry on the head and caught up with the raiders as they were leaving.

Four Months' Action At Sea Tops Whole 1st War

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP).—The United States' navy announced to-day the loss of 5,486 dead and missing in the first four months of naval warfare.

The casualty recapitulation, first of the war, included marine and coast guard personnel as parts of the navy and covered the period from Dec. 7 to April 15 inclusive. It gave this summary: Dead 2,991, missing 2,495, wounded 907, total 9,393.

Officials said most of the casualties resulted from direct action with the enemy but included some lost in accidents at sea, in the air or on war duty. Natural deaths were not included. The total may be increased somewhat by late-arriving reports from distant war zones.

The four-month total was half again as large as the casualty figure for the entire First Great War, when some 3,500 officers and men were killed in action or lost.

It included the Pearl Harbor incident. The latest figures on Pearl Harbor came from President Roosevelt several weeks ago and gave the dead as 2,114 navy men and 226 soldiers.

Prisoners were not included among the casualties.

Officials said it was possible that some men counted as missing would eventually show up as prisoners but those whose capture by the Japanese may be reasonably assumed were not counted as missing.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MEMBER URGES CONSCRIPTION FOR CANADA

Conscription Demand Before House

"Without Restriction" Urges Vancouver M.P. Wants Full Army in BC

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 2—(CP)—A specific request by a member of the House of Commons that the Government move to enforce compulsory military servic without restriction has been made in the House.

The request, based upon the affirmative majority recorded in last Monday's plebiscite, was made near the end of yesterday's session by Howard Green (Con., Vancouver South).

Mr. Green suggested an amendment to section three of the National Resources Mobilization Act which provides that men called up for compulsory training may not be forced to serve outside Canada or its territorial waters.

There was no specific reply from the Government but Defence Minister Ralston, who was leading the House, said that the question of sending an expeditionary force across the Pacific was a matter that "has to do with the plebiscite," and "will be taken care of when the time comes."

Mr. Green's suggestion came near the end of the sh t Friday sitting which was devoted entirely to discussion of the War Appropriation Bill with Col. Ralston listening to suggestions and criticism of his Department and answering questions.

The Vancouver South member advocated the creation of a complete army on the Pacific coast, ready to fight anywhere—Alaska, Siberia or in the Far East.

He said this army should be as well trained as the army in Britain although he was not suggesting it should be so large.

A Force With No Ties.

In addition to defending the coast against possible attack it should be available for service outside the Dominion.

That army should be "composed of men who can be sent anywhere," Mr. Green contended. At present the army in Canada had a great many in it, except in the Fourth Division, who were raised by the compulsory service system and could not be ordered outside Canada.

Col. Ralston gave the House fig-

One of these was shot down by Allied patrols which intercepted a formation of five planes attacking Port Moresby, the communique said.

The other was destroyed by an Allied reconnaissance plane which was attacked by seven enemy fighters and came through a furious dogfight with flying colors. Headquarters said the Allied plane probably damaged another of the Japanese craft.

Slashing Costs For Tourist Promotion

OTTAWA, May 2—(CP).—Tourist promotion expenditures by the Canadian Travel Bureau will be reduced this year to a point "substantially below" the $500,000 outlay last year, National War Services Department officials said today.

The final budget has not been decided, but a figure between $100,000 and $200,000 was considered likely.

Officials said it is not expected that travel advertising in the United States will be abandoned entirely as a large number of United States tourists will again cross the border this year although fewer will be travelling by car.

Rubber and gasoline conservation programs are as extensive in the United States as in Canada and Canadian tourist advertising will not encourage tourists to travel long distances to Canada by car.

Advertising in the United States has laid stress on the number of Canadian holiday resorts which can be conveniently reached by railway or boat and they are expected to attract many patrons this year, officials said.

When we reach that happy day the invasion probably will be on, and it will have been inaugurated without risking a big army, an armada of transports, a massed naval force and a vast aerial fleet all at one time.

Before such an operation can be successful, however, Allied air fighters must secure control of the air over Western Europe. The Royal Air Force already has superiority, but it hasn't that supremacy which would enable it to give complete protection to a large-scale land invasion. The air forces are storming the German skies now not only to destroy war production and other military objectives but to wrest supremacy from the Nazi fliers.

Tar-Trailer Fire Damages Tire

LAKEFIELD, May 2—(ENS).—A broken oil connection on the highway truck tar trailer, set fire to the apparatus Thursday morning and caused a general alarm that brought out the full fire department.

The machine in Stan Richardson's yard was just about to be moved out for the day's work when the leaking oily apparently took fire from the burner.

Swarms Of R.A.F. Battering At Coast Areas

LONDON, May 2 — (CP).—British bombing squadrons hit in force at Nazi centres along the French coast by twilight yesterday and then returned to their bases to spend a second night aground while Nazi raiders likewise remained at home.

"The weather last night was unsuitable for large-scale operations, but aircraft of the coastal command attacked enemy shipping off the Norwegian coast and hit a destroyer," the Air Ministry said. "Airdromes in Northern France were bombed by aircraft of the fighter command."

One coastal command plane was reported missing from the nocturnal operations.

Hundreds of planes — Boston (Douglas) bombers, bomb-carrying Hurricanes, and escorting fighter squadrons—struck across the English Channel at dusk against the port of Calais, the station and railway yards at St. Omer and other targets to follow up several small-scale sweeps by pursuit groups.

Coastal observers, to whom the grey cliffs of Northern France were clearly visible, said the raiders dotted the sky for miles in flight at altitudes between 20,000 and 30,000 feet.

The Air Ministry said eight British fighters are missing from the day's operations, although the pilot of one was saved. One German plane was destroyed, the Ministry said.

"No bombers were lost," the Air Ministry added.

Quiet Night In Britain

A tacit German bid for a truce in the cross-channel aerial war may have been indicated by the fact that, defensively, British authorities found "nothing to report" overnight.

Nazi raids of the last week, frankly labelled in Berlin as retaliatory, were apparently broken off after scattered actions over the southwest English coast early yesterday which were officially declared to have caused little damage and no serious casualties.

British bombers had stayed at their bases Thursday night after hammering at German bases and supply centres in mass attacks for eight straight nights. The interruption was attributed here to bad weather over the continent.

Cessation of Nazi forays against Britain followed.

Dispatches from Germany by way of neutral cities previously had been interpreted by some London quarters as hints that the Germans are eager to end the winged warfare. One dispatch said "the present bombing duel is highly unpopular with the German people."

But a British authority declared "we are going after those blighters wherever they are and at every chance we get, and that is final."

The Nazi destroyer hit off the Norwegian coast was reported steaming at high speed when a Hudson glided down silently in brilliant moonlight and dropped two bombs on her deck.

The rear turret gunner said he saw two bright flashes on the destroyer as the bombs exploded. The crew reported the Germans were taken by surprise and did not fire a shot.

As the Hudson headed homeward, the pilot reported, smoke was rising from the warship and another destroyer was surrying to her aid.

By trade he was a mechanic and prior to his enlistment was employed at Wilson Motors in Cobourg. He enlisted in the R.C.A.F. about a year and one-half ago and took up aero engineering. He was stationed at Toronto and then was moved to St. Thomas where he graduated. Later he was moved to Brandon. About two weeks ago he was in Cobourg on leave.

In his 34th year he is survived by his widow and two children; his mother, Mrs. James McGuire and a brother, Jack, also survive.

Educational secretary, Mrs. Elliott, then introduced Mrs. J. B. Kelly as guest speaker for this meeting. Mrs. Kelly, who had lived for fourteen years in China, gave a most instructive address on "The background of this present conflict between China and Japan," going back to the beginning of the 19th century. Mrs. Kelly began her address by saying that from the 19th century the self governing states of the Orient had been given two choices, first, adopt western forms of organization or secondly, to accept some form of western domination. This was a most interesting and instructive address.

101 Medals Given Bataan's Heroes

WASHINGTON, May 2—(AP).— The heroism of 101 Americans and Filipinos in the defence of the Philippines was officially recognized yesterday in a War Department communique announcing a list of awards of the Distinguished Service Cross.

Covering awards made since the Japanese invasion of the islands started on December 7, the list included the names of Lieutenant-General Johathan M. Wainwright, now Philippines commander, and others whose decorations had been reported previously.

Added to the generals honored was Brigadier-General Spencer B. Akin, whose wife lives in Charlottesville, Va.

One Navy officer Lieutenant John D. Bulkeley, commander of a squadron of motor torpedo boats which inflicted heavy damage on enemy shipping, has been given the Army's Distinguished Service Cross, it was disclosed. Bulkeley, whose wife lives in San Antonio, Tex., already held the Navy Cross.

The roll of heroes included also the names of several other Americans and Filipinos, whose exploits have become a part of the Pacific war saga, among them:

Major Thomas J. H. Trapnell, who destroyed a bridge in Northern Luzon in the face of heavy fire from the advancing Japanese.

Captain Colin P. Kelly, Jr., bomber pilot credited with the destruction of the Japanese battleship Haruna. The decoration was awarded posthumously inasmuch as Kelly met death on the flight.

Captain Arthur W. Wermuth, the "one-man army" of the Bataan Peninsula fighting, who was credited with the slaying of more than 130 Japs.

Closeups From Capital Hill

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 2. —(CP)— Odds and ends from Parliament Hill:

"The Corvette," coming movie about the Royal Canadian Navy and the Battle of the Atlantic, apparently is going to end on a heroic note . . . It's planned to have the ship sink after she's steered intentionally into the path of a torpedo.

One of the press gallery men suggested to Director Richard Rosson that there have been too many "glorious stands" in this war . . . He wanted a happy ending . . . But the director turned thumbs down.

Success of "Captains Of the Clouds," Royal Canadian Air Force film glamorizor, was one of the big factors in the decision to make "The Corvette," aimed at doing the same thing for the Navy.

On the subject of movies: The film used in making up "Inside Fighting Russia," prepared by the National Film Board, was loaned by the Russian government on the sole condition it mustn't be used to the detriment of the Soviet . . . Quite definitely, it wasn't.

The 25th of the "Canada Carries On" series has just been released—"High Over the borders" . . . A newspaper audience saw it here this week . . . It's a movie about western hemisphere bird migration, first of its kind ever made . . . If you like birds you'll enjoy it—there are millions in it.

Commons Cuffnotes

When Dr. J. K. Blair (Lib. Wellington North) suggested every minister should have a loudspeaker on his desk to make himself heard he voiced the sentiments of the press gallery . . . the newsmen find Finance Minister Ilsley the worst offender . . . the House finds him hard to hear too . . . He announced some tax concessions just after Dr. Blair made his loudspeaker suggestion and more than one member shouted "louder."

Rev. E. G. Hansell (N.D. MacLeod) boasted in the House his Alberta constituency has more air training schools than any other riding . . . "You must have some goodwill," said C. E. Johnston (N.D. Bow River) . . . "I have ways," said Mr. Hansell—but he didn't elucidate . . . Maybe that western weather has something to do with it.

A. W. Neill (Ind. Commox-Alberni) was talking about difficulty in obtaining certain dependents' allowances and commented: "A man could get into the senate more easily than succeed in one of those cases" . . . It doesn't seem very easy to get into the Upper House these days . . . Mr. Neill must have forgotten those 15 vacancies, some of them unfilled for more than a year.

Defence Minister Ralston told the House about a man in his riding who has 10 sons . . . "seven are in the army," he said, "two are on the waiting list now for the Navy and Air Force, and the last is being called up" . . . "That," said the Minister, "is not a bad contribution."

Miscellaneous Intelligence

The new walking-out uniforms for the Army in Canada will be going out in number soon . . . The Jackets are the determining factor . . . They've been coming in slowly but Munitions and Supply is taking steps to speed delivery . . . Col. Ralston says about 7,000 jackets now are on hand.

The Navy term "hard lying" came up in the House the other day . . . We'll bet few members knew what it meant . . . one of our Navy friends says the best part of it is that it means extra pay . . . The worst part is that it also means the ship in which you go "Down to the Sea" is more uncomfortable than most.

"Pretty much just a conduit pipe" is State Secretary McLarty's own description for one of his duties . . . When a member's question involves replies from several government departments the State Secretary has the responsibility for seeing all the required answers come in.

J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) filled three columns of Hansard with sub-titles from the government telephone directory . . . He read them into the record when he was talking on the war appropriation bill to give members a "sketch" of the Defence Department.

Hastings Puts Curb On Dance Halls

HASTINGS, May 2.—(ENS).—In order to avoid any occurrence of a situation which arose last summer, the council Friday night passed a motion whereby it would have the right to close any or all operating dance halls in the village one night a week to clear the way for patriotic fund raising work. Aimed primarily against dance hall operators who go out of their way to stage a dance to take advantage of and interfere with war charity events, the motion passed without a dissenting vote.

"We aren't going to tolerate these unpatriotic individuals who purposely try to balk the war effort by taking advantage of a large crowd in town to put on their private dance,' stated Reeve L. E. Kelley.

"Events for war purposes should have preference in a small municipality," commented Councillor Stanley Stevenson as he made it clear that no licenses would be issued unless the new regulation was agreed to in writing.

The motion, as moved by Councillors Stevenson and Lynch, stipulated that the council reserves the right to have any one night in any one week to close all dance halls in the village wherein entertainments are put on in the village by any organization solely for war purposes. This to be stipulated in any license issued and signed. Notification of such action must be given one week in advance.

Reeve Kelley stated that every effort would be exerted so that the new regulations would not interfere with the operators regular dance nights.

He also pointed out that the motion does not pertain to euchres, bingoes, etc., even though they are for war purposes.

Regarding grants to charitable organizations council expressed the opinion that these should be eliminated as far as possible during war time. Members doubted if they had the legal right to accede to these requests in any case.

A letter from G. R. Cottrelle, Dominion oil controller, advised that in the near future an order would be issued limiting the use of asphalt to essential industries.

Assessment Roll.

The assessment roll as submitted by J. E. Oliver, assessor, showed a drop in the village assessment of $14.76 from the previous year. Total assessment at the present time is $352,002.86, while in 1941 the figure stood at $352,017.10. Court of revision will be held this year on Tuesday, May 26.

Following accounts were ordered paid: Wm. William, constable and town hall, $36.33; George Lynch, fire dept., $7; Bell Telephone, $4.68; Hydro Commission, street lights, $101.35; public school, $150; Wm. West, labour, $12.09; W. H. McMillan, labour, $3; J. M. Baker, material, 15c; John McMillan, labor, $26; Dan Noonan labour, $14.90; Municipal World, material, $3.50; J. Brinklow, fire dept., $1.00; Iden Bonds, Jr., fire department, $1.00; Walter Dodd, fire department, $1.00; Wm. Sherwin, labour, $7.50; Wm. McGrayne material, $31.50.

Trent River Garage Is Again Robbed

CAMPBELLFORD, May 2 (ENS) —For the second time within a week John L. Hay, Trent River service station proprietor was visited by thieves. Though they broke into his shop five days ago and helped themselves to auto accessories all they did this time was help themselves to a supply of gasoline. Preacher's First Duty Is To Awaken the Sleeping

By REV. E. R. JAMES

Ezekiel, thou are unto them as a very lovely song of one that that a pleasant voice, and can play well on an instrument.—Ezekiel 33; 32.

Ezekiei was the first Jewish prophet in the land of Babylon some two thousand five hundred years ago. He is the first to have a settled congregation. A prophet is one who reveals the mind of God to his generation—the modern preacher. It startles us to realize that Ezekiel went through experiences common to every man who has received "authority to preach the Word of God."

As a man sent from God he had meditated deeply upon his message. Like all such men it was a burden to him. He felt the strain and responsibility. There was also a joy. He had digested the words of God into his very heart and mind till they became in his mouth "as honey for sweetness."

The story is very modern; verses 30-33:

"They speak every one to his brother, saying, Come, I pray you, and hear what is the Word that cometh forth from the Lord." You pick up your Saturday paper and decide whom you will hear on Sunday. You may even call up a neighbor and invite him and add your appreciation of the preacher. "Thou are unto them as a lovely song of one that hath a pleasant voice, and can play well on an instrument." In modern English an excellent preacher.

More modern. "They come unto thee and sit before thee as my people and they hear thy words, but they will not do them."

"With their mouth they show much love, but their heart goeth after their covetousness." Think of the sermons preached in your community every Sunday and the heart-breaking results. Do you wonder many a preacher becomes flabid and longs for the day when he will retire with a small pension? He began with zeal and enthusiasm. He heard words of prise. "They show much love." The charming people who shook hands and thanked him. He looked for results of new living and Christian character, and found none. How true is the condemnation: "Their heart goeth after their covetousness." They worship mammon, the god of gold and success. Do these words rebuke the sermon taster who loves good preaching and lets it go at that.

Why do you go to Church? The popular answer is to hear the preacher. The preacher's first duty, the prophet's primary thought is to awaken and arouse the sleeping. He is God's watchman. If he gives not warning their blood is upon his head. "His blood will I require at thy hand." v. 8. If you merely go to Church to hear the sermon very probably you will not develop in Christian character and become rock men.

God calls His people Sunday after Sunday to worship Him. "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God." Worship means giving something to God. Listening to an excellent sermon means getting some good for your self. It is spiritual selfishness.

The popular reason for staying away from church is that he cannot preach. "I get no good from his sermons" is a popular complaint. Remember that the devil is always glad to see you go to church to get good. It is the sin of the Pharisee: "Lord, I thank Thee I am not as other men, I hear good sermons."

To receive good from the sermon you must prepare your heart. Ponder upon these ancient and well-known words: "We assemble and meet together to render thanks for the great benefits we have received at His hands, to set forth His most worthy praise, to hear His most Holy Word." Have you prepared your heart to receive the message? Then no matter how feeble the preacher, you will receive some blessing. No man comes into God's House to give Him confession, praise and thanksgiving but will return with a blessing. "Open thy mouth wide and I will fill it," is the divine promise.

There never was a time for deeper repentance and amendment of life. Terrible days face us. We must stay our hearts and minds on God and not upon covetousness. We and our fathers have worshipped success. "Get rich" has been our motto.

Many hearers of sermons will say in that day: "Lord, Lord, we have heard many preachers, many prophets, excellent sermons." Sadly the Lord will answer: "I never knew you; depart from Me, ye that work iniquity."—St. Matthew 7: 23.

The Lord hath sent unto you all His servants the prophets, but ye have not hearkened, nor inclined your ear to hear.

Sunday—The Day of Acclaim

By NEMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 3 is Mark 11:1-11; Luke 19:41-44; the Golden Text being Mark 11:9, "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.")

There is something especially delightful to us who follow Christ's life on earth, about His triumphant entry into Jerusalem. It is as if a dear earthly friend, who has had a hard struggle, finally has a wonderful happines sand triumph; is acclaimed by all for his superior qualities and achievements. Even though he may suffer later, we share with him the joy of this day.

It is not a day of unmitigated joy for our Lord. Before the journey is ended He weeps over Jerusalem. But it is a happy day, nevertheless, for at the end, we are told, He went back to Bethany, and to the home of His dear friends, Martha, Mary and Lazarus.

It is told that when Christ and His disciples neared Jerusalem, near also to Bethany and Bethphage, He called two of His disciples and told them to go to the next village, where they would find a young colt tied that had never been ridden by a human being. The colt was an ass, a stately, livelier, swifter animal than ...rs, and one on which kings and princes rode.

The Lord's Need Enough

They were to untie this colt and bring him to Jesus. If anyone asked them why they were taking him, they would answer, "The Lord hath need of him," and no one would interfere. The two did as they were asked, found the colt tethered to his master's house, and brought him to Jesus. Some did ask why they loosed him, but when they gave Jesus answer, they were allowed to take him.

When the disciples brought the animal to Jesus, they put their garments on him and Jesus mounted. Others spread their outer wraps in front of Him and still others cut down palm branches and strewed them in His path, and a great procession started toward Jerusalem, the people shouting with joy and singing, "Hosanna; blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord: Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hossanna in the highest."

Thus triumphantly Jesus entered into Jerusalem a few short days before the time He was to suffer arrest and humiliations, scourgings, etc., and a terrible death, deserted by His friends. Entering the temple at Jerusalem He looked about, and then, as even time had come, "He went out to Bethany with the twelve."

St. Luke tells of the one incident in the Saviour's progress that is not a happy one. As they descended the Mount of Olives toward the city, St. Luke says:

"He behald the city, and wept over it, saying, If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes.

"For the days shall come upon thee, that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee round, and keep thee in on every side.

"And shall lay these even with the ground and thy children within thee; and they shall not leave in thee one stone upon another; because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation."

Forty years later the prophecy was fulfilled, under Titus, the Roman general. The city was destroyed, made an utter ruin, one stone not being left upon another. The inhabitants were all slain. Seeing this would come, the Master wept.

Nevertheless He and His diciples, surrounded by a happy, shouting multitude, entered the city, and went to the temple, where Jesus looked about Him, and as it grew late, He and His friends went to Bethany where they were sure of a welcome.

This was on Sunday—Palm Sunday we call it—and the Thursday following Jesus spent in the Garden of Gethsamane, in great grief an anguish of spirit, and Friday He was crucified. The powers of evil had their way for a little time, but Right trimphed in the end. The Romans and rulers of the temple thought they had put out of the world a dangerous person, one whom they feared and hence hated. But where are they today? Who knows their names and where they lie? While all the Christian world worships and bows down before the Savior, Jesus Christ.

Christ's entry into Jerusalem

Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord."—Mark 11:9.

Peterboro A.Y.P.A. Council To Mark 21st Anniversary

The Peterborough District A.Y.P.A. Council is celebrating its twenty-first anniversary May 6.

With the motto "For Christ and the Church" the leaders have given the young people a four-fold program: Worship, Work, Fellowship and Edification.

The first meeting of the A.Y.P.A. Peterborough, was held at St. John's Church, Lakefield in May 1921. Miss Jane Horsefield was the Council's first president. At that time there were three branches that formed the Peterborough District Council, St. Thomas', Millbrook; St. John's, Lakefield; and St. John's, Peterborough. Two others, All Saints', Peterborough, and Christ Church, Omemee, joined during the year.

More branches were added and by 1937, there were thirteen branches which included St. Luke's and St. George's, Peterborough; St. Paul's, Lindsay; St. John's, Ida; St. James' Emily; Christ Church, Campbellford; St. George's, Hastings; and St. Mary's, Lifford.

Main Organizer

Miss Blanche Graham of Lakefield was one of those who did so much to develop the A.Y.P.A. It was mainly through her untiring efforts that the Peterborough District Council came ino being. Many of the churches had Young People's Societies which were not linked with the council and Miss Graham visited them, telling them of the advantages of working together with the youth of the churches throughout Canada.

The following people served as representatives on the Dominion, Provincial and Diocesan councils, Misses Blanche Graham, Dorothy Worboy, Florence Hutchinson, Edith Abraham and Queenie Hope, and Messrs. Bert Graham, Cecil Hope and Leslie Cavalier.

The district has always met its obligations in any missionary or war donations, either indivdually or in co-operation with the Dominion or Provincial councils. The importance of loyalty to "Christ and the Church" has always been kept before the members even at social gatherings.

During the council's twenty-one years of service, they have acted as hosts to the Dominion Council on the occasion of their conference in 1921 and 1927, and to the Provincial Council in 1937.

Life memberships, the highest honor the organization has to offer, were awarded to Miss Blanche Graham, Bert Graham and Miss Clemena Long.

The program for the celebration will include pageants, skits and games. The serving of refreshments which will include the traditional birthday cake, will conclude the program.

The committee in charge of the events includes: Miss C. Long, convener; Misses A. Hope, M. Dummitt, E. Abraham, Mrs. Nels Hewitt, F. Curtis and Mr. Ken Gibson and V. Sedgewick in charge of publicity.

The following is a list of the Peterborough A.Y.P.A. District Council presidents:

1921-1924—Miss Jane Horsefield, St. John's.
1924-1925—Robert Stone, Millbrook.

Scripture—Mark 11:1-11; Luke 19:41-44.

When Jesus and His disciples came near to Jerusalem. He sent two of His disciples into the nearest village.

Jesus told the two disciples to find a colt which was tied and to bring the animal to Him.

When bystanders asked them why they took the colt, the disciples told them, "the Lord hath need of him."

The colt was brought to Jesus, the disciples put their garments on him, and Jesus mounted. (Golden Text: Mark 11:9)

What Is Peterborough Doing?

Canadian Press wired the Examiner today: "Would like about 100 (words) on organization there to aid in farm work this year."

What answer could Peterborough give to that question? Has anything been done or is anything being planned in the city to form an auxiliary corps to help farmers in emergent labor difficulties? The answer is simply,—No.

You hear talk of golfing and you read about the "pleasure as usual" on greens and summer cottages and along the highways into the country, just about the usual planning for that kind of diversion in security, but no one in the city has so far given thought to the farmer and the food he is preparing to grow.

A reporter was talking with a Smith farmer Friday afternoon, and learned from him the extent to which he was going all out on production. Not only is he working his own farm but he has also taken on an additional hundred acres, bought a tractor and a flock of sheep, all in the spirit of doing considerably more than last year. And that is only one individual effort that is quietly under way in the country. With another week of favorable weather this farmer will have his spring seeding completed, and for the harvest he is taking no chances of having to depend on voluntary city help.

Mr. Roosevelt's Seven Points

President Roosevelt has stated his immediate program for the prevention of inflation in the U.S., summing it up in seven points, and there can be no doubt that Canadians have examined these as closely as have our friends over the border. Inflation in the U.S. would have inevitable bad effects in Canada, and would strain and perhaps rupture our own scheme for price control. The seven points have come in for a good deal of criticism in the U.S., and the chief complaint about them is that they are not sufficiently drastic; in a word, these means of control simply will not control.

The President's first means of control is by taxation, and to this end he wants to put a ceiling on income at $25,000. His critics points out, however, that this will not raise any gigantic sum, and that it leave the nation's chief spenders—the well-to-do middle class — untouched. This is the main criticism of the whole scheme; it does not provide any means of taking up the vast excess purchasing power of the nation, and while that power exists inflation is inevitable.

Price ceilings, the President's second point, are already in existence in the U.S., but they are only partially effective as long as there is an excess of purchasing power. The same criticism applies to his stand on the question of wages. He does not want wages to be restrained, and argues that the stabilization of the cost of living will check their rise. His critics maintain that wages are already rising out of all proportion to the cost of living.

His fourth point is a return to parity in farm prices, and in this he is opposed by the powerful Farm Bloc in Congress which wants 110 per cent. of parity or more if it can get it. This is a vital matter, and much of the future economic welfare of the U.S. hangs upon it. If farm prices are to soar the cost of living must soar too, and the farmers will, paradoxically, kill the goose that lays the golden eggs by bringing about inflation.

War Bonds are the fifth point; the President urges all citizens to buy them. His critics feel that something in the way of compulsory saving would be more effective. Rationing of commodities in which a scarcity threatens is the sixth point and it goes hand in hand with price fixing.

The restriction of credit is the seventh and last point and everyone seems to be agreed that it is a good one, but the complaint is that the President suggests nothing which would make it easier. A revision of the tax laws, giving the debtor a chance to make a deduction for payments on the principal of his debts, is suggested as one means of making this suggestion work.

The general feeling appears to be that the President has avoided the really important thing, which is the absorption of excess buying power created by wartime Government spending. Voluntary restraint in this matter is an Utopian dream; when people have money they want to spend it, even when they know that they should not do so. The only safe thing for the Government to do is to take it from them for their own good. In Canada we have adopted this plan, and we cannot pretend that it is palatable, but it is necessary and we mean to make it work. So far we have managed to keep our cost of living within reasonable bounds, and we watch our neighbor with anxious eyes to see if he will do the same. Inflation in the U.S. would give us more new problems than we care to think of at present.

The Lady Or The Horse?

Someone is always trying to take the joy out of life. Our esteemed contemporary, the Stratford Beacon-Herald, has published an editorial headed "Famous Legend Blitzed" in which it expresses its disbelief, of all things, that Lady Godiva once rode naked through the streets of Coventry.

Everyone knows about Lady Godiva. She was a Saxon lady, the wife of Leofric, earl of Mercia, and lord of Coventry. Leofric imposed excessive taxes upon his people and Lady Godiva pleaded with him to show clemency. He agreed to grant her request if she would ride naked through the streets of Coventry, which she did, and to spare her blushes the people of the town kept withindoors until the famous ride was over. The only exception was a tailor who was forever after called Peeping Tom; the legend says that he was struck blind for his impudence. This tender-hearted lady was born about 1040 and was dead before 1085, but her memory is green; when the news of the destruction of Coventry was spread to this continent there were few who did not remember the story of Lady Godiva.

And now what happens? Our Stratford contemporary publishes this debunking theory about Godiva and her ride:

> "Notwithstanding some regret at the destruction of an ancient legend, we are glad to accept the interpretation of Mr. E. A. W. Parsons, of Malvern, near Coventry, that Lady Godiva did not ride naked, but that she rode a 'naked' horse. What Leofric did was to challenge his wife to ride a horse naked through the streets, but what he meant was that she should ride the horse without saddle and bridle—therefore 'naked.'
> "As Mr. Parsons says, the idea of a proud Saxon thane allowing his lady to lower her dignity and his by riding naked through the streets is absurd."

Frankly, we don't think that Mr. Parsons knows what he is talking about. What trick is there to riding a horse without saddle and bridle through a town? In a day when all ladies had either to ride or to be carried in extremely uncomfortable litters there can be no doubt that Lady Godiva was perfectly capable of managing a horse without its harness. And why would Leofric, who seems to have been a tough customer, make such an easy condition? Quite obviously he dared his wife to ride naked because he thought that she would never do such a thing, but she fooled him. That is the whole point of the story. And as for that bit about "lowering her dignity and his," well, we think that Mr. Parsons doesn't know his Saxons. Probably Leofric regarded the whole business as a great joke, and perhaps his lady did so too. In those days anything that an earl's wife did was dignified, and if anybody said it wasn't, he was made to eat his words.

The legend as we have it is from the Flores Historiarum of Roger of Wendover, and we like it the way it stands. We will not change our mental picture of Godiva riding through Coventry clad only in her hair to a picture of Godiva demonstrating her skill as a bareback rider for anybody. If the Beacon-Herald is glad to accept Mr. Parsons' interpretation, we are out. We like our legends to be as picturesque as possible.

We Talkative Canadians

Although nobody will ever accuse Canadians of being vivacious it appears that they are extremely talkative. Some statistics have come to hand about the use of telephones in the world at large which show that Canadians made 246.3 calls for every man, woman and child in the country during 1939; the only country which approaches our class in telephone volubility is the United States, where 231.5 calls per citizen were made in the same year. On January 1 of this year there wer 1,461,000 phones in this country, or 12.78 for every hundred of the population. Only the United States, Sweden and New Zealand have more. Incidentally, the statistician gives his report a topical flavor by reckoning that we have five times as many phones per hundred of the population as has the Axis powers. If it were a case of talking them to death we would start with a very considerable advantage.

It will not surprise anybody to learn that Toronto is the most talkative place in Canada. They have 74.9 phones for every hundred families there, which is more than when the urge is upon him. What do you suppose they find to talk about so much in Toronto?

The Creator Of "Anne"

Nations grow in the eyes of the world less by the work of their statesmen than their artists. Thousands of people all over the globe are hazy about the exact nature of Canada's government and our relation to the British Empire, but they have clear recollections of Anne of Green Gables. The simple story, written when the Dominion was much younger than it is now, and much less troubled, was enormously popular in its day and it may still be read with enjoyment.

Stern critics may be dismayed that what is probably the best-known book to come out of Canada should be such a simple and sentimental work. Admittedly it would have been better if we had produced a Don Quixote or a War and Peace, but in the world of art we have to be content with what we can get; Canada produced Anne of Green Gables and that must suffice us for a while. The book has great charm, and is somewhat reminiscent of the work of Louisa Alcott; Anne never set the world on fire, and launched no crusade, but she gave a great deal of happiness of an inoffensive sort.

Because of the happiness which her book gave Canadians will be sorry to hear of the death of its author, L. M. Montgomery, who in private life was Mrs. Ewan Macdonald, on the 24th of last month, in Toronto. Apart from her writing, she performed the many duties of a clergyman's wife with dignity and true kindness, and by her death Canada loses a most valuable and beloved citizen.

Hitler Pulls In His Horns

No man ever bathes twice in the same stream, and nothing is more fruitless than to confront a politician with a statement which he made some time ago and under different conditions. Nevertheless, it is occasionally instructive to compare Hitler's statements in the past with what he is saying now, and the New York Times has drawn one very pretty parallel. About a year ago Hitler made a speech in the Reichstag, and this is what he said:

> "Again and again I uttered warnings against aerial warfare and I did so for over three and a half months....So now Churchill has got his air war....We are determined to continue to retaliate a hundred bombs for every one of his and to go on doing so until the British nation at last gets rid of this criminal and his methods."

Notice the fearful and bombastic threat of "a hundred bombs for every one of his," and then read this extract from his recent oration before the same body, in the same Kroll Opera House:

> "Churchill began this air war in May, 1940. I warned him for four months and waited.... My waiting is not weakness....I shall from now on retaliate, blow for blow, until this criminal falls to pieces."

The Fuehrer is a mighty liar, when the occasion suits him, but he knows when to pull in his horns. He no longer threatens a hundred bombs for one; he contents himself with promising bomb for bomb. But he knows in his heart that air war on such even terms will soon be impossible for him. The star of Allied air might is in the descendant, and the blazing days of the Luftwaffe are done. It is still a formidable weapon but its days as a terror and a scourge of almost defenceless people are finished.

NOTE AND COMMENT

As a wartime measure women are to be admitted to London's exclusively male Stock Exchange. Putting the sex in bonds, as it were.

Some people realize the need of sacrifice in wartime. We see that a fashion expert has devised a way of making a manicure last longer.

RUSSIA

Thy night has given place to a new day,
Light breaks upon thy steppes, and Industry
Has girt herself; and, lo! Democracy,
With her hands full of blessings, comes to stay.

Oppression, long thy master, now makes way
For Progress with her retinue; so we
And all free peoples will owe much to thee,
Whose hammer blows have kept our foes at bay.

Alas! that we were late to own thy worth;
We tucked our robes about us till there came
A testing time that rocked the very earth.
'Twas then thy courage won the world's acclaim
Then in thy pangs a new day came to birth
And Freedom's hopes rose heavenwards in a flame.

Another Book About Queen's

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SOMEONE said recently that Queen's University is now in virtual control of national affairs at Ottawa; perhaps this is not literally true, but like many hyperbolic statements it gives a better idea of the truth than a cold and humorless presentation of fact. Queen's, like a good Scots university, has always given a generous share of her sons to public life, and the accumulation at Ottawa now is an especially distinguished one. Queen's may be proud that she begins her second century so auspiciously; if she goes as far in the years which lie between now and 2041 as she has done in the years which lie between now and 1841 her conquest of the Canadian political field should be complete and unchallenged and she will be in a position to export administrators to other less favored lands.

Last year Queen's celebrated her centenary, and among other happenings which marked the event a history of those hundred struggling years was published, the work of D. D. Calvin. Regular readers of this column (and if you are not one now is the time to begin) will remember a review of it which appeared here. Now the university has produced a Centenary Volume, which the Ryerson Press has produced very handsomely; the book is agreeably printed and bound, and it is only a pity that better photographs could not have been found to serve as illustrations. As those who are familiar with the history of the university know, Queen's had a struggle to get any buildings at all, and those which she has now are more remarkable for their usefulness than their beauty. Like ladies who are renowned for their learning and good works, they appear to better advantage when carefully posed by the society photographer than when they are surprised by the candid camera. Apart from these somewhat unflattering views, the book is a model of what a commemorative book should be.

THE contents is supplied by the addresses, odes and details which were pertinent to the celebrations. The first speech to be reprinted is the Earl of Athlone's Rectorial Address. It has great dignity and kindliness, though a few of His Excellency's hearers may have been nettled by his condescending attitude toward the Middle Ages. Following it is by far the best piece in the book; it is "The Story of Queen's" by the Vice-Principal, Dr. W. E. McNeill. It is an admirable piece of condensation, to begin with, and to continue it has a sprightliness and wit which are altogether delightful. One does not look in memorial volumes for entertainment, but rather for edification; Dr. McNeill amazes the reader by being entertaining and allowing edification to shift for itself. He does not indulge in wise cracks, nor does he go in for 'donnish humor,' that dreariest of self-indulgences; rather he illumines a story of hardship and struggle with a wit which is at once brilliant and understanding. The struggles of Queen's are not over yet, and Dr. McNeill knows how hard the going can be; if any man is entitled to be funny about the university's continual struggle to make ends meet, he is that man.

Also included in the book is the Commemoration Ode by Dr. George Herbert Clarke, which has previously been reviewed in this column. The setting of some verses from Robert Bridges' "Ode to Music" by Dr. Frank Harrison, which was sung during the celebrations, is likewise included. It is a pleasing and dignified work, and as a coda it uses an elaborated version of "O God, our help in ages past," a hymn which has long been associated with Queen's.

INCLUDED also are reviews of the past century as it fared in Humanities and Social Sciences, by Sir Robert Falconer, a similar review of progress in Science and Applied Science by Sir Thomas Holland, Principal of the University of Edinburgh; the past century in medicine is reviewed by Henry E. Sigerist of Johns Hopkins University. As one does expect a review of a university's history to be especially diverting, and as one is surprised by Dr. McNeill, so also one does not expect to find a review of a century of theology anything but edifying, and one is pleasantly surprised by Dr. Nathaniel Micklem, the Principal of Mansfield College, Oxford. Dr. Micklem has the precious secret of being both edifying and entire sensible and logical at the same time; it is a rare secret, and it is doubtless the reason for Dr. Micklem's present eminence.

There are the usual messages of congratulation from Oxford (in Latin) and from Glasgow (also in Latin, but much shorter), from Toronto (in English) and from the University of Montreal (in French, with a dash of Latin), there are also lists of the eminent gentlemen who attended the ceremonies and those who received honorary degrees. There is also a very remarkable address by the Principal of Queen's, Dr. Wallace, which attracted considerable notice in the press at the time. It is not a review of the past, but a courageous and not entirely happy look into the future. Dr. Wallace is not one of those meretricious optimists who regards the future as necessarily bright and the establishment of the Kingdom of God on earth as a matter of fifty years at most. He sees the dangers, as well as the glories which are implicit in the democratic way of life. "It is not easy," he warns, "to level up without levelling down. Mass education may leave us content with the second rate, but much of the direction must always come from the first-rate mind. When only a selected few enjoyed the privilege of higher education, the selection was made on the basis of ability. The numbers now are greatly increased, and the selection is on a more generous basis. It is more than doubtful whether the best minds are stimulated to as great a degree as in other days." These dangers are too little recognized, and if Queen's means to combat them, she will have her hands full. But to a university with such a century of achievement behind her, difficult tasks may be confided with complete trust that they will be ably discharged.

• Supreme Hun Try at Hand

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—Portents of the Hitler-Mussolini meeting are clear even if doubt remains as to what was actually said and done.

In line with every Hitler precedent, the Salzburg session must be viewed as a curtain-raiser for the Axis effort to regain the initiative in the European war zone, primarily in Russia. It means in all likelihood that days at most, perhaps only hours, will elapse before Hitler shows his hand.

This May Day week-end would see the onset of what even Nazi spokesmen now admit will be an Axis "last supreme effort for victory." That was the way Hitler's labor captain, Robert Ley, put it in a May Day appeal to German war workers.

Hitler's reasons for summoning his Italian vassal to Salzburg for orders instead of granting him the appearance of equality by staging the conference on the German-Italian border would make interesting reading if known. It is a striking departure from custom, for Hitler, ever since Munich, has sought to preserve the fiction that Italy was an ally, not a mere Nazi puppet.

ONE MIND INVOLVED

Il Duce came and went to Salzburg, then announced to the world what it had no reason to doubt—that there had been a complete meeting of minds there on Axis strategy. That was a foregone conclusion, since there was only one mind involved—Hitler's.

The fact that Salzburg, not historic Brenner Pass or some other German-Italian frontier site, was the conference point distinctly does not tend to sustain rumors of such extreme war disaffection in Italy that an Italian separate peace move might be stirring. Had Hitler had any reason to fear that, he would have lost no chance to window-dress his meeting with Mussolini in some fashion to bolster Il Duce's prestige at home, not weaken it. He might have called the session in Italy instead of Austria.

The Axis conferees met with Joseph Stalin's May Day order to Red Armies to achieve victory this year ringing in their ears.

Stalin proclaimed that the Russian armies were stronger today than when the war started, both in trained manpower and in fighting equipment. It was, he said, Germany and her puppet allies, not Russia which had been bled white in the struggle. He was wholly complacent over the flow of Anglo-American war aid to Russia for all Hitler has been able to do to stop it.

CAUCASUS MUST BE GOAL

There was a highly significant absence of mention either in the Stalin May Day outgiving or at Salzburg of the Axis third party—Japan. It is to be inferred that whatever hope Berlin and Rome may have had of immediate Japanese intervention against Russia has waned. Probably that depends on how the great Nazi offensive against Russia goes when it does start.

Stalin reviewed the events of the war in Russia in strokes too broad to reveal much except at one point. He put oil foremost among the many things of which Germany is running short, but said it included also manpower and good officer personnel.

British and American oil experts agree as to that, but the Russians probably are better posted on Germany's oil situation than any one else. And if it is Hitler's most compelling shortage, it must certainly shape his war plans. The Stalin comment strongly suggests that in his own opinion and that of his generals the Germans must strike for oil in the Caucasus, whatever diversion attempts they may first make toward Moscow or elsewhere on the long Russian front.

If so, it follows logically that the prime strength of Russia's new armies is concentrated in the south, in the Donets Basin and the Caucasus. There has been much to indicate that, and also that Red Army operations on the Orel-Kursk-Kharkov front are potential wide-flung flanking threats to a Nazi drive at Rostov where the ground is already hard enough for major battle operations, but where Hitler still hesitates.

To The Editor . . .

ETHICS OF WEALTH DISTRIBUTION

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The ethics of the new modern society will bear on the human element. Material things have no rights against morale beings. There is no reason why all human beings should not share equally in the wealth they produce. Equal sharing of the total product of industry under the modern economic system would be considered the only just plan. In the new society the productive and distributive system of the nation would be one great machine running with absolute smoothness and harmony.

Working in concert with his fellow individuals who provide the demand for one another's labors thereby making the productive and distributive systems of the world a social organism by which hundreds of millions of individuals provide the demand for one another's product. This social organism enhances some one hundredfold the product of every one's labor. Society collectively can be the only heir to the social inheritance of intellect and discovery.

The new order will make everyone of us capitalists but not on the "grab-as-grab-can" plan of today by which some are made paupers and vagabonds while others are left millionaires. Under the modern society all will be on equal terms with his fellow capitalists. There will be no more quarrelling as to how little wages for services this or that group were entitled to.

The cleverest worker, if he were limited to his own product separated from the elements by which the use of the social machinery having multiplied it, would fare no better than a wild savage.

The modern new order would entitle everybody to vastly more than only his own product. The above idea is no mirage. Already there are those among us who plainly see that organized society has the right to take in taxes all increase in value that result from social factors such as public improvements; and the oddest thing in this cock-eyed world is that people generally cannot recognize the clew that makes it possible to pass from the old order into the new.

LEGS VS. FACES

MANUFACTURERS of cosmetics are said to have appealed to the board of trade for the release of more materials for "leg make-up," which they say is urgently needed as the result of fewer coupons for stockings; the board of trade is said to have replied sternly that if more cosmetics are needed for legs the gain will have to be made at the expense of the quota for face powder, lipstick and face creams. It sounds an embarrassing dilemma; more legjoy but only at the cost of fewer shining faces. But there it is; it is outside the code to shake a lacquered leg at the same time display a furbished face; total war will not allow of totaled make-up.—Manchester Guardian.

Shoutings Fail To Silence Europe's Press

By J. WES GALLAGHER

LONDON, May 2—(AP).—If you knew that the price of reading this newspaper, if you were caught by the corner policeman, as death—would you read it?

If you wrote for it and knew the reward of being found out was death—would you continue to write?

For death is the price thousands of readers of tiny news sheets in Belgium, Holland, Norway, France, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Yugoslavia and Greece gladly risk paying daily.

Death is the reward scores of men have risked and often received for printing these news sheets in hidden cellars by candlelight.

All of Hitler's Gestapo, all his ruthless gauleiters have failed to stifle the underground free press in German-occupied Europe.

Copies come out irregularly, but they come out.

If the editor and his staff are shot, others take their places.

The most famous of these is the revived "La Libre Belgique"—which the Kaiser sought for four years to drown in editorial blood.

Editor after editor was discovered and shot during 1914-1917 by the German military intelligence, but before one editor's blood was dry on some execution spot, the ink was wet on a new issue of "La Libre Belgique" in some dingy loft or cellar.

"Entire Staff" Shot

Belgians familiar with the history of first Great War say the military governor of Brussels was driven to a mental breakdown by his failure to still the press of this ubiquitous little paper.

After months of painstaking effort, the "entire staff"—so described by the German military intelligence—was arrested and condemned to death. After the Governor had watched the execution, he stepped back into his office—and found, neatly folded on a corner of his desk, a new issue of "La Libre Belgique." The agents had missed the editor's wife.

Belgian sources say the paper flourishes today with its old-time vigor although at least one editor and several distributors have been shot.

Each copy, handed from hand to hand, has thousands of readers. Some times it is baked into a loaf of bread; sometimes hidden between the leaves of some Nazi book.

And sometimes a Judas interrupts the chain of distribution and readers die.

But almost never does anyone talk, so the paper can't be traced to its source.

For its editors there are no rewards except death. The articles are unsigned. There are no salaries. Paper and presses are at a premium.

Each slim issue contains news gleaned from British and American broadcasts.

There also are savage editorials denouncing Hitler's henchmen, instructions on how the populace should act and reports of sabotage.

Papers Desperately Sought

This may seem slim reading by Canadian standards, but it is desperately sought by the downtrodden peoples of Europe.

While "La Libre Belgique" is the most famous, foreign governments in London report that for every one underground paper of twenty-five years ago there are twenty now.

Some are simply mimeographed sheets; some duplicated typewritten sheets; some not even that elaborate—just pieces of foolscap covered in longhand.

In Holland "Parool" (the word) and a dozen less consistent hand-printed papers keep Netherlands spirits up.

In Norway mention of "Royal Post," most famous of Norwegian underground newspapers, makes Quisling grimace.

In Czecho-Slovakia "V Job" (forward) still is slipped under doorways on dark nights.

In Poland "Walka" (the struggle) is the leader of several score of papers trying to undermine Nazi authority.

Both the Yugoslav and Greek Free governments report anti-Nazi papers are circulating in their countries.

In France several dozen underground papers annoy both German conquerors and Vichy French.

Most "freedom" editors aren't so fortunate.

Just A Porkie

Tweed, May 2 (ENS).

TWO Americans holidaying in the north country, thought they were going to surprise their friends on their return home by exhibiting a cub bear but they were doomed to disappointment.

As a motorist was travelling along a township road in North Frontenac County, the two tourists came sprinting out of the woods and excitedly pointed to an animal crouched between two heavy branches in a maple tree. "We've got a bear treed," they said, "and we don't know how to capture it."

At first the passing motorist was almost inclined to think it was a small cub bear. However, disturbed by a couple of small stones, the animal scrambled to another vantage point when its movements and appearance, indicated that it was a porcupine.

The Yanks managed to secure some good close-ups with a movie camera as the "cub porkie" sought a safer spot.

Pigeon Cooers Upset Hospital

NEW YORK, May 2—(AP).—Miss May Bookmiller, supervisor of obstetrics at Bellevue hospital, took one look, then another and exclaimed: "My gosh. Are they back again?"

She wasn't talking about patients. She was looking at two pigeons billing and cooing on a window ledge. And "they"—so Miss Bookmiller insists—were Fuzzy Homer and Bashful Belle, two pigeons which two years ago proudly hatched an egg on the same window sill while the whole hospital and a good part of the town waited sympathetically for daily bulletins.

Discovery of an egg this morning on the ledge outside the admission room to the maternity ward started great activity to wit:

A nurse set up a bedside chart near the window;

A carpenter built a barricade to prevent the egg from rolling off;

An aide was assigned to prepare the diet of rice, lettuce and soft bread ground to a pulp, prescribed by Miss Bookmiller.

"They're the same pigeons that were here in June, 1940," she told doctors, nurses and ward attaches. "And they're going to find out that we have the finest obstetrical service in the world at Bellevue Hospital."

Coal, Gas Rations To See U.K. Homes Cold

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 2—(CP).—British home may be colder and darker next winter if the government introduces domestic rationing to bolster dwindling stocks of coal, gas and electricity. Some such action is expected.

For more than a year the government and mining authorities have been concerned with a possible serious shortage, caused by huge demands of war industries, discontent among coal miners, call-up of skilled workmen and excessive civilian use of electricity.

Last winter's unusual cold was reported to have cut deeply into 30,000,000 tons of coal in store during January. At times, it was said some utility companies had barely a week's supply on hand to make power for industry and homes.

Britain, without water power, depends almost entirely on coal burning plants for its electricity.

The government last year held hope that increased coal production would realize an additional 25,000,000 tons yearly. Thousands of miners were released from the army and working and living conditions improved, but the mines were unable to produce the required amount. Now the public may have to bridge the gap.

Sir William Beveridge, famous British economist, surveyed the situation with the view of recommending some practical rationing scheme. Obeservers predict his report, expected within two or three months, will mean less heat and light in civilian homes.

Various mining bodies have been discussing proposals for boosting coal production. These include better pay, more food and some form of government control over mines.

Speaking at the annual conference of the South Wales' Miners' Federation, President Arthur Horner suggested a four point plan: National plant control; placing of miners in a position where they worked for the nation and not private gain; return of manpower from other work and the forces to enable the industry to fulfill its task; conditions and wages equal to those in other industries.

Ley Urges Nazis For Last Effort

BERLIN (from German broadcasts), May 2—(AP).—Robert Ley, Hitler's lieutenant for labor affairs, appealed to the workers of Germany in a May Day message today to make "a last supreme effort for victory."

Speaking of the hardships of the past winter, he asserted, "the high qualities of the German soldiers and their allies have preserved our continent from being overrun by a second wave of vandals which would have meant the end of millions of people.

"It is the duty of all to help lighten the burden of the men at the front and avoid bloodshed as much as possible, for in this war it is not capital, not the dollar or the pound, which will be victorious, but the most industrious and the bravest people.

"Whatever may come and however long the war may last, it will be decided by the best soldiers and the weapons.

"It is our sacred duty to get the best weapons and the best munitions in great quantities."

May Day was a regular working day in Germany. Hanging out flags or bunting was forbidden.

Boston Bombers Hitting Hun Hard

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, May 2 — (CP). — An R.C.A.F. squadron is delivering quick, hard blows at the Nazis with the new United States-built Boston III. attack bomber.

The speedy plane, twin of the Nazi-feared Havoc night fighter, has just been turned over to the Canadians who flew it on the recent Sunday afternoon attack on the Matford Works at Poissy.

Features of the stocky, twin-engined Boston are speed— officially listed as "more than 300 miles an hour"—and defensive armament of six machine-guns.

The Boston is both faster and carries twice the bomb-load of the Bristol Blenheim whose place it is taking as a day bomber.

With strong fighter escorts, Bostons have carried out daylight raids on the power station at Comines, railway yards at Abbeville, and at Hazebrouck, and shipyards at Le Trait.

Few of them have been lost to Nazi fighters and one active squadron equipped with them has not lost a single plane.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

FRANTIC WEEKEND

By EDMUND FANCOTT

PEGGY PROGRESSES
CHAPTER XV

Lunch on Saturday was a great success. The various mishaps and conversations of the morning had welded the company together, and even Baldy found himself part and parcel of the party, no longer hostile stranger barking at the fringes of the gathering.

He had emerged for lunch in another complete and splashily new outfit of sports slacks and shirt. Michael, Myra and Fay had showered, Peggy and Nigel had been collected. Ferdy had done a quick caricature of Baldy emerging in his new suit, a caricature which impressed Baldy so much that he kept picking it up and muttering; "Well, what do you know about that?"

Baldy tackled Fay immediately after lunch and Myra tackled Peggy.

"What were you doing all morning?" asked Myra.

Peggy smiled sweetly. "Swimming . . . in a swim suit . . . with a gentleman . . . "

"If I know you," muttered Myra, studying the innocent green eyes of her sister. "That canoe was untied by someone."

Peggy had learned never to tell lies to her sister. She saw through them but she had also learned that half the truth sometimes sufficed.

"I did it," she admitted. "I did it for Michael's sake."

"For Michael?" echoed Myra.

"Why, haven't you noticed?" asked Peggy. "He's crazy about Fay. It sticks out all over him. And she thinks he is wonderful. She told me so herself this morning, before breakfast."

"Maybe she was still asleep," grunted Myra.

"And I was just helping him. Nigel is crazy about her too . . . or he was. I know because I found him by the wharf looking for her . . . "

Myra was not being fooled by her sister. "So you marooned him on an island . . . with you for company."

Peggy smiled and there was far too much self-assurance in her expression.

"Now, listen," said Myra. "Every time our family comes up here there is trouble of some kind. Keep your head and don't get ideas. Try someone else for a change this afternoon."

That is just what Peggy had in mind. Even at her age she knew that there was nothing like leaving a man in air and giving oneself a scarcity value—that is, provided you could make sure that any competition was well cared for. So, smiling very sweetly at her sister, she sought her brother, her plans churning faster than ever.

"Michael," she began when she found him moodily smoking a pipe by himself. He was thinking how little chance he had with a girl like Fay. "Michael," said his sister sternly, "we must do something."

"What do you mean?" He was impressed by her serious air. Good, thought Peggy.

"It's about Fay. That horrible little man Baldy is after her again. He is worrying her head off to go back with him. If we don't rescue her, maybe she'll go this afternoon."

"She won't go," said Michael, brooding. "She's the kind of girl who can make up her own mind and stick to it."

"O. K." said his sister. "If you want to quit, quit."

Her brother shot a surprised and questioning glance at her. Peggy leaned forward. She whispered the next words, looking around to see if anyone was following the conference.

"Fay thinks you are wonderful. She told me herself this morning before breakfast."

"If you would mind your own damned business . . . " Her brother flushed, whether from anger or embarrassment she did not care. Peggy rose haughtily to her feet and hissed, "All right. But I am going to rescue her. If you want to help, stroll around to the seat behind the rockery in a few minutes."

Conspiracy was quite a hectic business after lunch on a hot day, but Peggy was young and full of energy had an advantage over the others, who all seemed quite willing to lounge for awhile after the meal.

The next move was to cut Fay off from the odd few reclining on the veranda. Before her conversation with Myra she had enlisted herself in the service of Baldy, thereby impressing that gentleman with the fact that she was an intelligent minx, if a little young.

"I think a girl is crazy to refuse your help," Peggy had said.

Baldy had looked at her without speaking, which was so unusual and Peggy had continued. "You want to see her alone?"

A snort of disgust emerged from Baldy. He waved his cigar at various figures in deep chairs. "With this crowd? What a hope! Open my mouth and half of 'em jump down it before I say a word."

"O. K." whispered Peggy. "Be round at the rockery. I'll deliver the goods. If I can't get a chance myself I'm not going to see anyone else miss it."

Baldy was unconvinced. Long experience with women had taught him to look for the underside of any conversation, but he took a chance and went to finish a cigar near the rockery.

When Peggy came back from speaking to her brother she slipped into a seat by Fay who was closing her eyes for a few moments of blissful rest. Nigel had parked himself near her.

"Fay," whispered Peggy secretly. Fay opened her eyes. "Fay, what would you do?"

At the question which arose in Fay's eyes, Peggy looked around as if everyone else, particularly Nigel, were too near.

"We can't speak here. I wish . . . you know more about men than I do . . . "

Fay responded with natural generosity. She arose from her chair and drifted away from the veranda with Peggy. Nigel was fast asleep and did not notice their departure.

"Let's go round to the rockery," said Peggy. "Maybe there will be no one there."

Fay waited for the confidences that were coming.

"It's like this," said Peggy. "Nigel is awfully nice. I like him . . . and I think he likes me. But I'm only 17 and he is 25. Do you think . . . " She paused.

Fay smiled. "Why, eight years difference is ideal!"

"Do you really think so?" said Peggy.

At which convenient moment they came upon Baldy so suddenly that there was no time to escape. But Peggy was satisfied. She knew that a girl like Fay would do her best to leave Nigel alone so that Peggy could have a free hand. Everything was working out beautifully!

Tests Show Pogue Carburettor Not Up To Claim

OTTAWA, May 2—(CP)—Defence Minister Ralston told the House of Commons last night that exhaustive tests of the "Pogue carburetter" were carried out by the National Defense Department and research technicians last fall and it was proved unsatisfactory.

On two occasions this week the Pogue carburetter, claimed by its inventor, Nelson C. Pogue of Winnipeg, to be capable of operating a car 200 miles on a gallon of gasoline, has been mentioned in the House of Commons.

Last night C. E. Johnson (N.D., Bow River) mentioned it and, like Rev. E. G. Hansell (N.D., MacLeod) yesterday, suggested some powerful opment.

Colonel Ralston gave the first official information on Government tests of the invention. He said that last fall the Master General of Ordnance had Mr. Pogue brought to Ottawa and kept him here for six weeks on an allowance of $10 a day while he worked with departmental technicians on the Government proving grounds attempting to make the contrivance work.

"I am sorry to say that the tests did not prove a success and Mr. Pogue, I am sure, would be as ready as anyone else to admit that."

The carburetter got some increased mileage at the sacrifice of power and speed, Colonel Ralston said. It was quite impracticable on heavy load carrying vehicles.

"Mr. Pogue has never been able to give us a carburetter that works without being constantly adjusted—and when I say constantly I mean just that."

The inventor had been told the department would be glad to examine any new efforts he produced and the Minister said he believed Mr. Pogue now was in Ottawa seeking to perfect his invention.

Limit Tea, Coffee Gifts To 5 Pounds

OTTAWA, May 2—(CP). — Under new Trade and Commerce Department regulations, gift shipments of tea or coffee sent to soldiers must not weigh more than five pounds unless an export permit is obtained, it was learned yesterday.

Until a few days ago there was an 11-pound overall weight limit on soldiers' parcels sent from Canada but no restriction on the amount of any commodity contained in them. Under the recent departmental order tea and coffee shipments of more than five pounds require an export permit, and officials said the restriction applies to parcels sent to the troops.

The order has no effect on gift shipments to civilians overseas since these parcels must not exceed five pound in weight and must not contain more than two pounds of any one foodstuff.

A Loon 'Tatoo'

Marmora, May 2 (ENS).

THE loons of the feathered species were thought to have been holding a convention at Crowe Lake last Saturday. Clarence Gladney and Mrs. J. W. Hickey claim to have counted sixty-seven on the lake at one time, which is an unusually large number. Seldom have more than five or six been seen at one time in the vicinity of this summer resort.

Bombs Dropped On Suez Canal

CAIRO, May 2 — (AP).—Bombs were dropped in the Suez Canal and Damietta areas in an air raid last night, said a communique issued by the Egyptian Ministry of the Interior.

Damietta lies on a mouth of the Nile, about 30 miles north-west across Lake Manzala from Port Said, the Mediterranean mouth of the Canal.

The damage was slight, the communique said, but six persons were injured in the Canal area.

A communique from British Air Headquarters said night fighters shot down two of the enemy raiders without loss to themselves.

Another three enemy planes were destroyed over Malta on Wednesday night and Thursday morning, two by anti-aircraft fire and one by a fighter.

In the Libyan Desert dust storms hampered operations on land and in the air.

Tax Bump For N.Z.

AUCKLAND May 1 (Friday) — (CP Cable). — Prime Minister Peter Fraser announced substantial taxation increases to-day to meet New Zealand's greatly risen war expenditure.

Principal items include an additional sixpence in the pound. Private and company income tax is raised about 16 per cent.

The tax on tobacco is made fivepence an ounce and cigarettes are to cost an extra twopence a packet of 10. An additional shilling a gallon on beer is imposed and alcoholic content of the beverage is to be reduced 25 per cent.

DUBLIN, May 2—(CP).—Hans Marchner, a German parachutist who escaped from prison on February 15 was arrested in Dublin yesterday.

Gifts To Giraud Enable General's Escape

Annemasse, Unoccupied France, May 2—UP).—General Henri Giraud, clad in civilian clothing sent him in gift boxes, escaped from the German fortress of Koenigstein by means of an 80-foot rope patiently woven from strands of hemp, it was revealed last night.

The French hero of Dunkirk was reported to have spent eight months planning his escape. He picked up the hemp fragments during occasional walks allowed him in the fields. He received more gift packages than any prisoner due to his immense popularity. These supplied him not only with a suit of clothes, but materials with which he disguised himself as a Swiss travelling salesman.

He slipped down the prison wall while the sentry was on the other side. Once outside, he doubled his tracks for eleven days on a route leading through Czecho-Slovakia, across all of Germany and into Alsace-Lorraine before he finally reached Switzerland.

It was a moonless night when Giraud made his break. For two days he hid in a nearby Saxony forest, then ventured into the Town of Koenigstein, where he heard the radio blare forth an announcement that 100,000 marks (nominally $40,000) were offered for his capture.

Twice he was nearly taken, once on a train when he introduced himself as a Swiss salesman to a German officer. They were talking together when the German Gestapo stopped the train and made a search for him. Giraud began an animated argument with the officer and the Gestapo agent hesitated to interrupt, walking on down the corridor.

The other narrow escape occurred when he crossed the Swiss border into France and German troops almost trapped him.

Friends learned of the German trap and hurried ahead to halt his car. Giraud got out and hid, resuming his journey after the Germans had gone.

Trouble Like Canada's

LONDON, May 2 — (CP). — Viscount Bennett, speaking in the House of Lords yesterday, said India's difficulties resemble those of Canada before Confederation.

Praising the record of the British administration, the former Canadian Prime Minister declared that "if Britain disappeared to-day she would be remembered more for what she has done for India than for some of her great battles."

"Pleased to meet you," laughed Mr. Picobac. "Seems to me I've heard that name before."

"Quit your kidding," retorted the delegate to the Sunny Southern Ontario Shorthorn Convention, Grand Central Hotel, Essex Centre. "It seems to me I've heard YOUR name before."

"Probably associated with a pipe tobacco of extraordinary quality," suggested Mr. Picobac. "There's a very fine Canadian Burley named after me. Grown here in Sunny Southern Ontario from selected seed."

"Is that the tobacco that's the pick of Canada's Burley crop?" demanded Mr. Jones.

"That's it," confirmed Mr. Picobac. "You guessed right the very first time,—Picobac!"

"Smoked it all my smoking life," beamed the delegate to the 1942 Shorthorn Convention. "It's a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke!"

"It DOES Taste good in a pipe!"

1942 SEASON HOLDS LITTLE FOR CAMPBELLFORD TENNIS PLAYERS

Don M. Meyers Re-elected Club President

CAMPBELLFORD, May 2 (ENS) —Local tennists met for their inaugural meeting here last night and for the first time really had the rubber shortage brought home to them. In fact with no transportation for any league games and a probable lack of balls, members looked to the summer with little enthusiasm. More than a dozen attended the meeting and together they reviewed the club's activities of last year and outlined their plans for the summer. Though in 1942 they had a paid membership of only fifteen the secretary-treasurer said rather pointedly that there was an active membership of over thirty. They hope players will pay in advance for the coming year. Realizing the big problems was going to be tennis die hard members exclaimed they would play with old ones (for a while at least) if there was no chance of obtaining those of more recent vintage. League activities for the locals subsided three years ago and for the present they anticipate nothing more than a few home and home games with teams in the neighboring villages of Marmora and Warkworth. To conserve their assets it was decided the whole grounds committee should have a bee and rehabilitate the courts. One set of tapes and new guard wire were listed as the chief repairs in the 'must' category. Not so paramount is the matter of painting the club house. Unless fees come in better than in the past this will have to wait for another year.

President Don M. Meyers, who was re-elected to that office presided for the meeting. Following is the 1942 slate of officers: President, D. Meyers; secretary-treasurer, Hector MacMillan; entertainment committee, Misses Grace Cairns and E. Ferris; games committee, J. Little, G. Cummings, June Burgiss, Reta Callaghan.

Bold Venture, longest-shot winner in 18 years, nosed out Brevity, 4-5 favorite, to win the 62nd running of the Kentucky Derby, seven years ago today. A crowd of 62,000 watched the surprising three-year-old survive a bad jam at the start to challenge and outlast Brevity in the stretch. Indian Broom, owned by Major A. C. Taylor of Vancouver, finished third.

Follow The "SKYWAYS" Trail

Yes, if you want to add to your smoking enjoyment step in to your favorite tobacco store and ask for a pouch of "SKYWAYS." This new pipe tobacco, although recently introduced, has already won a host of friends. That's because it offers something a little different in the way of flavor. Made from the finest Ontario-grown burley tobaccos, it is so processed as to retain its full tobacco flavor without bite or sting, while its subtle aroma is pleasing to a degree. Be sure to ask for "SKYWAYS" in the 15c flavor-protecting pouch. You'll enjoy every pipeful.

Peterborough C.V.S. Presents - - -

The cream of P.C.I.'ites were awarded their school letter last Tuesday by F. E. Johnston on behalf of the Students' Council. Thirty-five deserving students qualified for the letter but two had already received a letter last year. The coveted letter is awarded to those students who have taken an active part in activities around the school or on the field of sport. Sixteen students received the letter for executive work and the others represented the champion rugby team. In his congratulatory speech Mr. Johnston stressed the fact that these pupils must accept the responsibility of conducting themselves in a manner in keeping with the traditions of P.C.V.S. Last year only 20 students received a letter as compared with 33 this year.

Bob Carley and Harold Matthews qualified for the second time—Bob being head boy and editor-in-chief of "The Echoes", and Harold the captain of the Senior Rugby Team. Ed Geraghty, Mary Hanlon, Ruth Sage, and Fred Mason qualified through their work on the Students' Council. Alden Gourley and Barbara Bothwell as President and Vice-president of the Dramatic Club each won a letter. "The Echoes" representatives were Literary Editor Maureen Brown and Form News Editor Betty Estlick. Walter Hanbidge is president of the Camera Club and Gordon Diplock was the live wire head of the decorating committee for the "At Home." John Frank is the president of the Finance Committee and is one of the outstanding war-workers in the school. Rod Reed was announced as the salvage representative and we have all seen the extent of his work. George Richardson is Commanding Officer of the cadets and was on the basketball team. Betty MacBrien is head girl and Jean Castle the president of the G.A.A. Jack Cranford received his letter by his work as president of the B.A.A. The rugby players who won the letter are: Gordon Matthews, Murray Dewart, Gordon Beatty, Max Graham, Gerald Ackford, Lloyd Routly, Bill Cuppy, Gordon Burns, Robert Roy, Harold Mather, Kenneth Murray, James Allen, Leslie Graham, Tom Lillico, Tom Craig, Stuart Saunders, and Bill Loomis.

There you have this year's crop of letter students. Each and every one is worthy of the honour and will do his utmost to live up to the ideals represented by the letter. Next year will see a new but equally deserving group of pupils who have distinguished themselves and the Collegiate by their unremitting efforts. The above mentioned students were responsible for the efficient leadership that led to the many successes of the 1941-42 year at the Collegiate. In war work, sports, and social life their names figure prominently but now they fling the torch to those on the upward climb. Will YOU take it?

War Work Jottings

Presentations were made on Thursday to the British War Victims Fund and the School Finance Committee from the proceeds of the successful Fashion Show held last March 26. After minor expenses had been deducted the profit was $70.00 even and of this $40.00 went to the Finance Committee and the remainder to the B.W.V.F. Miss Gerrard called on Miss Rightmyer of the Night School classes, June Wallis of the day school classes, and Eleanor Shirley of the Glee Club to present their cheques to F. G. Mann and Dorothy Kirn. Miss Rightmyer and June Wallis each gave $15 to the Fiannce Committee and $10 to the B.W.V.F. Eleanor Shirley presented ten dollars to each organization. Mr. Mann expressed his heartfelt thanks to the students for the gifts.

Rod Reed announced that the last paper collection of the year will be held next week. Students are urged to bring as many papers as possible to school in order that yarn may be bought for the girls war work during the summer. How about it?

Teasettes

Alderman Sloane appealed to the boys of the school on Monday to enroll as messengers in the Civil Defence A.R.P. of Peterborough. Forms may be obtained from the office if you desire to enter this work.

War Sales slumped this week to a total of $359—$255 in Stamps and $104 in Certificates.

It is hoped that "The Echoes" will be out next week. About 70 students have left school for war work and most of these will want their magazine as soon as possible. It is up to the students in the school to see that all pupils receive their copies before they are told about the contents by some friend. Scrape up that 25c and then hope that "The Echoes" hits the school next week. Thanks.

Another flying accident struck deeply into the Collegiate this week when word was received that Sergeant Instructor Sam Rogow was killed at Three Rivers, Quebec last Saturday. Sam was a popular student at P.C.I. and will be sincerely missed by all who knew him. We offer our sympathy to his family in their bereavement. R.I.P.

Quix kids Bev. Martin and John Frank were heard over CHEX last Tuesday in a farmers' quiz contest. Both won cash prizes and no doubt will attend all broadcasts in future.

1st Lakes Sub

MANITOWOC, Wis., May 2—(CP) —In this Lake Michigan port, nearly 1,000 miles from salt water, the first navy submarine ever built on inland United States waters was launched yesterday.

As the 1,500-ton-type submarine Peto hit the water a great cheer went up from workers rushing several sister ships towards completion. The Peto's keel was laid June 18, 1941.

Tests will be given the Peto on the Great Lakes, then she will be taken to Chicago and down the Chicago, Illinois and Mississippi Rivers to the Gulf of Mexico.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Western clubs in the American League made a clean sweep yesterday and as a result every home team in the junior loop was bumped off before the town folk. The unstoppable Cleveland Indians, rolling along on the strength of twelve straight victories set the pace for the Western invaders by easily triumphing over the Washington Senators 13 to 6. The Indians hit hard and often, cuffing the offerings of Kennedy and Masterson for 16 hits while Mel Harder had a soft time adding another win to his string. With the Indians scoring runs in clusters the veteran had nothing to worry about. Rookie Les Fleming whose work at first has made the Cleveland fans forget all about Hal Trosky contributed a homer. The Yanks who so far have only been able to win one game at home against the Western clubs were handed a 7 to 2 beating by Detroit. Dizzy Trout on the firing line for the Tigers held the Yank powerhouses to four hits, one a circuit clout by Tommy Henrich while Marvin Breuer who stopped the Red Sox with two hits the last time out was just a cousin to Detroit who collected sixteen hits from him and Borowy and Lindell who played the role of firemen.

Chicago White Sox who have been bogged down for most of the race managed to snap out of their losing ways yesterday and take a 5 to 2 fall out of the Philadelphia A's. Johnny Rigney came through with one of his best pitching exhibitions of the season to hold the Mackmen to six hits. Harris was the losing pitcher. In the other American League game on the Friday card St. Louis Browns defeated the Boston Red Sox 10 to 6 in a free-scoring game despite the fact that Jimmy Foxx and Ted Williams kicked in with homers for the losers. Niggeling was the winning pitcher and the loss went to Dobson who failed to go the route for the Red Sox. As a result of the Detroit victory over the Yanks, the Tigers are back in second place in the race, the McCarthyites dropping to the third slot.

While Cleveland rolled right along the winning streak of the Brooklyn Dodgers was finally stopped when the Pittsburg Pirates nosed them out 7 to 6, taking the decision with a two-run rally in the seventh. It was the third straight win for Heintzelman who went the distance to grab off the glory. Vince DiMaggio who is getting more distance than his more famous brother Joe slammed out another home run. Another feature of the National League race yesterday was the fact that Elmer Riddle, one of the ace pitchers in the big show last season finaly managed to win him a ball game. Riddle went the route for the Reds to defeat the Phils 6 to 5, although the winners were outhit 11 to 8. Johnny Podgayny was on the mound for the losers. Bob Musial of the St. Louis was one of the heroes yesterday. He bashed out two homers in a game against the Boston Braves, the Cards winning 8 to 7 in extra innings.

Tossing It All Away

One American athlete who is making plenty of sacrifice in joining Uncle Sam's Navy is Sammy Snead, winner of the Canadian open golf championship the last two seasons and one of the most colorful golfers in the professional picture. Snead in recent years has been one of the most successful players in golf history and one of the biggest money winners, despite the fact that he has never won some of the major competitions. In the last five years, however, he has picked up $78,000 in P.G.A. purses alone and with exhibitions and other pickings it is estimated that Snead has probably garnered in the neighborhood of $200,000 out of his prowess with his golf sticks. That neighbors, does not come under the heading of hay, it might be mentioned in passing. And yet Snead is tossing it all away to do his bit to win the war by joining the American Navy. This column's hat is off to the hill-billy golfer. It is to be hoped he comes through safely and finds all his strokes again when the piping days of peace are here once more.

Oshawa's George Campbell pays the following tribute to the gallant Portage La Prairie Terriers: "It's back to the whirl again, after a very delightful sojourn in Western Canada, while it wasn't as satisfactorily successful as we could have wished, it still was very pleasant. Joe Ryan, who writes sport for the Winnipeg Free Press between-times and manages the "Blue Bombers" at others, is quoted as saying that Western Canada junior teams always can skate but that there never was a team that could skate like the Portage kids. We'll endorse that one. We can remember Memorial Cup teams back as far as 1928, when Conacher and Jackson were whizzing along with Marlboros. St. Mike's were perhaps the most powerful squad we ever saw in Junior ranks with Oshawa Generals of 1940 not far behind. Sudbury Wolves of 1931 were another potent puck squad and the Winnipeg Monarchs of 1937 was definitely the smoothest-working Junior team we ever saw, but we'll take Portage La Prairie as the fastest and most vicious. By that, we do not mean dirty tactics—but vicious around the net, in the matter of scoring goals. Like a wolf invading a sheep-fold, the Terriers never had enough and they were always striving for one more tally in a manner that can only be likened to the lust to kill, viciously and savagely and keep on killing."

It's Hard To Pick

Interest in the classic Kentucky Derby to be run off at Churchill Downs, Louisville, late this afternoon is probably the greatest in the history of the famous race. The reason is not hard to find. Probably never since the Kentucky Derby was inaugurated was there such a wide open race as looms up for this afternoon. The experts are frankly puzzled trying to pick a winner. They agree that Requested and Devil Diver are the two horses to beat but realize that any one of six or seven other entries in the race has a chance to come through and grab off the event. Of course the biggest question mark of all is Alsab. Will the 1941 juvenile champion who won fifteen races as a two-year-old and hasn't been able to win at all as a three-year-old rise to the occasion with a winning effort? There are not a few who look to Alsab to produce a sensational performance to upset the beans today.

Baseball is not considered a dangerous game and yet it contrives to produce quite a heavy casualty list in a season. Yesterday was rather a disastrous day in the big show in this respect and as a result two clubs are shy the services for some time of valuable players. At New York, Bob Patrick, utility outfielder of the Detroit Tigers, had to be taken to hospital with a fractured kneecap, result of an unusual accident. Patrick was struck by a line drive from the bat of his teammate Jim Bloodworth in batting practice. At Philadelphia, second baseman Billy Knickerbocker of the A's sustained a broken thumb when he deflected a single hit by Kennedy of Chicago.

Athletes Of Armed Services Giving Excellent Performances

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, May 2 (CP).—Qualiyt of athletes in the Canadian armed services has been demonstrated forcibly during the last few months by the excellent performances of Victoria Navy, Winnipeg Navy and Ottawa R.C.A.F. in hockey, and Trenton R.C.A.F. in basketball.

But athletes in uniform have been prominent in other than strictly military teams. Johnny Acheson, who finished the season with Ottawa Flyers, spent much of it with Toronto Marlboros in the Ontario Hockey Association.

LAC. Tony Golab, R.C.A.F., was with Windsor Alumni in the Ontario Senior basketball final. This outstanding athlete, chosen athlete of the year in a Canadian Press poll last year, has played with two civilian teams since he enlisted. During last fall his crushing line-smashes helped Ottawa Rough Riders to the Eastern Canada championship and a few weeks after the football season ended he was posted to Windsor where his fine play helped Alumni's strong but unsuccessful bid for the Ontario crown.

Had Coaching Job

Staff-Sgt. Addie Bell has turned in the services' outstanding coaching job this year. His Portage la Prairie Terriers had plenty of natural ability, but a more important factor in their drive to the Canadian Junior hockey championship was his excellent coaching and their great team spirit, a result of his inspiration.

Sgt. Martin Platz, R.C.A.F., unfortunately is out of sport for the duration. A star with Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 1938 and 1939 and remembered by Eastern football fans for his great play in the 1939 Canadian final with Ottawa. Platz has been a prisoner in Germany since last year when his aircraft was shot down in air operations. Platz played a few weeks in the Fall of 1940 with Regina Rough Riders while he trained there.

Lieut. Bev. Piers, a tennis star in the Maritimes a few weeks ago, is president of the Halifax Fortress Athletic Association, and is trying these days to round up enough baseball talent for an army team in the City Senior League.

Training with Navy.

Jack Thomson and Gordon Petrie of the Regina Rangers are training with the navy at Regina. Among other hockey players training there are Bob Brownridge and Hal Brown of Flin Flon Bombers.

Percy Williams of Vancouver, famous Olympic runner, is stationed at Edmonton as a co-pilot with Canadian Airways Training Ltd. When he finishes a course in instrument flying he'll become a full-ledged pilot and "captain' of the ship he flies. Canadian Airways training fliers pilot planes in which student observers at the No. 2 Observers School, R.C.A.F., take practical training. Jack Frizzells, one of the slickest backs Toronto Balmy Beach had last year, headed a class of R.C.A.F. pilots graduating at Camp Borden last week.

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—Derby Dots...or maybe, with 17 entries and no standout favorite, we'd better call it the "Bums' Rush"... What's really worrying out-of-town scribes at Louisville isn't picking the Derby winner but how they'll get out of town...and that isn't because they bet on the wrong horses. Railroad officials say only half the equipment they had last year is available to handle the Derby visitors. Bus lines have about the same amount as in '41 but airlines can't run any special planes...Tom Reilly of New York PM booked passage as far as Cincinnati on a river boat and some of the other writers figure they'll have to swim along behind or else ship out in a horse car with the nags that are going to Pimlico.

MANAGER FRISCH TOSSED OUT OF GAME, PIRATES WHIP DODGERS

Snap Brooklyn 6-Win Streak In 7-6 Tangle

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sprots Writer

Now that Manager Frankie Frisch of Pittsburgh Pirates has been chased out of his own park, the major league baseball season can consider itself officially under way.

Frisch, who sometimes resorts to pantomine when umpires can't be impressed with words, was waved to the showers by Larry Goetz in the ninth inning yesterday, but the Pirates went on to beat Brooklyn Dodgers 7-6 and snap a six-game winning streak for the National League champs.

The score was tied at 5-all when Billy Herman beat out an infield hit and Arky Vaughan sent him home with a double. Goetz called Herman safe on a close play at the plate and catcher Al Lopez was as surprised as he was irritated.

He bounced the ball on the ground, threw his mask in one direction and his mitt in another. Frisch bounded out of the dugout as other Pittsburgh players hurled towels into the air and coach Jake Flowers joined the huddle at home plate.

As usual, however, the umpire got his way, the Dodgers got their run, and Frisch Lopez and Flowes got the "bounce."

As the game continued without the Pirate trio, Brooklyn was retired and Johnny Allen took over the mound, the fourth Dodger hurler of the game. Then the Dodgers, apparently sorry for the Bucs, proceeded to hand the game right back to them.

A single and two walks loaded the bases before Allen fanned Johnny Barrett. Then he out loose with a wild pitch that let in the tying run. He walked the bases full again on purpose and Vaughan ended the game by letting Vince DiMaggio's grounder go through him for the winning run.

The defeat shaved a full game off the Dodgers' lead and enabled the second-place Pirates to climb within three lengths of the pace-setters.

Indians Down Senators

Meanwhile, Cleveland Indians stretched their winning streak to a dozen games by routing Washington Senators 13-6 and increased their first-place margin in the American League to 2½ games. Four triples, four doubles and Les Fleming's two-run homer were included in the 16 hits with which the Tribe showered four Washington pitchers.

Detroit Tigers also staged a 16-hit bombardment in walloping New York Yankees 7-2, and hopping over the world champions into the American league's runner-up spot.

Ted Williams snapped out of his recent hitting slump with two singles and a home run, but it didn't help Boston Red Sox who went down before St. Louis Browns 10-6.

Chicago White Sox ended a seven-game losing streak and came within 28 per centage points of climbing out of the cellar by bumping Philadelphia Athletics 5-3 behind the six-hit hurling of Johnny Rigney.

Five of the afternoon's 16 home runs came at St. Louis, where the Cardinals tripped the Boston Braves 8-7 in 10 innings and replaced them in third place in the National league.

Stan Musial hit two of the Cards' four homers, the second of which was good for two runs that tied the score in the ninth. Ken O'Dea came through with the payoff blast, a home run in the last of the 10th.

Chicago Cubs pulled the New York Giants into a fifth-place tie with them by taking a free-swining contest, 13-9, and Cincinnati Reds tightened up in the late innings to save a 6-5 verdict over Philadelphia Phils.

'40 Five-Pin Ace Rolls 968 For Second Place

TORONTO, May 2. — Corporal Bill Brown, 1940 Canadian five-pin bowling champion jumped into second place in the 1942 championship race last night at Olympia Gerrard alleys when he turned in a score of 968, only seven points behind the leader, Willard Ott, of Hamilton.

Brown replaced Rolly Glandfield in second place with his deadly sniping of the pins. Glandfield had only taken over on Thursday night with a total of 959. This was still good enough to keep him in third place as the tournament enters into his final day.

In the doubles event Tommy Rothwell and Ev Reading mauled the maples for 1,698, a head pin in the final box for Reading spoiling a royal chance for the pair to take over the leading pair of Miller and Lansdale, whose score of 1,711 still remains tops.

Big Oriole Rally Runs Short Birds Win 11-10

By the Associated Press.

Until a few seasons ago when a person mentioned the Baltimore Orioles, you thought of a fighting, hustling ball club. You got this impression because of the deeds performed by John McGraw, Hughy Jennings Wilbert Robinson, Willie Keeler, and a host of other baseball immortals who labored in Baltimore livery in the early days.

Later came John Dunn's great ball clubs which won seven straight pennants from 1919-1925. Since then, the fighting spirit died down.

This year Cleveland Indians made a pact with the International League Orioles and sent them a goodly number of promising recruits. Almost overnight the Baltimore entry changed back into a colorful, fighting aggregation.

Yesterday at Red Wing Stadium in Rochester, although they eventually lost the game in the 11th inning 11-10, the Orioles gave an exhibition of gameness. Going into the first half of the eighth inning they trailed 8-0 but promptly proceeded to score nine times.

Hank Edwards and Bob Lemon were the stars of the big frame. Edwards hit two home runs and Lemon hit a homer and triple.

In the ninth the Red Birds tied it up with two in the home half and won out in the second overtime session as Warren Robinson singled with the bases loaded.

Charles (Red) Barrett of Syracuse set down Montreal Royals with eight hits for an 8-3 triumph in the league's only other game.

Barrett had a shaky first inning, as Gene Moore and Jack Graham hit successive offerings for circuit drives, but the Chiefs pounded three Royal hurlers for 14 hits, Bobby within a half game of second place.

The victory moved the Chiefs to Adams and Jack Juelich getting three each.

100,000 Expected At Derby; Only 15 May Run

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE, May 2.—(AP)—Seventeen highly-tuned three-year old horses brought their argument over the distribution of $87,250 to Churchill Downs' stretch today in the 68th edition of the sporting world's most colorful spectacle—the Kentucky Derby.

As thousands of visitors joined the natives in turning this city into a Roman holiday, the trainers of the 15 colts and two geldings pronounced their charges ready for the 1¼ miles test of speed and stamina starting about 5:30 p.m. CDT (6:30 p.m. EDT). To the winner will go $65,225 net, a garland of roses and recognition as the No. 1 candidate for three-year-old turf honors of 1942.

In all probability not more than 15 of the overnight entries will parade to the post. Trainers have until 45 minutes before post time to scratch, in which case the size of the purse to the winner will be reduced $500 for each hores withdrawn.

Ellwood B. Johnston of Los Angeles was doubtful whether he would pay the $500 necessary to start First Prize, one of the geldings, while Trainer Roy Waldron said he would scratch Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Dogpatch if it came up mud.

There also was a remote possibility that Trainer Ben Jones would decide that Warren Wright's Sun Again was not quite ready for the gruelling run. The master of Calumet Farm won with Whirlaway last year.

A "Dream Crowd"

Meanwhile, high in his sanctum overlooking the vast Downs, Col. Matt Winn predicted his dream would finaly come true and there would be a crowd of 100,000.

Col. Winn, in predicting a crowd that would hit six figures, said he based his opinion on yesterday's attendance—the largest pre-Derby turnout in many a year. The mutuel handle was upwards of $600,000, indicating also the endangering of the Derby wager record of $2,096,613 established in 1926 when Bubbling Over won for E. R. Bradley.

Experts have been up in the air for weeks in choosing a favorite. Al Sabath's Alsab won 10 straight races last year and headed into his three-year-old campaign, apparently unbeatable.

But the little Chicago-owned colt has yet to have his nose in front in 1942, with the result he was no better than 4 to 1 in the early betting. In his stead at the top of the books was the one-two punch Devil Diver and Shut Out from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable and Ben Whitaker's game little Texan, Requested.

Also highly considered at 5 to 1 was the Irish-bred Hollywood from Emerson Woodward's Valdina Farm at Uvalde, Texas.

Sport Shorts From Great Britain

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

TORONTO, May 2—(CP).—Fish story: Inspectors at the Provincial Fish Hatchery at Nelson, B.C., must have thought they had taken too much of the old elixir a few weeks ago when one of the strangest hatches of trout in history came off the assembly line.

Two of the trout had two heads each, another had gills like fans, and several were albino. A few days later one of the double-headed trout turned up with only one noggin, the other apparently having been absorbed during growth.

Biseps Boulevard.

Kenny Lindsay, Vancouver's classy bantam, is in Hollywood training for a fight there on May 8 with Manuel Ortiz. A win would help plenty in Ken's summer campaigning toward a title shot.

Incidentally:

Hockey is a hard game to put away....Thursday night in Timmins a game was played between Porcupine All-Stars (from the senior league of the same name) and a team of stars who had returned to Timmins district homes after campaigning elsewhere during the season....Bep Guidolin, Nakina Smith, Lloyd Curry, and Baz Bastien were among the players who had spent the winter on other fronts....Staff Sgt. Addie Bell, coach of the Portage La Prairie Terriers received an $825 purse at a celebration in Portage the other night....the money was collected by public subscription.

Bruce Hall, a member of Canada's Davis Cup team in 1939, graduated in theology from Emmanuel College in Toronto this week.... The time has come to bring a halt to idle dreaming of hockey teams that could be built in Canadian cities if professional leagues folded for the duraiton....Calgary would have a good one, Edmonton one slightly better, but Winnipeg comes up with enough players for an entire league ....A few of them: Jim Henry, Babe Pratt Jack Stewart, Bill Juzda, Wilf Field, Joe Cooper, Wally Stanowski Ernie Dickens, Andy Branigan, Terry Reardon, Alex Shibicky, Bill Benson, Bill Mosienko, Mud Bruneteau, Pete Langelle, Johnny McCreedy, Alf Pike..... Enough? Montreal Royals look like Canada's best bet on the Baseball front this year.

Flyer Skipper In R.C.A.F.

CORNWALL, Ont., May 2—(CP).—George Shaw, captain of Cornwall Flyers of the Quebec Senior Hockey League left for Toronto yesterday to start training as a pilot observer in the Royal Canadian Air Force, it was learned today.

Shaw, born in Stratford, Ont., is the 10th member of the Cornwall team to become a member of the armed forces. He broke into hockey with Stratford Midgets.

Do Or Die Tonight For The Oilers

MONTREAL, May 2 — (CP). — It was do or die for Montreal Oilers today as they got ready to tackle Victoria Dominoes in the fourth game of the Dominion senior basketball best-of-five final.

Oilers need a win in tonight's battle to bottle up the series at 2-2. A victory for the Dominoes would give them the title and the Montreal Trophy, emblematic of the Domi[nion] crown since 1926, a trophy w[hich] has never been won by a Mon[treal] team.

The Victoria lineup was intact [and] coach Art Chapman was expecte[d to] use the same four players, be[sides] himself, that he used throug[hout] Thursday's tilt which the west c[oast] quintet won 40-36.

On the Montreal lineup, cen[tre]man Pat Griffin will be on the s[ide]lines as the result of an eye in[jury] he suffered in the first game ... day. Griffin who, with his smart [de]fensive play, sparked the Montr[eal]ers throughout their Montreal se[nior] league and right through to the f[irst] game of the present series, was [in]jured in the opening game and though he was dressed for the sec[ond] game he was used only sparingl[y].

"Y" Work Praised

Mrs. W. R. Morris made a speech of welcome at the opening of the "Y" pageant on Friday evening. She spoke appreciatively of the work that the Y.W.C.A. is doing, along with its extra wartime duties, in helping to maintain the health of the girls and children of Peterborough. In these days of strain health of mind and body is especially necessary. Mrs. Morris gave a number of statistics, showing the amazing number of girls who use the swimming pool and the gymnasium, as well as those girls whom the "Y" has helped by special features, such as clubs, and the residence.

In the review of the pageant last night we unfortunately forgot to mention a charming toe-dance performed by two of the gym girls. This was a pretty number, gracefully executed and charming to watch.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, May 3

Sunday's horoscope holds augury of strange, unique, perplexing and bewildering experiences or adventures of an unpredictable nature, owing to the powerful conjunction of major planets. Events of universal importance may be expected, but in ordinary channels there may be success, happiness, perhaps romance and thrills, providing a tendency to excess and extravagance be regulated.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of strange, sudden, dramatic and unpredictable adventures and experiences, with exceptional success and happiness if an unique planetary combination be cleverly manipulated. The young are particularly involved and encouraged to full creative expression and achievement.

A child born on this day should be endowed with great versatility, ingenuity, orginiality, independence, as well as high ambitions and ideals, possibly of universal worth.

For Monday, May 4

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of conflicting and challenging situations, with much promise of success, accomplishment, happiness and good fortune, provided an indomitable urge to extravagant indulgence, reckless, impetuous and unruly conduct be held in firm leash. A set of unusual, abnormal or peculiar circumstances may aggravate these proclaivities.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may not be surprised at a year of contradictions and surprising adventures, with much of good fortune and success attended by risk, disturbance, dangers, and duplicity.

A child born on this day while having strong tempations in the way of hospitality, generosity, extravagance and prodigality, especially through its questionable friendships, should have much success in unique or uncommon vocations.

With Peterborough Red Cross Branch

Canadian Red Cross authorities receive numerous letters from overseas thanking them for the gifts of jam and honey, which are made possible by donations of materials and the helping hands of many volunteer workers. This is just one phase of the many sided war activities of the Red Cross.

From every province in the Dominion last year, tons and tons of jam, jelly and honey were sent to Britain to be distributed to invalids and children.

Peterborough's contribution was 9 dozen tins, each tin weighing 4 pounds or a total of 432 pounds. The jams were made of peach, grape and plum and the jellies were crab-apple and wild grape. Plans are already being made to better last year's output.

The organizations or groups which did the work for the local Red Cross were: St. Paul's Friendly Group, the Collegiate Girls, Lily Lake Red Cross, Lakehurst Red Cross, and Bensfort W.A. which sent a gift of honey.

Here is a typical letter from Mildred Steele, a London district superintendent of play centres, expressing gratitude to the Red Cross for its assistance:

"I have received a present of jam for the poor children attending play centres in my district. I want to thank you, and your friends, for the very generous help you are sending to our children.

These play centres open as school closes so that the children whose parents are at work shall have a safe shelter until bedtime. First the children come into school, where tea is prepared for them. After the meal they go into another part of the school for organized games, quick occupations, such as painting, reading, sewing, knitting and anything we can think to keep them happy and employed.

During the morning and early afternoon I have a special play corner for babies from two to five years This cannot be held in a school but we meet daily for toys and games in a church hall (between 30 and 40 attend). It is a joy to see their happy little faces and hear their noisy jolly play. About mid-morning we give them a cup of milk and now for awhile they are going to have bread and jam with it for which I am sure they all say, 'Thank you, thank you, kind ladies'."

Surely such a message will spur us on to greater efforts this seaon?

It is encouraging and gratifying to hear of the fine work done, in a quiet way, by groups in the city. Mrs. R. H. Turner, Red Cross president, paid a visit to the Hill Top Neighbors Club recently and expressed herself as delighted and amazed at the amount of work accomplished by this group and the great enthusiasm displayed by the workers. She was presented with $65 for the blanket fund, a splendid contribution to a worthy cause.

Warsaw W.A. Votes $25 to Church Board

WARSAW, May 2—(ENS).—The Women's Association met in the church basement on Thursday afternoon when it was decided to make a donation to the church board of $25, also to supply oil and wax for church floors.

The flower fund treasurer reported a balance of $9.20 and the treasurer of the Association reported $31.39 on hand. The roll call answered with a Bible verse containing the word Holy, was well responded to.

Mrs. D. Tucker, Mrs. F. Sidey and Mrs. Wallace Anderson were hostesses for the social hour.

Salvage Campaign

The local War Service Committee is conducting a salvage campaign and ask all who have any rubber, metal, paper or any salvage of any sort, to leave it at Trevor Watts' not later than Wednesday, May 6, so that the truck may pick it up for delivery on Thursday.

W.M.S. Meets

St Andrew's W.M.S. held its regular meeting on Wednesday at Mrs. Clarence Watts' home Miss Helen Tedford had charge of the meeting. Those contributing to devotional exercises were Mrs. W. Dunford and Mrs. Milton Drain. Study book was taken by Mrs. Greystock. Papers were read by Mrs. R. Tedford and Mrs. Monro. The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer.

The Young People's Society are putting their play, A Ready Made Family," on in the Town Hall on Friday, May 8.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

There is one Peterborough woman who was still shivering at the thought of what might have happened. She went down town to buy a coat, and after trying on several in a store, she decided to let the matter ride for a while. Half-way home she realized that she was not wearing her own coat and her hasty retreat to the store, with an imaginary policeman dogging her heels, is something she won't forget in a hurry.

DOROTHY DIX

CONSIDER YOUR CHILDREN IF YOU CONTEMPLATE DIVORCE

Often It Is Better to Put Up With a Philandering Husband Than to Leave Him.

Dear Dorothy Dix.—We have been married 25 years and our marriage has been averagely successful. My husband has a good salary and has provided comfortably for his family. When we were younger he never wanted to go to dances or places of amusement, or showed any tendency to philander, but now he is interested in younger and prettier women than I am, who will drink with him, dance with him and flatter him, and he wants me to give him a divorce. He does not find any fault with me, but he just wants to be free. His family has become a burden to him and he imagines himself a Romeo. Now this is my problem. There are three children a girl in college and two younger boys. I am not trained for work, but I suppose I could get a job in a factory and do what I can for the children. My daughter is a good Christian girl and she would quit school to help with the boys, but I hate to see that happen to her. She has always been her Dad's pal, but I know she would turn against him if he deserted us. The boys' lives, too, would be changed by a broken home, but they are young and could adjust themselves to changed conditions. What should I do? Should I give the children their chance in this uncertain world by refusing my husband a divorce and keeping up the home until they are older? Or should I set him free as he wants to be?—Worried Rose.

Consider Children First

Answer. — In a case like yours neither your happiness nor your husband's is the first consideration. The thing of paramount importance is the welfare of the children and there can be no question that that will be best conserved by your refusing to give him a divorce and keeping your home together until they are on their feet.

Tell him that you will not interfere in any way with his personal freedom to come and go as he pleases and run around as much as he likes with his little playmates; that you will deliver no lectures on the impropriety of a middle-aged man philandering with girls young enough to be his granddaughters, and that you will do everything you can to make his home comfortable and pleasant, as you have always done.

But that until the children are grown and able to support themselves you refuse to release him from the responsibilities that he assumed when he brought them into the world. He has to stand by and do his duty to them. He has to see that they are educated and given their chance in the world and that they have the security of a home and the advantage of having two parents instead of only one.

You have no right to take your daughter out of college to help support her brothers because her father wants to spend his money on buying fur coats for some little gold-digger instead of paying her expenses. You have no right to subject your boys to the privations they would have to endure if they had to live on your meagre earnings in a factory.

And don't divorce your husband for his own sake, for what ails him is his age. It is a trouble that afflicts many men who are nearing their fifties and who suddenly realize that they are growing old, that their days of romance are nearly over, and that they must have a fling now or never. Just to prove to themselves that they are still mere boys and have not lost their attractions for women they go wild and do foolish things that they spend the balance of their lives regretting.

Many a tragedy could be averted, many a home be kept intact if wives would only have enough sense to see this and enough patience to endure their husbands' follies until they got over their middle-aged madness and returned to sanity, and home, and Mother once more. For it is generally a brainstorm from which they recover.

Dear Dorothy Dix.—I am 22 years old and my wife is 20. We have been married for two and a half years. My wife has had a job for the past year. I told her when she started to work that she didn't have to do so, that I could support her, but she would do it. Now she has gotten a raise, so that she makes about twice as much as I do. But I still support the house. I get home in the evenings before she does and I always get the supper ready and help with the dishes afterwards. I practically do all of the housework on Saturdays because I have the day off. She comes home at night tired out and as soon as we eat supper she goes to bed. It is never later than 7 o'clock and I have to sit around and listen to the radio. Can't go anywhere not even to the movies, because she is too tired to go. We can't even have any friends to come in. We can't have any children. Now I love my wife very much and she says she loves me, but I got married for companionship and a real home and I have neither. What should I do? Should I try to make her quit working, or just join the army?—J. B.

Answer.—Well, J.B., I'd say the army would be your best bet. Fighting the Japs won't be as strenuous a job as fighting a wife who is determined to have her own way. And you will have a better chance of winning out.

Life Is What You Make It

Dear Miss Dix.—Is a background a very important thing? Both of my parents were terrible drunkards and they left me nothing but shameful memories of them both, and the feeling that I came from bad blood and that there was no use in trying to make anything of myself. Ever since I can remember I have known that everyone looked down on me. Do you think I could go away some place where I am not known and start a good clean new life for myself? Couldn't I just say that my parents are dead and let it go at that?—J. D.

Answer.—Undeniably it is a great blessing to have a good background and a handicap to have a bad one, but many people with fine backgrounds are nonentities who make nothing of their lives, and many make a poor background a stepping stone on which they climb to the heights. It is all in the man or woman.

Just because your father and mother were drunkards can make you so bitterly aware of how drink can degrade a human being that you will never even touch a drop of liquor. And just because your father and mother threw away their lives can make you determined to make something worthwhile of your life. Our parents can be an awful warning to us as well as an example.

I earnestly advise you to go away and start your life over among people who do not know you, and to tell them nothing about your parents. That is the easiest way to get over the inferiority complex you have acquired by being known as the child of drunkards and having everybody expect you to follow in your parents' footsteps. Strangers who know nothing of you or your early envirnment would have no such prejudice against you, and you will get off to a clean start.

And often people are like plants. They need to be transplanted from one soil to another. I have known plenty of shiftless men and women who acquired energy and pep and initiative by moving from one part of the country to another. In a new environment, among new people they seemed to get new inspiration and turned from failures into success. Try it. And luck to you.

—DOROTHY DIX.

SMART SIMPLICITY

By ALICE ALDEN

THE FINE FROCK rather than the flamboyant fashion is always the choice of the really well-dressed woman. Mainbocher, that American who was a top designer in Paris before the war, is the leading exponent of the frock that has what he calls "five star simplicity of line, color, design, material and quality." This Mainbocher daytime model is a mermaid print in purple pink on a navy ground. It features front fullness by means of graceful loops edged with purple-printed lace, repeated on the lapel collar and simple shirtwaist front.

NEW YORK, May 2.—(CP).—Vaudeville's resurgence as wartime theatrical fare received a major fillip this week when two new editions of the old two-way variety were brought to Broadway.

Ever quick to feel the pulse of the entertainment world, the Messrs. Shubert have wasted no time in following up the surprising success of their "Priorities of 1942," first full-length vaudeville show Broadway had seen in a decade.

'Keep 'Em Laughing' is the title of the first of this week's offerings, starring William Gaxton and Victor Moore, the famous team who deserted vaudeville for the musical comedy field 12 years ago and appeared in such successes as 'Of Thee I Sing,' 'Anything Goes,' and 'Louisiana Purchase.'

For the week's second newcomer, Ed Sullivan, Broadway columnist, has assembled the best of Harlem's talent in an all-colored revue called 'Harlem Cavalcade.' Both are under the Shubert banner, with Clifford C. Fischer the nominal producer of 'Keep 'Em Laughin,' and Sullivan of 'Harlem Cavalcade.'

The rebirth of this type of entertainment promises a new deal for the song and dance man. The marked box office success of 'Priorities of 1942' was followed by a producers rush to get more of its kind on the boards. From a dozen cities came word of variety shows either actually in production or projected.

Something Added

The formula is simple. To the old-time acts—the funny men, acrobatic dancers, etc.—is added the cream of current night club fare. In "Keep 'Em Laughing" there is Hildegarde, darling of so-called cafe society, with her spicy ditties and sophisticated witticisms, and the Hartmans, spooking a well-known Manhattan dancing master.

Zero Mostel, newest comedy sensation who has risen to night club prominence and lucrative radio contracts in the short space of eight weeks, makes his bow before the footlights with a trenchant impersonation of a prominent isolationist United States Senator. His booming voice and mobile face satirize the flamboyant oratory and fake patriotism of the benighted politician.

Almost stealing the show are "The Bricklayers," hailed as perhaps the outstanding canine act of all time. "The Bricklayers," dressed in overalls, go about the business of building a house with delightful ingenuity, then adjourn to a tavern and emerge tipsy. The dogs wind up their piece with a remarkable display of trapeze swinging.

For his principal act the veteran Victor Moore has refurbished a turn he made famous at the start of the century and revived for a long run during the first Great War. It is called, "Change Your Act or Back to the Woods," and deals with the trials and tribulations of a ham vaudevillian trying to break into the big time.

The Theatre Guild has acquired the script of "Mr. Sycamore," Ketti Frings' dramatization of the whimsical short story by Robert Ayre, Montreal Journalist, author and art critic, which appeared in magazine form 1937. The play, dealing with a postman who, weary of walking his daily rounds, decides to become a tree, is regarded as a prospect for the Theatre Guild's 1942-43 season.

Henry Brant, Montreal composer, has revised his music for "City Portrait," a novelty ballet presented by the Dance Players this week in the course of their spring season at the National Theatre.

The work, originally done by the ballet Caravan three years ago, is a story of city life in its less happy aspects. For the current production the music has been substantially done over by the young Canadian composer, drawing this comment from John Martin of the New York Times:

"Brant's music is both atmospheric and sardonic, and its use of polytonality succeeds in projecting a psychological state quite remarkably. For all the vitality of the score itself, Brant manages to project a sense of weariness, helped largely by his quotations from everything from street music to the 'Moonlight' sonata."

Brant is the son of the late Saul Brant, for many years professor of violin at McGill University's Conservatorium of Music.

FLOWERS ON MARKET

Flowers moved into prominence on the market today. White and maroon trilliums were conspicuous spots of beauty along the outdoor rows, and the greenhouse men were loaded with young plants. If home gardeners could convince themselves that there would be no frosts in May everybody would begin planting early, but they hardly expect a repetition of last year's spring weather.

94 BIRTHS IN APRIL

Local births in April failed to maintain the all time peak of March . At that the total of 94 for the month takes second place behind that March figure of 101. April of last year contributed 85 babies to the city's population. There were 37 marriages last month as compared with 30 a year ago, and 30 deaths, thirteen fewer than the 43 of April, 1941.

HUNTING FOR CRABS

It takes the kids to have fun. Last night there were four boys working hard, hunting for crabs in the creek at the corner of Brock and Aylmer streets. With no regard for the cold water, they waded around barefoot, jumping from stone to stone with the greatest enjoyment, and even when one lad sat down unexpectedly in the middle of the stream, the search continued amidst shouts of laughter.

CAR DROPS DOWN HOLE

Clifford Scroter, Park street, left his car parked in front of the home of his sister, 46 Lafayette avenue, and yesterday morning discovered that the machine was at the bottom of a deep hole. It appears that a drain on the street had been repaired and as a result of the heavy rain there was a cave-in with the result that the automobile dropped down into the pit that was created.

BAD GRASS FIRE

Reports from Chemong Park indicate that a grass fire got out of control for a short time this week, and spread to a hedge on the Grant property. No Importing Guns

MEXICO CITY, May 2—(AP). — A government order yesterday forbade importation of arms and ammunition except that purchased by the government. Twenty-two calibre ammunition used in hunting was excepted. Authorized circles said the order was precautionary to prevent Mexico being used as an intermediate point for the dispatch of arms by the "enemies of the democracies."

They said 70,000 Czechs who nominally became Germans under the Munich settlement had been forced into the German army.

Kinsmen Stage Successful Milk Fund Show

Kinsmen Milk For Britain Fund is $2,000 and perhaps richer this morning following the successful three-hour radio variety show over station CHEX from the Collegiate Auditorium on Friday night, when citizens rallied with donations to the extent that phone depots were swamped for quite some time.

It was a magnificent gesture on the part of the citizens, the artists who took part in the show, and the merchants who made the program possible. During the evening, the hat was passed around the audience at the Collegiate and an extra $77.12 was added to the fast growing total. A dance following the show brought $15.08 from a hat collection, and all in all, the venture was a complete success from start to finish.

Don Insley of the local radio station teamed up with Alan Savage of Toronto to present an efficient master of ceremonies set-up, and with the Romanelli orchestra providing the musical background the show moved along at a pleasant tempo. Out of town artists who were headlined included Patricia Bailey, Frank Oldfield, and Jimmy Namarro, and all won new acclaim from the Peterborough audience. The Peterborough artists with a variety of talent that added much to the show, helped round out a perfect evening of entertainment. These included Mrs. Jessie Spencely, Adam Hawley, Victor Cremasco, Joey McMahon, Eileen Hogg, Grace Hobbs, Olga Westbye, Mrs. L. R. Mitchell, Kenneth Simmons, Walter Farr, Leahy Bros. and the Sands sisters.

Ken Smyllie, chairman of the Milk For Britain Fund announced that the program would net more than $2,000 and he graciously thanked every one who had given of their money, energy and time to make the undertaking a success.

Several of the people who phoned in donating money to the cause have not been called on, but these donations will be picked up soon, or the donor may turn the money into the Royal Bank to Mr. MacDonald.

Saved From Tornado Ruins

Spring Growth Is Phenomenal

Growth is phenomenal, farmers and gardeners reported on the market this morning.

"I don't think I have ever seen anything like it," Arthur F. Stenson of North Monaghan commented to the Examiner.

"Even our spring grain is up and we planted it only the other day," W. H. Elmhirst said. "The choke cherry trees are in bloom and there are blossoms on the apple trees, and this is only the second of May. The ground is in fine condition, and the only adverse thing I could say about the season is that it has been hard on the horses. Work piled up all at once, April weather has been abnormally warm, and horses were not hardened to the job after being idle practically all winter."

Asparagus was abundant on the market at 10 cents a bunch, and seemed to be full grown. Rhubarb was also plentiful and big in the stalk.

The season of 1942 has actually leaped into action, sprinted from the gate in a long lead as they used to say at the Woodbine.

"Mind you we have had a couple of early seasons this last few years," Herb Doig recalled. "I looked up our asparagus records and they show that we were selling just exactly the same time a year ago. However, this is a wonderful season so far and we should have a big crop of asparagus"

The most interesting bit of agricultural news for the week-end was that observation by Mr. Elmhirst that the spring grain is already above ground.

"Seventy-five years," he said "and never saw anything like this spring."

This week's rain has advanced pasturage and the whole outlook right now is exceedingly bright.

Sugar, Price Tops Fail To Jibe

TORONTO, May 2 — You can't have your sugar and price control at the same time—at least that is indicated by the conditions in the Ontarion sugar beet industry.

According to latest information on the production outlook from the sugar beet areas of Southwestern Ontario, the Province will be lucky if farmers contract 25,000 acres, which represents just about one-half of the processing capacity of Ontario's sugar plants.

Farmer, who are guaranteed $7.20 per ton as a base price for sugar beets under a Farm Products Control Board order, are turning rather to soybeans and corn, crops in which the labor factor is slight compared with the hand work that is required for thinning, topping, weeding and harvesting beets. A recent announcement by the Ontario Cabinet that labor will be guaranteed has stimulated beet production, but so far has failed to meet its objective.

The situation, therefore, resolves into one of prices—that is, if the summation of C. M. Macfie (Lib., Middlesex South) is correct. Mr. Macfie, before the Legislative Agriculture Committee, claimed the soluton was the same which guided production in the last war, when the base beet price was $12 per ton and sugar went up to $22 per hundredweight.

But there is this for reflection, officials of the Department of Agriculture point out: Under price control, sugar is only $5.25 per bag—if you can get a bag.

April Shatters Heat Mark 100 Years

TORONTO, May 2.—It now may be told without giving useful information to the enemy that the month of April shattered heat records that had stood for a hundred years.

Three separate days during last month established records for being the warmest day of that date in the history of Toronto's meteorological records and the mean temperature for the month was 7.8 degrees above normal. April's mean temperature was 49.7 degrees, less than a degree cooler than the record of 50.5 degrees established in April of 1941. Previous to last year the warmest April in history was in 1878 when the mean temperature was exactly 49 degrees.

The temperature on April 25 touched 85 degrees, the warmest April day in 100 years. The highest temperature ever recorded for the month was April 22, 1842, when the thermometer reached 90 degrees, according to the old records of the Meteorological Bureau on Bloor Street West. The temperature was 78 and 81 on the 15th and 24th of last month, the highest recordings ever made for these respective dates.

The rainfall was roughly half the normal for the month, but did not establish a record. In April of 1881 the lowest recorded rainfall for the month was set with 0.08 inch. Last month the rainfall was 1.18 inches, which was 1.02 inches below normal.

Welsh Society Repeats Aid To War Victims

The St. David's Welsh Society has on a number of occasions given help to those who suffer from air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, besides sending quantities of clothing and other valuable rehabilitation assists direct to Wales, and now for the sixth time they are listed in the receipts for the fund with a further $10 which for such a small group, is very much to their credit. Mrs. G. Pakenham, who has three sons in the service, all of whom are serving overseas, is the energetic president of this group.

Among today's list of proceeds for the fund is the results of a draw held on a Queen Victoria Shilling Brooch, and a coin found on an airman killed in the last Great War, which amounted to $7.25, tickets for which were sold by Mrs. C. H. Crouter, Mrs. Willison, W. King and last but not least, little 8-year-old Gerald Crouter, who took top honors in this by selling the largest amount of tickets.

The draw was made on Friday by Terry Keating and resulted in the brooch being won by Mrs. W. White of Braidwood Avenue with ticket No. 475, and the coin by George Spalding of Hunter Street with ticket No. 481. Both of these prizes had been donated by Miss H. Ward of 549 Harvey Street.

The Mercantile Bowling League donated the balance of its funds left over after the current season's operations which amounted to $5. Three personal donations are also listed among which is one very fine gift of $20 from "F.J.R.," and a very regular contributor who gives under the name of "E.M.F.," is once again listed with the regular donation.

Flower Holders.

With the arrival of spring, there will probably be quite a call for flower-holders to decorate the graves in Little Lake Cemetery, and W. Naish of Hood and Cummings Motors has already made and donated quite a number of these to the fund, and M. Isaac Harrison, who has charge of the greenhouses next to the Cemetery, has kindly consented to sell these with total proceeds to come to the fund. The price is very moderately placed at 20 cents each (more if you wish to give it) and this should prove a welcome convenience to those who wish to thus decorate the spot where loved ones have found a final resting place. With today's receipts, a little less than $30 is now required to complete the next donation of £500, and it is confidently expected that funds sufficient to allow of this will be in hand by Monday.

Police Requested To Watch Highways

The Peterborough police department has received a request from the Attorney-Genelal's department for its co-operation in seeing that Section 44 of the Highway Traffic Act in regard to the depositing or leaving upon the highways of materials that may be injurious to the tires of motor vehicles is strictly enforced.

It is explained that this request is made as a result of the tire situation and the necessity of preserving as far as possible the tires now in use.

Persons who throw or leave broken glass, nails, tacks or other articles on the highways, endangering tires, are likely to find themselves called into court and asked to explain to the magistrate just why they were so careless.

Provincial traffic officers and provincial constables have been instructed to enforce the section rigidly.

License Plates Have Run Out

There are far more bicycles in Peterborough than the authorities anticipated.

It had been the intention of the police department to begin enforcing the bicycle license bylaw yesterday but that is all off for the present.

When the bylaw was passed it was estimated that there might be 1,500 or at the most 2,000 wheels in town and just to be on the safe side 3,000 license markers were ordered.

Yesterday the last one of the 3,000 license plates was issued and applications for licenses were still coming forward. It has been necessary therefore to order another thousand markers and these cannot be delivered for several weeks at least, so that fo the present the bylaw will have to go unenforced.

4 Stations Shut

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP).—The munition and supply department announced today that four service stations of St. Lawrence Service Stations Ltd., described as a "Montreal subsidiary of Joy Oil Co. Ltd.," have been padlocked until further notice.

A special order issued by Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle of Toronto alleges the four stations "dispensed gasoline to passenger cars otherwise than only for cash on delivery," the department said.

Summer Outfits Arrive For Rangers

Latest intelligences from the West Coast indicate that Lieutenant Lorne Bateman, the Rangers' Intelligence Officer, is for the time being off duty because of an attack of mumps. His friends wish him a quick cure and hope that his training will not be affected. The other Rangers at the western Officers' Training Centre at Gordon Head, B.C., are making use of the leave given after their first inoculations to get around and see the beauties of the British Columbia coast.

On the home front, up at the Armouries, the Rangers have some new equipment—new summer drill to fight the thermometer with this summer. Each soldier gets two pairs of summer shorts, two shirts, a set of puttee, a light tunic and a tin helmet to complete the costume. Any day now you may have a chance to see the regiment parade down George street with their fine new garb setting off the finest set of bony, sunburnt knees that ever a highland regiment could boast of.

Perhaps it was an afterthought or maybe RQMS Jim Fields had his eye on the temperature. In any case he chose the hottest clammiest hour yesterday afternoon to summon every man to the stores and present him with a heavy winter sweater coat.

Fighting In Luzon

TOKYO (From Japanese Broadcasts), May 2 — (AP). — Domei reported to-day in a dispatch from the Philippines that "Japanese forces mopping up remaining enemy resistance on the Island of Luzon stormed and occupied key positions on Mount Pinatubo on April 29."

(This indicates that there still are small centres of American-Filipino resistance on Luzon even though the Bataan Peninsula has been overrun. Mount Pinatubo, more than a mile high, is in Zambies Province about 25 miles north of Bataan.)

Like Meeting a Friend

There is always a friendly warmth in such poems as Foss' "The House by the Side of the Road." To forget a poem you have known and loved is like losing an old and trusted friend.

You find inspiration, a heartening courage, too, in "Invictus," by William Ernest Henley. It ends:

"It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll,
I am the master of my fate:
I am the captain of my soul."

There are exquisite poems of love! Remember the lines—

"Drink to me only with thine eyes,
And I will pledge with mine;
Or leave a kiss but in the cup
And I'll not look for wine?"

These and many other favorites you can find again in our 32-page booklet. Gives complete poems—by Longfellow, Burns, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, the Brownings and many others.

For your copy of "World's Best Loved Poems," send 15 cents in coins or stamps to The Examiner's Home Service Department, Peterborough. Be sure to write your name and address plainly and also the name of the booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOBODY TO BE BLAMED

THERE IS so much uncertainty coupled with the certainties of bridge, that in many cases nobody should be credited for an accomplishment, and nobody should be blamed for a failure. Duplicate shows this emphatically, with each deal getting played a number of times. By bidding of about equal merit, for instance, West may become declarer at one table, in a particular contract, and East may be the one to try it at another. Usually different leads will be made by the two defenders, thereby determining the result.

North: ♠ K 10 9 4 2; ♥ Q J 10 2; ♦ 10 3 2; ♣ A

West: ♠ Q 7 6; ♥ A K 8 6 3; ♦ K 7; ♣ Q 7 5

East: ♠ J 8 5; ♥ 7; ♦ A Q 9 6; ♣ K J 8 6 2

South: ♠ A 3; ♥ 9 5 4; ♦ J 8 5 4; ♣ 10 9 4 3

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

	West	North	East	South
1.	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
	2 ♥	Pass	2 NT	Pass
	3 NT
2.	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
	2 ♥	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
	3 NT

Among various bidding successions on this deal, the two chronicled are typical to show how East became declarer in some cases, and West in others. Where East was the declarer, the contract was made in every case, but where West was, he was beaten

Against East, South led the diamond 4 to the A. The club 2 to the Q lost to the A, and the diamond 3 was won by the K. After the club K and J, South won the club 8 with the 10 and led the diamond 5 to the 9. East then scored the club 8, diamond Q and the heart tops, losing two spades at the end. Notice that, if the defenders had switched to spades after the opening lead of a diamond, East nevertheless could have made his contract, because South would have had no way to put North back into the lead after the club A was gone.

Where West played the hand, North led the spade 10 to the A, took the repeat with the K, and knocked out the only spade stopper while he still held the club A for a re-entry. After he scored this, he took two more spades, beating the contract.

Of course if, against East, South had decided to lead the unbid suit, spades, following the A with the 3, the contract could have been beaten, but nobody made that lead.

Your Week-End Lesson

Why is it that a very fine player will sometimes be set two tricks, in rubber bridge, whereas, playing the same contract and the same hand, a player of equal skill is beaten only one trick in a match point duplicate?

Secession Move Facing Smith Over ResortRoad

LAKEFIELD, May 2 — (ENS) — Village cottage owners on the Smith side of Clear and Stoney Lakes are showing considerable interest in a reported agitation for the forming of a separate corporation among the resortists in that section.

Fly in the ointment seems to be a simple matter of roads—three of them, not very long at that, probably about one mile and a half for the longest—from Highway 28 to the lake front. One is the 13th Concession, another is the Kawartha Park road and the third links with Sandy Point.

Seems members of the Kawartha Park Association are of the opinion Smith Township doesn't spend enough on those particular roads—at least not in proportion to the taxes they pay.

Members of the Association are reported to feel that if they 'ncorporate, on their present assessment they could spend considerable more on road work—but before definite action is taken Toronto members have contacted Clerk Alex Edmison asking the township to make some proposal on the matter—as a result a deputation has been asked to attend Monday's Smith council meeting with a view to an amicable settlement.

Some Misunderstanding

Deputy Reeve Gilbert McIlmoyle points out that apparently the cottagers believe the township has control of more money for roads than it really has. The road rate is set at two mills—and on an approximate assessment of $25,000 from the summer resort section along those two lake it gives the council about $50 to spend on those particular strips of roadway.

The county and school rate cut deeply into the taxes the cottagers pay and over that the township has no control. This year with the grant cut abut $2,000 the township will be able to spend only some $6,000 instead of $7,500-$8,000 it usually spends on its 110 miles of roads.

"In the past four or five years since I have been on the council" said Mr. McIlmoyle, "We have spent $75 to $80 a year on the Kawartha Park road, and despite that I'll admit it isn't what it should be. Much of the work has been done in the summer when the road is hard and at that time grading gravel with a horse grader is a tough job to show any results.

"However, this year the township has a tractor grader being operated by Nelson Coons under township road superintendent Gordon Fitzgerald, and I believe some work has already been done on that particular road, with further work in view.

Tops as Tourist Area

"We have one of the best tourist townships in the county with the majority of our roads running to lakefronts and in the interest of the township it is to our benefit to see that those roads are in as decent shape as we can keep them with the money we have. Our farmers benefit a great deal from the tourists who are a real asset to the township, and I'm certainly in favor of giving them all the road service we can—and with this power grader it should be possible to see an improvement.

"I would suggest the cottagers consider raising an extra mill or two among themselves, which, pooled with what we can spend, some real progress could be made toward excellent entrances to those water—and if the Association sends a front in the Kawartha Park districts deputation to the council this idea will be broached. I think this whole thing can be ironed out without such drastic action as a secession for a separate corporation."

British A.A. Defence In Western Desert

An anti-aircraft gunner, well dug in along the roadside, keeps a constant look-out for enemy aircraft along a road in the Western desert. Motor transport on the desert roads is always open to attack by low-flying enemy planes and various precautions are taken to combat this danger.

No one could offer an explanation of the crash but the Civil Aeronautics Board at Washington ordered four investigators to the scene.

The airline's last passenger fatality was December 4, 1940. Since then the line has flown between 400,000,000 and 500,000,000 miles without accident and last year had a perfect record and received the safety award for major airlines.

Japs Turning

forming a wide arc around Burma's one-time capital. The main defences now are due west of Mandalay in positions behind a big bend in the Irrawaddy River.

On the Lashio front, 150 miles northeast of Mandalay, where Japanese tank and infantry columns held Lashio, the Burma road terminus, and had pushed beyond to within 45 miles of China's hinterland frontier, only the knowledge that Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's forces were being heavily reinforced lightened an equally gloomy picture.

At last reports, the Chinese were holding Hsenwi, 22 miles northeast of Lashio along the Burma Road.

Once a tranquil little farming community capital of n rth Hsenwi State, the town was made important by the building of the Burma Road and development of nearby lead and silver mines.

Once in Japanese hands, Hsenwi would provide a springboard for a wide encircling movement to cut the railroad north of Mandalay and thus prevent any British retreat by that route to far northern Burma and Assam.

Advices from Chungking said some reinforcements already are opposing the Japanese north of Lashio, but there no longer is any doubt that the enemy is smashing with the whole weight of greater numbers, eastward toward China rather than westward toward India.

Just where the Japanese will aim still is uncertain. One Axis report even put Chungking, Free China's capital, at the top of Japan's list.

More likely, however, is the theory that the Japanese, having closed the main gate to China by choking off the Burma road, might try to sever the remote Assam road, another 400 miles north in Burma—now more a lifeline for China than ever before.

With the Burma road lost and the Japanese blockading China's coast, Chungking has only three possible overland avenues left for receiving essential supplies from abroad. The Assam road is the likeliest of thee.

The other are the "Red route" between Siberia and northwest China, which has provided only a trickle in recent years, and the new Allied route from the Persian Gulf through Iran, whose volume might be dependent on Russia's own transportation needs.

Chiselled out of the cliffs of the Himalayas and flung across some of the great rivers of Asia, the Assam supply route taps the Indian railway system from Calcutta —a 2,300-mile haul by truck and river steamship or railroad.

At least 330 miles, one-third of the highway link, is known to be complete, connecting Sichang, in southern Kikang province, to Loshan, in western Szechwan province. Loshan, in turn, already is connected by road to Chungking, 170 airline miles to the east.

Conscription

ures showing that there were 15,269 men serving in the forces in Canada after having been called up under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

"What is Parliament going to do," Mr. Green asked, "about this situation of having units made up of men some of whom can be sent out of Canada and some who cannot? A situation where one man in a company can say 'I do not have to go outside of Canada' while the man beside him has to go.

"That is, from a military point of view . . . placing a great handicap on our commanding officers and also on the troops themselves . . .

"Only five days ago the Canadian people freed our hands . . . and our course is perfectly clear . . . action should be taken now, without further delay to remove the restriction which we ourselves imposed in section three of the National Resources Mobilization Act.

"If we take that action we shall show the Canadian people . . . that this House of Commons means business, that the plebiscite was not just a sham and that we intend to keep faith with the people," Mr. Green declared.

Watching the Pacific

Col. Ralston replied that every possible attention was being paid to formations on the Pacific coast and nothing in the department was moving "with greater acceleration and more energy and vigor."

He added "I can also assure my friend that we are equipping them to the fullest extent of what we can provide having regard to all the necessities which we have for equipment in active theatres."

With regard to formation of a striking force or an expenditionary force on the Pacific coast the minister said that could not be stated.

The Seventh and Eighth Divisions were being formed and would be built up and trained. "What these divisions will be used for or where they may best be disposed are matters which will have to be dealt with as circumstanc s arise."

Col. Ralston recalled that Prime Minister Mackenzie King had declared he would act under the War Measures Act if necessary to send N.R.M.A. recruits to the Aleutian Islands or into adjacent United States territory.

With regard to an expeditionary force, "that matter will be dealt with and taken care of when the time comes," Col. Ralston continued. "That is another matter and it has to do with the plebiscite," he added later.

During the course of debate Capt. Rodney Adamson (Con., York West) suggested that staff officers should get around more among the field formations, and field officers should have an opportunity to serve in defence headquarters.

Col. Ralston said he agreed and added this was being made possible more and more by reason of increasing the staff and facilitating such visits and by conferences at headquarters.

To questions raised by another war veteran now again in active service, Capt. Leslie Mutch (Lib., Winnipeg South), Col. Ralston said the aptitude tests were being conducted to keep misfits out of the Army.

Capt. Mutch suggested that something in the nature of labor battalions should be organized for those who now are being discharged because of their inability to learn to be good soldiers.

Jean Francois Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) said there should be no expeditionary force sent to Australia or the Far East.

The reason Australia was asking for United States and other troops was because her best men had been sent to other fronts at the start of the war.

He claimed that the plebiscite vote did not release the Government and quoted a reported radio speech by Senator Gouin of Montreal in support of his statement.

He said Senator Gouin, after being introduced to his radio audience by Brooke Claxton (Lib. Montreal-St. Lawrence-St. George) had told his listeners "If you vote 'yes' in the plebiscite, the plebiscite is to keep conscription away."

The member for Temiscouata said that he had been told by many English-speaking members of the House that "they were positively opposed to conscription, and their electors also and that they voted 'yes' just because they were told that conscription could not be imposed if they voted 'yes.'"

Couple Peddle Stolen Gas –To A Detective

TORONTO May 2. — It was as easy as knocking off a sitting duck—no chase, no gunplay, no nothing. Here was Detective-Sergeant William Coleman walking along King Street near Church Street yesterday minding his own business and giving no particular thought to evildoers. Two men carrying a can of gasoline approached. One of them said: "Say, mister, do you want to buy some gasoline?"

Mr. Coleman was greatly interested in the proposition and inquired the price. He was told he could have the can and the contents for exactly a quarter of a dollar.

"Would you mind putting it in my car?" asked the would-be buyer. "It's just around the corner."

The pair were agreeable, and the three of them walked up Church Street and along Court Street. The two men looked at the car and then at Coleman. Then they looked at the police station, and it dawned on them that of all the thousands of people in the city, they had picked on the wrong one. It was certainly embarrassing.

They uttered one word, full of meaning: "Double-crossed."

"Come into the station," invited Mr. Coleman warmly. The invitawas so pressing they just couldn't decline. There was quite a chummy little gathering in the station and the visitors gave some information about themselves. One said he was Harold Mullen, 33, and the other answered to the name of George Burkholder, 55. There was no need for Mr. Coleman and his colleagues to introduce themselves.

To-day Messrs. Mullen and Burkholder will pay a business call to one of the city police courts. Something to do with the alleged the of five gallons of gasoline from the lawn in front of the tool-room of St. James' Cathedral.

Bancroft Father And His Son Walk Twenty Miles To Enlist

William H. Thomas of Bancroft and his 19-year-old son, Donald, provided the Armouries recruiting officer with a fine proof of the zeal of the men of the district about Peterborough. They set out at eight last Monday morning to thumb their way south to Peterborough. At seven-thirty they marched into the Armouries, having walked 20 miles of the journey. Both were in top notch condition, a credit to the value of outdoor living. Don was at once taken on the strength of the Rangers. His father, who served with the 4th Canadian Mounted Rifles for three years of the last war, was because of a wound from that service, unable to serve with the Rangers, and was posted to the Veteran's Guard. He will report early next week and then set out for Lansdowne Park, Ottawa. Bancroft will be proud of the Thomases, but Peterborough will be glad to see that the recent lists of those added to the regiment maintain the record of numerous city names.

Another list of those rejected on medical grounds also appears below. A recent case deserves mention—a man from the heart of Peterborough. He is a skilled tradesman whose experience would have been invaluable to the army, and an excellent shot with eyes so well trained he could read every line, even the bottom one on the eyetest chart. He seemed in perfect health and was so keen that he sacrificed holiday time to have his medical. Yet the medical board was forced to reject him because of an unsuspected heart condition. It is because such men appear perfectly fit that the Rangers feel that their action in volunteering should be made public.

Family Problem Must Not Be Ignored

Personal contact and intelligent financing were labelled by Dr. John MacLean as the paramount features of a successful social welfare scheme, in an iteresting address to the Kiwanis Club, Friday. The first general secretary of the Social Welfare in Toronto was introduced by L. J. Pettit.

According to the speaker, the well-trained social service worker is the key to efficient social service work, although it is recognized that many people in all communities give valuable voluntary assistance. Experienced guidance of these groups is usually more successful in the work.

When the work was first begun, methods in use in New York, Boston and Cleveland were studied and those best suited to their peculiar needs were adopted. As a result there was less money spent for immediate relief, and more for the training of efficient workers.

In our civilization the family is the social unit. Tremendous problems arise from discouraged families, and if they are ignored they can become a serious menace. Advice and encouragement must be given, rather than money, to develop an independent spirit in those who develop a leaning habit.

Not Normal Life

Many institutions are crowded with children, who were placed there by parents during an emergency and then forgotten. Of ten of these in Toronto, all have been closed but one. Institutional life is not normal for a child. It must be a question of what is best for the child. Of the children taken from institutions, some are returned to their own homes, and other are placed in well-chosen family homes, where they receive the benefit of family direction.

Dr. MacLean told Kiwanians that they were rendering a great service in their continued encouragement, along recreational lines, to the soldiers, as well as other service projects. "We are all interested in what is being done for our boys and you are earning the gratitude of a great many wives and sweethearts and parents."

The vote of thanks was moved by Dr. C. B. Waite on behalf of Kiwanis members.

YOU CAN STILL BUILD!

Essential Building Materials Are Still Available—

Building Costs Are Only Slightly Increased

Over recent months there has been a great deal of mis-information circulated about the cost of building and whether or not contractors can complete houses for civilian occupation—

HERE ARE THE FACTS—

1—You can still build homes under $5,000 without a license from the Controller of Construction—over $5,000 a license is necessary.

2—A contractor can still get all materials necessary for home construction

In addition to the foregoing, any building which you do will help to relieve the housing shortage and thus allow out-of-town workers to find accommodations.

Building Loans Under The National Housing Act Are Still Available

To Present Home Owners

While it's true that building materials are still available, we might suggest that if you are not interested in building, it will pay you to Re-roof, Re-side where necessary, or Insulate. Real Estate is a valuable asset, and this asset should be protected.

Insulation is definitely an investment, and the saving and comfort not only in Winter but also during the hot Summer months, will continue to pay dividends years after the original investment has been paid by the saving in heating cost.

Hun Fighting Shoulder Deep In Mud

On Murmansk Front; 2,000 Nazis Slain Before Leningrad

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts, May 4—(AP)—The German high command said today that Nazi troops had made successful local attacks on the central front before Moscow and had beaten off Russian stabs in Lapland and on the Murmansk front.

A military spokesman said the fighting in the north was "lively, but swampy terrain made operations more difficult."

"German soldiers who had forced their way through this country often sank into mud right up to their shoulders," he said.

The Russians attacked "a fairly large locality," but were said to have been repulsed by German troops, supported by planes and artillery. The spokesman said 14 tanks, 12 guns, 74 trench mortars and 152 machine guns were destroyed or seized and that several hundred prisoners were captured.

Russian tank attacks southeast of Lake Ilmen, 130 miles south of Leningrad, were reported repulsed.

Large numbers of armored vehicles were destroyed or heavily damaged in attacks on Russian communications," the spokesman said.

A Cruiser Sunk?

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), May 4—(AP). —The German high command claimed today that a 10,000-ton British cruiser had been sunk in a Nazi attack on a convoy off the northern coast of Russia

(The claim lacks confirmation of any sort from Allied sources).

German naval ships and submarines, operating with the air force, were said by the communique to have attacked strongly escorted convoys "for days on end in storm and high sea and ice." Six ships were said hit or sunk.

One German destroyer suffered "serious damage."

Brazilian 157th In Sea Toll; 7 In Past Week

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, May 4 (AP).—The Brazilian freighter Parnahyba has been torpedoed and sunk near the Island of Trinidad and a Spanish liner has picked up one life-boat with 23 survivors, it was announced today. The Parnahyba was the sixth vessel lost by Brazil, apparently by Axis action, in three months.

Two lifeboats with an undetermined number of men aboard are missing.

The Parnahyba, 6,692 tons, was sunk May 1 while bound for New York, the announcement said. The Spanish vessel Cabo de Hornos, which made the rescue, searched the vicinity fruitlessly for the missing men.

Brazil broke relations with Germany, Italy and Japan shortly after the Pan-American Conference of Foreign Ministers in Rio de Janenro in January.

NEW YORK, May 4.—(AP).—Undersea raiders picked off seven Allied merchant vessels n the Atlantic last week to bring to 157 the announced total of United Nations ships sunk in that area since Dec. 7.

The Axis submarines got six victims off the United States' east coast beween April 27 and May 3, making that section's war total 85, and one in the Caribbean for a war total there of 38. No new sinkings were reported in Canadian and South American waters, where 24 and 10 vessels, erspectively, fell prey to subs since Dec. 7.

Three of last week's sinkings were of U.S. ships; one each of British, Panamanian, Swedish and Netherlands registry.

Million Tons Duce's Ships Sunk Already

R.A.F. Gets Another On Saturday 3 Planes Downed

CAIRO, May 4 (CP)—The Royal Air Force ranged out over the Mediterranean and Libya during the week-end, headquarters announced today, while at the same time naval authorities disclosed that 1,273,000 tons of Axis merchant shipping have been sunk in the Mediterranean since Italy entered the war.

The latest foray against shipping in Mussolini's "mare nostrum" was made Saturday night, in which an R.A.F. plane scored a direct hit upon an enemy merchant ship. Other British aircraft attacked shipping in Bengasi harbor while still others, defending Malta and Alexandria against raids, shot down two attacking craft.

In all the Germans lost three aircraft in the Mediterranean area over the week-end, one over Malta, one over Alexandria and one destroyed by anti-aircraft fire over the western desert.

A communique described the raids on Malta as "on a reduced scale." There were no details announced of the attack on Alexandria, Britain's eastern Mediterranean naval base, except that one enemy plane was destroyed by night fighters and others were damaged.

Land fighting in Libya was on a small scale, headquarters indicated. It summed up Sunday's operations by saying:

"Some small groups of enemy vehicles and enemy working parties were dispersed by artillery fire from some of our columns."

The Italians earlier had claimed that light British forces were dispersed by artillery fire while Axis planes and artillery attacked British troops concentrations and lines of construction.

The Germans announced a raid on Alexandria but gave no claims of results.

An official statement issued at Alexandria on Axis shipping losses said the Royal Navy and R.A.F. during the first four months of this year sank 147,000 tons in the Mediterranean compared with 715,000 tons for the whole of 1941.

Eight other ships totalling 32,000 tons have probably been sunk, and 25 more, totalling 132,000 tons, have been damaged. The figures account for operating to April 30.

To The Indian Ocean

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), May 4—(AP). —The Berlin radio today broadcast the following Rome dispatch:

"Referring to President Roosevelt's announcement that United States naval units already were operating in the Mediterranean, Mondays' Il Popolo di Roma stated that the battleships Washington and North Carolina, each of 35,000 tons entered Mediterranean at Gibraltar and again left it at Suez in the direction of the Indian Ocean.

"The paper added that the two ships were replacing in the Indian Ocean damaged British ships and strengthening the Anglo-American position there which had been weakened by the sinking of the Prince of Wales and Repulse."

Canadian, 8 Pals Shot Down Hike To Sweden

LONDON, May 4—(CP Cable).—A Canadian airman reported to have reached the Swedish frontier after he was shot down during the Royal Air Force raid on Trondheim last Tuesday was identified today as Pilot Officer D. P. MacIntyre of East Saint John, N.B.

He as among nine airmen who reached Sweden after three days and nights plowing through the Norwegian mountain snows. It was at first thought a Pilot Officer Hewitt in the party also was Canadian but the records showed otherwise.

MacIntyre's next of kin is his mother, Mrs. A. W. MacIntyre of East Saint John.

The fliers were members of two bomber crews. Swedish newspapers described their exploit "almost superhuman because the Norwegian mountain valleys at this time of year are "almost impassable."

The Daily Mail said the fliers were interned at Falun in central Sweden and that there was a possibility they might be released if it could be established they were "escaped prisoners of war."

LONDON — (CP).—Rivers swollen by the spring thaw were reported to-day to be holding both the Russian and German armies in check along the 2,000-mile battlefront. For example the River Don, usually a mile wide, was said to be 30 miles across in some places.

Blenheim Bombers Break Up Jap Barge Armada Trailing Retreating Army

Chinese Forces Fight Bitterly Along Road Leading To Capital Chungking With Traitorous Elements Aiding Japs

CHUNGKING, May 4—(AP).—Chinese troops fought fiercely through the night 60 miles up the Burma Road from Lashio to stem the Japanese driving toward China proper, while the British and Indian forces on the Allied flank before India dropped back slowly to prepared positions, a Chinese communique said today.

The Japanese thrusting up the once-great supply line to China continued to advance "in an attempt to attack Chinese positions near Kutkai," the Chinese communique said.

Kutkai is 40 miles from Yunnan province, but the Japanese, adept with encircling tactics, might conceivably be closer to China.

One column which attempted to flank the Chinese positions was repulsed, the Chinese said.

Fighting continues in the Monywa area of the Cindwin river valley where another Japanese column had driven to within 100 miles of India.

Chinese forces were sowly falling back along the Irrawaddy river north of Mandalay.

Bombers Wreck Barges.

NEW DELHI, India, May 4—(CP) —A smashing attack by British Blenheim bombers was made on a concentration of Japanese barges moving up the Chindwin River in Burma and direct hits were made on the boats, an R.A.F. communique announced to-day.

The attack was made this morning in the face of a heavy anti-aircraft fire, a communique said, but all the bombers returned to their bases.

He said two main Japanese advances were developing— the first up the Burma Road toward Chungking, 700 miles away; the second up the Chindwin River and Valley in pursuit of the battered army of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, which bars the route to India.

The Chinese troops operating along the Burma Road face the heaviest enemy assault of the campaign, an informed source said.

This source declared the "danger is not only from the Japanese on the Burma Road, but from elements in China who are willing to collaborate with the Japanese new order in Asia."

The situation along the road may speedily become desperate, he said, since "operations in Burma have slowed supplies to China and sapped the strength of the Chinese Army."

The military commentator said the British Army was fighting successfully around Monywa, a town which lies on the Ye-U-Mandalay railroad just east of the Chindwin River and 60 miles west of Mandalay. This force is protecting the British forces who are withdrawing to the north to protect routes to India from Kawlin and Mawlaik.

British troops disposed of Japanese units in this action around Monywa, he said, and now are mopping up Burmese who fought with the Japanese.

There is a third Japanese advance which is aligned with those up the Burma Road and the Chindwin Valley—a push along the Irrawaddy which seeks to flank the British from the north.

Huns Execute 10 For One Nazi;

BERNE, Switzerland, May 5 (AP) —Ten hostages have been executed in Lille, France, 50 others have been deported and very serious general restrictions will be taken against the population of that German-occupied city in reprisal for the assassination of a German soldier there April 30, it was reported today.

(Private advices reaching New York said 55 French hostages have been executed in Lille by the Germans but no details were given. That total brought to at least 777 the number of Frenchmen known to have been executed by the Germans.)

The Swiss Telegraph Agency, quoting information in the newspaper Grand Echo Du Nord, said the executions and deportations took place April 30.

Supply Ship Fired

LONDON, May 4—(CP Cable).—A Hudson bomber piloted by Flt.-Sgt. E. L. Howey, Exter, Ont., one of a Canadian coastal command squadron attacking two German convoys off the Netherlands coast, scored four direct hits on a supply ship today and left it blazing fiercely.

The attacks were made at low level despite a terrific anti-aircraft barrage. Howey said that after the bombs hit he saw bright orange flashes and flame.

"The ship blazed up quickly," he related. "I don't think it could remain afloat."

Herridges Urges National Gov't. Lest U.S. Step In

OTTAWA, May 4—(CP).—(Advance)—Hon. W. D. Herridge, former Canadian Minister to Washington, said today in a service club luncheon address that Canada must have a national government to give it leadership or the day may come when the United States will have to intervene in Dominion affairs.

Mr. Herridge, one-time leader of the New Democracy party, said the change from party government to National Government would not come from Parliament.

"You must bring about this change, you and men like you," he said to his hearers. "This country has given you its best. You can repay it. You are trained to think clearly and act wisely. You have experience. Your patriotism is unmortgaged. You are the natural leaders."

The average man was diligent to dodge responsibility, but the manpower plebiscite had put Canadians "on the spot."

"If you refuse the challenge, where is there any hope?" he said. "If men like you decline to make a fight, there is no hope. Your country will continue to subside.

"Then a day may come when something unbelievable will happen. The United States may have to intervene in Canada. We may begin to take orders from Washington.

"No Other Way"

"That would be hateful to Washington. But it would have no choice. Washington well knows what happens to a leaderless democracy. It has France painfully in mind. Washington cannot afford to have another France in North America. That might be the canker which would destroy democracy throughout the new world."

The curse of Canada had been lack of leadership.

In time of war it was not possible for party government effectively to lead a democratic state, because its very nature compelled disunity.

"When you get up a wartime party government and arm it with despotic powers, you prepare the way for Fascism," Mr. Herridge said. "And somewhere on the way to fascism the throat of freedom will inevitably be cut. The personnel of the govern-

Admiralty Reveals 3 Of Hitler's Warships Knocked Out

LONDON, May 4.—(CP).— The R.A.F. resumed its incessant pounding of German aerial bases, mainly Le Havre in occupied France, today, the high-flying squadrons roaring across the channel which a few hours earlier had heard the engines of night bombers returning from smashes at the submarine base of St Nazaire.

Hamburg, great German port on the Elbe river, Kristiansand in South Norway and St. Nazaire were the main targets. Six fires in the Norse raid were visible 50 miles.

Lange fires were left burning in Hamburg, which was pounded for the first time since the night of April 17.

German night bombers retaliated for the Hamburg attack with a heavy assault on Exeter, in southwestern England, but Britain's night sharpshooters shot down five German planes over Britain and two others over airdromes in occupied France during the night. About 30 German planes were in action, giving the R.A.F. night fighters a bag of almost one of four.

The raid on Hamburg was the first since the night of April 17 when a strong force of Britain's most formidable bombers—Stirlings, Wellingtons, Manchesters and Hampdens—spread many fires. Selection of the great northern port and naval base as a target underlined Britain's growing attention to keep Nazi seapower crippled and land-locked.

Scare for Toulon

Mysteriously, air alarms sounded and ground defences went into action before dawn this morning in the French port of Marseille and the great naval base at Toulon, about 40 miles farther east on France's Mediterranean coast.

The only explanation for the alarms was the Vichy radio's broadcast that unidentified planes appeared over both places but dropped no bombs.

Renewal of the assaults on much-bombed Hamburg, despite poor flying weather over Germany, came within 24 hours of a joint Admiralty-Air Ministry announcement that three of Germany's most potent war vessels have been knocked out of the war for some time to come.

These are the 26,000-ton sister battleships Gneisenau and Scharnrorst and the 10,000-ton cruiser Prinz Eugen which escaped home through

Three Elephants 1st Jap Captured

By DANIEL DELUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH CHINESE FORCES IN BURMA, April 19.—(Delayed)—(AP) —Three captured Japanese elephants lumbered into Chinese field headquarters today, their gleeful Chinese guards having more fun than a circus.

A Chinese patrol ambushed the elephant transport column several days ago near Toungoo, far behind the front line. There were five pachyderms, each carrying four tons of dismantled artillery and ammunition. Their escorts were eight Japanese riflemen and two Indian mahouts.

Rounding a turn in the road they came in range of Chinese machine-gunners who killed six of the Japanese and two of the elephants. The remainder of the unit was captured.

The Indians said they were forced to work for the Japanese. One of the Japanese escaped but the other was brought to the rear in good health. Chinese officers said he was the only enemy trooper to reach headquarters alive since the Chinese army entered the Sittang front.

Colored Trouble In Detroit

2,000 Negroes Loot, Burn Cafe After One Shot

DETROIT, May 4—(AP).—Three policemen were injured by flying bricks early Sunday while dispersing a Negro mob estimated at 2,000 which looted and burned a restaurant operated by a white proprietor after a Negro was shot and seriously wounded in another nearby white restaurant.

It was Detroit's second major demonstration of inter-racial animosity in a little more than two months.

State troops with fixed bayonets, State police and city police still maintain constant guard over the $1,000,000 sojourner truth housing project for Negroes, scene of rioting February 28 when white residents of the neighborhood, who had protested Negro occupation of the 200-home Federal development, clashed with the Negroes.

Detective-Inspector William Delisle said the new disorder, miles away from the sojourner truth project, followed the shooting of Henry Rollin, 46-year-old Negro, in a restaurant altercation.

Police arrested Peter Kafcas, 22, son of the restaurant proprietor, and held him for investigation.

While officers were restoring order in the vicinity of Kafcas' restaurant, Delisle reported, Negroes gathered at the second.

Claim Hun General Staff Aided Giraud

Took French General 8 Months To Weave Thread His Wife Sent, Into Rope

LONDON, May 4 —(CP Cable)— Free French sources said last night that Vichy authorities would not dare to turn Gen. Henri Honore Giraud over to the Germans from whom he escaped recently and the widely-read Reynolds News declared the general escaped with the connivance of the German high command.

In its most prominently displayed front page story Reynolds said today that Giraud had been allowed to escape from the Koenigstein fortress where he had been held since the capitulation of France and that the German general staff now is "practically unanimous in its opposition to Hitler."

Quoting sources "which in the past have proved reliable," Reynolds said an influential section of German industrialists is attempting to form a Catholic opposition to Hitler."

"Through German representatives in a neutral embassy these people have tried to make contact with the Allies," the newspaper said, adding: "They are prepared to offer the restoration of democratic government after Hitler is overthrown."

Reynolds quoted a Swiss source as saying that Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Gestapo, found a list of German generals and industrialists who were preparing to take over from Hitler and negotiate for peace. Hitler, the Swiss source said, was given the list before he made his birthday speech.

Propaganda being spread throughout Germany that Hitler is about to deal with "capitalists, profiteers and cowardly generals" who are holding up the war effort is regarded in some quarters as a preliminary to a new Nazi blood purge, the newspapers said.

It added that all these stories must be accepted with reserve because "Hitler and Mussolini are quite capable of encouraging such rumors in order to cover preparations for a new attack, but there is a great deal of evidence pointing to the conclusion that Hitler and Germany are facing a grave internal crisis."

Of Giraud, a hero of two wars, Free French sources declared: "It is clear that Vichy is determined to protect him. Petain will show himself very firm on this point and it is doubtful if even Laval would accede to the German demands which, if met, would exasperate the French people who hold Giraud in such high esteem."

8 Months' Preparation.

VICHY, May 1 — (Delayed).— Gen. Henri Giraud disclosed to-day that eight months of painstaking planning paved the way for his successful flight from supposedly escape proof Koenigstein fortress where he was a prisoner of war.

Here is the story as Giraud told it to friends in the same matter-of-fact terms he might have used to described a well-conceived military operation:

"For eight months every package I receeived from my wife included strands of thread that I wove into a cable 20 metres (about 65 feet) long. (Thirty-seven words were deleted here by censor).

"Shortly afterwards I reached the nearest railway station but the alarm was quickly given and severe control already had been organized

Deny Fascist Chiefs Shot

Said To Have Opposed Italians Going To Russia

LONDON, May 4—(CP)). — An Italian broadcast of a semi-official statement described as "absurd and ridiculous" today the report that prominent members of the Fascist party had been arrested for protesting against sending Italian troops to the Eastern front.

A supplement to the Soviet Russian communique early today said that many prominent representatives of the party had been shot after they were arrested, and that it was believed the victims had opposed sending Italian troops to help Hitler.

That some tightening up of Italian legal procedure is under way was seen in a Berlin broadcast today that Il Duce will receive judges and other legal experts who have been working on a new civil code. The commission is to make its report Wednesday.

A Tass broadcast from Moscow today indicated that Hitler may be using the rival territorial claims of Italy and France to play the two countries against one another.

The broadcast said dispatches from Switzerland reported a fresh wave of demonstrations in Italy demanding transfer of Nice in Southern France to Italy.

JAPANESE FORCES ARE 30 MILES FROM FREE CHINA'S BACK DOOR

CHUNGKING, May 4 — (AP). — Heavy Japanese reinforcements were reported moving up the Burma Road from Lashio today in support of advance units which fought their way to within 30 miles of the Yunnan frontier, back door to Free China.

(A Reuters' dispatch from Chungking said the Japanese had launched a violent assault upon Chinese positions only 23 miles from the Yunnan border.)

Dispatches from the front told of sharp fighting at Kweichieh, 58 miles north of Lashio, where the railway from Rangoon connects with the tortuous highway over which war materials were flowing into China only a few weeks ago.

The presence of Japanese troops at Kweichieh represented a 25-mile advance in about 4° hours.

News of the Japanese advance up the Burma Road was accompanied by an official announcement that Chinese forces had withdrawn Friday from bomb-scarred Mandalay, the one-time Burmese capital about 125 miles southwest of Lashio.

The Chinese declared they are still holding Taunggyi, about 100 miles south ast of Mandalay, but it appeared their situation there is precarious.

Japanese forces have been reported in the vicinity of Hsipaw, some 40 miles south of Lashio on the road to Manadalay. If these units succeed in joining hands with the Japanese at Mandalay the Chinese troops at Taunggyi would be cut off.

Chinese Pilots Active

Bombers flown by Chinese pilots and escorted by members of the American Volunteer Group, however, were reported to be smashing hard at the Japanese at Lashio.

A.V.G. headquarters announced last night that "a Chinese bombardment group" had heavily attacked the Lashio airdrome, blowing up a fuel dump, setting fire to buildings and bombing grounded planes. Escorting fighters strafed the ground.

(The announcement was the first official mention of "a Chinese bombardment group" and might indicate that reinforcements of heavy bombers had reached China—prboably by way of India.)

Recapitulating the situation in Burma, a Chinese army spokesman declared that the Japanese had lost between 13,000 and 14,000 killed and wounded since the campaign there began Feb. 5. He put Chinese losses at 3,000 to 4,000.

The spokesman said "only a portion of the Chinese Expeditionary Force" in Burma actually has been in contact with the invaders thus far and declared the Chinese still are confident of ultimate success.

Minimizing the loss of Mandalay, he said the Chinese had withdrawn "voluntarily because of strategic considerations" and promised they would regain the city.

at the station.

"Without hesitating I took a young woman traveller by the arm and marched on to the station platform wih her. "After a trip without incident, I got off the train in an Alsation station near the Swiss frontier. (23 words censored).

"Then I crossed the frontier into Switzerland."

Giraud did not elaborate on the story, although other friends who intimated they had the information from him said that on the first try he found the rope was too short and he had to climb back and wait until he found enough materia to stretch it to its proper length.

When he finally made good his escape, these friends said, he came face to face with a German sentinel just after he had slipped down the rope.

"Pretty cold to-night isn't it, my boy," Giraud is supposed to have asked the sentry.

The surprised sentinel was reported to have replied "Yes sir" as Giraud stuffed his hands in his pockets and strolled off, whistling.

Because the alarm had been given, Giraud was not able to take a direct express but had to change trains numbers of times before he reached Alsace.

Not Surrendered Yet

VICHY, May 4.— (AP) — The whereabouts of Gen. Henri Giraud, who escaped from a German prison and fled through Switzerland to unoccupied France, were uncertain today but official sources denied he had been turned over to German military authorities.

(A Reuters dispatch from Berne, Switzerland, said the General was reported visiting with relatives at Lyon, in unoccupied France.)

Commenting on reports current during the week-end concerning the General's fate, these sources said:

"As a result of erroneous indications, rumors circulated with insistence that he had been handed over to German military authorities at Moulins. Information from official sources formally denied this news and states that Gen. Giraud is still in unoccupied France."

Reports which the Associated Press received Saturday night from reliable European informants said Giraud was in custody near Vichy while the French and Germans argued over whether he should be returned to the Nazis. These advices, however, said nothing about his having been turned over to the Germans at Moulins.

In London, Free French sources expressed belief that fear of enraging the French people would prevent the Vichy Government from turning Giraud over to the Germans.

out capital assistance beyond that originally advanced," he said. One new wartime Canadian factory exceeded by more than 300 per cent. its scheduled March output of anti-tank guns. In another instance, a plant producing an improved type of antiaircraft gun was six months ahead of its program.

Output of ammunition plants also reached new high levels last month and Canada turned out its 100,000th 500-pound bombs, the Minister said. Small arms ammunition was being produced "to the tune of millions of rounds every day."

Average production of all explosives and chemical plants during March was one-fourth better than rated capacity, he added.

Four munitions plants had started production on as many new types of shells since the beginning of the year, and they now were rolling off the assembly ines in 'steadily increasing quantities.'

Among the new types being produced were three calibres of anti-tank and one calibre of tank shells. Shells now were being made in Canada of 16 different types.

Successful Bazaar In Roseneath Hall

ROSENEATH, May 4.—(ENS).—The bazaar held under the auspices of the United Church W.A. in the town hall on Saturday afternoon and evening netted the Society slightly over $45. Satisfaction was expressed by the members over the result, and the patronage received, in view of the advanced season and the pressure of farm work. Mention might be made of the farm table, for included in its display were one hundred and eleven potted foliage plants, the donation of Mrs. E. Sandercock. Other departments included needlework, novelty, home cooking and afternoon tea.

The absence of a homemade candy table was a disappointment to many, children included, but sugar restrictions made this action necessary.

William Liggins, 19, of Mazenod, Sask., were drowned when the canoe in which they were riding with two girls overturned. One of the girls swam ashore and the other was rescued by onlookers.

Pte. Charles St. Hillier and Pte. Jack Benjamin Barron of Montreal were paddling in the river when their canoe overturned and Barron was drowned. St. Hillier managed to swim to shore.

Ernest Fry of Toronto and two companions were dumped into the waters of Lake Simcoe Sunday when their boat capsized in a sudden squall. Fry drowned after several attempts to right the boat, but his companions managed to keep afloat until rescued.

Crushed in an elevator shaft between the ground floor and the basement of the Kingston Hotel in which he was employed, William Abrams, 60, died in hospital Saturday two hours after he was admitted with chest injuries. Abrams was repairing the elevator mechanism at the time of the accident.

Miss Margaret Harkness, 23, of Kingston died Saturday of injuries suffered when two automobiles collided head-on on a highway near Perth.

Injured a week ago in a motor accident near Bond Lake, Howard W. Kirkman, 23, of Toronto died Saturday of internal injuries.

George McCaskell, 50, of Newboro, Leeds County, was killed late Friday night when the car in which he was a passenger left the road, hit a pole and overturned on a highway near Westport. Peter Whelan of Crosby, who police said was the driver of the car, was thrown through the cloth top of the car and escaped serious injury.

Hold 2 In Theft Of Synthetic Rubber Formula

NEW YORK, May 4 — (AP). — Two New Jersey men were charged early to-day with assault, robbery, and the kidnapping of Samuel B. Sklar, a Brooklyn research chemist, who told police he had perfected a process for the manufacture of synthetic rubber, but that it had disappeared during a scuffle with his alleged abductors.

After hours of questioning, the prisoners were booked on the three charges as Samuel Paris, 39, of Bradley Beach, N.J. who said he was superintendent of a hosiery mill, and Julius Suhoke, 35, of Paterson, N.J., who said he was a machine inspector at the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, Kearny, N.J.

Detective James Kane said that Sklar, told him he was lured into an automobile by the men who said they were taking him to "police headquarters" for questioning and that when he protested they struck him on the head.

Sklar escaped from the moving automobile a few blocks away from his home and his screams brought police and caused sounding of an alarm for the car, whose licence plate had been noted by passersby.

Patrolman Herman Lowenstein spotted the car later, and arrested its occupants.

Sklar suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and lacerations of the face, was quoted by Kane as insisting he had his rubber formula on his person when his abductors forced him into their car, but that it was missing when he escaped.

Help Problem Looms In Rural Areas

"Thanks for the editorial Saturday about the probable need of urban help at harvest time," F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative said this morning. "Local organizations are being formed in western Ontario cities for this purpose. Two that I know of are in Kitchener and Galt. I think everybody is hoping that auxiliary help of that kind will be needed because it will mean that farmers will have a big harvest. However, organization will have to be inspired from within the urban centres. The Department is anxious to help in every way possible, but does not think that it should go to the length of actually trying to get groups together for emergency service if ffarmers cannot handle the crop. Besides there would probably be more enthusiasm put into the effort if an organization started from its own interest and desire to be of help."

Feed crops for 1942-43 are apparently going to be about average. One exception in the grain prospects is fall wheat, promising an increase of 40 per cent.

Mr. Paterson mentioned some of the factors looming over the supply of feed for next winter.

Feed Question

"There is no assuance that the free freight policy on grain feeds from the west will be continued through 1942-43. Again, the west is increasing its production of livestock. Alberta marketed last January 216,068 hogs, as compared with 169,628 in Ontario that month. Adequate transportation facilities may not be available for grain transport because of the freight demands for moving war materials."

Mr. Paterson also said that there was likelihood of more western grain going to the United States next year.

"Canada and the United States have agreed to pool grain, and it may be that considerable supplies of our grain from Alberta and Saskatchewan moy go south to Iowa, Ohio and Dakota. The point is that we do not know how we are going to fare for feed grain next winter. Farmers are probably tired of hearing me talk about this subject, but it seems to me to be of first importance. We grew more corn last year, but a lot of it was diverted to the production of industrial alcohol.

"Many of our farmers are doing their utmost in planting grain and seeding down, and if we get fine weather through the growing season there is likely to be a bottleneck at harvest time."

Assignment of experienced farm workers now in the army is said to be in the official plans, and more of that expedient is expected to be announced later this season.

ment will become less mild. I warn you that it may be just as easy in Canada as it was in France, to replace Petains by the Lavals."

When the war came, real leadership would have enacted total conscription but the people did not want it and party government ran away from it. Before the manpower plebiscite there had been a demand for conscription but party government hid behind its pre-election pledge and "passed the buck to the people."

Mr. Herridge said he believes that had Canada wished to send the Canadian Corps to Libya, Prime Minister Churchill would have approved. But there was the question of whether the Canadian Corps overseas was ready to fight.

Not Enough Support

"In my opinion, the Canadian Corps had not reinforcements adequate to sustain it in offensive action," Mr. Herridge said. "Soldiers who have served in England support this view. The government replies that Gen. McNaughton (Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian Army Commander in the United Kingdom) is satisfied with the supply or reinforcements.

"This is not fair to Gen. McNaughton. There must be some mistake. To clear it up, the government should put the direct question to Gen. McNaughton: 'Are you satisfied that in the event of early and sustained offensive action, the Canadian forces have adequate reinforcements now available?'

"Lacking adequate reinforcements for even a corps, the government nevertheless sanctions the formation of an army. A strange way to strengthen our forces for a possible impending offensive. In the circumstances there is no justification for an army. Whom do we think we are fooling."

Col. Herridge said a national government might be created by a declaration of parliament that the circumstances of war demanded a national government, by formation of a cabinet with membership based on the relative voting strength of the various parties in the 1940 general election, and the creation of a war cabinet of five members with supreme authority over conduct of the war in all its manpower, economic and strategic phases.

Japs Heading Again For Moresby

Allied Fliers Score Hits On 3 Ships Down 12 Planes

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 4.—(CP)—The United Nations kept sharp watch today against a possible Japanese overland smash on Port Moresby after enemy forces again penetrated the Markham Valley of New Guinea.

The Japanese travelled 27 miles up the valley from Lae to Nadzab but later retired to positions around Lae.

The Japanese may attempt to get advanced airfields on the southeast tongue of the island north of Australia or may try eventually to push through the formidable mountains separating their north coast bases at Lae, Salamaua and Finschhafen from Port Moresby on the south coast.

That the Allies are not taking chances of a Japanese threat to their vital defence outpost either by land or by combined land-sea attack is evident, however, from the scope of their week-end air activities.

On the defensive, a communique said today, they bagged three Japanese bombers and one fighter from a formation of 12 enemy bombing planes and eight zero fighters Sunday in another of the frequent air attacks on Port Moresby. Allied losses were light.

Another 15 Japanese planes were shot down in other scattered battles during the week-end, headquarters reported.

Offensively, United Nations airmen damaged three Japanese transports at Rabaul, New Britain, Saturday, and a four-engined flying boat yesterday at Bougainville, in the Solomon Islands.

Up the Markham Valley

The new Japanese push into the Markham Valley was said to have reached Nadzab, 27 miles west of Lae, and another point 15 miles south of Salamaua. There was no contact between the Japanese forces and the Allies.

This was the second such incursion. Soon after fanning out to the island fringe north of Australia after the battle of Java, the Japanese launched a push through the valley but it was wiped out by sudden torrential rains and floods and the enemy forces fell back to their coast-

An hour or so was spent in a happy round of songs, with guitar music by Jimmy Byrne.

2,000 Nazi officers and men have been killed on the Leningrad front, the Soviet information bureau announced today in the second successive report of heavy German losses on the siege lines around that northern city.

A communique yesterday said 1,500 Germans had been killed there and others captured along with arms and provisions.

Although indications pointed to Russian plans for their own spring offensive, the communique again reported "nothing of importance" at the front. It told, however, of one unit at an undesignated point on the 2,000-mile front which drove the Germans from "important communication lines."

One intimation of Soviet intentions was the oath taken by Red army forces yesterday under Premier Stalin's order to make 1942 the year for final defeat of the Germans.

"Even more active military operations" were forecast as imminent by Pravada, the official Communist party newspaper.

Husband Faces Assault Charge

Arnold Bruce, 29, arrested at his home yesterday, faced a charge in police court this morning of assaulting his wife, occasioning actual bodily harm and pleaded not guilty.

Bruce asked for an adjournment, telling Magistrate O. A. Langley that he wanted an opportunity to consult counsel.

"I am opposing an adjournment," said Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C. "I think under the circumstances he should be remanded."

Magistrate Langley thought so, too, and remanded the accused until Wednesday morning, bail being fixed at $1,000.

"It was just a case of the two boys not being able to wait until they got home," Provincial Constable Price Morris explained in police court this morning when two young men pleaded guilty to illegal consumption of beer.

"They drank on Maniece avenue, some one telephoned in a complaint and they were caught," the officer added, suggesting to the magistrate that he would be satisfied with the minimum penalty in the two cases.

Magistrate Langley acted on the suggestion and fined the two men $10 and 2.50 costs.

OBITUARY

JAMES L. ROWLAND

The funeral of the late James Levi Rowland, whose death occurred at Nicholls Hospital, following a short illness, at the age of 65 years, was held on Saturday at 2 p.m. from Nisbett Funeral Home. Rev. E. W. Rowland conducting the service.

The late Mr. Rowland was a valuable employee of the Canadian Nashua Paper Co., for the past 22 years and had resided in Peterborough and district for the past thirty-five years, with the exception of eighteen months, spent in France. In 1913 he left Peterborough for Croix, Nord, France, being sent there as a foreman from the local plant of the Canadian Cordage Co. His wife and three children also accompanied him. When war broke out he was forced to return to Peterborough.

Although of a retiring disposition he made a host of friends who mourn the loss of one who was always a friend in need.

Five years ago the late Mr. Rowland was predeceased by his younger son Jack, who was born in France and two years ago by his youngest daughter Phyllis, aged 11 years.

Referring to these incidents, during service, Rev. Mr. Rowland said that the deceased had "drunk to the bitter dregs" of the cup of life.

Left to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father are his wife, formerly Eva Garnett; three daughters, Mrs. George Tully and Mrs. Lemuel Pammett, of Peterborough; Mrs. Everett Tully of Smith; and one son Ferdinand, of Smith; also two sisters, Mrs. Ida Thomas and Mrs. Elizabeth Jex, of Port Hope; two brothers, William of Rochester, N.Y., and Fred of Buffalo, N.Y.

Pall-bearers were his three sons-in-law, George Tully, Lemuel Pammett, Everett Tully, and three fellow workers, D. J. McLeod, Harry Welch and William Lockie.

Burial was made in the family plot at Port Hope Union Cemetery.

U.S. War Cost Already Up On Last

26 Billion Outlay Being Swelled By 3 Billion Monthly

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP).—Government officials announced today that the United States already has paid out in cash for this war as much as it spent during the First Great War.

The cost of the last war to the United States from 1917 until the Peace Treaty was ratified in 1921 was $25,729,000,000, including loans to the Allies.

Since July 1, 1940, when the United States started preparing for the war it has paid out approximately $26,000,000,000 for was purposes. The Treasury paid out $24,509,000,000 and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other corporations doing defence work spent about $1,500,000,000 cash.

With spending running over $3,000,000,000 a month, moreover, it won't be long before costs of this war exceed the aggregate cost of the last war including expenditures not only up to the Peace Treaty but also for pensions, compensation, bonuses and other purposes since. Counting these extras, the First Great War cost about $45,000,000,000.

The projected expenditures for this war now exceed $160,000,000,000, but it may take a couple of years to pay that much out. The Budget Bureau figures war costs in the coming fiscal year (starting July 1) at $70,000,000,000. The current year's war bill will be $28,000,000,000, while the first year of preparedness from July 1, 1940, to June 30, 1941, cost $6,047,929,292.

By this time next year, costs will be greater than all American wars put together. Counting pensions and similar after-payments, the previous wars cost something over $62,000,000,000.

Calls On Quebec For Volunteers

MONTREAL, May 4—(CP).—Brig. Gen. E. de B. Panet, officer commanding military district No. 4, said in an address here yesterday that Quebec province's "No" vote in the Dominion man-power plebiscite last week "does not mean that French-Canada will relax the full co-operation it has already given to the voluntary system of enlistment."

Gen. Panet, addressing 300 "Old Boys" of Mount St. Louis College at their annual reunion here, said: "You who are veterans of the First Great War and soldiers of the present war will deem it right that all those who want to volunteer for Active Service should do so."

"You will approve of our action in this free, democratic country if we solicit immediately the voluntary enlistment of greatest possible number of soldiers for overseas service."

He said the advocates of a "No" vote in the plebiscite had made the defence of Canada their rally call.

"Very well then, the Canadian army at present can recruit men in two ways acceptable to everyone, by voluntary enlistment for service wherever the strategy of the United Nations demands their presence and by mobilization of recruits for territorial defence.

"Let us apply this dual system to the full, with good heart and forgetting by-gones."

No Gadder

ST. LOUIS, May 2—(AP).—When Pte. Frank J. Stump of Ruffin, N.C., entered the United States army, he really went to it. He has been at barracks for seven months without once applying for a pass to leave the post. "I never did much gaddin' about when I lived on the farm," he explained.

Crowd-Attracter

LOS ANGELES, May 2—(AP). — Police reported an unusually large crowd at the scene of this accident. A car collided with an armored bank truck and 32,000 in coins scattered on the sidewalk. The truck guards recovered from the shock of the crash in time to collect the money from pedestrians.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

COUNCIL MEETING

The monthly meeting of the city council tonight will consider an agenda that is mostly routine affairs.

HE WAS WHOOZY

A well known police court character, distinguished by a gold tooth was on the rampage again on Saturda night, after a sojourn of three months on the hill. He jay-walked across Simcoe street, forced a large car to stop, then scratched a match on the ender, and lit his cigarette, while leaning against the car for support. Then he ambled on, and enquiry at the police station indicated he must have been able to navigate to a secluded spot, for the police didn't collar him.

BUILDING TOTALS

Building figures for the first four months of 1942 show a decided slump as compared to the same period in 1941, but this is due to the fact that industrial expansion last year hit an all time high. Already nine new dwellings are underway this year, and another permit for a new home was taken out this morning. The total for April was $37,544.00 and for the first four months of 1942 was $68,114.00. The April total consisted of two garages at $170.00, 9 dwellings at $31,840, and 43 miscellaneous permits, with a total estimated cost of $5,534.

"EVERLASTING PUNISHMENT"

"Everlasting Punishment was the subject for the Lesson-Sermon for First Church of Christ Scientist in Peterborough on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "The Lord is known by the judgment which he executeth: the wicked is snared in the work of his own hands." (Psalms 9:16). Selections from the Bible included the following from Galations 6:7, 8, "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he thatsoweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." Correlative citations from the Christian Science Textbook, included the following: "Do you ask wisdom to be merciful and not to punish sin? Then 'ye ask amiss." Without punishment, sin would multiply."

MASS MIGRATION

Wild geese are swarming northward in the annual spring migration, and immense flocks passed over the city on Friday and Saturday On Friday evening a huge V of geese almost half a mile long, passed north following the Trent Canal, and out in front were three geese, acting as a sort of advance guard. Two more large flocks passed over the western part of the city, and some person in Smith township about half a mile west of Monaghan road emptied a rifle at the flock, breaking it up temporarily.

30 Children Heard In Spring Fantasy

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4 (ENS). —An appreciative audience attended the presentation of 'Spring Fantasy,' a musical concert staged by members of St. Andrew's Mission Band under the direction of Band Leader Mrs. F. G. DeCarrol Friday evening. Some thirty children age 7-12 took part in the production which was almost entirely the effort of their able leader. They went through a number of simple routines and sang several choruses, all of them in carefully prepared costumes which added ostensibly to the concern designed to raise their $50 allocation for 1942. Opening scene was in a winter setting with King Winter (Berna Rabethge) in white suit trimmed with fur of the same color and crown of stars that made unmistakeable characterization. Kenneth McFarlane as the Wind and white-caped Jimmy Bailey as Jack Frost were the other two principals in this scene. Spring followed in Scene II with Jean Campbell as Miss Springtime, wearing fancy green costume with wreath of flowers. Berle Spencer as Mother Nature was entirely in white. The prologue was given by Kae Fox, who recited a little piece, "Canada in Springtime," and Berle Spencer gave the epilogue. For winter there was a chorus of snowflakes in white star dotted dresses—Berle Spencer, Barbara Lankin, Betty Dunk, Doris Hendricks, Ellen Messenger, Joan Wood, Gwen Haig, Fern Beggs, Lois Carruthers, Kae Fox. Another group of tots all about 7 years old were the flower chorus. They wore varied pastel shades and did a minuet as a highlight of their contribution. These included Della West, Joy Haig, Joyce Haig, Jean Carruthers, Margaret Carlaw, Marian Bailey, Anne Hay, Joyce Dunk, Betty McInroy, Margaret Gummo. Two butterflies were Valerie DeCarrol and Lois Meiklejohn, who sang and recited respectively. Between scenes Chairman Harold Dunk called on Misses Patricia and Diana Ironside for a piano duet and Mr. Francis DeCarrol who gave two vocal solos.

Y.P.U. Closing Meeting.

A social evening and program were features of the closing meeting of Stephens Y.P.U. (Hoards) which met on Friday with an attendance of more than thirty. The president, Everett Parr, presided, and the program was in charge of a committee comprising Harold Milne, Mrs. C. Heagle, Mr. Walter Sharpe and the president. It included an opening period of devotions for which Rev. J. R. Bick assisted and followed with community singing, led by the president and Miss Mildred Heagle at the piano. Balance of the program included a duet by Misses Jean Hume and Marian Oddie; a reading, Mrs. James Thompson; piano solo, Elsie Rannie; contest, Harold Milne; vocal solos, Isobel Irwin; reading, Joan Hoard; guitar and vocal, Marjorie Wallace. During the business a motion was passed authorizing the purchase of a $5 War Savings Certificate from Y.P.U. funds to be presented to the M. & M. deficit. If they follow last year's re-opening date it will be October 2 before they meet again.

13,000 Cigarettes Sent Boys.

The Catholic Women's League wound up its biggest bingo season in history here on Friday night when the curtain on these popular weekly affairs was rung down until fall. In addition to raising money for St. Mary's Parish and various war charities, the patriotic - minded League also sent approximately 13,000 cigarettes in weekly shipments of 300 to boys from this district who are overseas. Each week every player was invited to put the name of some soldier or airman in a box for that purpose and at the end of the evening a name was drawn and the man would be sent 300. To prevent any more popular service man from getting an extra quota they ruled that only one shipment could be made to each during the playing season. Proof that the smokes are actually reaching the boys is evidenced by the fact acknowledgments have been received from 85 per cent. of them. And that bingo has grown into a fairly substantial business is seen in the League expenditures. Over $550 was spent for prizes, nearly all of it going to local merchants.

FRANTIC WEEKEND

SLEEPING BEAUTY

CHAPTER XVI

"Oh!" shrilled Peggy as she saw Baldy, registering with Fay the intimation that she would have been less surprised to see the Nizam or Hyderabad on a purple elephant.

"Bright girl," was Baldy's mental note, as Peggy had intended it should be.

Fay camouflaged a slight frown as she saw Baldy. A nuisance, if she had to resume the whole argument with him all over again, and the concert party idea would best be promoted with the rest of the party for moral support and Baldy conscious of the limelight. She moved to go, but Baldy caught her hand and drew her down beside him.

"Listen, honey, we got to talk this thing over. I'm getting out of here this afternoon, driving straight downdown to New York. We gotta get this thing clear. You needn't come. All you gotta do is sign a bit of paper and I'll get out and leave you. You can stay up here—stay up here a week if you like," he offered, magnanimously. "Then we'll get together and work out the details.

Fay was coolly silent and Peggy looked around hopefully. Sure enough, her brother came round into the rockery and his face lit up as he saw them sitting there. What co-operation! With a quick glance at his sister he caught her wink and made his attack.

"Hullo Fay, hullo Baldy." He caught Fay's hand and pulled her from the seat. She came with great willingness. She saw her escape from Baldy made simple by compliance.

"I've just been looking at the aerial map of this place and there should be a wonderful view from a spot near here."

"Good," said Fay. "I'd love a walk. Coming Baldy?"

"You'll ruin your shoes if you do," said Michael. "And those pants."

Peggy laid a restraining hand on Baldy's sleeve as the other two moved off.

"I did my best," she said. "I'll fix it again for you."

"Aw!" jerked aBldy. "Forget it. I'm getting out."

"Ungrateful, that's what she is," said Peggy. "After all you've done for her."

"That's not all," said Baldy, glad of some sympathy. "I've tramped my feet to the ankles for that girl and talked my hair and teeth out to get her where she is . . . or where she was. I've sat in at parties till I was under the table getting the boys to give her the right stuff in the press, lost a couple of hundred bucks at poker with Pinchell to get her in his column with the right slant—and what do I get for it?"

"Ingratitude," said Peggy.

"Ingratitude," echoed Baldy.

At that opportune moment Marie came into the rockery, a cool cleft of flowers sunk in the hillside. She was carrying a tray with two tall glasses, one with a Collins and the other with lemonade. Ice tinkled invitingly. Baldy's eyes popped hopefully.

"Is this what you wanted, Miss?"

"Yes, thank you, Marie," said Peggy. She turned to aBldy. "I ordered this just to help you along with Fay, but since she is gone I might as well take the lemonade."

"You've got brains," said Baldy grudgingly.

"I've got more than brains," said Peggy.

"Hey," said Baldy to the retreating Marie. "Same again!" He turned to Peggy. "You gotta have brains to think of that."

"I'm not like some people," said Peggy. "Always thinking of themselves and what suits them. I think a girl has to think of others."

"You said it," grunted Baldy, taking a long drink and feeling better for it. "How long do you reckon it takes to get to Montreal from this place?"

"An hour for a man like you, two for most," grinned Peggy. "But Marie will be back in a minute."

"Marie was. When she came back the third time Baldy was telling Peggy the whole story of his life. Peggy was listening as though she was hearing for the first time a story for which she had waited all her 'teens. She had learned from Myra, who had impressed upon her at various times that the only way to make a deep impression on a man is to listen to him attentively at the very times when you'd rather not. A handy trick for her bag of conspiracies, she decided.

Two in one day, thought Peggy, was quite good going.

Nigel woke up from his after-lunch nap and looked around for companionship for the afternoon, feeling sure he would find Fay where he had last seen her. He was disappointed. Only Ferdy's aunt was knitting on the deserted veranda. He looked around for Peggy but she was missing. No, Aunt Deborah didn't know where she had gone. He picked up an illustrated magazine, put it down again, picked up a book and tossed it aside. He felt the need of company. The morning on the island had been fun, and he frowned at thought of the afternoon stretching ahead in loneliness.

Marie came to tidy the veranda. "Have you seen Miss Ransom, Marie?" he asked.

"She went off with Mr. Mack, sir."

"Have you seen Mr. Lorton?"

"He went off with the elder Miss Mack, sir."

"Well, where is everyone?"

"The younger Miss Mack is in the rockery, sir."

When Nigel arrived there, Peggy was putting a handkerchief over the face of the sleeping Baldy to keep the flies off him.

She saw Nigel and put her fingers to her lips. "Sh!" she said. "Don't disturb him, his voice needs a rest." Then she took Nigel's arm. "Let's go exploring."

Peggy congratulated herself as she and Nigel tip-toed from the rockery. She congratulated herself on a neat piece of organizing, but she realized that it was still too soon to monopolize Nigel. If only they could explore and find Fay and Michael. If Michael was all his eyes promised underneath his reserve and if he had the initiative that was a common possession of the rest of the Mack family, then there was a distinct chance that they would find him with Fay in such close proximity that Nigel would be further discouraged.

Baldy, with luck and protection from the flies, would sleep until it was too late to think of returning to New York that day and meanwhile she would get some new ideas. As if she needed them!

Cobourg Woman Aged 95 Is Laid To Rest

COBOURG, May 4.—(ENS)—The funeral was held on Saturday morning of Miss Carry Hare of Cobourg, aged 95, who died on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hare, Ontario street. She was one of the oldest residents of the district and had been in fairly good health up until about a year ago. She resided in Cobourg for the past twenty years, coming here from Grafton where she was born. Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Orra Hare. The service was conducted by Rev. W. P. Woodger and interment was in Cobourg Union Cemetery. During her residence in Cobourg she resided for some time with her sister, Mrs. Edgar Roberts, James street. The last of her family she is survived only by nephews and nieces.

During her life time she was a very ardent church worker, both at the United Church in Grafton and at Cobourg. For many years she was organist at Grafton United Church. After moving to Cobourg, she continued her church work until old age prevented her.

Police Recover Cottage Loot

HASTINGS, May 4 — (ENS). — Police have recovered a quantity of goods stolen from local cottages during the past weeks.

Provincial Constable D. M. Carruthers and Chief of Police William Wellman spotted the loot cached in a boat pulled up on the shore of Mayo's Bay, 3 miles above Hastings as they were investigating the thefts Saturday morning.

In addition to the boat, the stolen articles, all belonging to the island cottage of J. T. McGuire, Toronto, situated one mile above the village, included a set of binoculars, a valuable telescope and a quantity of jam. Still missing is a complete set of McGuire's cottage keys.

Police, who are continuing their investigations, say the thefts closely resemble the cottage break-ins staged in this district last fall.

Regiment Holds Havelock Church Parade

HAVELOCK, May 4 — (ENS). — Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, pastor of the United Church, delivered an inspiring message to a capacity audience on Sunday morning, it being the occasion of the church parade of B Company of the 2nd Midland Regiment, war veterans of other wars, and members of the armed forces on leave.

The parade numbering about 100, was under the leadership of Major Johnson and headed by the regiment band, paraded from the school grounds to the church. The hymns chosen were "Stand up, stand up for Jesus," "Soldiers of Christ, Arise," and "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

Rev. Mr. Wilkinson opened the service with a special prayer for our country, our King and our men. The choir, with Mrs. Harry Watson leader, and Mrs. R. Campney organist, sang an anthem "The Captain Calls for You," and Mrs. Florence Clarke gave a vocal solo, "I Will Not Go Without Thee." The front of the church was decorated with baskets of colorful spring flowers.

The speaker chose for his text I. Samuel, 4th chapter, 9th verse: "Be strong— and quit yourselves like men." comparing present day conditions to the dark hours the Philistines suffered when they rose against the Israelites and suffered tremendous defeat. Strong men are needed in every branch of the Army, Air Force, and Navy, and only the perfect specimen of strong, healthy, efficient men are accepted in the service of King, country, Church, and state. Great efficiency is needed to-day to lead us in the right direction, when the very foundations of democracy are badly shaken. We are all united by one faith, one hope, and one baptism, and we will be proud of our whole Army, guarding the safety of our Empire.

In closing, the speaker paid a glowing tribute to the war veterans of past wars, who fought bravely to the end for peace and freedom, that we have enjoyed for many years. The fundamental thing in life is the Christian way of life. Will you play the man with God? Quit yourself like men, be strong in the Lord.

The speaker closed his sermon with the following appropriate verses:

"God send us men, whose aim 'twill be
Not to defend some worn-out creed,
But to live out the laws of Christ
In every thought and word and deed.
"God send us men, alert and quick,
His lofty precepts to translate,
Until the laws of Christ become
The laws and habits of the State."

Park Board Meet.

On Friday evening the Park Board met with Reeve Ernest Seeney presiding. Those present were Harold Matheson, Carman Coon, William Hill, Kenneth Green, and Fred McKenzie. Reeve Seeney was re-appointed chairman for the year, and W. W. Hill secretary-treasurer.

Main topic under discussion was repair work, especially the west fence, the booth, and the bandstand. It was decided to remove the green board fence from the front of the park, and use the material to repair the fence on the west side. The memorial gates at the entrance to the park which were erected by the Daughter of the Empire, are greatly in need of repair, and these too, will likely undergo some changes.

The skating rink last winter had a very successful season, though somewhat shorter than usual, and the receipts were satisfactory. It was decided to leave the rink fence and equipment there all year, unless advised to remove the west and side portion for the Orange celebration here on July 11.

Chairman Seeney was authorized to hire men and purchase nails, lumber, paint, etc., and to have any levelling work necessary done as soon as possible.

Cattle Export To U.S. Still Piles Up

OTTAWA, May 4 — (CP). — Continued heavy shipments of Canadian beef cattle to the United States were reported Saturday by the Agriculture Department.

From April 1 to May 1, inclusive, the first month of the second quarter of the export year under which Canada is allowed to export more than 190,000 head under preferred duty arrangements, 41,535 head have been shipped.

Shipments from April 1 to 30 totalled 39,583 head, against 11,262 for the same period last year.

For the year to April 30, shipments totalled 87,173 head, against 34,145 for the same period in 1941.

Officials said the shipments as reported on May 1 showed that four-fifths of the quarterly quota starting on April 1 had been filled in the first month.

The third-quarter quota running near 50,000 head, will start on July 1. Any cattle shipped to the United States after the quarterly quota is filled pay a higher rate of duty and farmers would seek markets at home rather than across the border.

A reflection of the beef shortage reported in several Canadian centres in the past several weeks was the Agricultural Department's report showing that imports of beef in March totalled 29,600 pounds, against 2,774 in the same month last year.

When Killing Is Murder

A curious and difficult case has been completed in Vancouver, where four young men were tried for the murder of a shopkeeper, committed when they attempted to rob him last January; the difficulty arises from the fact that the murdered man was a Japanese. A jury has found them all guilty, and all four are sentenced to be hanged.

This has provoked an understandable outburst in British Columbia, and irate citizens are writing to the paper asking why Canadians should be hanged for killing a Japanese when others are being trained for precisely that task. The answer is plain; these men killed the Japanese while committing a crime, thereby adding murder to robbery. And the fact that we are at war with Japan does not give private citizens the right to go gunning for Japs. We are fighting, among other things, to preserve a system of law which sets its face against that kind of gangsterism.

The Vancouver jury had a difficult task, and it performed it dutifully. Killing as a part of a crime cannot be permitted; killing as a uniformed servant of the state is quite another matter. If these young men had been let off because their victim was a Japanese we should have been no better than the wretches who outraged decency at Hong-Kong.

Black Markets In Paris

For the poor, life in Occupied France is scarcely supportable; people who have money are able to get a few of the comforts of life at extortionate prices by patronizing the black markets. There are even illicit movie houses where Americans films are shown to patrons who are fed up with German films and who do not mind the risk of a raid by the police. Tobacco is obtainable, but a package of cigarettes costs anything up to $2 and a cigar is a dollar at least.

Food is the great problem. A reporter on the Paris Matin has estimated that, if all the restrictions are heeded and the ration cards used in a legal manner, a citizen may get about 186 francs worth of food a month—the equivalent of $4.25. The poor of France are accustomed to a very low standard of living and great frugality, but not on that scale. Extras cost fabulous sums. Eggs are $2 a dozen and coffee $8 a pound. A chicken may be had for $3, but a rabbit is $4.50; steak is $1.50 a pound and pork $2.20 a pound. There is no sugar to be had anywhere, but butter may be had at $2 a pound. These prices, of course, are beyond the means of all but a few people.

Wine is scarce and dear. The French have never regarded water as a healthy drink and, considering the supply in most French towns, they are perfectly right. Bottled water, much of it from Vichy, is drunk only by the well-to-do. Common red wine, of the sort which used to be drunk at meals and which cost about 8 cents a bottle, now costs sixty cents. The better wines and spirits have soared in price, some as much as 1,000 per cent. over the pre-war charge. There is no champagne. The Germans regard champagne as the very last word in luxury and gayety, and all existing supplies have been taken to Germany, ostensibly "for the treatment of sick soldiers"; it is not hard to conjure up a picture of the sick soldiers who are now coaxing themselves back to health with medicinal draughts and champagne.

There is no soap to be had anywhere, and clothes cannot be properly washed. Shops close at sundown in order to save electric power, and many of them have long lists in their windows of articles which they cannot supply. The official tobacco allowance is four cigarettes a day for men; none for women. Seats in all except local trains must be booked some time in advance. Buttons are almost unobtainable, thread and wool are rationed, and leather for cobbling can hardly be found. There is no heating in most buildings and baths may only be taken at week-ends.

France is at a low ebb. No wonder the black markets flourish.

About Saluting Officers

An interesting discussion has been going on in the press about the saluting of officers by other ranks when they meet in the street. Some say that the custom is a burdensome one and might well be discontinued; others hold that neglecting to salute is a slight to His Majesty's commission. The matter is, in the last analysis, one which must be left to military authorities, for they are the ones who will be affetced by it, but as many other civilians appear to be expressing opinions on the subject we should like to say our say too.

The custom of saluting officers dates from the time when men of non-commissioned ranks were of markedly lower social standing than their officers; they saluted, not merely the King's uniform, but also the man who was in it, acknowledging him as a superior. The rise of democratic feeling and the modern use of armies recruited from civil life for the duration of the war may seem to have altered the situation, but we do not think that it has altered it to the point where the saluting of officers may be discontinued. Whatever may be the case in civil life, the army is not, and cannot be, a democratic institution. Someone must be empowered to give orders, and there can be no discussion as to whether those orders will be obeyed. The field of battle and the parade ground are not the places for open debate in the best democratic tradition.

Of course, democracy affects the army; nowadays any man who can pass the examinations and show himself fit is entitled to apply for a commission. But once he has his commission he is in a position of command, and he must have respect and obedience.

Saluting hurts nobody; it is an act of courtesy and acts of courtesy are to be encouraged. Democracy makes for better general conduct in all walks of life, but it also makes for a disparagement and disuse of polite observations; lack of courtesy does not show a democratic spirit, but merely an uncouth one. The complaint about saluting began with an observation by Mr. T. L. Church that the custom involved men who had seen hard service abroad saluting people at home who were no more than glorified civilians. We see his point, but surely these same men would, if they happened to know them, salute civilians on the street who were not even glorified? Courtesy is not unbecoming in a brave man, and we think that the distinguished flyers to whom Mr. Church refers have enough sense of discipline and enough sense of humor to salute a glorified civilian without suffering severe psychic pain. Saluting is a part of what the valorous Fluellen called "the disciplines of the wars" and the maintenance of a certain formality is necessary to army life. A courteous attitude toward persons in superior positions, toward the aged and the weak, and toward women, is not betrayal of the democratic doctrine of the equality of men before God and before the law. And a neglect of this small token of respect for an officer is not a blow for democracy but a blow at army discipline.

We Must Have Rubber

The campaign for rubber salvage which is now in progress is of the utmost importance. The war in the Pacific has cost us heavily in sources of this commodity, and, for reasons which have already been explained at length in these columns, the United Nations have had small supplies on hand for some years. As we cannot get rubber from the usual places we must now look for it in our attics, bathrooms and woodsheds; no piece of rubber is so small that it can be wasted. "Many a mickle makes a muckle" as the old saying has it, and we must all find and give what we can. Old goloshes, gym shoes, fruit jar rings, hot water bottles, nipples and even rubber bands are things which we are likely to find about the house, and they are all useful.

We must give up the use of rubber for all civilian purposes. A certain amount of rubber equipment is needed in hospitals and in a few other vital services, but we must learn to do without it in the home. We must bear in mind that it is possible for the United Nations to lose this war for lack of rubber alone, for the amount of rubber used in the production of armaments is colossal.

Consider: all ships need rubber in proportion to their size; the tires on one of our big bombers take a hundred pounds of rubber each, or the equivalent of seven motor tires; it is used in wiring; it is used in gaskets; it is used in cements; the making of a tank takes as much rubber as 124 automobile tires. And this is only a beginning. Medical supplies, pontoons and a thousand other necessary war materials depend upon rubber for their effectiveness.

Synthetic rubber is being made, but the process must be given time before it can begin to supply the huge demand. Real rubber must be used in the meantime, and the only way in which that real rubber will be forthcoming is through sacrifice of things which we should like to have and the seeking out of every possible piece of rubber which we can spare from our homes. It is entirely up to us.

Learning From Canada

Although we consider ourselves a very up-to-date people in Canada it is not every day that we are able to teach the United States a financial trick. Therefore we may be proud that the U.S. has taken her now system of price ceilings almost without change from the one which we evolved for our own use. Our great neighbor has generously acknowledged the debt. But, flattering though this is, we may thank our stars that the U.S. has adopted a price ceiling system, for if they had not done so ours would have had little hope of survival.

Inflation in the United States would certainly mean inflation here, for we live in too close financial contact with the U.S. to avoid such a catastrophe. We would have to make a choice between inflation and a virtual divorce from American finance, and it is hard to say which would be the more disastrous in the long run.

It is impossible, however, not to feel doubt about the efficacy of the American scheme unless a stronger policy for the control of buying-power is adopted than any which has so far been suggested. The great program of governmental spending in the U.S. has put extra money in the hands of millions of people, and it is only natural that they should want to spend it. Already there are reports of notable increases in the sale of luxury goods, and the impoverishment of the rich cannot be expected to compensate for the sudden comparative enrichment of the poor. There are special reasons why the governmental control of wages in the U.S. is a ticklish matter, to be approached only with extreme caution and only as a last resort, but we cannot see how it is to be avoided in this time of financial upheaval.

Should the U.S. find itself in need of a workable scheme of wage and cost-of-living control, it might well look to Canada again. We have such a system and we would be glad to pass it along, both as a neighborly act and as a safeguard for ourselves. It seems as though we have a shrewder notion of the dangers of inflation here than our neighbor has yet had time to acquire.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We think that too many people are calling Laval a rat. A rat would have enough sense to desert a sinking ship.

May 1 is traditionally a moving-day, and once you are in your new home you are safe for at least three months, according to the new ruling.

A New York inventor has produced plastic transparent tableware to replace silver knives and forks. We want to know whether it carries the taste of onion through repeated washings?

"Mother's Dream Comes True; Daughter Falls From Window," says a headline in a contemporary. Just one of those things which might have been expressed more clearly.

It's not new but its' still good: "If a doctor makes a mistake he buries it; if a lawyer makes a mistake he collects more fees for the appeal; if a judge makes a mistake it becomes a precedent; if a clergyman makes a mistake he doesn't find it out till he is in the next world."

"AUX ARMES, CITOYENS!..."

Come from your slumber, Rouget de l'Isle,
Come from your sleep to the sad roads of France;
Gather the people of pike and of scythe,
Call them from Brittany and Provence.

Rock the wide fields with your voice of flame
Till the men of Austerlitz and Verdun
Hear the clamor and crowd the day;
Call to them, call every mother's son.

Out of your long rest waken and call
Till the saboted feet are clattering down,
With old bright ghosts and ghosts to be,
From silenced farm and throttled town.

Fill your skies with forbidden song,
Though the poplared ways again go red
And the sweet earth of your land be scarred
By the innocent blood of the Stuka-ed dead.

Call to your brothers, they will come,
They will follow your singing and die and feel
The brave, free surge of their ancient zeal
Rally your people, Rouget de l'Isle!

Farming News And Views for Ontario Farmer

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

THE farmers of Ontario have undertaken in a very definite way the increased production of foodstuffs demanded by the war requirements of Britain. The labor question will have some difficulties but farmers will plan early and meet these to a large extent. The seeding will be more easily accomplished than the harvesting. Spring grain is mostly seeded on fall plowing so only cultivation and harrowing will have to be attended to. Tractors are speeding up seeding to a large extent. As a matter of fact it is the rush to get seeding done in the spring, and the plowing for fall wheat in the hot weather of the late summer that has popularized tractors in many of our agricultural districts.

Harvesting will be the difficult work on our farms this year. The work of saving hay for feed in good condition is work that requires the help of many hands. The harvesting of grain, the handling of fodder corn and root crops calls for extra assistance and several useful plans have been suggested to save the situation. I have noticed that in a number of towns the service clubs are offering to assist in the organization of assistance to farmers in harvest time, the youth are preparing to give much assistance and I feel sure will not fail to save a large harvest in the Province of Ontario.

A friend of mine who farms upon a fairly large scale just outside of the city of Winnipeg informs me that he purposes to seed his arable land to barley and flax, in about equal areas. His idea is that barley will be required in larger amounts for the production of bacon, and that flax is needed to increase the quantities of vegetable oils, and so by dividing his crop area in this manner he will be making the most useful contribution possible from his grain fields.

Spring has opened on the prairies in fine fashion, and the promise is good except for a shortness of moisture up to date. We do know, however, how much June rains can do for wheat crops and our natural hope is that these rains may come. The increase in the pig crop in Alberta, and the profitable prices for cattle in that province is gradually ushering in a new outlook for the farmer. The stored wheat on the prairies will still feed a good few pigs, but rainfall is the dire necessity of any one who tills the soil and it is now the chief anxiety of those who farm in the West.

The farmer who is growing a few young horses at the present time has reasonably good property, and as usual the bigger and better he is growing them the more profitable they will be. There are geldings which have been grown in Ontario during the past few years which would bring handsome prices in Scotland now. There is no shipping space at present, and so no market over the ocean until the end of the war but a few weeks ago a gelding sold in Scotland for a little over $970, and $400, $500 and $600 have been common prices for the tops at any sale. Quite ordinary work horses are selling for high figures and the indication seems to be that the Belgian horses are all in possession of Germany which means that the production of good animals of this breed will not be carried on. The Scottish farm papers are agreed that good horses will be worth good money at the close of the war.

A bill has been introduced in the House of Commons for the settlement of soldiers on the land after the war. I shall have something to say about this a little later when further details of the plan are made clear. In Canada's efforts to settle soldiers on the land after the last war most of the mistakes that can be made were indulged in, and the cost of this undertaking increased until it indicated the most foolish kind of incompetence and the pity of the whole thing is that the soldiers reaped but little benefit from this extraordinary expenditure. I know something of the manner in which a good deal of this money was wasted and it is a story which would shake the confidence of most people in government enterprises. It must not be repeated. There are a goodly number of young men in the Canadian forces, who no doubt have a desire to go on the land at the close of the war, and who have the industry and intelligence to become good farmers, and they must not be permitted to put their faith in the kind of organization which wrecked the farming venture after the last war and left many of the returned men the victims of blasted hopes and disappointed ambitions.

The plans and schemes for grading and classifying purchases and sales in Great Britain seem to have overwhelmed the Ministry of Food so they decided to make a change in the purchase of eggs from producers. From March 15th, duck and hen eggs are all one price, no grading or weighing, and the price is 30s 10d per long hundred. This would mean that 120 eggs sell for $6.47 about 64½ per dozen. Duck eggs are freely sold, in normal times, for table use in Britain.

Britain is now declared to possess the most highly mechanized farming in Europe. The Germans were determined to make their food production as efficient as possible but Britain is operating more farm tractors than Germany. At the same time the farmers of Britain are doing a remarkable lot of farming with horses and are conserving their horse power in case they may run short on petrol (gasoline) for even work as important as the production of food.

Horse breeding has been kept up in both England and Scotland and the first crop of foals since the war began will soon come into use to augment the farm work. Many light horses that had formerly only carried a saddle are now doing the light draught work on many farms and frequently are found to be quite useful when hitched to a milk waggon.

There will probably be an increased acreage of soybeans in Ontario this year, as the demand for soybean oil is likely to be good. There has been a small acreage of these beans grown in Ontario for a few years. Like other crops which are planted later than grain is sown there is likely to be some dispute as to the best time for seeding. Soybeans like warm soil and do better if germination is rapid and growth quick after planting. A little delay in seeding offers an opportunity for further cultivation to kill weeds, and soybeans is a crop in which weeds seem to flourish rather well.

The State of Illinois has carried on experiments as to time of seeding this grain and one competent authority has fixed upon the most satisfactory dates for sowing soybeans as being between May 10 and June 1. In growing this crop for threshing this authority favors planting in rows and cultivating a few times between the rows. This plan kills weeds and conserves moisture the result being to rush the growth of the beans on to an early harvest. Soybeans will produce vegetable oil, a protein rich feed from the residue, and will store nitrogen in the soil for further cropping.

The cattle difficulty in Canadian stockyards, where packers were not bidding very strong, and the threatened famine in beef seems to have ironed itself out to some extent. United States apparently is willing to buy a good many of the excess cattle which Canadian farmers have to market and the trade is likely to go on with satisfaction to both buyer and seller. At the time of writing top steers brought $11.50 in the Toronto yards. They are worth it.

A MEXICAN IMPRESSION

• Japs Await Signal to Hit

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

WASHINGTON, May 4 (AP)—Japan's sweep through Burma arouses concern that the invaders may push on toward Chungking in a supreme drive to knock China out of the war.

Such a scheme cannot be ruled out as a possibility, but preponderant military opinion is that the Japanese objective in the Burma campaign is limited for the time being to locking the back door to China.

To the victory-flushed conquerors of Malaya, Java, the Philippines, and now of Burma, the urge must be strong to try to wind up the "China incident" forthwith.

In three months they have fought some 400 miles through steaming Burma and have advanced beyond Lashio, the western terminus of the Burma Road, almost to the China frontier.

Ahead 600 miles or less is the vital South China terminal city of Kunming, which could be attacked almost as effectively from Indo-China. Once in Kunming, the invaders would threaten the Chinese capital of Chungking from the south as well as from North China.

The difficulties of executing such a grandiose undertaking strengthen the belief that the Japanese instead will finish the job of conquering Burma, and then direct their main war effort to other fronts.

Burma itself is an uninviting invasion gateway to China, as evidenced by the monumental task of building and maintaining the perilous Burma Road. The Chinese are confident this twisting route, bordering deep gorges and rising at points to nearly 10,000 feet, could easily be made impassable. Another discouragement is the imminent advent of the rainy monsoon season.

Fully as important as local geography and climate are the new measures reported taken by the Chinese to head off any advance on Kunming via the French-built railway from Indo-China. Reinforcements have been massed on the border.

The most likely immediate prospect for Burma seems to be that the Japanese will make their hold secure, improve the Lashio air base and try by bombs to hamper the herculean task of putting through the new Assam road from India to China, some 400 miles north of the Burma Road.

Retaining the initiative, Japan can still keep the United Nations guessing where the next blow will be struck. Just now a thrust by sea and air to try to cut the United States-Australia supply lifeline appears threatened. Signs are lacking of any immediate attempt to invade India, although it is obviously too early to assume that the Japanese tide has reached its flood in Southeast Asia.

Altogether, it seems logical to expect under the circumstances that while large enemy land forces will be tied up indefinitely in conquered areas of Asia and the South Seas, the main Japanese armies will be retained in the north — inflicting new wounds on long-suffering China and awaiting the signal for a struggle with Russia.

• French-Canadian View

THE people have spoken. That is the meaning of the word "plebiscite." And there is no point in evading the fact—what would be the use?—that the people have spoken with two voices: one speaking English, the other French.

That is the most tragic aspect of the response given by the people. One had hoped that the nation from ocean to ocean would have divided solely on an honest divergence of opinion as to the best means of assuring the national defence in a moment of peril—as our neighbors, the Americans, for example, were able to do under similar circumstances.

But the French-Canadians, taken as a whole—there is, fortunately, a respectable numerical minority—preferred to group themselves in their traditional isolationism, while the remainder of the Canadians, it must also be said, were unable to think as exclusively of Canada as they claimed, when by a majority they voted "Yes."

The saddest conclusion arising from the recent plebiscite is that, despite the efforts of the finest spirits of the two great races of Canada in twenty-five years to create a truly national concept in this Dominion like that, for example, which unites the three races of Switzerland, we are still a long way from a true union of mind and heart.

We are not among those who thrust the burden of responsibility for this state of affairs on the French-Canadians. We undoubtedly have our shortcomings, and faults and weaknesses. But it should be constantly remembered in the majority sections of the nation that there must be diversity to attain complete national unity, and that pinpricks are at times a more lasting cause of resentment than real and great injustice.

Nevertheless, men of heart and breadth of view have never ceased, and will not, we hope, cease, to work on either side for a deeper understanding of our mutual problems, to dissipate, for example, the prejudices of the one and the pride of the other—and it may be said that it has been a lesson in Canadian patriotism, this campaign just ended, in which the majority of those who sought to orient public opinion in one sense or the other succeeded in doing so with a great deal less bitterness and animosity than during an election campaign.

Canadians! Canadians of every race and every opinion, whatever happens, remain united!

The plebiscite is over, but the war goes on. The enemy lies in wait for us. For the future of Canada, for the life of our dear Province of Quebec, for the salvation of everything we cherish, do not envenom honest differences of opinion as to the best means of defending Canada. The important thing is that the country be defended, and it will be.—Le Canada, Montreal.

And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they? And I said unto him, Sir, thou knowest. For Tuesday, May 5

Unusual promise for broadening the scope of living, with definite advance on cherished goals may be read from the predominant plenetary configurations. In the pursuit of ambitious objectives there should be substantial support and encouragement from elders, superiors and those in influential positions.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of very decisive advancement upon cherished ideals, high ambitions and practical culminations to long-hoped-for objectives, affecting the domestic, social and private life. In this the assistance and wise counsel of elders, superiors and those in high places may be counted upon, although there may be some sudden postponements, obstacles or peculiar frustrations.

A child born on this day should be consumed with very lofty ambitions to reach a high and influential position in life. It will have the endurance, and good sense to attain these ends.

BOY FRIENDS TO SPARE, BUT GIRL CAN'T MAKE FRIENDS WITH OWN SEX

Good Woman Friend Not Only a Blessing But a Necessity of a Happy Life

A young woman wants to know how she can make and hold girl friends. She has enough and to spare of boy friends, but she has never been popular with her own sex, and she feels that she is missing something very fine and precious in not having what Emy Lou use to call a "nintimate" friend.

I say "amen" to that, for I count a woman friend as not only among the major blessings, but one of the necessities of a happy life for a woman. She fills a place that no one else can occupy, for she is a comfort to us in our sorrows, a booster when we are down-hearted, a companion of whom we never tire, a well of sympathy that never runs dry, a cheerleader for our successes, an ever-present help in times of trouble and a general escape valve for our emotions.

This implies no disparagement of men friends. Lucky, indeed, is the woman who has one, but a man friends is a luxury, while a woman friend is something that a woman cannot do without. Men are fair weather friends who only want to be about you when you are gay and amusing and have a new permanent and are diked up in your prettiest frock, but a woman friend comes and sits down beside you when you have put ashes on your head and listens to your moanings. When Old Man Trouble takes possession of your house, your man friends slips a check under the door and flees, but your woman friend lets you weep out your sorrows on her breast.

Where Mere Man Is Lacking

Besides, no woman can ever get the real satisfaction out of a man's society that she does out of another woman's, because the two sexes have not the same interests. No man, for instance, can really spend hours and hours talking about clothes. Nor is his idea of a good time spending a day wandering around a department store pricing things. Nor does he think the baby cutting its first tooth a world-shaking event that should be headlined in the newspapers.

But another woman feels about these things even as you and I, and that is why we gossip endlessly with our "nintimate" friend without either of us getting bored, and why life is dust and ashes to us if we haven't some woman to whom we can talk women's talk.

A woman friend, then, being such a treasure, it is obvious that every woman would like to possess one and should make an effort to grapple one to her with hoops of steel. But while all women want them, many of them never acquire the fine art of making friends, so they are doomed to go their lonely way, without ever getting close enough to another woman to tell her their secret sorrows.

Of course, it is just as much a mystery why a woman attracts other women as it is why some women have only to whistle and all the men get up and follow. But, generally speaking, when a woman fails to make friends of other women, it is for one or another of the following reasons:

She may be catty, and women are afraid of being clawed if they are in her tongue's reach. No woman likes to feel when she leaves a room that she is leaving her character behind her. You will never find a wisecracking lady, who has the knack of making sarcastic comments on the peculiarities of her sisters, who is popular with other women.

Perhaps she is predatory and finds it amusing to flirt with other women's husbands and watch the green-eyed wives squirm. Of course, the wife may know that it is just Sally's little way and that she doesn't mean a thing by it, but, all the same, she makes the husband-stealer just as welcome around the house as she would a porch-climber.

Another reason some women never have any friends is because they are not willing to pay the price. They do not realize that friends have to be bought with thought and sacrifices and work, and by continually keeping one's friendship's in repair, as wise old Ben Franklin said.

They go their egotistic, self-centred way, spending their money on their own good times, forgetting to make little gestures of appreciation and sympathy, going to the house of mirth instead of to the house of mourning. Then, when they are old, or sick, or in trouble, they wonder why they have no friends.

Ways to Lose Friends

Another reason why some women have no friends is because they make friendship a tyranny. They feel that they have a right to monopolize their friends and dictate to them about whom they shall know, where they shall go, how they shall run their houses and manage their families, and when this oppression gets too great to be borne their victims fade away and leave them to their lonesome.

And still another reason why so many women have no friends is because they expect too much of friendship. They demand perfection which is not in human nature. They are not like the little boy who said that a friend was somebody who knew all about us and liked us still. And that is the only real criterion of friendship.

VICTORIA DOMINOES CAPTURE CANADIAN BASKETBALL CROWN

Fourth Victory In Five Years For Coast Team

By ALAN DUCKETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL, May 4.—(CP).— For the fourth time in nine years Victoria Dominoes to-day are Canadian senior basketball champions.

The west coast quintet won the fourth game of the best of five series 40-33 here Saturday against Montreal Oilers. Dominoes won the first game, Oilers the second, and the Dominoes the third game last Thursday. Previous Victoria teams had won the title in 1933, 1935 and 1939.

The going was easy for the Victoria squad throughout the game Saturday after they had wiped out a lead the Oilers had taken at the start of the tilt.

The Dominoes were presented with the Montreau trophy after the game. The cup, emblematic of the title since 1926, was presented by T. Doug. Robertson, a past president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, and Captain Chuck Chapman accepted it on behalf of the Dominoes.

Manager Dave Nichol expressed satisfaction over the refereeing after the game. Nichol, who had protested the officiating of Chuck Malis and Frank Ulley in the second game, said the two did a "good job" Saturday.

Although his team lost, Coach Johnny Ferraro of the Montreal squad, was the leading ecorer on the foor. Ferraro snapped in seven baskets and three free throws for a 17 point total. Norm Baker, playing coach of the Dominoes, was second to Ferraro. Baker tallied 14 points, five baskets and four free shots.

The Oilers missed enough free tosses to win the battle

Ferraro missed four out of seven awarded him, while Dudley Bloomfield missed two, Bob Irwin missed one and Ronnie Wilson missed two.

Oilers jumped into a 6-1 lead at the outset of the game but Dominoes gradually whittled down the advantage and before eight minutes of the first half was gone, they shot into a lead they never relinquished.

By half-time Dominoes led 21-14 and although the Montrealers kept up an offensive throughout the final half, the westerners held on to their seven-point lead until the end of the tilt.

City Carpetball

The balls have ceased their capers,
The mats are tucked away,
No more write ups in the papers,
No more bowling for today.

The season's fun has ended,
To the winners go the spoils,
And the friendship so well blended,
Toward another season toils.

Through the months that we are parted,
When you're complaining of the heat,
Look ahead when winter's started,
And again to play, we meet.

When the cocoa mats unrolled once more,
Stretched out across the crooked floor,
No matter where, it's all the same,
The darned old floor, gets all the blame.

Cheerio.

Yes Sir, it's all over now and the lucky winners have taken home their gifts to their wives just as a soothing syrup for the many nights of absence from their homes whilst the losers are trying to condone things with that old saying, "We'll do better next year."

At the Paragon Hall on Thursday last the distribution of prizes and presentation of trophies took place before a fair gathering of bowlers with their wives and sweethearts.

President Dave Leether expressed his appreciation to the members of MONTREAL, May 4.— (CP) — Everything isn't always serene as it looks out there on the basketball floor...Take the second game of the Canadian senior cage final between Victoria Dominoes and Montreal Oilers as an example and give Johnny Ferraro, one of the Oilers' stars, the floor...

"There we are out there, all smiling at one another and apparently saying very sweet things," says Johnny. "The people in the stands are probably saying 'My, what a fine bunch of boys.' But the guy covering me is calling me a 'So-and-so' and I'm calling him a 'So-and-so' right back in spades."

Calling All Stars

Art Chapman, the playing coach of the Victoria Dominoes, rates Doug Peden as the best athlete in the world today, and when he says the world, he means just that... Chapman says that Peden, more recently of bike racing fame but a great cager a few years ago, can become a star in a sport one week after he has taken it up...To lend emphasis to that claim, Chapman says that Peden did just that in lacrosse.

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara says: "Our nomination for the man of the year in sport is the captive British soldier who makes wagers from a German prison camp on future events on the British turf." Of the soldier, one Pte. Gordon Roll, he adds: "You can't beat that type. You may get them down but they won't stay down very long as Japan will find out, too, later on."

Cold Storage Plant

D. C. Coleman, the new C.P.R. president, is quite a sports enthusiast and one of his particular loves is hockey...As a vice-president of Montreal Canadiens he was instrumental in getting tryouts with the Habitants for Joe Benoit, Jack Adams and Bunny Dame...And Benoit was the only 20-goal scorer on the club last season...Terry Reardon of Canadiens is playing lacrosse with a team of the same name in the Quebec senior league...Guy Patrick, one of the hockey Patricks, has written off to experience that sojourn as mentor of the Tulsa Oilers of the American Association ...He has returned home to Vancouver and his immediate plans for the future are unknown.

When Hans Wagner took in the International Baseball opener in Toronto the other day they had to find a seat right next to the rail for him...Vern (Toronto Globe and Mail) DeGeer quoted Wagner as saying: "How's an old ball player going to chew tobaccer, if he ain't got a perch near the grass?"...To which there could be no rebuttal.

Last Laugh

When the Red Sox ran short of catchers the other day, they called on Pitcher Mike Ryba, the one-man team, to catch during batting practice. As Mike entered the dugout a fan yelled, "How do you like it, Mike?" "Better than working in a coal mine," Ryba shouted back.

Church organizations intending to enter the Church Softball League should not fail to have representatives present at the meeting of the league in the Y.M.C.A. tonight at 7.30 o'clock when the matter of new entries will be dealt with and other steps to get the season under way will be taken. It is expected that there will be enough entries to operate three sections of the league, bantams, juveniles and juniors, for those classes were fairly well filled at the first meeting. Other clubs will, however, be welcomed tonight. Another important softball meeting will be held at the Duffus' Bowling Alleys tomorrow, Tuesday night when the City loop will receive the report of the nominating committee and make other plans for what is hoped will be a most successful season.

Members of the Y.M.C.A. volleyball team will also be guests of honor at this enjoyable affair. Doug McPherson is one basketball player that was sure of an invitation to the banquet. He played for the House League champions, then for the City League title-holders and was also a member of the Outboard Marines so he couldn't miss. A number of other players figured on two of the organizations to be honored at Friday night's function.

A second-stringer won the famous racing classic, the Kentucky Derby on Saturday. Mrs. Payne Whitney's Shutout, grouped with his stablemate, Devil Diver as the Greentree Stable Entry came down in front, to the surprise of most of the selectors who had selected Devil Diver as the most likely winner. The horse that was named after a bird however could not produce the drive he was called on for in the last quarter and Shutout romped home in front of the field. The Cinderella horse Alsab, gave his backers a real run for their money by coming from far back in the stretch run and passing horse after horse to snatch a photo finish for second place from Valdina Orphan. One of the surprises of the day was the fact that Requested, one of the favorites could not get anywhere, finishing second last.

Indians Finally Stopped

They finally managed to stop the Cleveland Indians, Boston Red Sox doing the trick yesterday, but the winning streak of Lou Boudreau's hirelings was not checked until it had reeled off 13 straight wins, the longest run of victories in the history of the club. There was a lot of baseball in the American loop over the week-end and the Red Sox fared best of the four leading teams, winning two games, while Cleveland broke even and Yanks and Detroit had to be satisfied with two wins and one loss. The Indians had no trouble winning Saturday over Washington. with Jim Bagby grabbing off his fifth win in a row but Sunday they were stopped 8 to 4 by the powerful Boston Red Sox, with Charley Wagner getting credit for the win and the loss going to Al Smith. Rudy York staged a one-man assault to bet the Yanks 3 to 1 Saturday. York's first homer put the Tigers ahead and after the Yanks had tied it up Rudy came back in the ninth with another circuit clout with a man on to win the ball game.

York also had two homers to help Detroit nose out the A's 9 to 8 in the first game of a Sunday double-header but he failed to produce in the second end of the twin bill when Phil Marchildon, the Penetang boy came through with his finest big league performance to shut the Tigers out 1 to 0, allowing only two hits. The A's only got three off Benton and Newhouser but their one run was enough for victory. New York after a tough week found the Sunday double-header with the Chicago White Sox something a little softer and gathered in both ends. Washington and St. Louis managed to break even Sunday, after both had absorbed a beating in their Saturday games.

In the National League the Brooklyn Dodgers found the opposition considerably stronger than usual and the Bums lost three games. Pittsburg Pirates did the trick 10 to 5 Saturday climbing all over Curt Davis in the opening inning and St. Louis outscored them 14 to 10 in a picnic brand game. Ken O'Dea hit a homer with the bases loaded in the first frame to give the Cards an early start and St. Louis had an early lead of 10 to 2. The Dodgers tied it up but eventually had to yield the decision. There was a parade of pitchers on both sides. Cards also took the second game 4 to 2. Chicago Cubs and Phillies split even in a Sunday double-bill. There were two real pitcher's battles in the National League Saturday. New York Giants defeated Chicago Cubs 1 to 0 after a fine duel between Melton and Errickson, each of which allowed only six hits and Boston triumphed over St. Louis Cards by the same slender margin, Tost yielding but five hits and M. Cooper being touched for six.

First Of The Season

Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club had its first match of the season against Trinity College School at Port Hope on Saturday and the game wound up technically in a draw, although the school had a moral victory. T.C.S. batted first and after rolling up a score of 112 declared at eight wickets. The students however lost the battle against time and failed to get the Peterborough eleven out before the hour for stopping. They very nearly made it at that for nine Peterborough wickets had fallen for 46 runs when they ended. F. Smith was the only Peterborough batsman to make much of a stand against the accurate T.C.S. bowling and he contributed a well-played 19. Lambert with 42 and Scott with 30 were the most deadly of the school batsmen. Frank Dyer took four wickets for 39 runs. The Peterborough-Whitaker Club has of course had very little practice and this lack of work was reflected in their work afield and at the wicket.

In a battle in which the two playing coaches led the scoring for their respective teams the Victoria Dominoes won the Canadian senior basketball crown at Montreal Saturday night when they defeated the Montreal Oilers 40 to 33 to take the series three games to one. Art Chapman, pilot for the Dominoes set the pace for his team with nine points and the veteran Johnny Ferraro, coach of the Montrealers, really went to town in a one-man effort to keep the final round alive. Ferraro popped in seven field goals and registered on three free throws for a fine total of 17 points. The games have been close but the Coast champions seemed to have the edge and are worthy champions.

Pittsburg Pirates are only a game behind the Brooklyn Dodgers as a result of the week-end doings which saw the Bums slaughtered three times in a row while the Bucs were winning three....Aldon Wilkie who pitched a winning game for Pittsburg against Brooklyn Saturday hails from Zealandia, Sask. As Shut-Out Wins Kentucky Derby Classic

Shut-Out, son of the mighty Equipoise, is shown on the outside as he galloped to a two-length victory in the 68th annual Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs before an estimated 65,000 racing fans. The winner, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney, was ridden by Wayne Wright. Time for the race was 2 minutes 4 2-5 seconds.

Peterborough Cricket Club Draws With Trinity College At Port Hope

The local cricket season opened on Saturday under ideal weather conditions with the old-established fixture against Trinity College School at Port Hope.

Technically the game was drawn, but morally it was a school victory, the final score being: T.C.S. 112 for 8 wickets (innings declared closed), P.W. 46 for 9 wickets.

T.C.S. batted first and fine batting by Lambert 42 (retired) and Scott took the total to 97 to 4, but afterwards wickets fell fast and the toal was 112 for 8. When the innings was declared close at 5 o'clock, leaving the local men an hour to save the game. They first did this for the last two batsmen were in when time was called. F. Smith (19) was the only local batsman to put up a real show and batted confidently from the first, going in first he was 7th out with 19 to his credit. W. Dyer and Boothroyd held the fort for the last two over and converted a moral school victory into a draw.

The school deserved to win, their opening batsman played round and attractive cricket and the whole team fielded well. Such breaks as there were went against the locals as Wild was most unfortunately run out when batting up and both Williams and Dyer fell to exceptionally good catches. The local men's work in the field was good, as to ground work, but catches were missed. Busby made a fine throw-in from the long field scoring a direct hit on the wicket, resulting in Scott being run out.

Next Saturday the locals meet Grove School at Lakefield and on Wednesday evening there will be practice at the Oval at which all players, including new comers, are urged to turn up.

SHUT OUT WINS CHURCHILL DOWNS MILE AND QUARTER CLASSIC

Alsab Is Second In Race For Kentucky Derby

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, May 4—(AP).—Because several unexpected things happened in the Kentucky Derby, the 52nd running of the Preakness at ancient Pimlico Saturday shapes up as a pretty fair race.

First of the unexpecteds in the Churchill Downs mile and a quarter classic was the victory of the Shut Out. The last son of the great Equipoise from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable was just going out for the exercise, leaving the task of winning the $64,225 purse to his more famous stablemate, Devil Diver.

At least, that was the way most of the experts and laymen figured it. Hadn't Eddie Arcaro, the country's No. 1 rider, had his choice of the two horses and selected Devil Diver?

The second of the unexpected was Alsab. Remember him—the winner of 10 straight races as a two-year-old, winter book derby favorite and then a complete flop?

He had not shown enough to indicate he even would be in the money. But Al Sabath's bargain colt was pounds the best as the race was run. He was hit as he came out of the gate, ran into a couple of blind switches going around the first turn and then, with Basil James piloting him in and out of the pack, he really turned on the steam from the half-mile post on.

Had to Take Second

He picked up horse after horse but had to be content with second money

Then there was Requested, Ben Whitaker's Texas-owned chestnut, who was the biggest disappointment of the Derby after being backed into second choice by a crowd estimated all the way from 60,000 to Col. Matt Winn's figure of 100,000.

Requested outran only one horse in the field of 15 but Blackie McCoole, his trainer, said he had a rough trip and refused to extend himself.

Meanwhile, Arcaro said he wasn't going to change his mind and select Shut Out in the Preakness but there were hints that maybe he would try to win at Pimlico with the Derby winner, after all. He lost nothing at the Downs except the chance to tie Isaac Murphy and Earl Sande in number of winners with three. He and Wayne Wright, Shut Out's jockey, agreed before the race to split whatever either won. The jockey usually gets 10 per cent of the purse.

That was the big thing, even more than the $64,225 pay-cheque he picked up in this sixty-eighth and most valuable of all Derbies or the necklace of roses that goes, by tradition, to the winner, or the $5,000 gold cup that is also in the prize package.

They knew that just 11 years ago, Ekky came up as the "big hoss" in the Derby for Mrs. Whitney's nephew, Cornelius (Sonny) Whitney. He was the glamour boy of the fifty-seventh Derby. It was to put a fitting touch to a career that ranks him among the greatest horses of all time.

Missed the Date

Then the morning of the race word came that he couldn't make it. There he was in his stall, ailing with kidney troubles that comes to horses from over-eating. He was scratched. It didn't matter that Mrs. Whitney's Twenty Grand went on to win the big heat. Ekky didn't have the chance. Later it was found that he had a blind quarter crack as well.

But Saturday Shut Out evened things up. And, ironically, once more, Eddie Arcaro guessed wrong. As contract rider for Mrs. Whitney's Stable, the swarthy little Kentuckian, generally regarded as the best jockey in the business, had his pick of Devil Diver or Shut Out. All last year, able to make the same selection, he chose Shut Out, because he thought the chocolate galloper was the best of the two. But in most cases, the Diver stole the honors. Throughout this last pre-Derby week, he hesitated between the two.

Finally he chose the son of St. German's, sire of two Derby winners in Twenty Grand and Bold Venture. So Wayne Wright, from Rexburg, Idaho, was called in to handle Ekky's baby.

He brought the colt out of the crush at the gate on top, eased him back to fourth place at half-mile, then waited in the third slot until the field was well around the stretch turn before giving him the word. And home he came, as a bewildered Arcaro disconsolately admitted he couldn't figure out just what happened.

One Casualty.

There was one casualty in the mile and a quarter grind. With Regards caught himself in the starting gate and came out with a cut front left quarter. Although bleeding, he managed to carry Johnny Longden—and the 126 pounds each horse packs in this race—out in front as the field headed into the clubhouse turn. Although Valdina Orphan, half of the Texas entry from Emerson Woodward's Farm at Uvalde, Texas, looked him in the eye for the next three-quarters of a mile, he kept on cutting the pace until the route got him. He was covered with blood at the finish, but will be back to the races in a few weeks.

The Orphan couldn't take over when he had his chance, was passed first by Shut Out and then Alsab.

If it wasn't for Shut Out's "win for daddy," the race Alsab ran to hit the wire 2¼ lengths back of the winner in the slow time of 2:04 2-5 would have been the big thing of the day.

Nobody seems ot know exactly why— but Basil James, who rode Alsab into second place, and Buddy Haas, who handled the disappointing Requested, traded punches in the jockeys' room following the race.

It was a brief flareup, but a fight it was nevertheless, and the only explanation came from a few fans who sat near the club-house turn. It was stated that the boys slammed into the curve closely pressed against the rail, and that they had probably started their scrap right on the track.

Winner Pays $5.80.

The bettors, who poured $631,198 into the mutuel machines on the Derby alone, made the entry favorite at $5.80 for $2 because of what they thought of the Diver.

The Greentree combination returned $3.40 to place and $3.00 to show. Alsab paid off $6.20 and $4.80 while a $2.00 ticket on Valdina Orphan, who finished third, and his stablemate, Hollywood, was good for $5.20.

The last quarter-mile got the Diver and he faded to sixth place, trailing not only the first three home but also the high-speed rheumatic With Regards, who set the early pace, then wound up fourth and First Fiddle, who was fifth.

Back of the Diver came such high-and-mighty pre-Derby standard-bearers as Hollywood in ninth place and Apache in eleventh. Far down the track at the finish came the little fellow from deep in the heart of Texas Requested, who never got in it and was eased up to fourteenth place.

Shut-Out, Son Of Equipoise, Wins Derby

Shut-Out, Greentree Stable entry of Mrs. Payne Whitney with Wayne Wright up won the 68th annual Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs in the time of 2 minutes 4 2-5 seconds. This picture was made immediately after the race.

Syracuse Held To 5 Hits As Leafs Win

By the Associated Press.

John Alexander Gee, the pitcher with the gee-whizz size, hurled Toronto to an International League victory yesterday and came within one triumph of equalling his entire 1941 record.

Gee, whose tale of woe the last two seasons has been as long as his six-foot nine-inch stature, baffled his former Syracuse mates 7-2 with an assortment of southpaw shoots that could be touched for only five hits in seven innings. Syracuse won the first game 7-1.

It was in 1940 that Gee was sold by the Chiefs to Pittsburg Pirates of the National League for $75,000 in cash and players. Long John, however, injured his yard-long arm in spring practice and spent most of the season on the voluntary retired list.

Last season Pittsburg shipped him to Portland of the Coast League, where he won one game. Then he moved to Albany of the Eastern Loop and broke even in two contests with an earned-run average of nine before moving back to Pittsburg. He lost two National League games.

His effort against Syracuse yesterday was his first full game of the 1942 season. He whiffed two and walked four and gave every indication that he is back on an even keel.

Rochester Dropped Two.

His triumph lifted the Leafs to within a half game of the sixth-place Rochester Red Wings who dropped a holiday pair to the league-leading Newark Bears 11-7 and 6-3.

Bud Metheny poked out three hits, two of them doubles, for the Bears in the first game and collected a triple and a single in the abbreviated nightcap.

The twin triumphs extended the Bears' lead to three full games as the runner-up Baltimore Orioles bowed twice to the home run prowess of the Buffalo Bison, 7-4 and 8-7. The first game was decided when Mike Rocco socked his third homer of the season in the seventh inning with two mates on base.

Altogether, Buffalo hit five homers during the day, Jim Levey getting one in each fray, Ed Kobesky and Dutch Meyer connecting in the first and Lyn Lary in the finale.

A two-run homer by Les Burge, Montreal first baseman, decided the second game of the Royal-Jersey City Giant twin bill in favor of the Canadians 5-3. The Giants took the first 4-1.

In Saturday's game, Toronto and Jersey City split a double-header, Toronto losing the first 2-0 and winning the seven-inning game 8-2. Newark had an easy time with the Buffalo Bisons winning 13-0, while Baltimore defeated Rochester 9-7, and Montreal won out 2-1 over Syracuse.

Arsenal Held Scoreless Tie

LONDON, May 4.—(CP Cable.)—Before a great crowd of 41,000, one of the biggest since the war started, Arsenal and Brentford played a scoreless draw Saturday in their semi-final of the London Football Warcup competition.

The Stamford Bridge game produced a star in Marks, England's international goalkeeper, who saved Arsenal from defeat with three sensational saves. Tom Scott, at full-back, also was outstanding for Arsenal. The teams will meet again May 16, with the winner playing Portsmouth May 30 in the Cup final.

West Bromwich, Wolverhampton, Sunderland and Grimsby Town qualified for the semi-finals of the Football League Warcup. The semi-finals will be played on a home-and-home bases, with games on May 9 and 16.

West Bromwich scored a smashing victory Saturday over Everton by 5 to 1, before a crowd of 34,000, to win the total-goal series, 8 to 2. Sunderland defeated Bradford, 1 to 0, a week ago and squeezed into the semi-finals by holding Bradford to a 2 to 2 tie Saturday. West Bromwich and Sunderland will meet in one semi-final round.

Grimsby Town, beaten 1 to 0 a week ago by Norwich City, came back Saturday to win, 2 to 0, and capture the round, 2 to 1. Wolverhampton Wanderers lost, 1 to 0, Saturday to Manchester City, but advanced through last week's 2 to 0 victory.

Results of games in the Football League championship race left Blackpool and Manchester City tied for the lead with 25 points each, two more than Liverpool.

Blackpool trounced Rochdale, 5 to 1, while Manchester edged Oldham, 2 to 1.

Glasgow Rangers defeated Celtic, 2 to 0, in their Scottish Southern League Cup final, and meet Morton in the final next Saturday.

Cards Flatten Dodgers Twice, Pirates Split

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Brooklyn's champion Dodgers still rule the roost in the National league, but St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates have them hanging on the ropes.

Still reeling from the effects of a one-two punch they absorbed at Pittsburgh, Durocher's dandies staggered into St. Louis yesterday and were flattened twice by a Cardinal team that finally discovered what bats were for.

While the Dodgers were learning what happens to bad boys who stray too far from Larry Macphail, the rest of the teams in the major leagues were putting on a show that lured nearly 250,000 fans into the parks.

A total of 135,654 customers paid their way into American League parks and 87,090 turned out in the National League. Yankee stadium in New York boasted the season's greatest throng, 65,804.

At St. Louis, 24,871 watched the Cardinals clip the Dodgers 14-10 in a long-winded opening game and 4-2 in the afterpiece, which was held to 5½ innings because the daylight ran out.

The double defeat reduced Brooklyn's margin to a single game over the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates, who missed their chance to share the lead by dividing a doubeheader with Boston Braves.

Picking up where they left off at the fag end of the 1941 season, the Dodgers and Cards went at it hammer and tongs, but Cardinal catcher Ken O'Dea decided the issue in the opening game with a grand-slam homer that routed Whitlow Wyatt in the first inning and a three-run double that broke a 10-10 tie in the eleventh.

Kirby Higbe issued a trio of untimely walks in losing the second game. With the bases filled on passes in the fourth inning, Jimmy Brown drove in all the runs St. Louis needed with a mighty triple and came home himself on an outfield fly.

Managers Chased

Both managers and three players were chased from the field for differing with the umpires on various decisions. Leo Durochel and Billy Southworth were waved to the showers in the opener, along with Freddie Fitzsimmons of the Brooks, while Dodgers Wyatt and Dolph Camilli were banished during the second game.

Pressure finally caught up with Cleveland Indians, two lengths to the good in the American League, and Boston Red Sox cashed in on a trio of errors for an 8-4 triumph that ended the Tribe's winning streak at 13 games. The Boston crowd of 32,123 was the second biggest of the day.

Rudy York's sixth and seventh home runs of the season carried Detroit Tigers to an 8-7 victory over Philadelphia Athletics, but Phil Marchildon pitched a sparkling two-hitter in the nightcap to give the A's an even break, 1-0.

New York Yankees snapped a deadlock with the Red Sox and moved to within half a game of the second-place Tigers by sweeping a bargain bill from Chicago White Sox, 6-4 and 3-1. A two-run homer by Charlie Keller paced the Yankee attack in the opening game and Atley Donald kept the Sox under control in the second by scattering seven hits.

St. Louis Browns and Washington Senators divided their double bill, Washington taking the opener 9-8 on Stan Spence's two-run triple in the ninth and St. Louis coming back for a 5-1 decision in the second with the help of effective pitching by Al Hollingsworth. Spence collected six hits in 10 appearances for the day, two of them three-baggers.

Boston Beaten 6-2

Pittsburgh ran its winning streak to three in a row by downing Boston 6-2 in the first game behind the seven-hit pitching of Max Butcher, but the Braves came back with a 14-hit attack to square accounts, 12-3. Eddie Miller hit a home run with the bases loaded for Boston in the night cap, while Babe Phelps drove in all the Pirates runs with a pair of four-masters.

New York Giants knocked Bucky Walters out of the box in the second inning and went on to trip Cincinnati Reds, 5-4, as Bob Carpenter went all the way. The Giants now trail third-place St. Louis by only half a game.

At Chicago, the Cubs downed Philadelphia Phils 9-1, but the Phils took the second game, 8-1.

In Saturday's National League games, Pittsburgh scored four runs in the first inning and went on to defeat the Dodgers 10-5. Boston nosed out St. Louis 1-0 in a game called at the end of the sixth inning, New York shut out Chicago 1-0 and Cincinnati defeated Philadelphia 4-3.

In the American League, Detroit won 3-1 over the Yankees, Cleveland walloped the Senators 12-3, Boston squeezed out an 11-10 victory over tthe Browns and Philadelphia defeated Chicago White Sox 7-6.

Rudy York Hits Four Homers

NEW YORK, May 4.—Rudy York had his home-run bat in its best working order over the week-end, clouting four circuit blows to boost his total for the season to seven. The big first-sacker collected two of them off Marius Russo, to drive in all Detroit's runs as the Tigers turned back New York Yankees 3-1 Saturday. Russo was shaded in a pitching duel by Tommy Bridges, who limited the Gothamites to five safeties.

Cleveland Indians made in 13 straight Saturday at the expense of Buck Newsom and Washington Senators. Jim Bagby, in racking up a 12-3 triumph, stretched his personal winning streak to five games. Jeff Heath doubled, tripled and homered to drive in five runs. . . . Ted Williams did almost as well as Boston downed St. Louis Browns. Williams clubbed his fifth homer and two singles to send four runs home. . . . Eldon Auker went distance for the Browns despite 17 hits and a walk. Dick Fowler, allowing two safeties in two and two-thirds innings of relief pitching, won a 7-6 decision over Chicago. The Athletics were trailing 6-5 when Fowler took the mound, but the Mackmen evened the count in the seventh and won it with two out in the ninth.

Schoolboy Rowe made his pitching debut in a Brooklyn uniform Saturday and was shamefully treated as Pittsburgh walloped the Dodgers 10-5. . . . In 4 2-3 innings, Rowe gave up 10 hits, walked two and hit a batter . . . The 17 Pirate hits were evenly distributed, everybody getting two except Elbie Fletcher who bagged one . . . Largest Saturday crown of the last eight years in Pittsburgh, 17,210.

Johnny Vander Meer scored his third win for Cincinnati, down[ed] Philadelphia Phils 4-3 . . . Fr[ank] McCormick increased his runs b[at]ted in total to 20 for 17 gam[es] with a double . . . He also add[ed] two singles later . . . Rookie L[ou] Tost bested Mort Cooper as Bos[ton] Braves scored 1-0 over the Ca[rds] in a six-inning game . . . Captured Nazi Finds U.S. Gullible, Stupid

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 4 — (AP). — A young Nazi bomber pilot who roamed 3,000 miles over the United States following his escape from a Canadian war prisoners' camp, was held here to-day by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Apparently headed for Mexico the 22-year-old flier, Lieut. Hans Peter Krug, was caught in a small hotel on Friday night, thanks to the observant nature of the manager.

The F.B.I. had furnished the manager with a card of pictures and information regarding persons wanted. Krug registered on Friday afternoon under the name of Jean Etti, Brooklyn, N.Y.

The manager, whose name was withheld, detected a similarity between the guest and the F.B.I. pictures, and noted also that he spoke with a German accent.

Late that night the manager called the F.B.I. Two agents and two city detectives went to Krug's room. At first the German refused to unfasten the latch chain, but finally admitted the officers.

Special Agent W. M. Acers of the F.B.I. said Krug would be detained here until Canadian and United States authorities decide what to do with him. Acers said a conference between representatives of the two Governments is planned.

Eighty-first Accounted For.

With the recapture of Krug and Lieut. Erich Boehle, picked up at Niagara Falls N.Y., shortly after their escape from Bowmanville, Ontario, on April 16, all the 81 prisoners who have escaped from Canadian camps since the first prisoners were sent from Britain have been accounted for. Four were killed resisting recapture. Baron Franz von Werra escaped to the United States and made his way to Germany. Subsequently he was reported killed in action.

Acers said Krug, who was shot down by anti-aircraft fire over Britain Aug. 28, 1940, told him his experiences in the United States heightened his Nazi-induced belief that Americans are 'stupid.'

"The majority are uttery stupid," Krug said, "and gullible."

He said he had been stopped about eight times for investigation, but that he always was released when he produced his forged papers, which described him as a carpenter who had worked on the fire-gutted liner U.S.S. Lafayette, formerly the Normandie.

A soldier riding with him on a bus asked him why he didn't join the army and Krug replied he was en route to enlist.

Refused Him Beer.

Because of his youthful appearance a waitress once refused to serve him beer, Krug told Acers, but relented when he showed her is forged papers.

In his two travelling bags the Nazi lieutenant carried tinned foods, chocolate bars, a home-made knife, a pistol, German officer's epaulets and a map which detailed his route—from Detroit, where he was assisted by a naturalized American to Chicago, New York, Harrisbung, Pa., Louisville, Nashville, Texarkana, Dallas and Brownwood, Texas.

While he was being questioned in his hotel room, Krug apparently slipped a note into his mouth. On the way to F.B.I. headquarters an agent caught Krug trying to kick the note under the car seat. Contents of the note were not disclosed.

Montreal Stationery.

MONTREAL, May 4.—(CP).—Royal Canadian Mounted Police here said tha Lieutenant Hans Peter Krug, captured in San Antonio, Texas Sunday, after escaping from a Canadian interment camp, had in his possession a letter bearing a forged signature of Mayor Adehemar Raynault of Montreal on stationery similar to that used by the mayor's office

The letter is reported to have asked "To whom it may cocern" that 'Mr. Jennette'—one of Krug's aliases—be extenoed 'courtesies.'

R.C.M.P. officials said the letter was "pure fabrication."

Besides damage suffered then, the announcement said, the battleships probably have suffered additional damage from air-sown British mines and R.A.F. attacks on Kiel; the Prinz Eugen by an attack off Kristiansund, Norway, by the submarine Trident.

The announcement said the Gneisenau is at the former Polish port of Gdynia, the Scharnhorst still in drydock at Kiel and the Prinz Eugen at Trondheim, Norway.

2nd Blow At Exeter

The raid on Hamburg brought Nazi retaliation in a destructive, pre-dawn air attack on Exeter, the second such "reprisal" attack on the southwestern cathedral city in recent weeks.

Considerable damage was caused by dive-bombers, low-flying waves of bombers and heavy aerial machine-gun fire which one witness called an unsuccessful "ruthless attempt to demoralize humble people in their homes." The casualty list, however, is expected to be shorter than in the previous.

A town on the English southeast coast also was attacked by the Germans before dark last night.

In all, fliers are credited with shooting down four of 30 German raiders over this country and two others over airdromes in northern France yesterday.

Both planes destroyed on the other side of the Channel were Heinkel 111 bombers and both were added to the list of Sqdn. Ldr. J. A. F. MacLachlan, a one-armed pilot who returned to active service last week by shooting down another Nazi raider.

It was regarded as a threat to Port Moresby primarily for the advanced positions the Japanese might acquire but the stepped up air activity recently has indicated the enemy may be ready to launch an effort to erase the Port Moresby obstacle to any invasion preparations above the shallow Torres strait.

After the failure of the first penetration into the interior of New Guinea and the arrival of air reinforcements to give the Allies at least temporary air supremacy a month ago, Australian observers predicted a Japanese sea thrust.

A hint that the Japanese, long stalemated in the islands, may be exerting heavy new pressure was contained Saturday in a dispatch from an advanced Allied base to the Melbourne Herald declaring there was imperative need for more men, planes and bombs if strategic Port Moesby is to be held.

Eczema, or salt rheum as it is commonly called, is one of the most painful of all skin troubles.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night, or when the affected part is exposed to heat, or the hands placed in hot water are most unbearable, and relief is gladly welcomed.

The relief offered by Burdock Blood Bitters is based on the knowledge that such ailments as eczema, and other skin troubles, are caused by an impure blood condition.

Same Craft Costs 3 Soldiers Lives, 2 Mishaps

CHATHAM, Ont., May 4—(CP).—Two separate canoeing mishaps cost Canada the lives of three of her young soldiers Sunday. The victims, who drowned in the Thames River near here, were Pte. Orville Henry Weeres, 19, Ordill, Sask.; Pte. William Liggins, 19, Mazenod, Sask.; and Pte. Jack Benjamin Barron, 19, Montreal. All were stationed at 12 basic training centre.

Weeres and Liggins were accompanied by two girls, Bonny Edwards, Chatham and Grace Furta, Wallaceburg, when their canoe capsized in the afternoon.

The soldiers, weighted down by their heavy battle dress and army boots, sank almost immediately. Miss Edwards was able to swim ashore while a passer-by, George Twigg, jumped into the water and dragged the other girl to safety by her hair.

The girls were treated at hospital for shock and exposure but later were able to return to their homes. Bodies of the soldiers were recovered some two hours later.

Charles Bowers, another witness to the capsizing, went to the rescue but failed to find any trace of the soldiers when he reached the upturned canoe.

Barron lost his life while canoeing with Pte. Charles St. Hillier in the evening. Hillier clung to the overturned craft until he was able to reach shore. He hailed a truck on No. 2 highway and gave the alarm.

Barron's body was recovered within a half hour of the time the drowning occurred.

The same canoe is said to have been used in both mishaps.

Two Girls Flag Train Averting Wreck

HASTINGS, May 4.—(ENS)—With the top of an elm tree lying aross the C.N.R. tracks near the station early Saturday morning Dorothy and Bessie Turner, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Turner, tried frantically to "flag" a heavy freight train. They took off their coats and as the train approached waved them but the train was so heavy the engineer did not have time to stop and as he slowed down the train pushed the tree off the track. It is believed that if the train had been going at its normal speed a bad wreck might have resulted.

Extending a rural campaign advocating public health services, Hon. George Hoadley will speak in Peterborough Friday, May 29 in a tour of Eastern Ontario beginning at Renfrew May 11 and ending in Victoria county Saturday, May 30. This lecture tour is a continuation of a campaaign in which Mr. Hoadley was engaged last winter, speaking here at a meeting of the county council and on behalf of a county committee which is working for legislation to permit the engagement of a community doctor and generally to establish rural medical service.

HARASSED MASSEY.

The death of Peter L. Brown in Toronto Sunday, one time editor and publisher of the Port Hope Times, recalls the sharp impact he made on Durham county in the federal elections of 1925. The Liberal candidate was Hon. Vincent Massey, Canada's distinguished and successful high commissioner to Great Britain. Peter Brown, trained in the Toronto Telegram's school of political journalism, demonstrated an enterprse and resourcefulness in hounding Mr. Massey that was the delight of the Tories and the despair of the Grits. It was a county campaign on a low level that has been rarely reached in Durham or any other riding in this part of the province, and Mr. Brown made a name for himself, of a kind, that will long be remembered.

TO ADDRESS LIONS.

Fred Brooks, Central Ontario representative for the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, will address the Peterborough Lions Club at the regular meeting on Monday evening. The Lions have purchased a new car which will be raffled in connection with the summer carnival and tickets are on sale. Proceeds are for local welfare work, tonsil cases, safety work, etc., and war charities, including the British Child War Victims Fund.

ORIOLES BACK.

Perhaps Alex Kay might be able to explain that acute phase of instinct which guided the golden orioles back to Peterborough county several weeks earlier than usual, but in time for the blooming of the apple trees. The normal apple blossom season is about the middle of May, and oriloes generally have timed their arrival for that floral event. Now the apple trees are blooming and the orioles are warbling their well remembered tune in the orchard.

DISCHARGED FROM AIR FORCE

Fred Simmons of Euclid avenue, ran into tough luck in the form of a strict medical board last week. He was successful in passing his trade test at the Galt aircraft school, but the doctors listed him a too low in the medical category for active service, and he is now out of uniform.

THE FINAL WARNING

W. E. Foley, in charge of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board Regional office in Peterborough, announced today that dry cleaners and milk vendors have their last warning. Trucks must not be used on Sunday or in the evening for any purpose except commercial, and pleasure driving is definitely out. Suspension of license and cancellation of ration books, follow a conviction on this particular offence, and Mr. Foley was emphatic that no leeway would be given in these cases.

DON'T HITCH-HIKE

An excerpt from the latest Wartime Regulations indicates that transport drivers can no longer give rides to an except bona-fide employees of the line, who are needed to aid in loading or unloading. The law states that the drivers will be presonally responsible, and fines up to $5,000 or two years' imprisonment can be levied. Apparently this is a follow-up to the fact that German prisoners of war have have made good use of the hitch-hike method to speed their escapes. The point is don't thumb a ride with a transport driver.

ATTENTION, SCOUTS AND CUBS

The scout craft exhibit will be opened Tuesday night, and will remain open every evening from 8 o'clock.

MAKING GOOD RECOVERY

Provincial Constable David Silvester, of Bowmanville, formerly statoined here, who was ill for many months with a heart condition was a visitor in Peterborough for the week-end. He is now on duty again in the Bowmanville office of the provincial police and is so far recovered that he was able to drive his car on the trip to Peterborough.

FROM A LONG DISTANCE

Inspector James F. Reid, Dominion treasurer of the second Canadian Police Spitfire fund, was able to report a new record in long distance contributions this morning when he received a donation of $4.50 from two Royal Canadian Mounted Police constables on duty in the Yukon Territory. The contribution that established a record in this respect during the drive for the first police Spitfire drive came from a R.C.M.P. officer in Baffin Land.

IT WASN'T GUNFIRE

Reports that a number of revolver shots were heard in the Queen Mary section of the city early Sunday morning drew from the police department the explanation that the noise that disturbed the sleep of some of the resident of that district was not gunfire but was produced by a back-firing motor cycle that travelled west shortly after 2 o'clock.

STORE IS ENTERED

Sometime over the week-end the book store of Trebilcock Brothers, George street, was entered and two or three dollars in change stolen from the cash drawer which had been forced opened. It is thought the thieves gained entrance to the place through a skylight in the roof. Most of the cash had been taken out of the drawer when the store closed Saturday night and the intruders only obtained the small amount of change that was left. Apparently nothing is missing from the stock in the store.

NEW A.R.P. CLASS

Four Trophies Are Offered To Cadet Units

KINGSTON, May 4.—Cadet training in Military District No. 3 has been the subject of much favorable comment from both the parents of the cadets and the general public and a further recognition of the fine work being done in the schools by Cadet Corps has been made by four prominent military men in this district, who have donated trophies to be awarded Cadet Corps on their own merits.

The trophies were presented by Colonel L. P. Sherwood, V.D., Ottawa area commandant; Lieut.-Colonel B. C. Donnan, E.D., of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment (R.); Major G. Johnson, E.D., of the Brockville Rifles (A), and Captain W. O. Findlay of the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa. Colonel Sherwood's trophy will go to the Cadet Corps proving most efficient in the Ottawa area command, while the other three trophies will be for Cadet Corps in Military District No. 3 according to their size.

Commenting on the generous gifts, Captain T. C. Holmes, district Cadet officer for M.D. 3, said: "It is felt that these trophies will increase interest in Cadet work by introducing a competitive spirit among Cadet corps of equal sizes."

The trophies will be presented to the winning Cadet Corps on the basis of the year's work, plus general proficiency at the annual inspection. Other points to be considered will be the amount of syllabus of training covered by the corp, the number of competitions entered, general interest and results of work covered.

It is hoped that the trophies will be presented to the winning corps by the donors, immediately after the annual inspections, or at the inspection of the Cadet Camp being held this summer at Connaught Ranges near Ottawa.

For 17th Time Donation Is Cabled London

Fulfilling the hopes expressed in this column for the Peterborough and District War Victims Fund on Saturday, the secretary of the fund was this morning able to cable to the Lord Mayor of London, the 17th donation to go directly over to Britain to help those who have suffered from enemy air raids over the country at large.

As usual, it was cabled as going direct from the citizens of the city and district under the name of His Worship, Mayor James Hamilton, and with the very recent bombings of Exeter, Bath, Norwich, York and Sunderland quite fresh in the minds of all, it would seem most appropriate that it was possible to do this. The amount cabled as the customary donation of £500, and this now makes a total of £9,100 that has been sent to help them in their time of need.

The donation which actually enabled the fund to top the required amount came in from the Refrigerator Cabinet Department of the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., of which G. G. Gertley is in charge, their contribution of $13.20 being the result of passing a box around on Saturday mornings to make it really a straight donation in aid of the fund.

The pupils of Mrs. R. T. F. Brain had a musical tea on April 25 and from this they also had a hand in completing this donation to the extent of $10. Then a euchre which was held at Stewart Hall added a further $10, per Marion Patterson, and the Junior Class of Hiawatha Sunday School made their third subscription, this time the amount being $5.00. Another donation of $5 is listed under A.B.C.'s, and Mrs. Wm. Shannon, who never has failed to turn up around the first of the month, adds her regular contribution of $3 to complete the list for the day.

Cavalcade of Canada

This very successful and interesting production by the Normal School students, in which is depicted the real cultural values that have come to this country from Europe, will be repeated in the Normal School this Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. with several added fetures which include exhibits of handicraft work by the students in social studies, a new feature of recent times in school curriculum and manual training as co-related to this. There will also be exhibits in home economics and art studies, and then the annual event of Crowning of the May Queen, who this year is Miss Helen Foster of Campbellcroft, with the valedictory by Ellwood Moore of Castleton, both of whom are the outstanding students of their year.

There is no admission charge, but a collection will be taken, all of which will be given to the fund, and should provide a real good basis with which to commence the gathering of the 18th donation.

Rev. G. K. Tyler Stresses Living For God

Anniversary services at Park St. Baptist church were addressed by a former pastor, Rev. G. K. Tyler, of Woodstock, Ont. The theme of the morning sermon was 'Crusading for Christ.' Special music was provided by Mr. Adam Hawley and the church choir. Capt., the Rev. A. A. Russell, chaplain at Petawawa, offered the pastoral prayer and gave an informative and challenging address on his work to the young men's class of the Sunday school.

Mr. Tyler called his hearers to "total consecration" to Christ in his evening address. Using Romans, twelve, as a text, he pointed out that sacrifice has always been an essential element in religion. A wide range of gifts were offered unto God in olden times, gifts that were very precious to the individual: They were usually animals or birds that had been slain on the altar of sacrifice What God requires of us now is a living sacrifice, the gift to God of our lives, our living bodies and all that it implied. Such sacrifice would lead us to be a different people in the world, a people who refused to be conformed to the ideas and practices of the world, a people whose minds were renewed and transformed by and to the will of God. The experiences of thus knowing Gods will be experience is the highest prize of the Christian faith. Such total consecration to Christ would have the needed transforming effect upon the world. The world's need is to know and follow the will of God. Christians must lead the way.

A ladies' quartette, Misses Agnes and Martha Sands, Nancy Lane and Mrs. J. Barrie, and Mrs. George Batley, soloist, provided the special musical inspiration along with the choir of the church.

The day was completed with a social hour in the basement of the church. Mr. C. Corbett acted as chairman in the absence of M. Dunkley. He called on Mrs. George Batley and the ladies' quartette for special numbers.

Rev. and Mrs. Tyler and Rev. and Mrs. Boyter were asked to tell of their experiences in their first churches. Their stories proved to be very amusing and interesting, much to the pleasure of all present. Stan and Harry Northrop entertained in their usual and most delightful manner, with piano and violin. The ladies of the church provided a lovely luncheon.

Concert To Aid Fire Victims

Proceeds of the annual festival of the Songster Brigade of the Salvation Army to-night at the Simcoe Street Temple will be contributed to the people of Kinmount who suffered loss of their possessions in last week's fire.

This is the first undertaking of any kind to assist a neighboring Peterborough community. "We're so near to it that we can't realize the sharpness of tis catastrophe to a village people, a local man said the other day.

The Salvation Army is hoping for a full house to-night, and they will also accept contributions from local people who wish to give some aid to stricken Kinmount.

Police Investigate Unusual Complaint

Provincial Constable Price Morris and Constable Leo Murphy of the city police department had a trip north of Burleigh Falls early Sunday morning, as the result of a complaint that two men armed with revolvers had been terrorizing some of the residents along the Burleigh Falls-Apsley Road.

The officers investigated the story and discovered that it was a false alarm. The two suspects were located near Haultain and were found to be quite harmless and neither had anything that looked like a revolver. Just how the rumor started that the pair were armed and were likely to cause trouble, the officers were unable to find out.

St. James' United Church Marks Its Twenty-fifth Anniversary

Observing the twenty-fifth anniversary of the completion of the building of St. James' United Church, the Rev. H. A. Kent, M.A., D.D., principal of Queen's Theological College, Kingston was guest preacher.

Large congregations of present and past members of the church greeted pastor and visiting minister at all services, while His Worship Mayor Hamilton, with members of the City Council attended the morning service, when the pastor, Rev. Fred Craik, welcomed the large assembly. A day of thanksgiving, with inspiring messages and a special program of anniversary music will leave its indelible mark on the history of St. James, as it completes its quarter century of successful service.

In this day with so many countries relying upon might and power, it was significant that Rev. Dr. Kent, believes in a higher power, when he announced as his text, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts." (Zechariah 4:6)

Since the beginning of our human story, man has been striving for power over things. The conquest of man over the powers of this world is a long and fascinating tale. Nobody knows who made the first fire or the first stone axe. From the first hollowed out log down to the modern Normandie is a long and gradual evolution. Yet more has been achieved in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries than in all the years before.

Men have gloried as they have won their power over the things of this world, and as a result, one power after another has been unleashed, both for good and for evil.

Yet, every civilization built upon power alone has collapsed, for science and knowledge cannot take the place of God. The great Assyrian Empire existed 650 years before Christ, yet in fifty years it was all gone and its capital buried in ruins. "Might and power" were not enough to preserve it.

Alexander, the Great, crossed the Hellespont and conquered the whole known world in ten years. But twelve years later he was dead and his empire dissolved.

The magnificent Roman Empire of the ancient world lasted for many years, yet went out as a power. Why? No one knows exactly, but certainly it was spiritually exhausted. In two hundred years everything they stood for was gone. The only thing that survived was the Christian church.

Louis XIV, that great monarch of France made it the most exalted power in the world in many ways. However, his regime was followed by one of the bloodiest revolutions in history.

"Not by might nor by power," might be written over the graves of all the great empires that have gone, never to come back. They were built upon the sand. Following up his text Dr. Kent next referred to the passage "but by my spirit."

Something Not Eternal

Along with the urge for power, something else, not external, has existed in the souls of men. The spirit of the living God, but the thing that has survival power has been at work within man.

The chief legacy of the Greek Empire to the human race is not Alexander, Plato or Aristotle, but the New Testament which is greater than the teaching of all the great philosophers combined. Rome left

2 Trucks Collide At Corner Without Sign

Two trucks were damaged Saturday in a collision at Monaghan Road and Gilmour street in which the two drivers involved both gave King street address but each in a different town. Alex. Boyd, 475 King street, Cobourg, was driving an Imperial Oil truck west on Gilmour street and at Monaghan Road, there was a collision with another truck driven north on Monaghan Road by Ormond Strano, 328 King street, Peterborough. The Strano truck struck the oil machine between the cab and the tractor trailer. Damage to the bigger truck amounted to around $10 but the Strano vehicle was damaged to the extent of $80, the front bumper, right front fender, headlights, radiator and grill suffering from the impact.

Brown Trout Weighs Five Pounds

Live bait is the answer to the trout fishermen's prayer according to local fishermen who waded creeks, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the first fling of the season, seeking the wily speckled beauties and the more elusive brown trout, in the Peterborough district.

Top laurels go to Walter Hodgson, of the Charlbond Apartments, a C.G.E. employee who was fishing at the Cavan Pond with George Irwin. Hodgson caught a brown trout which was 25 inches long, and weighed exactly five pounds. He was using worms, and caught the fish not ten feet from where Hugh Cameron of Bowmanville caught a 5¼-pounder last May. The trout gave him a frisky time of it for about five minutes.

They also brought in two speckled trout, both 11 inches long.

Mr. and Mrs. Burley Reid and daughter, Barbara, had a wonderful catch of speckled trout, bringing home 9 trout that weighed 6½ pounds. The largest was 14 inches long. Barbara caught two, the mother bagged three, and Mr. Reid caught the rest, including the big one. They were using worms, and where they caught the fish remains a secret.

Bob McClellan and Jim Willey tried the Centre Dummer swamp, where the Ouse River winds through a wild section, and they were lucky enough to take in twelve trout, ranging in size from 8 to 10 inches. M. M. McHose, an American from Perth Amboy, New Jersey, and a veteran dry fly fisherman, went along with them, and he just caught one trout, farther down the river. The American was enthusiastic over the stream, which is crystal clear where he was fly-casting. He claims it was the best outing he has had since coming to Canada on his annual trips.

HOW YOU CAN GET A $100 LOAN
AT HOUSEHOLD FINANCE
IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $9.46 A MONTH
No endorsers or guarantors required

WOULD a cash loan help you? If you have a job, you can borrow at Household Finance without fuss or bother—and at reasonable cost. You may repay your loan in monthly instalments which fit your own pocketbook.

Just this to do

All you do to apply for a Household Finance loan is to tell us how much you need and how you wish to repay.

You may choose the most convenient payment plan from the table below. Suppose you borrow $100 to be repaid at $9.46 a month. Twelve instalments of $9.46 each will repay your loan in full. You may prefer to repay sooner in order to reduce the cost. Six monthly instalments of $17.85 each—a total of $107.10—will also repay a $100 loan. The cost of your loan, in this case, is just $7.10. A $25 loan, repaid in six monthly instalments of $4.46 each costs only $1.76.

You need no endorsers or guarantors to borrow at Household—just the ability to repay in monthly instalments. This spares you the embarrassment of asking friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. And at no time do we question friends or relatives about your credit.

Household Finance loans are usually made on furniture or car. But we consider character and regular income far more important than the value of your security. You can get your loan quickly—usually in 24 hours or even sooner if necessary. If you should get sick or lose your position while paying on your loan, Household will show you every consideration.

Let Household help you

People borrow at Household to pay taxes, insurance, medical, dental, hospital and funeral expenses, school fees, and overdue bills of many kinds. Household service helps men and women, both married and single, to take care of emergency expenses and work their way out of debt.

If you can make good use of a loan, see us at once. We are in business to make loans to folks with money problems. Phone or visit us without obligation.

WE GUARANTEE the total amount figured by using this table to be the full amount you will pay, when payments are made on schedule. You will pay less if you prepay your loan in full or in part, since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments include Household's charge of 2% per month on unpaid balances, which is authorized by the Small Loans Act, 1939.

the league for their co-operation and good sportsmanship during the past season, another during which not one protest was heard.

Mr. A. Hope, an old member of the league and the donor of the first trophy given for competition, was on hand to pass over the cup and its accompanying prizes to the winners. Mr. F. Parsons, one of the original members of the league and a past vice-president, presented the Bleasdell trophy to the second-place team. President D. Leether gave the third-place team and the winners and runners up in the President's cup their respective prizes, secretary G. E. Groombridge handing the fourth prizes to the team so placed.

The names of the respective teams are as follows: The Hope Cup and the President's Cup to B.E.S.L. team No. 5, J. Paquette, A. Nokes, A. Robinson, C. McDermott, T. Ferguson, skip. This is the second time in 13 years that any team has won two cups in the same season, the last time being when St. John's team, under Jack Cridland, performed it by winning a cup for three years in succession and in the final year added the president's cup to the laurels. It should also be noted that C. McDermott who is playing with the winning team this season was also among the winning aggregation under Jack Cridland.

St. George's No. 9 came through in the last end of the season to take the Bleasdell Memorial Shield members of the team were F. Storey, A. Sims, G. Colbran, G. Dodson, C. Crouter, skip.

P.F.D. No. 8, J. Ridyard, W. Sorrie, G. Reynolds, J. Wilson, and A. Mason, skip, took third prize; whilst the fourth went to S.O.E. No. 2, D. Leether, H. Beal, C. W. Wiggins, F J Parsons and A. Price, skip.

P.F.D. No. 7, who set the pace for a while in the league dropped outside the prize winning list but maintained a good average and won the Elsie Bennett trophy for that accomplishment. The following were members of that team, O. Rome; S. Foster, T. Nice, W. Jones, G. Gimblett, Jr., skip.

The runners up for the President's cup were W. Gracie, L. R. Groombridge, H. Wickenden, C. Joyes and G. E. Groombridge, commonly known as the Auto Tops, but who were not apparently strong enough to trim the Big Alarms.

Vice President C. Crouter presented the Elsie Bennett Trophy in the absence of the donor. Mr. C Wiggins, the first president of the league, was called upon to present the secretary, G. E. Groombridge, with a cheque in appreciation of the services rendered to the league.

Jack Marshall was on hand to help with the entertainment of the guests and caused some real fun.

Mrs. G. E. Groombridge, ably assisted by Mrs. L. R Groombridge, served refreshments at the close of the meeting. A collection was taken up for the British War Victims fund the sum of $9.90 being realized. This has not yet been turned over to the fund as we felt that many who were not present would like to swell the total. So if you have any funds you would like to give this worthy cause please send same in to the secretary or leave it for him at the Fire Hall or the customs house on or before Saturday noon next, May 9. So:

Till the leaves begin to turn
And the coal begins to burn
I must go.
I never could be solemn to us its conceptions of law and government, but its chief contribution to the the Western World, was the Latin Church which, with all its mistakes, was the mother of European civilization.

The reason why the Jews are the only race left of all those who passed along the stage of ancient life is that in spite of all their sad mistakes and sorrowful history the Lord God has been in their souls.

It will not do for us simply to look back for that is only an indirect help. We have held many smug notions, one of which is, that when people come to know more, they will do better, yet the most accomplished gang of scoundrels in the world today are men who are well educated. Evil will not yield just because people know better. It will only yield to good when men and women yield to God. Unless the world will listen to the voice of God, we're on the way out. There is no guarantee that we are better than the Romans or Egyptians. we at least know the precipice that lies before us, for we ought to know the principles that underlie human stability. It is not only the Germans, Italians and Japanese who have forgotten God. Many of us do not deny Him, we just ignore Him. God is not tied up to the white man. Our only guarantee of national permanence is that we do the will of God and do it better than we have done before."

With Cecil Lapp, the organist directing, the fine anniversary music included the morning anthem "O God Our Help in Ages Past" and a beautiful solo "The Voice in the Wilderness" by Mrs. H. F. Doig. The evening anthems were "Rock of Ages" and "Bless Thou the Lord" unaccompanied, with Mrs. Edith Frizzelle as soloist.

The anniversary celebrations will be continued with a dinner on Tuesday night at St. James United Church.

Home Course Teaches Graceful Waltz Steps

Don't Have to Watch Your Feet

When other girls watch her waltzing they feel clumsy, she looks so lovely. Yet she may have learned to dance at home as have many good dancers. It's easy, with the aid of simple diagrams. If you know how to place your feet you can dance well with any-one.

Try our Forward Waltz Step to a 1-2-3 rhythm. On Count 1 — Step forward on your left foot. 2—Place right foot a short distance to side of left. 3 — Close left foot to right foot.

Other waltz steps are learned as easily. A little practice and you're soon waltzing as lightly, as dreamily as the girl you envied. At a slight pressure from your partner's arm or hand, you glide from one step to another!

Be a popular dancer with the aid of our 32-page booklet. It has footprint diagrams and instructions for waltz, fox-trot, tango, rumba, Conga, Samba, Westchester, Peabody and shag. Tells how to combine steps, lead and follow well.

HOME COURSE TEACHES GRACEFUL WALTZ STEPS

For your copy of "How to Do the Newest Dance Steps and Variations," send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

ACCEPTING A BEATING

CAN YOU imagine a tournament being won because the winning declarer deliberately and intentionally allowed himself to be beaten in a contract? That can really be the finest match point bridge, if he reckons the chances are overwhelmingly in favor of his being beaten two tricks in case he tries a highly improbable play to make his contract. In rubber bridge, the same declarer should attempt almost any kind of play —no matter how unlikely—to make the contract, rather than accept a defeat.

North: ♠ Q 8 3 2 ♥ K 9 8 ♦ Q 8 4 ♣ K J 3
West: ♠ 9 7 6 4 ♥ 7 5 4 ♦ 10 3 ♣ 10 9 7 4

East refrained from doubling, because he was pleased with the contract, and then led the spade K. When West played the encouraging 7, East followed with the A, and then the J

North's natural play here in rubber bridge is to take the trick with the Q, as there are still two aces out against him, and then try to embarrass his opponents by running diamonds.

When that style of play was tried in the duplicate where this hand was dealt, East won the tenth trick with the club A and led the spade 5 to West's 9, enabling the latter to return a heart up to the A-Q, thereby setting the contract two tricks.

At one table, however, the declarer was Edward Lasker, of the Whist club in New York, who brings to the bridge table the same acumen which makes him one of the greatest radio experts of the advertising world. When he saw West's encouraging high-low cards on the first two spade tricks, he read them as indicating a holding of four headed by the 9. He therefore realized that if he took the third lead, the spade J, with his Q, East would later be able to put West into the lead to go through his heart K. So he let the J win. East now had no way to set the contract more than one trick, as he could never give West the lead. He therefore cashed the heart A and club A, setting the contract one trick, after which Mr Lasker got all of the rest

Trans-Atlantic Troop Tabloid Starts

TORONTO, May 2.—(CP)—First issue of a trans-Atlantic tabloid newspaper for Canada's armed forces overseas was delivered today in England. The four page weekly—packed with Canadian news—was written, edited and made up in Toronto but printed in London's Fleet Street.

Entire content of "The Canadian Press News" was cabled at the Empire penny press rate, inaugurated last October. The Canadian Government pays the cost of editorial work, cable tolls and printing. The Canadian Press does the job, giving its news service free but exercising full authority in selection of the stories used.

Top play in the first issue went to the story on the Dominion plebiscite which rated a two-column heading and a one-column box score analysist of the vote. The format is four columns and the front page is general Canadian news.

Page two carried three columns of news briefs from Quebec, printed in French, and a few "stop press" bulletins. Page three carried regional news briefs. There were 63 of these in the first issue, datelined from service men's home towns as far apart as Vancouver and Glace Bay.

The back page is the sport page and the first issue ran an unusually interesting budget. It covered the Stanley Cup, Allan Cup and Memorial Cup finals, the opening of the baseball season and a basketball roundup. A regular column "Sport Chatter" was included.

From Seven Bureaux

The news content is selected by editors in CP's seven Canadian bureaux and sent to Toronto and editing and processing into contracted "cablese." It is cabled to London complete with headings and coded makeup instructions. Editors in CP's London bureau extend the cable copy and send it to the printer. London headquarters of the services handle distribution.

No cable words are wasted in the long-distance makeup instructions. Each item is topped by its heading with a code number which indicates page, position and type size.

The cabled plebiscite story was headed: "A116-365 Canada Votes-Emphatic Yes". The "A" specifies top of the page. The next two numbers designate page and column. The next number—6— specifies that the heading is two-column. The first two numbers after the hyphen are the type size (36-point) and the 5 designates capitals.

On page one of the first issue a joint message from Defene Minister Ralston, Air Minister Power and Navy Minister Macdonald says: "The Canadian Press News comes to you Canadians overseas in the hope that it will fill a long-felt need with news of Canada and what the home folks are doing and saying and thinking while you are away."

Preliminary negotiations on behalf of the government were carried out by J. W. G. Clark, director of public relations for the Department of National Defence.

Selection and editing of the copy for the forces' paper is supervised by Gillis Purcell, general superintendent of The Canadian Press, who worked out technical details of the remote control makeup. Purcell was in the Canadian army overseas last year.

During the first Great War, the Canadian war records office in in London issued the "Canadian Daily Record" from Jan. 16, 1917, to July 31, 1919. It was a small four-page paper containing news cabled from Canada.

P. J. A. Cardin Through Rumor Denied

OTTAWA, May 2 — (CP). — The Ottawa French-language newspaper Le Droit on Friday said "a rumor impossible to confirm says that Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Public Works and Transport, announced his resignation from the Federal Cabinet here late to-day."

The Ottawa correspondent of the Montreal Gazete last night sent a dispatch to his paper saying it was persistently reported that Mr. Cardin was going to resign. The dispatch said the reason was because of Mr. Cardin's ill-health.

Mr. Cardin left Ottawa for Montreal late on Friday. His secretary, Ernest Dufour, said there was nothing to the report.

Unexpected Aid

London, May 2 (CP)

THE Moscow radio quoted the Stockholm newspaper Aftontidningen today as saying that German soldiers helped 800 Russian war prisoners to escape from internment in the Oslo and Christiansund areas of Norway.

Another 64 Russians were said to have escaped from a camp in Ostland province.

Aftontidningen is a new publication, the first issue of which appeared a few weeks ago.

Will Fight Again

Ensign Frank Keathley, U.S.N., is shown chatting with newsmen when he gave some support to the old maxim about he who fights and runs away. Ensign Keathley didn't exactly run away; actually his ship was shot from under him by a U-boat. He and his navy gun crew were picked up by a United Nations freighter and immediately took charge of gunnery on the rescue ship. Shortly thereafter the rescue ship sighted a submarine, which dived before the gun could be brought to bear. It came up later, though, and before it had time to dive the navy gunners had drawn their bead. Second shot is believed to have been a direct hit. There was a cloud of smoke and the sub was seen no more.

MARMORA, May 4— (ENS). — The Marmora Sub-Division of the Catholic Women's League held its annual meeting at the Parish Hall on Thursday evening with a good attendance and Mrs. J. Black in the chair. The meeting opened with the league prayer by the chaplain, Rev. H. J. Farrell. The talent money was called in, amounting to $29. Mrs. Hannah Auger won the prize for bringing in the largest amount. Army Is Calling ForMoreWomen

OTTAWA, May 2 — (CP).—The Canadian Army wants more women and National Defence Headquarters is moving to meet the demand, Maj.-Gen. H. F. G. Letson Adjutant-General, said at a press conference yesterday.

Gen. Letson said a second women's basic training centre will be established somewhere in Western Canada. The place is not settled yet, but it is hoped that when it is created the monthly intake of the Women's Corps will exceed 1,000.

Present capacity of the Women's Basic Training Centre at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., is 375 to 400 a month. The objective is to increase that to about 500 and get another centre of comparable size in operation.

Some 2,600 women now are serving in the Army, said the Adjutant-General, and the ultimate size of the Corps is definite. It will be expanded as long as it is possible to use women to release fit men for active combatant duty.

A new departure with the Corps is the decision recently taken to train 1,500 qualified tradeswomen for work with the Ordnance Corps.

Headquarters has a request for 500 Ordnance tradeswomen to go to the Canadian Army Base workship in England and this request will be met when the women get their training.

Another overseas request is for 150 women to work at the Army Base laundry in England. This detachment is expected to leave at an early date as soon as buildings and equipment are ready for them overseas.

Women officers now will be eligible to sit on courts-martial and courts of inquiry, he said. All women's army personnel will be subject to the Army Act, the same as men, except that they may not be sentenced to death, penal servitude, or imprisonment.

"We do not expect the women will commit any of the more serious offences," said General Letson.

So far, he said, some 1,000 Category A men have been replaced by women and thus made available for overseas service. At the moment there are unfilled demands for 3,000 women from Army establishments.

Reservist Fined For Missing Drill

CAMPBELLFORD, May 2 (ENS). Anyone who thinks the Reserve Force is fooling when they order a soldier out for drill got their eyes opened here on Friday, at least Private Albert Rightmeyer did. According to the evidence he hadn't turned out for drill since February and since he had signed up for three years (as all Reserve Force men do) local officers decided to take some action when he disregarded orders. He pleaded guilty before Magistrate Langley in the first case under this section of the Militia Act ever heard locally. Rightmeyer was given the option of $5.00 and costs or ten days but he paid the fine and $1.50 costs. Major E. G. Johnson, Officer Commanding "B" Company and Officer Cadet Ross Richardson who laid the complaint were both present during the court proceedings.

Manitoulin Blaze

GORE BAY, Ont., May 2.—(CP).—Fire believed to have been caused by a spark from a chimney early to-day destroyed an apartment block owned by Sheriff W. I. Wagg, an adjacent store and the residence of Jack Gibson. Gore Bay is on Manitoulin Island.

The belfry on a nearby Anglican church was also burned but volunteers saved the rest of the church building. Loss in the fires was estimated at $10,000, partly covered by insurance. The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission fire fighting equipment was brought from Kagawong, 10 miles east of here, but was inadequate to save the buildings.

Home Reserve Nursing Class Formed

MILLBROOK, May 2 — (ENS).— Over seventy students, embracing the ladies of the village and countryside have now enrolled in the Home Reserve Nursing Classes, sponsored by the Red Cross, and meeting weekly in the community waiting room. The first class on Thursday of last week was in charge of Mrs. J. L. Byam, Reg. N., formerly of the General Hospital staff, Toronto, who spoke on "Health and Home Nursing," and emphasized the proper habits of rest, cleanliness of home and person, particularly in the kitchen, regular elimination and correct diet.

Mrs. M. E. Hobbs, who is a graduate dietitian from the Mount Alliston University, New Brunswick, took the lecture period on Thursday of this week, speaking on the "Food Needs of Adullts in Wartime." The protective foods, carbo-hydrates, proteins, water, of which adults should drink three pints daily, fats, minerals, etc., and their sources, were outlined, and the vital importance of a correct diet, with the vitamins and from what foods they are obtained, formed a fascinating story that held the attention of the students closely.

Next Thursday, May 7, at 8 p.m. sharp, the lecture will be given by Dr. Agnes Moffatt, of Peterborough, her subject being "The Feeding of Infants and Children." The dates have now been set for the Red Cross play, "Willie's Tea Garden," being directed by Rev. A. R. Gibson, B. D. on Friday and Saturday, May 8 and 9, in the Town Hall.

Donations received at the work room this week, included 3 quilts, from Falis Line, 1 from Carmel, 1 baby's bonnet from Miss M. Finnimore and 1 quilt from Miss M. Meadows. Shipped were: 2 crib quilts and 3 large quilts from Millbrook, 2 from Falis Line, and 1 from Carmel.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, May 2 — (AP).—A hydraulic crew nursed an orphaned red fox pup last fall, and reynard got mighty fond of camp fare. John Mekkelson, utilizing the animal's taste for civilized food, taught him to bark and scratch at his window at dawn, and now the camp has discarded its alarm clocks.

MILLBROOK

George A. Fair Is Honored By Fair Board

MILLBROOK, May 2 — (ENS).— A pleasant surprise was prepared for George A. Fair on Thursday evening, when over twenty-five members of the Agricultural Society gathered at his home, King Street East, to present him with the Certificate of Merit, issued annually by the Department of Agriculture, and given to the one having the longest association with the local organizaiton his years of service being marked by loyal and efficient support.

Mr. Fair is a past president of the society, and actively connected with it for over forty years. L. W. Smith, as the senior member among those present, made the presentation of the handsomely illuminated certificate, Robert McCamus, the newly-elected president, making an informal address during which he stressed the appreciation felt for Mr. Fair's long period of service, and his continuous and constructive interest in the welfare and undertakings of the Agricultural Society. I. W. Larmer, the immediate past president, took the chair and also spoke of the fine work of the guest of honor in local agricultural projects. Others who made brief addresses were Deputy-Reeve W. W. Brown, representing the Cavan Council, and past president Percy Stinson.

Several of the directors on Thursday evening were accompanied by their wives, the ladies assisting the hostess in serving a delicious lunch, after card games and social intercourse had been enjoyed following the presentation, which was the main feature of the occasion.

Eggs Were Plentiful On Farm Market Saturday

Attendance at the market Saturday was comparatively small for the first Saturday in May. Farmers are too busy with the new season's work, some of them said, to take time out during the week to get ready for Saturday.

Butter was 37 and 38 rents a pound and the supply was light. Eggs were about as plentiful as usual, selling at 27 cents a dozen up to 35 and 40 cents for the top grades. The bulk of the sales were made at 28 and 30 cents.

Chickens were priced at 27 and 28 to 30 cents a pound for roosters and 35 cents for broilers. Potatoes were 35 and 40 cents a peck or $1.80 a bag for table stock, produced locally, and certified potatoes, especially for seed purposes, grown in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, sold at $2 to $2.50 a bag for seventy-five pounds. Eric Tully asked $2.50 for his best certified Irish Cobblers and Chippewas and $2.25 for a smaller size. Bert Arnott had certified Prince Edward Island Cobblers at $2.25, and Herb Doig had New Brunswick Green Mountains at $2.

Gardeners had a big offering of asparagus at 10 cents a bunch, rhubarb was 8 cents or two bunches for 15 cents, and new onions were 5c a bunch. Herb Doig said he was cutting 90 to 100 dozen bunches of asparagus daily.

Allan Brown reported his 1941 stock of honey almost at an end. Bees have been working since the first week in April, first on the soft maples and now on the bloom of the hard species. The nectar they gather at the opening of the season is for their own sustenance. They live on it until the clover crop comes in when they begin storing.

Greenhouse men were offering tomato plants at 20 cents a box, and cabbage flats average obout $1 for 100, or a cent apiece. The vegetables of last year are reduced to parsnips at 25 cents for six quart basket quantities.

Some maple syrup was still on sale at $2.75 a gallon.

Erect New Building At Camp Borden

The new educational building to be erected at Camp Borden, in the near future, was made possible as the result of a second raffle of the jewelled purse, offered by Mary Pickford, held by the B'nai B'rith Lodges across Canada on November 24, 1941.

The new building, which is to be 130 feet long by 32 feet wide, is to be called the Auxiliary Services Educational Building. There will be six large classrooms that can be subdivided by moveable partitions, as well as reception and waiting rooms. There will also be sleeping accommodation for the staff. The cost of the building is to be $8,000.

Any of the buildings for use of the soldiers after their day's training must be supplied through private subecription although the military authorities select personnel themselves. Major Handley Geary, V.C., Camp Borden Educational Officer, will be in charge of the new building.

The president of the local B'nai B'rith Lodge is Irving Moldaver, and this lodge along with all the national branches is working steadily for the Red Cross, Bundles for Britain and other war charities.

Pilgrimage Of Mercy

Bath, May 2 (CP)

CLIMBING over heaps of rubble, the King and Queen made a pilgrimage of mercy today such as they have been spared for months during the German air force's raiding lull.

Their Majesties paid a surprise visit to bombed Bath, one of the historic towns hit in Goering's "guidebook blitz."

"We were anxious to come and see how you are all getting on," said the King to one gray-haired woman.

"It's terrible," said the Queen as they stood on a hillside surveying the wreckage which hundreds of troops were working to clear.

Service Personnel

CAIRO, May 2.—(AP)—The presence of United States troops in the Eastern Mediterranean war theatre was announced today by Maj.-Gen. Russell Maxwell, chief of the United States North African mission, but he said they were entirely personnel.

Their job at present, Gen. Maxwell told a press conference, is to support the combat troops of other Allied countries engaged in the actual fighting.

Moscow claims that more and more German soldiers prefer to surrender than fight on against a Red Army that was "destroyed" last fall, according to the Fuehrer.

MOSCOW, May 5 —(AP)—Red Army troops were officially declared today to have "waged offensive battles on several sectors of the front and improved their positions" yesterday and the implication was that the Russians had seized the initiative to break the relative stalemate of a muddy spring.

The Soviet information bureau announced the widespread action against the Germans after a month in which its communiques were prefaced by such reports as: "There were no substantial changes."

The mid-day communique reverted to this phraseology to describe the overnight situation on the long front.

It said Russian forces repulsed an enemy infantry battalion which attacked on a central sector; that in another sector "our artillery fire wiped out 200 Hitlerites."

At the same time the army newspaper Red Star said the Germans had introduced a new weapon, a 230-millimetre (9.05-inch) trench mortar which hurled a projectile equivalent to a large aerial bomb in explosive force.

Standard mortars, high-angle "stove-pipe artillery," are a third or less of that diametre. United States Army infantry units use 60 and 81-millimetre types.)

Red Star said the heavy Nazi mortars were used with artillery and 150 bombers against a Russian guardist unit which made a 95-mile raid within German lines recently and a forest was levelled by the explosives.

But when a German regiment attacked to take over the blasted area, 100 guardist survivors arose from the craters and repulsed it, the newspaper said.

On Hunger Strike

TORONTO, May 5—(CP).—A Toronto evening paper said today that Russell Knowles, confessed kidnapper of John Labatt, wealthy London, Ont., brewer in 1934, is on a hunger strike in Kingston Penitentiary. The paper said the information came from a fellow-convict who recently was released.

Knowles was convicted in 1936 after he had confessed to what he said was a "friendly kidnapping" done for publicity at the suggestion of a Labatt employee. Knowles' story was not accepted by the court and he was sentenced to 15 years.

St. Nazaire Folk Fought 3 Days Beside Britons

LONDON, May 5.—(CP). —The French population of St. Nazaire battled alongside British Commandos against the Germans for 3½ days after the Commandos landed there on the night of March 27-28 while intermittent explosions rocked the town for days after the landing, the Free French press service reported to-day.

The service quoted an eyewitness account by an unnamed correspondent who told also of two British officers who were taken prisoner allowing themselves to be blown up aboard the destroyer Campbelton just to prove to the Germans she contained no explosives.

The correspondent related that the first intimation of the raid was the appearance of British planes the night of March 27.

'At 1 a.m. the British forces began to land,' he went on. 'The destroyer Campbelton headed for the dock gate, slowly at first, then with increasing speed.

'The Germans reacted very poorly. They were stunned and seemed unable to believe their eyes. They maintained intense but inaccurate fire on the Campbelton as she approached the dockgate.

LONDON, May 5—(AP). — A group of Hitler's generals headed by Field Marshal Walther von Brauchitsch was reported today to have told the Fuehrer bluntly that if his 1942 campaign in Russia fails, they will try to institute for Germany an alternate plan of their own calling for "abolition of the Nazi system."

A responsible source with unusually reliable information about conditions inside Germany said Hitler had accepted this challenge calmly and appointed Von Brauchitsch a member of the supreme command.

There was no hint in the information reaching London whether the Von Brauchitsch clique threatened Hitler with displacement or promised him some kind of chancellorship in the new order they would institute if his plans failed, the source said.

The informant added that he believed the dissident generals might want to turn the campaign elsewhere, rather than into Russia, and to halt offensive warfare and seek to hold Germany's gains by defensive fighting. The clique might even strive—by the removal of Hitlerism to gain a negotiated peace favorable to Germany, the source said.

The informant said there had been hints of some kind of German political friction involving Goering.

TORONTO, May 5.—(CP).—The new dual highway between Oshawa and Pickering will be opened for traffic within a few days, Attorney-General Conant announced today following discussions with Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways.

In notifying Dr. B. A. Brown, vice-chairman of the Oshawa Board of Works of this move, Mr. Conant said he had informed Mr. McQuesten the heavy traffic on Highway No. 2, made it desirable to use the dual highway. Its continued use will be dependent on whether or not expense of maintaining the gravel surface is too great.

Will Strip Tires If May Scrap Campaign Fails

OTTAWA, May 5—(CP).—Non-essential automobiles will be stripped of their tires if rubber requirements cannot be met otherwise, William Knightley, Associate National Director of Salvage, said in an interview today.

"By the end of May we will need 50,000,000 pounds of scrap rubber, and if we cannot obtain that amount the stripping of tires from non-essential vehicles is in prospect," Mr. Knightley said.

"Canadians now are able to enjoy their automobiles, but it must be recognized that war needs are paramount, and existing conditions cannot be allowed to continue unless the necessary supplies of salvage are obtained.

Mr. Knightley said that in the United Kingdom and Germany, steel fences, ornamental railings and the like had been torn down for salvage purposes, and similar action might have to be taken in Canada in the future.

EXTRA!

VICHY, France.—(AP).— British forces landed on Madagascar this morning, preceded by 'waves of parachutists,' after the Governor had rejected an ultimatum, it was announced to-night. Chief of Government Pierre Laval declared he had received a note from President Roosevelt demanding that France should not defend Madagascar against British attack, and that the Vichy government regarded the note as inadmissable. Nevertheless, France under no circumstances will make the first move toward a rupture with the United States, Laval said.

2nd Column Aiming For Bhamo

Alternate China Route; Try To Split Allies At Approaches To India

CHUNGKING, May 5.—(AP)—Japanese trops invaded China's Yunnan province today after driving up the Burma Road and crossing the shallow Wanting River, 670 miles from this capital, a military spokesman said.

Bitter fighting is in progress in the area around the border town of Wanting, still in Chinese hands, the spokesman reported.

He declared that destruction of the Chinese section of the Burma Road, which winds through sheer mountains and gaping forges, had not yet been necessary but that the Chinese would carry out their scorched earth policy if necessary.

The Japanese appeared intent upon severing communications between the Chinese of the left flank and British forces of the right—at the wild mountain approaches to India, the spokesman said.

The enemy is expected to concentrate his main effort toward capturing the strategic North Burma town of Bhamo, some 170 miles north of devastated Mandalay, to seal off an alternate terminus of the Burma Road, the spokesman added. A column already is moving north from Mandalay along the Irrawaddy River.

Chinese troops far to the south of the main battlezones at Atunggyi have started guerilla warfare, he said, tacitly announcing the collapse of a sustained drive against the Japanese rear.

Thus in little less than two months, the Japanese invaders of Burma had driven 500 miles from Rangoon to China's back door. The great Burma port, which the Japanese have since utilized as its main supply base, fell March 8.

MackenzieUrges Care With Canteen Funds

OTTAWA, May 5. — (CP).—A careful and sound administrator of canteen funds accumulated in the armed forces is of the highest importance because of the size the funds are likely to attain and the necessity of using them for the benefit of members of the forces, Pensions Minister Mackenzie told the special House of Commons committee on canteen funds at its first business meeting to-day.

The four auxiliary services operating with the Canadian forces—the Y.M.C.A., Knights of Columbus, Canadian Legion and Salvation Army — operate dry canteens in camps and other establishments. These canteens turn over five per cent. of their gross sales to the units they serve to provide comforts and recreation for the troops. They retain two per cent to cover their own expenses, and the balance of net profits is forwarded to the Regimental Funds Board and held by the Receiver-General of Canada, in trust.

Mr. Mackenzie said the various units in Canada operate wet canteens. The profits from these canteens are retained by the units which operate them. Profits last year were 15 p.c., average monthly sales $700,000.

Commandos Hammer Rear Fleet Pounds Harbor Of French Island's Key Post

Allies Drop Gloves With Laval To Beat Japanese

By EDWIN STOUT
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(AP)—British warships and troops held Madagascar today and United States forces were pledged to fight any Axis attempt to grab the great French island which the Japanese apparently had hoped to wrest from the weak and possibly willing hands of Vichy.

The coup by which a land and sea force took over protection of Madagascar was announced in London and Washington last night. Dropping its kid-glove policy in dealing with Vichy, the United States warned bluntly that if pro-Nazi Pierre Laval's government permitted a warlike act against the occupying forces, it would be an act of war against the United Nations.

The British move thwarted any Japanese plans to seize Madagascar either by force or by a "protective" occupation agreement similar to the one under which Japan took over French Indo-China last summer as a springboard for war against Britain and the United States. Recent Axis diplomatic manoeuvring has pointed toward such a deal.

Madagascar guards the United Nations' sea lanes to the Middle East, India and China. Japanese possession of the island would have made the defence of India extremely hazardous and might even have afforded a foothold for an assault on Africa itself.

No Change In Status

The London announcement said a combined British naval and military force had arrived off Madagascar at dawn to forestall a Japanese move against the French naval base of Diego Suarez, on the northern tip of the 1,000-mile-long island. It made no mention of landings, but showed that Britain was in touch with local Vichy officials. saying: "It has been made clear to the French authorities in Madagascar that the United Nations have no intentions of interferring with the French status of the territory, which will remain French and will continue to be part of the French empire."

The Washington statement said Ambassador Henry-Haye, the Vichy representative to Washington, summoned to the state department last night, was given this information:—

"The president of the United States has been informed that Madagascar has been occupied by British forces. This occupation has the full approval and support of the government of the United States. The island of Madagascar presents the definite danger to the United Nations of occupation or use by the Axis powers, especially Japan. Such occupation by the Axis powers would constitute a definite and serious danger to the United Nations, in their fight to maintain the kind of civilization to which France and to which the United Nations have been so long accustomed.

"The government of the United States is at war with the Axis powers and if it becomes necessary or desirable for American troops or ships to use Madagascar in the common cause, the United States will not hesitate to do so at any time.

Garrison Battles On Petain Orders, 2 French Craft Sunk

LONDON, May 5—(CP).—British Commandos, Marines and Infantry landed on the northern tip of Madagascar today, and a Vichy news agency broadcast that they were attacking the strong French naval base of Diego Suarez from the rear while warships and squadrons of airplanes assaulted the harbor frontally.

British parachute troops also were used in the attack, the Vichy broadcast said.

The troops landed at Courier Bay and pushed 10 miles across the northern isthmus against the base, in an attempt to forestall its seizure by the Japanese.

The Vichy broadcast said the British naval force consisted of two cruisers, four destroyers, two troop transports and probably an aircraft carrier. Two British planes were reported shot down.

Ordered to Fight

British naval and air forces first appeared off Diego Suarez yesterday, DNB reported, and Governor-General Armand Annet rejected an ultimatum with a seven-hour time limit.

The British attack then started yesterday evening, the agency said.

NEW DELHI, May 5—(AP). —United States bombers drove through a heavy thunderstorm early today and attacked a major Japanese air base just north of Rangoon where 70 enemy aircraft had been sighted.

The multi-colored craft dodged a concentration of searchlights and ground fire to drop 250 and 500-pound bombs which caused many fires and large explosions at Mingaladon airdrome, a communique said.

"Hangars and aircraft parked on the runway were observed burning," the account added.

Previous aerial reconnaissance had established the presence of the 70 Japanese planes.

Eight Japanese fighter planes were observed, but they stayed clear of the gun-bristling raiders.

All the American craft returned undamaged to their bases.

Madagascar Stroke Real Morale Booster

Allied Strategy Beats Japs To Punch, Serves Laval Stern Tip To Tread Easily

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

British occupation of French Madagascar, with two-fisted backing by the United States, will boost Allied morale no end, not only because we have beaten the Japs to a base of vast strategic importance but because the operation represents the shirt-sleeve initiative which is going to win this war.

In itself it is a notification to Pierre Laval—the Vichy chief of government who has hitched his creaky cart to Hitler's star—not to start kicking the Allied dawg around. Lest there be any misunderstanding in the mind of this Frenchman with his leanings toward the ravagers of his own country, Washington has warned him bluntly that any warlike action against the occupying forces at Madagascar will be an act of war against the United Nations.

Laval can scarcely fail to interpret this warning as applying not only to Madagascar but to any other hostile move, such as turning the French navy and colonies over to the Germans. There can be small doubt that he would like to seize upon the present incident as a casus belli with which to try to whip the French public up to the point of hostilities against Britain.

However, the French people on the whole are with the Allies. Laval is smart and he is crafty, and one couldn't expect him to allow anger at the Madagascar set-back to drive him into any rash effort to lead his government into conflict with the Allies at this juncture. All the indications are that he will be asking for trouble at home if he does.

The occupation of the island of Madagascar, which lies like a huge sausage parallel to the southeast coast of Africa, is the equivalent of a major military victory. Because of its domination of the shipping lane into the Indian Ocean around the Cape of Good Hope, Madagascar is one of the keys to that vast body of water.

The Japs apparently were about to occupy it themselves and had they done so they would have secured virtual control of the whole Indian Ocean. This would have meant that the Allied supply route around the Cape to the Middle East and India would have been severed. In short, it would have been a disaster of the first order for the Allies, since domination of the whole Indian Ocean might permit the Nipponese to overrun India, and to join hands with the Germans in the Middle East.

There have been many signs that Laval was bickering with the Japanese, undoubtedly under instructions from Hitler, with the idea of turning Madagascar over to them, or at least raising no opposition to Nipponese occupation. This left the Allies no alternative but to act first. They haven't forgotten the terrible lesson of last summer when the Japs occupied French Indo-China "protectively" and thereby secured the base from which they engineered much of their war on Indonesia.

With Madagascar safely tucked away, the question will arise wheththe Allies now will go further and take over the great French base of Dakar, on the west coast of Africa. This port dominates the Atlantic shipping routes over a great area and the Germans long have had an eye on occupying it. There has been a growing feeling in Britain and America that the Allies should no longer defer to Vichy but should take possession before the Nazis beat them to it.

So They Blew Up The Canal

Canuck Air Raid Ends Hun Use Of Corinth Cut

LONDON, May 5.—(CP Cable.)—A successful bombing operation over the Corinth canal in Greece and an attack on Naples in Southern Italy were described in a broadcast by Sgt.-Observer Howard Yule of Ingersoll, Ont.

A veteran of 38 operational flights, Yule only recently returned to Britain from the Middle East where he had served since graduation from the Commonwealth air training plan.

Describing the attack on the canal, he explained: 'We decided the Jerries wanted to use it too much, so we wanted to stop them. So we just went up and stopped them. We bombed it from great height with very heavy bombs so they would penetrate very deep and blow up the bases of the canal. At that the walls collapsed, and that was the end of it."

He termed the Naples attack, made last October, "a wizard show" and said the fire started in an oil plant was the biggest he had ever seen.

"It was a terrific fire," Yule related. "One of the boys reported smoke up to 12,000 feet and it was perfectly true.

Hong Kong Setup Improves

Food Improves But Living Conditions Still Low

LONDON, May 5 —(CP Cable)—Latest reports from unofficial sources suggest the position of prisoners in the Hong Kong camps is "somewhat improved and the prisoners are receiving more food although living conditions still remain far from satisfactory," Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today.

Japan is unwilling to recognize any power as protecting British interests in Japanese-occupied territories but the Argentine, as the power in charge of British interests in Japan, "has shown admirable perseverance and has made some progress in its endeavors on behalf of British prisoners, for which the British government are sincerely grateful," Mr. Eden said.

Britain, the foreign secretary added, has requested the Swiss government, in charge of British interests in all other enemy-occupied countries, to undertake similar duty in Japan for greater uniformity in war-prisoner dealings.

Though continuously pressed to send full lists of British prisoners, the Japanese have not fulfilled their undertakings.

"By the end of May we will need 50,000,000 pounds of scrap rubber, and if we cannot obtain that amount the stripping of tires from non-essential vehicles is in prospect," Mr. Knightley said.

"Canadians now are able to enjoy their automobiles, but it must be recognized that war needs are paramount, and existing conditions cannot be allowed to continue unless the necessary supplies of salvage are obtained.

Mr. Knightley said that in the United Kingdom and Germany, steel fences, ornamental railings and the like had been torn down for salvage purposes, and similar action might have to be taken in Canada in the future.

EXTRA!

VICHY, France.—(AP).— British forces landed on Madagascar this morning, preceded by 'waves of parachutists,' after the Governor had rejected an ultimatum, it was announced to-night. Chief of Government Pierre Laval declared he had received a note from President Roosevelt demanding that France should not defend Madagascar against British attack, and that the Vichy government regarded the note as inadmissable. Nevertheless, France under no circumstances will make the first move toward a rupture with the United States, Laval said.

Alternate China Route; Try To Split Allies At Approaches To India

CHUNGKING, May 5.—(AP)—Japanese trops invaded China's Yunnan province today after driving up the Burma Road and crossing the shallow Wanting River, 670 miles from this capital, a military spokesman said.

Bitter fighting is in progress in the area around the border town of Wanting, still in Chinese hands, the spokesman reported.

He declared that destruction of the Chinese section of the Burma Road, which winds through sheer mountains and gaping forges, had not yet been necessary but that the Chinese would carry out their scorched earth policy if necessary.

The Japanese appeared intent upon severing communications between the Chinese of the left flank and British forces of the right—at the wild mountain approaches to India, the spokesman said.

The enemy is expected to concentrate his main effort toward capturing the strategic North Burma town of Bhamo, some 170 miles north of devastated Mandalay, to seal off an alternate terminus of the Burma Road, the spokesman added. A column already is moving north from Mandalay along the Irrawaddy River.

Chinese troops far to the south of the main battlezones at Atunggyi have started guerilla warfare, he said, tacitly announcing the collapse of a sustained drive against the Japanese rear.

Thus in little less than two months, the Japanese invaders of Burma had driven 500 miles from Rangoon to China's back door. The great Burma port, which the Japanese have since utilized as its main supply base, fell March 8.

Alexandra Bombed

ROME, (From Italian Broadcasts) May 5 —(AP)—Axis planes bombed port installations and railway at Alexandria overnight, the Italian high command reported today.

It claimed one German plane destroyed "a four-engined plane of an American type, while in Cirenaica Italian planes shot down two British Spitfires and anti-aircraft shot down one British planes participating in a raid on Bengasi."

Gandhi's System

ALLAHABAD, India, May 5—(CP).—Informed quarters said today there was a possibility that the National Congress party through its working committee will ask M. K. Gandhi to resume the party leadership. Gandhi proposes to fight Jap invaders by refusal to co-operate in any way—refusal to supply food to the invaders, for instance; refusal to make way for them in the streets or buildings, even at the risk of life; refusal to carry out local government.

MackenzieUrges Care With Canteen Funds

OTTAWA, May 5. — (CP).—A careful and sound administrator of canteen funds accumulated in the armed forces is of the highest importance because of the size the funds are likely to attain and the necessity of using them for the benefit of members of the forces, Pensions Minister Mackenzie told the special House of Commons committee on canteen funds at its first business meeting to-day.

The four auxiliary services operating with the Canadian forces—the Y.M.C.A., Knights of Columbus, Canadian Legion and Salvation Army — operate dry canteens in camps and other establishments. These canteens turn over five per cent. of their gross sales to the units they serve to provide comforts and recreation for the troops. They retain two per cent to cover their own expenses, and the balance of net profits is forwarded to the Regimental Funds Board and held by the Receiver-General of Canada, in trust.

Mr. Mackenzie said the various units in Canada operate wet canteens. The profits from these canteens are retained by the units which operate them. Profits last year were 15 p.c., average monthly sales $700,000.

Allies Drop Gloves With Laval To Beat Japanese

By EDWIN STOUT
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(AP)—British warships and troops held Madagascar today and United States forces were pledged to fight any Axis attempt to grab the great French island which the Japanese apparently had hoped to wrest from the weak and possibly willing hands of Vichy.

The coup by which a land and sea force took over protection of Madagascar was announced in London and Washington last night. Dropping its kid-glove policy in dealing with Vichy, the United States warned bluntly that if pro-Nazi Pierre Laval's government permitted a warlike act against the occupying forces, it would be an act of war against the United Nations.

The British move thwarted any Japanese plans to seize Madagascar either by force or by a "protective" occupation agreement similar to the one under which Japan took over French Indo-China last summer as a springboard for war against Britain and the United States. Recent Axis diplomatic manoeuvring has pointed toward such a deal.

Madagascar guards the United Nations' sea lanes to the Middle East, India and China. Japanese possession of the island would have made the defence of India extremely hazardous and might even have afforded a foothold for an assault on Africa itself.

No Change In Status

The London announcement said a combined British naval and military force had arrived off Madagascar at dawn to forestall a Japanese move against the French naval base of Diego Suarez, on the northern tip of the 1,000-mile-long island. It made no mention of landings, but showed that Britain was in touch with local Vichy officials, saying: "It has been made clear to the French authorities in Madagascar that the United Nations have no intentions of interferring with the French status of the territory, which will remain French and will continue to be part of the French empire."

The Washington statement said Ambassador Henry-Haye, the Vichy representative to Washington, summoned to the state department last night, was given this information:—

"The president of the United States has been informed that Madagascar has been occupied by British forces. This occupation has the full approval and support of the government of the United States. The island of Madagascar presents the definite danger to the United Nations of occupation or use by the Axis powers, especially Japan. Such occupation by the Axis powers would constitute a definite and serious danger to the United Nations, in their fight to maintain the kind of civilization to which France and to which the United Nations have been so long accustomed.

"The government of the United States is at war with the Axis powers and if it becomes necessary or desirable for American troops or ships to use Madagascar in the common cause, the United States will not hesitate to do so at any time.

Garrison Battles On Petain Orders, 2 French Craft Sunk

LONDON, May 5—(CP).—British Commandos, Marines and Infantry landed on the northern tip of Madagascar today, and a Vichy news agency broadcast that they were attacking the strong French naval base of Diego Suarez from the rear while warships and squadrons of airplanes assaulted the harbor frontally.

British parachute troops also were used in the attack, the Vichy broadcast said.

The troops landed at Courier Bay and pushed 10 miles across the northern isthmus against the base, in an attempt to forestall its seizure by the Japanese.

The Vichy broadcast said the British naval force consisted of two cruisers, four destroyers, two troop transports and probably an aircraft carrier. Two British planes were reported shot down.

Ordered to Fight

LONDON, May 5—(CP).—A Reuters dispatch, quoting Vichy news agency said today that Marshal Petain and Admiral Darlan, chief of the armed forces, have sent a message to the Commander-in-Chief at Madagascar urging the troops "to resist attack and defend the honor of the French flag."

BERLIN (from German Broadcasts), May 5—(AP).—DNB said today that a French submarine and tender had been sunk at Madagascar resisting the British landing.

British naval and air forces first appeared off Diego Suarez yesterday, DNB reported, and Governor-General Armand Annet rejected an ultimatum with a seven-hour time limit.

The British attack then started yesterday evening, the agency said.

U.S. Planes Rake 70 Jap Machines

NEW DELHI, May 5—(AP). —United States bombers drove through a heavy thunderstorm early today and attacked a major Japanese air base just north of Rangoon where 70 enemy aircraft had been sighted.

The multi-colored craft dodged a concentration of searchlights and ground fire to drop 250 and 500-pound bombs which caused many fires and large explosions at Mingaladon airdrome, a communique said.

"Hangars and aircraft parked on the runway were observed burning," the account added.

Previous aerial reconnaissance had established the presence of the 70 Japanese planes.

Eight Japanese fighter planes were observed, but they stayed clear of the gun-bristling raiders.

All the American craft returned undamaged to their bases.

So They Blew Up The Canal

Canuck Air Raid Ends Hun Use Of Corinth Cut

LONDON, May 5.—(CP Cable.)—A successful bombing operation over the Corinth canal in Greece and an attack on Naples in Southern Italy were described in a broadcast by Sgt.-Observer Howard Yule of Ingersoll, Ont.

A veteran of 38 operational flights, Yule only recently returned to Britain from the Middle East where he had served since graduation from the Commonwealth air training plan.

Describing the attack on the canal, he explained: 'We decided the Jerries wanted to use it too much, so we wanted to stop them. So we just went up and stopped them. We bombed it from great height with very heavy bombs so they would penetrate very deep and blow up the bases of the canal. At that the walls collapsed, and that was the end of it."

He termed the Naples attack, made last October, "a wizard show" and said the fire started in an oil plant was the biggest he had ever seen.

"It was a terrific fire," Yule related. "One of the boys reported smoke up to 12,000 feet and it was perfectly true.

Madagascar Stroke Real Morale Booster

Allied Strategy Beats Japs To Punch, Serves Laval Stern Tip To Tread Easily

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

British occupation of French Madagascar, with two-fisted backing by the United States, will boost Allied morale no end, not only because we have beaten the Japs to a base of vast strategic importance but because the operation represents the shirt-sleeve initiative which is going to win this war.

In itself it is a notification to Pierre Laval—the Vichy chief of government who has hitched his creaky cart to Hitler's star—not to start kicking the Allied dawg around. Lest there be any misunderstanding in the mind of this Frenchman with his leanings toward the ravagers of his own country, Washington has warned him bluntly that any warlike action against the occupying forces at Madagascar will be an act of war against the United Nations.

Laval can scarcely fail to interpret this warning as applying not only to Madagascar but to any other hostile move, such as turning the French navy and colonies over to the Germans. There can be small doubt that he would like to seize upon the present incident as a casus belli with which to try to whip the French public up to the point of hostilities against Britain.

However, the French people on the whole are with the Allies. Laval is smart and he is crafty, and one couldn't expect him to allow anger at the Madagascar set-back to drive him into any rash effort to lead his government into conflict with the Allies at this juncture. All the indications are that he will be asking for trouble at home if he does.

The occupation of the island of Madagascar, which lies like a huge sausage parallel to the southeast coast of Africa, is the equivalent of a major military victory. Because of its domination of the shipping lane into the Indian Ocean around the Cape of Good Hope, Madagascar is one of the keys to that vast body of water.

The Japs apparently were about to occupy it themselves and had they done so they would have secured virtual control of the whole Indian Ocean. This would have meant that the Allied supply route around the Cape to the Middle East and India would have been severed. In short, it would have been a disaster of the first order for the Allies, since domination of the whole Indian Ocean might permit the Nipponese to overrun India, and to join hands with the Germans in the Middle East.

There have been many signs that Laval was bickering with the Japanese, undoubtedly under instructions from Hitler, with the idea of turning Madagascar over to them, or at least raising no opposition to Nipponese occupation. This left the Allies no alternative but to act first. They haven't forgotten the terrible lesson of last summer when the Japs occupied French Indo-China "protectively" and thereby secured the base from which they engineered much of their war on Indonesia.

With Madagascar safely tucked away, the question will arise wheth-the Allies now will go further and take over the great French base of Dakar, on the west coast of Africa. This port dominates the Atlantic shipping routes over a great area and the Germans long have had an eye on occupying it. There has been a growing feeling in Britain and America that the Allies should no longer defer to Vichy but should take possession before the Nazis beat them to it.

Hong Kong Setup Improves

Food Improves But Living Conditions Still Low

LONDON, May 5 —(CP Cable)—Latest reports from unofficial sources suggest the position of prisoners in the Hong Kong camps is "somewhat improved and the prisoners are receiving more food although living conditions still remain far from satisfactory," Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today.

Japan is unwilling to recognize any power as protecting British interests in Japanese-occupied territories but the Argentine, as the power in charge of British interests in Japan, "has shown admirable perseverance and has made some progress in its endeavors on behalf of British prisoners, for which the British government are sincerely grateful," Mr. Eden said.

Britain, the foreign secretary added, has requested the Swiss government, in charge of British interests in all other enemy-occupied countries, to undertake similar duty in Japan for greater uniformity in war-prisoner dealings.

Though continuously pressed to send full lists of British prisoners, the Japanese have not fulfilled their undertakings.

ROYAL AIR FORCE PLASTERS SKODA WORKS IN CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

Heavy Blows Rained On Stuttgart

Pound Nantes Docks; Coastal Guns Fire 90 Minutes

LONDON, May 5 —(CP)—Long-range Royal Air Force bombers struck in force last night at Stuttgart, a major manufacturing city of southwest Germany, the Skoda Armament Works at Pilsen in Nazi-occupied Czecho-Slovakia and the docks of Nantes on missions which cost three planes, the air ministry announced today.

A detachment of Stirlings, heavy four-motored craft was assigned the 1,400-mile round trip to attack the Skoda Works, which were blasted and fired by British airmen on a previous visit last Nov. 20.

The air ministry communique gave no details of the indicated results of the new raids.

"Aircraft of the fighter command attacked enemy air fields in France," it said. "Coastal command aircraft attacked shipping off the coast of Holland and Norway and bombed the Mandal (Norway) airdrome."

British long-range guns, apparently shelling a Nazi convoy in Dover Strait or French shore objectives, fired spasmodically for 1½ hours early today. Their flashes illuminated the English coast. R.A.F. planes, perhaps on reconnaissance, were heard cross the Channel at the same time.

The fresh aerial blow at Germany was another in a new series started Sunday night after weather conditions had restricted bombing operations for 72 hours.

An Important City

Stuttgart is an important manufacturing city of about 500,000 population in southwestern Germany which contributes machinery, electrical equipment and textiles to the Nazi war machine. The modern capital of Wuerrtemberg, it lies near the Neckar river, a tributary of the Rhine.

An authoritative statement on the attack said:

"The town is the heart of the industrial district containing the headquarters of concerns such as Bosch, the leading specialists in electrical equipment, especially equipment for internal combustion engines; Daimler and Benz, who make air engines, heavy military lorries engines for tanks; and Hirth, who make air engines and other

Transients Tell Cadi They'll Do Better

Two well-known transients, Thomas Gormon and John "Gold Tooth" O'Brien faced vagrancy charges in police court this morning and both entered a plea of guilty. Gormon asked for a chance to "walk out of town," pleading that he had been merely passing through Peterborough yesterday when he was arrested.

"You have been here a lot," Magistrate Langley remarked. "You had better get a job when you get out," he added as he sentenced Gormon to seven days in jail.

"I am going to get a job and settle down," O'Brien declared as he asked the court for the same treatment as had been accorded his companion.

"That will be a relief to me," said Magistrate Langley.

"And to me, too," commented the accused.

O'Brien did not fare so well as the other transient. Magistrate Langley sentenced him to ten days in jail, remarking that in that way the two men would not be released on the same day.

Western Powers Seeking Trade Set Kettle Boiling In Far East

PORT HOPE, May 5.—(ENS)—At the regular monthly meeting of the I.O.D.E. Colonel Arthur William's Chapter last Friday night a most interesting address was given by Mrs. C. B. Kelly on China. Mrs. Kelly, who has spent fourteen years in China, gave a most instructive address on "The background of this present conflict between China and Japan," going back to the beginning of the 19th century when the self-governing states of the Orient were faced with two choices, first to adopt western forms of organization or secondly to accept some form of western domination.

Mrs. Kelly went on to point out that one country only, Japan, proved to be so apt a pupil of the western nations that she not only maintained her own independence, but went on to challenge her teachers at their own game. China, the greatest of oriental states is still engaged in the struggle for her independence, striving to create a modern nation out of an ancient civilization.

Japan choose the first alternative at once, adopting the western forms of organization with enthusiasm and has used her head start thus gained in the 19th century to establish her supremacy in the Far East in the 20th century. China did so very slowly and with reluctance.

Japan at the beginning of the 19th century was a feudal state with the power divided among different clans. The central government was in the hands of the Shogun (meaning general) who was chief of the most powerful clan. The Imperial dynasty was almost unnoticed and without power.

Same Queer Laws

Under the shogunate Japan had adopted a policy of self seclusion and for 200 years had remained in complete and voluntary isolation. Foreign trade was forbidden, adoption of Christianity or other alien religion was cruelly punished, and any citizen who tried to leave the islands was beheaded. In case this was not enough it was forbidden to build ships large enough to cross any seas. But in the 1853 Commodore Perry of the United States navy entered Japanese waters with a fleet of four ships. Japan's confidence in being able to keep up her isolation was shaken and through some slight measures of defence were taken they only showed how impossible it would be to resist. Perry returned the next year with ten ships and Japan decided to yield and sign a treaty with the United States granting special privileges of trade. In the next few years Russia, Holland and Britain demanded and obtained similar treaties.

Incidents occurred of which the western powers took advantage. At this time an Englishman was killed in Japan and the British sent in a squadron to bombard the capital of the shogun who had caused the death and after a little of this treatment the Japs, who are an intelligent people, realized resistance was useless. The put up with temporary humiliation and set to work to copy the methods and imitate the manners of the western powers with remarkable energy.

A New Era

The shogun, discredited, crumbled and fell, to be replaced in theory by a restoration of Imperial power, but in fact by the rule of other more forward-looking clans, the military party of today.

So quickly did the Japanese learn that in a few years they were able to apply the methods of the west to their neighbors in the East. In 1874 Japan sent an expedition to Formosa which belonged to the Chinese Empire. In 1894 she fought and defeated the Chinese Empire acquiring Formosa outright and establishing the so-called independence of Korea, though Korea did not really become a part of the Japanese Empire till 1910. Due to pressure by Russia, Germany, and France, she had to give up other holdings on the mainland of Asia, but as a consolation the British recognized Japan's precocity and signed the Anglo-Japanese treaty guaranteeing the independence and integrity of China, which both of them had already violated. To prove that she was now one of the great powers Japan fought and defeated Czarist Russia in 1905, a war in which she would not have been victorious without the aids of the treaty with Britain. As a result of this Russian war Japan acquired Russian rights in Manchuria but was forced to give up some of them by the western powers. The same thing happened after the war of 1914-18 when the Japs fought on the side of the Allies. Having helped to drive the Germans out of the Chinese province of Shantung, Japanese naturally expected to take their place. The Germans ceded their territory to Japan but at the Washington conference the Allies pressed her to restore it to China. Mrs. Kelly quoted Bertrand Russell saying: "It is unfortunate that the Japanese should have adopted our faults and kept their own."

Hard To Change

For China the realization of the need for change was far harder than for Japan. Chinese civilization is old and highly developed, while Japan is more recent and largely derived from that of China. To herself China seemed impregnable being shut in on the west by the mountains of Tibet and Mongolia and on the East by the Pacific. Twice China had been conquered, first by the Mongols and then by the Manchus who had both come in through the gap in her northern mountain walls, but these conquerors had been absorbed and forgotten and there was no northern power left which the great wall would not keep out. China had not sought isolation like Japan, but contacts were tacitly permitted rather than sought. In 1793 a British ambassador arived at the Imperial court in Peking seeking trade facilities and the establishment of diplomatic relations. The request was refused though the trade at Canton in tea, silk and porcelain was allowed to continue. In 1840 Britain again demanded that China admit her opium trade and when China refused went to war over it. As a result China lost the island of Hong Hong and opened five port cities to British trade. Other powers were not slow to follow this example and in 1856 the British and French joined in another war against China and gained access to the Yangtse River valley and seven more ports. The French took Annan and the British Burma, both formerly a part of China and so the wars went on.

Thin Edge Of Wedge

Now China's position was such that in all her chief cities foreign powers had their concessions and settlements outside Chinese control.

Since 1928 China has gradually gained control of her own finances, though customs are still partly managed by foreigners, chiefly British.

Without foreign capital China's reconstruction would have been impossible but it should not be forgotten that China had no choice in the matter. She was forced to open her ports to foreign trade. Some Chinese have profited by this, but the bulk of the people are no better off than they were in the days when the British ambassador came to the court of Chien Loung in 1793.

As a result of the pressure for concession, territorial acquisitions and the entry of foreign goods, anti-foreign feeling grew rapidly through the country and came to a head with the Boxer Rebellion in 1900. The Boxer rebellion was really the beginning of the Chinese national spirit which is now praised when it is directed against the Japanese. It began as an anti-German movement in the province of Shantung, but the Germans had not done anything that the other powers were not guilty of. The Boxer rebellion was a dismal failure but the more intelligent Chinese learned from these events that only a revolution could save China from complete control by foreign powers. They realized that their old form of government was no longer fit to act in a modern world, just as contact with the west had withered the shoguna in Japan so in China it proved the end of the Nanchu dynasty and the first revolution broke out in 1911 and was a national movement, it was not successful in all its arms and the second revolution broke out in 1926-27 and is still going on today. War came to strengthen the revolution and the conflict with Japan has done a great deal to weld China into a unified nation.

Mrs. Kelly told the story at this time of Chiang Kai Shek, the man who since 1927 has been the acknowledged leader of the nation. It was also stated that Dr. Kung, the great finance minister who represented China in London at the coronation in 1937, T. V. Soong and the other members of the cabinet are all Christians while only one in every hundred of China's population is a Christian.

Commando Unit Leads British In Madagascar

By DREW MIDDLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 5 —(AP))—Warwise British Commandos, splashing through the shallows of Madagascar's Courier Bay, led a British occupation force onto France's vital Indian Ocean base in face of mild opposition, it was disclosed today.

The British expedition appeared to be heading for the island's naval port of Diego Suarez, 10 miles across the isthmus from Courier Bay.

Vichy French forces were said to be commanded by a General Guillement a former artillery officer, and the impression in London was that their resistance would be brief.

A military commentator, who said the landing occurred about 3 a.m., British double summer time (9 p.m. Monday, EDT) said the special service troops mentioned in a joint Admiralty-war office communique were Commandos specially trained for landing operations.

Their commander, Maj.-Gen. R. G. Sturges, of the Royal Marines, is experienced in operations of this type. He fought with a naval division at Gallipoli in the first Great War.

Air Guard For Attackers

Rear-Admiral Edward Syfret, a South African by birth, commanded the naval force off the island which provided air coverage for the landing forces on the small mangrove-bordered bay at the northeastern tip of huge Madagascar.

Thus, it was exclusively a British operation and one military commentator emphasized that there were neither Free French, American nor South African troops in the landing forces.

The bold attack in the cool African dawn signalled the end of Allied attempts to win Vichy from German influence, it was believed generally in diplomatic quarters.

The United Nations' position in the Indian Ocean was viewed as "greatly improved" by the landing, particularly if Axis reports that the powerful new United States battleships Washington and North Carolina are operating in those waters prove true, they declared.

A Foreign Office commentator declined to speculate on the future administration of Madagascar, explaining that the undertaking "still is very much in the operational stage would have been pretty nice cracking him down."

"My gunner and I were alone on patrol and neither of us saw the Hess plane at all, unfortunately. The station kept giving us radio directions, but he went into a cloud and then through the balloons.'

Cuddie waited for the Nazi to come out of the cloud. Hess didn't. And the next thing Cuddie heard was an order to return to base "because your bandit has crashed."

If such a thing happened again there wouldn't be the same speed problem for the Regina flier to contend with. He is flying a twin-engine Beaufighter now instead of a Defiant and few German aircraft if any, can trim a "Beau."

A.R.P. Work Is Outlined By Lt.-Col. Sloan

A general explanation of A.R.P. work, as an organ for civil defense only, and quite apart from the militia, was given by Lt.-Col. M. R. Sloan last night at a largely attended meeting, presided over by Judge Sheldon Smoke.

The heads of the different services have been chosen with a view to life-long experience. Those in positions of authority are carrying on the same job in every day life, Lt.-Col. Sloan explained.

A.R.P. has five main objects:

To create a volunteer civilian organization to meet emergencies.

To protect life and property from every form of attack.

To assist civil power by cooperating with all law-enforcement agencies.

To combat subversive activities.

To instruct the civilian population in emergency services.

The country is divided into three defense sectors, A, B, and C, for A.R.P. work. They are arranged in the order of their greatest danger, so that the east and west coasts fall into A category, while Peterborough is in C. It was explained that there may be a shortage of supplies here, since everything possible is shipped to the points where it is most needed.

There are several distinct services which are all co-ordinated in what is called the control centre. Calls come to this one centre so that those in charge may have a comprehensive grasp of the whole situation asd not just one district. In Peterborough this central place will be in charge of Arthur Menzies. He is reseponsible for giving the alarm after the warning is received in Toronto.

A definite set of signals is used, necessarily brief, because of the need for speed. "A.R.P. Yellow" means that an unidentified plane has been sighted heading this way. "A.R.P. red" warns of imminent danger and that all services must be notified. "A.R.P. green" is the all clear signal. The public warnings will be given by factory whistles in short blasts. The all clear signal will be given by long blasts.

Duty of Wardens

The wardens, "the eyes and ears of the A.R.P." perform one of the most valuable tasks. They patrol the streets, calm people, check on the blackout, call out all services, and give assistance wherever needed. They are the nerve centre of the whole set-up Lt.-Col. Sloan said.

The medical service has five classifications. They are: Mobile first aid parties which go to the the scene of the damage. First aid posts usually in schools with decontamination rooms; casualty clearing stations; base hospitals, which are the regular hospital and where the more serious cases are sent.

The transportation division uses light car and buses for evacuation, medical work, fire, and wardens. As yet in Peterborough there has been little response for the appeal of trucks and cars.

The Public Utility Services consist of rescue parties which dig out the ruins and give first aid, demolitions gangs for clearing and repairing roads, and the decontamination squads which clean up after a gas attack.

Welfare Division

Two new groups have just been organized recently. There is the welfare division whose job is to find homes for sheltering and feeding people. There is also the messenger service. This is made up of boys 16 or over with bicycles. Sixteen is the age limit so that the boys will come under the the compensation laws. There has been only a meagre response to this appeal too.

Only those registered in A.R.P. work receive compensation if they are hurt. Those registered will also receive a government fire insurance amounting to about $3000 and up to about $600 for furniture if they if they are burned out.

The second speaker, D. R. MacGregor, a member of the Utilities decontamination unit, who lectured on gases, was introduced by D. J. Emery.

There are three main types of gases used, harassing, non persistent and persistent," Mr. MacGregor said.

Harassing gas is usually tear gas. It is irritating but leaves no permanent casualties. Non persistent gases irritate the nose, throat and lungs. The gas settles close to the ground and it is necessary to wear a respirator, but there is no danger of burns. "You should never go into a basement during this type of attack because that is where the gas will settle," he said.

"Persistent gases are usually in the form of a liquid and sprayed from planes. The liquid evaporates and gives off gas, such as mustard gas. This will burn in liquid, vapour, or solid form. It is very dangerous. After such an attack, scrub everything exposed thoroughly with soap and water, because it may not begin to burn for hours.

"Enemy success depends on our unpreparedness. The enemy is far more liable to strike out at an inland factory town than at a well-defended coastal point," Mr. MacGregor concluded.

Operation For Hepburn

TORONTO, May 5.—(CP).—Premier Mitchell Hepburn underwent an operation in Wellesley Hospital here to-day for removal of tonsil roots reported to be causing an arthritic condition. His condition was reported favorable.

Housing Project Leases City Property

Lease to Wartime Housing Limited of the city's property west of Park Street Baptist Church as the site of thirty temporary houses at an annual rent of $250, received the assent of the council at its meeting last night.

The federal government's subsidiary company, which was organized for the purpose of providing accommodation for workers in munitions plants, proposed as the term of the lease—"the duration of the war and a reasonable time thereafter", but the council, in its motion by Alderman Glover, seconded by Alderman Cotton, inserted a time restriction to six months after the end of the war. A similar clause was applied to the original agreement relating to the use of Burnham's Point property.

Wartime Housing is about to embark on its No. 5 project in Peterborough, construction of another 250 houses, and informed the council that the choice of locations is becoming difficult. They suggested a nominal rental of the Park street property, which has been used by the city for wood storage, the nominal charge of one dollar a year, or alternatively they proposed purchase at $3,000, virtually on the basis of $100 for each of the projected thirty house lots.

The company closed its letter by expressing appreciation of the cooperation it had received in Peterborough and their desire to negotiate for new locations on a fair basis.

Avoid Service Costs

The company's experience has directed their present plans to the avoidance of acquiring properties which they have to develop by laying sewers and water mains, streets and sidewalks, and setting up power lines. They prefer to build on established streets if the land is available. At a recent committee meeting reference was made to individual houses on lots owned by the city, and the council's attitude was that they might consider proposal providing the houses were constructed on permanent foundations with basements.

The first step decided last night regarding the Park street acres was retention of possession by the city.

"I would want to hold the property," Mayor Hamilton remarked, and Alderman Glover said: "The city bought it for a factory site some day. I would look at it from that standpoint rather than any other."

"Houses are urgently needed, and the company will start building at once," Mayor Hamilton stated.

Argue Lease Charge

Alderman Glover suggested lease of the property on the understanding that the company would do all the work of putting in sewer and water mains, sidewalks, and doing whatever road work is necessary. He mentioned as rental $100 a year. Alderman Bradburn said the charge should be $300.

Alderman Glover moved for $200 and Alderman Mark seconded that motion. In amendment, Aldermen Bradburn and Curtis proposed that the amount be $300.

"We ought to remember that there is a war on, and these houses are needed for people who are directly connected with war production," said Alderman Sands. "It is small potatoes to talk about $100 difference. If Hitler came here he wouldn't give you anything."

"Peterborough citizens have got off lightly in regard to war expenditure," Alderman Sullivan remarked, adding that he was in favor of the $200 rental, showing Wartime Housing and the general public that "Peterborough is behind anything like that."

"We've given Wartime Housing fine backing since they came in here," Alderman Swanston declared. "We've showed that already and it has cost us plenty."

Alderman Glover asked Alderman Swanston what he referred to in regard to "costing us plenty."

"We're building the west end sewer, that's one thing," Alderman Swanston replied.

"And Wartime Housing are paying half that cost," Alderman Glover commented.

"But, we wouldn't have started it if the company hadn't asked for it," Alderman Swanston said.

Mayor Hamilton interjected the remark that eventually the city would have had to build the sewer.

"We are supplying fire and police protection," Alderman Bradburn pointed out. "It seems to me that what they are paying us does not compare with what other cities are getting for the services we are rendering."

"We are two men less in fire protection," Alderman Glover said.

Alderman Curtis asked whether the charge of $30 a month for Wartime houses was helping win the war.

"A lot of people who have houses to rent don't find it so easy to get $30," Alderman Bradburn said.

"Split the Difference"

Alderman Dutton suggested a compromise at $250 a year for the Park street property, and Alderman Glover changed his motion to that sum. Alderman Cotton was the seconder, and it carried. Wartime Housing are to supply roads, sidewalks, sewers and watermain, and also to pay the cost of removing the wood that is piled at one side of the property.

Alderman Curtis enquired whether the company could use the city lots between Rink and Townsend streets where the lacrosse "box" was built.

Mayor Hamilton asked H. J. McCannan, who was present in regard to Douglas avenue sidewalks, what he thought of that location.

"The most of it was filled in with sawdust," the former alderman replied. "The pond used to extend over close to Allin's ice house. I doubt whether that would be a satisfactory place."

"It wouldn't heave from frost any more than the clay up on Park Hill road," said Alderman Curtis.

It was understood that the thirty lots mentioned by Wartime Housing comprise part of the additional 250-house project.

raced toward the naval base of Diego Suarez, forestalling seizure of that vital Indian Ocean outpost by the Japanese.

Commandos, marines and regular infantry landed at Courier Bay and under aerial cover started pushing 10 miles across the island's northern isthmus, to Diego Suarez, one of the world's finest harbors.

As the occupation force moved in on the Vichy French colony, informed London sources declared there was "a possibility the Japanese may take the boldest course and strike directly at Madagascar."

In view of the swift British action, however, they thought the Japanese, who are believed to have a powerful battle squadron on the move somewhere in the Indian Ocean, would seek first to obtain bases on the British islands of Ceylon or Mauritius. The Allied naval position in those waters remained obscure.

Informed quarters agreed that the United Nations had "won the first trick" in the Indian Ocean by the British landing on Madagascar at dawn, but there was wide speculation on the possibility of Axis attack.

For Wednesday, May 6

A day of dramatic and breath-taking accomplishments and adventures may make this one long to be remembered for its sudden, unpredictable and revolutionary denouements. While this may be spectacular and radical yet there may be solid foundations to put the achievements and good fortune on a sound and enduring basis. A solidifying as well as unforeseen and surprising turn, of events may bring co-operation and friendly approval from those in power, in large institutions, political, fraternal and private bodies.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of outstanding adventures and experiences, bringing surprising and dramatic events into the business, social, cultural and romantic life, probably affecting the future to a rather revolutionary extent. However, the sensational and unpredictable should have a firm and enduring basis, with the approval and support of those in influential positions. Seek these but be vigilant to treachery.

A child born on this day should be endowed with exceptional talents and versatility, having sound and practical capabilities as well as scientific, creative and romantic vision.

Drunken Driver Is Given Ten Days

Ten days' imprisonment was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on Dennis O'Donaghue after the 55 year old Ennismore farmer and rural mail contractor had pleaded guilty to a charge of drunken driving.

Magistrate Langley cancelled the accused's driving permit for three months and issued orders to the police that O'Donaghue's car was to be impounded for the same period Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., told the court that O'Donaghue had been driving his car on Charlotte street and at the corner of Louis street the vehicle had collided with a boy on a bicycle, knocking the rider off. O'Donaghue had continued on his course, turning north on Aylmer street and near the corner of Murray street his machine had crashed into a parked car, doing $90 damage.

NewAgeClass Before House Soon

No Decision As Yet On Single Men Over 30, Married Under

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 5—(CP).—Defence Minister Ralston told the House of Commons last night the question as to what age classes will be called when the clases now liable for compulsory military service are exhausted will be discussed oon.

He said no decision has yet been made as to what classes will be called, whether singe men of more than 30 years of age or married men less than 30.

At present single men and widowers without children between the ages of 21 and 30 are liable to compulsory call.)

"Generally speaking what we are planning for is to train 15,000 or more men per month—that is 180,000 per year," said the Minister. "That is, those who are general service men and those called up under the National Resources Mobilization Act."

Col. Ralston's statement came as he was questioned further on army matter by private members while the House was in committee on war appropriation bill resolution.

That discussion continues today when the House may hear the result of the service vote which will round out the country's answer on last week's manpower plebiscite. The large civilian "yes" majority in the plebiscite freed the government from restrictions on its methods of raising men for military service anyhere.

Last night the House unanimously voted to reconstitute the committee on the defence of Canada regulations. Each session since the war started a committee has reviewed the regulations under which people are interned and various peacetime rights and privileges are abridged.

A short debate on setting up the committee gave Justice Minister St. Laurent his first occasion for speaking since his election to Parliament in February.

Quota Being Met.

Replying to questions from Mr. Hanson and from George White (Con. Hastings-Peterborougr) Col. Ralston said a quota of reinforcements for the different branches of the army overseas had been set, based on anticipated needs. He said that quota is being met.

Mr. White also suggested that

Red Cross Votes $300 To Kinmount

A contribution of $300 for the Kinmount Relief Fund has been made by the Peterborough branch of the Red Cross Society, Alderman Glover informed the council Monday night.

Alderman Bradburn enquired about some assistance from the Community Chest Fund. Mayor Hamilton said that this local fund was collected for specific objectives, and it should be confined to them.

Alderman Sullivan said he had heard that at least ten families in the fire swept village were in great need of help.

The council was sympathetic to the northern neighbors, but the members felt that they should defer action until they received definite information of what the community required.

Tax Rate Down 2.5 Mills In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, May 5 (ENS) —A two and a half mill reduction in the tax rate was the good news coming from the council meeting here Monday afternoon when chairman of the Finance Committee Reeve C. H. Calver brought in his estimates following a meeting of that committee.

In ten years the rate has been lowered 9 mills. In presenting his report, placing the basic rate at 45 mills less a 1 mill Government subsidy making the net rate 44, the finance chairman announced it was "going to take very careful management if we are to keep within this budget."

Chief contributing factors to the lowered rate were debenture payments. The last debenture on the town-owned power plant ($870) and two sewer projects (Sebastopol and Second streets) on which citizens have been paying for a number of years amounting in all to about $3,000, were cleaned off the slate. In addition to this High School costs have come down $2,000 to $5,520; Road and Bridge Chairman MacMillan will spend only $4,500 or $300 less than last year; direct relief costs have been sliced in half to $400 and the county levy is down $300 to $8,300. In all this represented a saving of well over $6,000. Only increased expenditure was for the collection of garbage and this made last August when council tacked an extra $75 on the collector's fee.

But to offset at least part of the bloom from this rosy picture was the fact that receipts likewise had dwindled by upwards of $5,000. The $2,300 balance carried over in 1941 had shrunk to a mere $86.83 and the Water and Light Commission grant had been reduced from $10,000 to $8,000. Only $100 worth of town property was sold as compared to $700 from this same source in the preceding fiscal year, while the county's rebate shrank from nearly $2,000 to $975. (In 1941 the county paid two years grants together.)

How Rate Struck

To arrive at the 45 mill rate the committee broke it up as follows: for town purposes $12,397.60 or 8.81 mills; High School debentures $8,467.92 or 6 mills High School trustees $5,518.26, or 3.91 mills; Public School trustees. $12,141.86 or 9.69 mills; (Separate School $1,533.81); county rate, $8,302.65 or 5.90 mills; town debentures, $13,461.24 or 9.58 mills; relief, $436.23 or .31 mills; hospitalization, sanatoria and local Board of Health, $1,125.77 or .80 mills.

Apparently believing the only way to get council to spend any money was to keep after them Charles Bedford addressed the members for the fifth time regarding a sidewalk which he feels is a necessity to front his residence on Elmore street. He began as he had done before by asking what consideration they planned to give his request and was told the budget for roads and bridges had been cut by $500, thereby dimming any prospects of a new walk for the present at least.

Road and Bridge Chairman MacMillan re-affirmed his belief that the walk would cost about $250 and despite Mr. Bedford's protestation 'there's nothing needed more in that end of the town' he got nothing more than the promise that the work would be done if the budget in late summer would permit it. The Deputy Reeve pointed out considable work in the way of sidewalk repairs would have to be done in the centre of the town during the summer but that Mr. Bedford's request would be given consideration as soon as possible.

The Deputy Reeve reported he had investigated complaints regarding stoppages in sewers on several streets following the discussion of the last meeting. He said he had taken up question of water draining into the cellar of a propert at the corner of Bridge and Ranney Streets with the town solicitor who intimated the town was responsible and should open a drain to carry the spring flood through the old sheds formerly owned by the Presbyterian Church.

Proof that farmers are less interested in doing work for the corporation was found in the road and bridge chairman's report on road repairs which will be started in the near future. "I find it very difficult to get men with teams," the chairman reported. Answer to the problem of repairing roads was given by Reeve Calver, who said he had taken the question uu with Seymour Council and the town will be able to rent their road maintainer to supplement the corporation owned steam roller.

Councillor O'Sullivan was under the impression that use of the grader would eliminate need for the roller, but Deputy-Reeve MacMillan quickly put his mind at rest on this score claiming both machines were needed and in addition he felt the township grader would do the work more economically.

On motion of Councillor Anderson and Battisby the matter of engaging the grader was left with the Road and Bridge committee.

Chairman of Police, Councillor Masson told council a tractor with lugs had torn up a portion of road on Bridge street and although the matter had been left with the police to take action he did not know whether this had been done. He made a motion that in future the Chief of Police should bring in a report at every regular meeting of council as was done by the tax collector and relief officer. He felt a personal report from the officer would lend for greater co-operation in this department.

Councillor Fowlds, chairman of the Industrial Committee explained that he had been in communication with the Peterborough Examiner with regard to placing an advertisement in the Vacation Edition and suggested the town should follow the same plan as adopted last year of taking a $75.00 ad. This was put to a vote and carried with the Mayor's assurance that the Water and Light Commission would again contribute one-half the cost. Councillor Fowlds was also authorized to order 150 copies of the edition and members were of the opinion the suggestion put forth by Councillor Anderson to send copies to boys overseas might be a good one.

Under the heading of new business a motion was passed authorizing the clerk to write letters of sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Atkinson, whose son, Flt. Sgt. D. Mac. Atkinson, was this town's first casualty of the war and to Mrs. A. H. McKeel on the death of her husband, who was a former member of council.

The perennial question of dogs running at large and destroying gardens was brought up by the Mayor, who said he had already received several complaints. Most outspoken supporters of a strong dog by-law were Deputy Reeve MacMillan and Councillor O'Sullivan.

"There is no question but that there are too many dogs in this town," the deputy reeve said, and Councillor O'Sullivan added "There will soon be more dogs than people. It's the only town I know of that dogs are not tied up."

Recalling the effort to appease both dog owners and gardeners last year, Mayor Long said that the newspaper appeal for cooperation by keeping dogs tied during the early gardening season "only lasted about a week"

"It's no laughing matter," continued Councillor O'Sullivan, "when a lady takes great pains in planting a garden and the dogs come in and tear it up." He made a motion that the dogs be tied up for three months beginning May 5th, but lost it when the dog loving Reeve made an amendment that citizens be asked to cooperate by keeping them from running at large during the next three months. Councillor Mason seconded the amendment and O'Sullivan and MacMillan were the only ones to vote in favor of the motion.

At the opening of the meeting the Mayor rose to pay verbal tribute to the late A. H. McKeel who he characterized as a prominent and highly respected citizen who had passed away. "He held office during one of the most important phases of the town's development (building of the town power plant) and was an honest and hard working man." At the Mayor's suggestion council rose for a minute's silence in Mr. McKeel's honor.

Following passage of the necessary by-laws fixing the assessment and tax rate for 1942 the accounts were passed and this provoked a comment from the Reeve when he came to an item covering expenses in connection with the I.O.D.E. savage campaign. He revealed the cost for one month's collection (borne by the corporation) had been $34.00.

"This will amount to nearly one-half mill taxes before the year is over," he said, pointing out that such a contribution by the town was contrary to the War Charities Act.

Deputy Reeve MacMillan, much to the relief of the rest of council, said he believed it was the understanding of the I.O.D.E. that they should carry the cost themselves now that the collecting was organized.

Slick Paint Job On License Plate Costs $10

TWEED, May 5. — (ENS). — It is not a good practice to manufacture your own Ontario motor license plates, even if you are unfortunate enough to lose a plate. Wesley Farrell, Moira farmer, lost the front plate from his motor car, repainted his last year's license plate, and when apprehended driving his car with the home-made plate, it resulted in police action. Monday before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, Mr. Farrell was assessed $10 and costs after pleading guilty to using a license plate that was not purchased from the Ontario Motor Vehicle Department for the current year.

"That's as slick a paint job as one could wish for," remarked Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., as he displayed the repainted license plate before His Worship in court.

According to Chief Kidd, who also admired the workmanship, Mr. Farrell had merely taken his 1941 license plate, numbered 6-W-189, and repainted it orange with black figures and official governmental trimming, to read 1-N-596, to correspond with his 1942 plate, which was lost.

Cobourg Council Honors Memory Of Men Who Died In Service

COBOURG, May 5—(ENS).—Cobourg town council inaugurated a custom Monday night to hold a brief period of silence at the opening of each meeting in memory of Cobourg men who have died on active service. This custom is in effect in the Cobourg Legion.

Mayor Burnet commented on the recent death of Corporal Harry McGuire, R.C.A.F., of Cobourg.

"There will be more of these as time goes on. I feel we could well adopt the custom of the Legion by having a moment of silence at the opening of each council meeting in memory of our departed men in the service," stated the Mayor.

Council accordingly stood for a period of silence with bowed heads.

Mrs. Clara Delany addressed the council briefly in connection with the Northumberland County Music Festival asking for a grant of $25. The request was granted.

A letter from Jock Heenan, R.C.A.F., was received, thanking the council for his writing case. A similar letter was also received from W. F. Hill, R.C.A.F.

Mrs. W. Erskine, Buchanan street, wrote to inform the council that she had communicated with the town foreman in connection with a ditch from which the water was backing up into her cellar. She claimed that she had received no action.

Committee accounts passed were as follows: Highways and streets, $387.89; public buildings and printing, $95.13; police, $13.36; fire, water and light, $23.25; market, $14.50; health and sanitation, $11.00; finance and harbour, $263.63; direct relief, $118.75.

Wrecker's License

Council discussed the application of a resident for a wrecker's license and yard, the mayor stating that the department was always cautious in granting such applications. The Mayor suggested tht the council look into the matter as to whether it would constitute an eye-sore to adjoining properties. On motion council decided to look the ground over and to deal with it at the next meeting.

Councillor James Rollings moved that a letter of condolence be sent to the family of the late Corporal McGuire. The motion was seconded by Councillor E. Norton.

Mayor Burnet commented on the passing of Miss Louise Daintry, the last of an old Cobourg family.

ST CATHARINES, May 4—(CP). —Regis (Pep) Kelly, formerly of Toronto Maple Leafs of the N.H.L., is now a resident of St. Catharines and a candidate for senior O.H.A. competition next season with St. Kitts Saints. Kelly first attained hockey prominence with Newmarket and St. Michael's College Majors, when they won the Memorial Cup. The North Bay native was immediately signed with Leafs, here he right-winged on various lines until sold to Chicago Blackhawks, then to New York Americans, and a year ago to Springfield Indians of the minor pros. Midway in last season he was traded to Tiny Thompson's Buffalo Bisons, where he finished out the term. Kelly is now desirous of becoming established permanently and will apply for his amateur reinstatement to the C.A.H.A., if waivers can be secured from other clubs in President Podoloff's ice loop. He believes that the handwriting is on the wall for entry of Canadian players into United States for the duration and has become associated with one of St. Catharines largest industries in war munition work.

Campaign headquarters will be set up and the committee in charge is composed of W. S. Edwards, chairman; Lester Caughey, and J. W. Maize. The canvass will be well under way by May 15 and will be continued until June 1.

Attendance during April at the Red Cross work room here, fell off slightly, the report for the month reveals, and this is held due to the pressure of spring cleaning. Shipments made during the month were 30 pairs of sea stockings, 150 pairs of socks, 75 scarves, 30 aero caps, 15 pairs mitts, five pairs of gloves, five ribbed helmets, 20 turtle-neck sweaters, 55 large quilts, 7 crib quilts, 12 surgeon's gowns, 20 surgeon's caps, 10 eiderdowns, 98 refugee articles, 16 layettes—total, 738 articles.

Expenditures during the month totalled $294.61. For May a quota of $400 was recommended. Opening of the work rooms a half-hour later, at 1.30 instead of at 1.00 p.m. was also recommended by the work room committee.

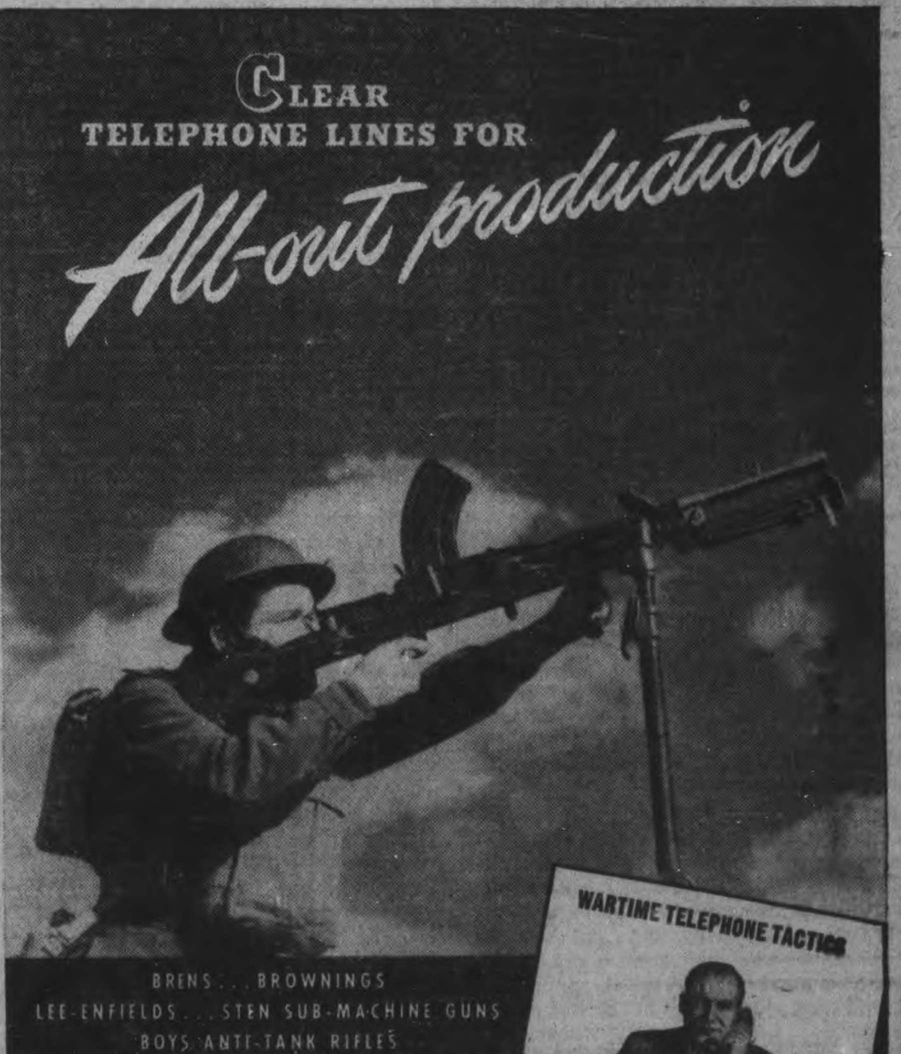
Blended and packed in Canada



When war broke, Canada had no small-arms industry. Today she is making all these modern weapons for herself and her allies. Her Bren plant, producing several thousand guns a month, ranks as one of the largest small-arms factories in the world.

The telephone is a day-and-night necessity to the men who created this industry and now must set even new production records, month after month. Their calls must go through. Lines must be available to handle them promptly.

And they can be, provided everyone is efficient and unselfish in his use of existing telephone facilities. Your telephone is part of an extensive wartime communications system. Are you observing "Wartime Telephone Tactics"?

WARTIME TELEPHONE TACTICS

1. BE SURE you have the right number... consult the directory.
2. SPEAK distinctly, directly into the mouthpiece.
3. BE BRIEF. Clear your line for the next call.
4. ANSWER promptly when the bell rings.
5. USE OFF-PEAK hours for Long Distance calls: before 9.30 a.m., 1-2 p.m., 5-7 p.m., after 9 p.m.

These things may look trifling, but on 6,500,000 daily telephone calls, they are very important.

Reasons For Rationing

Many people have strange ideas about rationing. They seem to think that it is a temporary expedient and that it will be abandoned some time fairly soon when the Government has been able to set its industrial house in order. They are wrong. The things which are rationed now will continue to be rationed until the war is over, and from time to time new articles may be added to the rationed list.

Articles are not necessarily rationed because they are scarce; they are much more likely to be rationed because something else is scarce. Sugar is a case in point. There is plenty of sugar available and no one will go without who really needs it. But most civilians do not really need it, and the Government is unwilling to risk ships to bring sugar from Cuba, or Puerto Rico or Hawaii merely in order to supply us with something that we can quite well manage without. There is no scarcity of sugar, but there is a decided scarcity of ships and the men to use them; they have other work to do, more important than that of plying between the sweet islands and our coffee cups.

Gasoline supplies another example. We shall not lose this war for lack of gasoline; the Americas have more petroleum than they can use in hundreds of years. But all that can be prepared is wanted for essential war work. Tankers cannot be risked in submarine-infested seas to bring us gasoline so that we may ride to work or to the movies. The railways are hauling all the gasoline they can, but not for us. We, the civilian consumers, must take a back seat while more important work is done.

We are very short of rubber now, but the time is not far distant when there will be great supplies of synthetic rubber. But not for automobile tires. That rubber is wanted for more important vehicles than the family chariot. We must be patient, and either stay at home or walk.

The day is a long way off when anyone in this country will lack any essential of living, but the day is at hand when we must all give up the trimmings of life. Some of these have become so dear to us that we no longer see them as trimmings, but that is what they are. We can and we must do without them. The lives of men are not to be risked in order that we may live easily in wartime; valuable shipping and railway space must be used in the nation's most important task, which is winning the war.

Let those who are wide-eyed and wondering about rationing calm themselves; it will be with us until we have peace, and it will not hurt a bit.

Wendell Willkie Says His Say

Isolationism is having a bad time in the U.S., but no one can say that it is dead yet. It is in many ways a pleasant doctrine, solving many problems and shelving others until they can no longer be ignored; isolationism might revive suddenly, and if it did the world would suffer before the U.S. did.

But the enemies of isolationism are fighting hard, and have struck the monster many a telling blow. The nation which once heard, and came to believe, that it could not exist half slave and half free, is now being told that the world cannot exist half slave and half free. It is also being told that it cannot hope to exist independent of the rest of the world. A fortnight ago Wendell Willkie spoke in these words: "It will be a new idea to many Americans that the United States may in the future need help from other nations. But we do need help if our ideas of personal liberty, of justice, equality, of hope and growth and expansion, are to survive. We can keep America to ourselves, though I doubt if the America we keep to ourselves would be free. But we cannot keep freedom to ourselves. If we are to have freedom, we must share freedom."

This is the kind of talk which we have learned to expect from Mr. Willkie, whose large vision of the world rises from his large vision of his own land. On this same occasion he made another, and somewhat more controversial statement: "The day is gone when men and women, of whatever color or creed, can consider themselves the superiors of other creeds or colors." Are we to interpret this as a suggestion that, in future, the white Christian should be somewhat more humble and tolerant in his dealings with men whose racial and ethical inheritance differs from his own?

There seems no other possible construction which we can place upon Mr. Willkie's words. The idea will be unpalatable to many people, but it is one which we would all do well to ponder. The days of easy superiority are over, and we can no longer hope to take a preferred place in the sun because we have been born with a pale skin and a ready-made belief. Superiority in future must be proved and maintained by somewhat sterner methods.

An Astonishing Proposal

One of the most remarkable characteristics of the Germans as fighters is their astonishing effrontery. The London Daily Mail quotes the Berlin correspondent of the Geneva Journal as saying: "It is semi-officially stated here that Germany will call off the bombing of English towns if the R.A.F. will change its methods of bombing German cities!" What a cool proposal! Now that the R.A.F. has the power to range over occupied Europe and do heavy damage to German industry the Germans are willing to call the air-war off; they have had little success recently. They have attempted to retaliate for R.A.F. bombings with raids on unmilitary cities such as Bath, they have been badly beaten over York, and they have done some damage at Norwich; they have little stomach for the fight. And they want to save their planes and men for a possible assault on Russia; therefore they put out a feeler for an air-truce. Could a more cheeky wartime proposal be imagined?

Britain will not rise to that sort of bait. The British have taken their dose and they want to wipe out some old scores. Now that they have begun they will not stop to oblige the Germans, who wish to turn their attention to other matters.

But impertinence is a part of the childish quality of mind which the Germans reveal in wartime. History has never shown them as chivalrous in war and the Nazi regime has removed any sense of proportion which they may once have had. People who have no code of honor can never really believe that anyone else has such a thing, and the Germans (or some of them) probably believe that the British would be glad to call off the R.A.F. in order to ensure a measure of safety for themselves. The German failure to understand that Britain has cast off her mistrust and dislike for Russia may also have something to do with this fantastic proposal. It is an astounding thing that the Germans, who are so ruthless, should be so utterly unrealistic. They appear to understand everything except people.

Non-Cooperative India

A dispatch from Allahabad tells us that a working committee of the All-India Congress Party is urging the masses of India not to fight if their country is invaded by Japan. Instead they will adopt the policy of "non-violent non-cooperation" which Mohandas Ghandi recommends on these occasions. A large part of the western world will be interested in this announcement; we have heard much about passive resistance and now we may have a chance to see how it works.

Frankly, we have our doubts about the efficacy of "non-violent non-cooperation." It is a moral weapon and moral weapons are only effective when dealing with moral people. The Japanese do not recognize the same morality as the Hindus, and it is doubtful if they will feel anything but amusement when the Indian system of moral sanctions is brought against them. Japanese morality is largely a matter of opportunism; they feel that whatever is necessary to get their own way is right, and if this should involve the slaughter of hordes of non-violent non-cooperators they will shoot them down without a qualm. Passive resistance works to some extent against the British, for the British morality is a subtle combination of Christian ethics, sentimentalism and cricket-field sportsmanship. The Japs are neither Christians, sentimentalists, or sportsmen; they are hard-boiled cynical brigands, who must either win or suffer a fearful punishment.

Not all Indians are to be non-violent non-cooperators. There are 77,000,000 Moslems who have no use for any doctrine of passive resistance; theirs is a fighting faith, and some of Britain's best Indian troops are her Moslem regiments. Nor are all the Hindus convinced of the efficacy of passive resistance; to hundreds and thousands of them it seems mere nonsense.

If the Japanese attack India, which it seems quite likely that they will do, we shall probably have an exhibition of passive resistance and we shall see how it works. We predict that it will be a miserable failure. If the whole of the population adopted the scheme it might disconcert and hinder the Japanese, but if part of the population is going to fight and part to resist passively the result can be nothing but a slaughter and a mess. The Moslems, a great number of the Hindus, and the British will fight. Sir Archibald Wavell said last week: "India will be defended by a powerful air fighting force which will attack the enemy ships as they approach, and by a land striking force which will concentrate rapidly against any threatened point." The passive resisters will simply be in the way of both sides.

The idea of passive resistance is not a new one; it has been recommended often in times of stress, but only a very learned historian could tell of an occasion when it has been given a really fair trial. It is an important point in Ghandi's teaching and it appears to agree with some Hindu doctrines. During the past fifty years or so we of the west have inclined to take Hindu philosophy very seriously, often disregarding the plain facts that our way of life and our temperament demand spiritual aids which are quite impractical in India, and vice versa. Passive resistance may soon be put to the trial, under circumstances which make its success impossible, against an enemy who appears to be dead to morality as the Indians, and as the United Nations generally, understand morality. The spectacle of its failure will be a distressing one, but it may rouse the Indian people to reality, and if it does so, it will have done some good.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Extra sugar may be obtained for use at charity functions. But not when these begin at home.

Men who have had stomach ulcers may now be accepted in the U.S. Army. A man who has had ulcers wouldn't notice a war anyway.

A scientist claims that baldness is a sign of virility. In that case it is one of the few masculine characteristics which women will not attempt to appropriate for themselves.

Bernard Shaw, in a letter to the London Times, says that if he had possessed the money to buy an instrument he would have been a Hornplayer rather than an author. He has done pretty well on his own horn however.

The President of an Optimists' Club says that the raid on Pearl Harbor will some day be recognized as the greatest blessing in disguise ever to befall the U.S. Blessings seem to get better at disguising themselves every day.

When the police caught up with a Toronto bookie he tried to swallow his betting slips, but a detective recovered some of them. Probably the first time the bookie ever had to cough up before a race.

A conference to co-ordinate all Allied air-training will shortly be held at Ottawa. That is, in its way, a high compliment to the British Commonwealth Air-Training Plan, which is centred in this country.

If you should find yourself complaining because you cannot have something you want, ask yourself if your deprivation is not helping the war effort. In that way you may be able to turn your dissatisfaction into a glow of pleasure.

Man's Passion For Murders And Mysteries

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THE two sorts of fiction which sell best today are love stories and mystery stories, and the writer who can harp successfully upon one or other of these strings will never come to want. And by love stories and mystery stories I mean the real out-and-outers, where the boy meets the girl in the first chapter and marries her in the last, or where a body is found in the first chapter and the murderer hanged in the last. There are subtle variations upon these two plans which appeal to authors with fancy ideas and readers who like to use their heads, but the great body of the reading public likes its romance and its mystification neat. So strong is the passion for romance and mystery, indeed, that several publishers have begun to print tales on these favorite themes in cheap editions, and when you can get a book cheaply these days it is news.

The English publishers, Messrs. Collins, recently sent me sixteen mystery stories which they mean to sell in this country for twenty-five cents each. The books are nicely printed and are sturdy enough to stand repeated reading. Personally I am in favor of this cheap form of publication. Nowadays few of us have three dollars or more to spend on a novel and we must read something. Anyone who suggests that we might profitably re-read the classics has my support, but I gently insist that we all grow a little sick of the classics from time to time and yearn for meretricious tales of violence, calf-love, robbery and similar exciting matters. These White Circle pocket novels provide just what we want at a modest price.

THE books which I have at hand include the works of such literati as John Rhode, Ngaio Marsh, David Hume, Jefferson Farjeon and Peter Cheyney, to name a few; there is even one by the late indefatigable Edgar Wallace. As you see, the White Circle authors are English. Americans produce many fine mystery stories, particularly those of Dashiell Hammet, Ellery Queen and S. S. Van Dine, but upon the whole I prefer those by English writers. Somehow England seems the proper home of the mystery story, and American writers acknowledge this by laying the scene of some of their best work in that island. The reason is probably the same one which makes English mystery movies superior to the American variety. Mystery demands strong variations of character, and these are easier to produce in the somewhat stratified society of Britain than in the United States. Haughty noblemen, wealthy bounders, faithful servants, comic rustics, philosophical Cockneys, university-bred heroes, sweetly feminine heroines and incorruptible but stupid policemen are all easy enough to produce in England, but in the U.S. such arbitarary distinctions of type and education are apt to be resented. It is also a fact that, in England, a criminal has a difficult time escaping and may be followed anywhere in the course of a few days; in the U.S. he may vanish completely, and it is unfashionable for a detective in a novel to track his man for months at a time.

Since the writing of mystery stories emerged from the dime novel period of its history attempts have been made to supply it with a long and honorable history. Miss Carolyn Wells, for instance, who writes very good mysteries herself, has attempted to link the modern writer of shockers to the ancient Greek propounders of riddles and the Oriental tellers of tales who produced the Arabian Nights. We may permit ourselves a mild scepticism on this score. Nothing which can really be called a mystery story in the modern sense was written before Edgar Allan Poe published "The Murders in the Rue Morgue" in the thirties of the last century. His hero, Dupin, was the first of those algebraic reasoners who track down a culprit by means of close observation and a particularly happy logic; the line apparently has no end.

DUPIN was the first of these mystery story detectives, but Sherlock Holmes remains the greatest. Perhaps some of his successors have outstripped him in sheer brilliance of deduction but Holmes is not a detective alone—he is a great character. The violin-playing, cocaine-devouring, bitter genius of Baker Street holds our imagination by what he is quite as much as by what he does. Dr. Watson, too, has claims upon our affections. The fussy, not to intelligent Victorian physician, marvelling at the brilliance of his friend, is almost as dear to us as Holmes himself. These two have set a pattern for detectives and their creatures which few writers have dared to break. A detective simply must have someone stupider than himself about the place whom he can send on messages, use as a butt for sarcasm, and explain his case to, a detective without a Dr. Watson—'stooge' is the uncomplimentary vernacular term—is impossibly handicapped.

Great numbers of mystery stories are published every year, and I am content to pass most of them by. To me there is nothing more boring than a detective who captures his man by the dreary arrangement and re-arrangement of a timetable, which at last, after three hundred pages, reveals the hidden three minutes in which the crime was committed. Nor do I like stupid detectives who get their men by stolid persistence; I like a detective to be flashy and bright in the head; there should only be two clever people in a detective story—the detective and the criminal—and everyone else, including the reader, should be permitted to plumb new depths of stupidity. Reading mystery stories is no fun if you have to waste time and energy guessing who did the crime; that is the detective's job. Let him stick to it. Like most readers I am content to be amazed in the last chapter.

Monsoon Before Japan

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Until Japan discloses her plans for capitalizing on the Allied disaster in Burma, the full significance of that United Nation defeat is beyond conjecture.

There can be little question, however, that Burma will figure heavily in the scheduled Parliamentary debate in London this week. Its loss re-arms Prime Minister Churchill's critics. It makes his silence in the recent war-accounting symposium that included Hitler, Stalin and President Roosevelt all the more noteworthy.

What salvage values can be found in Burma for Allied leadership necessarily depend on what happens in Russia. That road to India and postern gate to China was obviously left exposed to what now has happened in order that Britain's growing air power might be concentrated to aid Russia by diversion attacks from the west.

There is another element in the situation, however. Monsoon weather on the Burma approaches to India and China is still to be reckoned with. The rains are too close at hand to warrant the conclusion that Tokyo even hopes to exploit the Burma victory by marching in either direction.

TRAP DEVELOPING

What seems developing is a Japanese effort to trap and destroy the British-Chinese forces west of the Lashio break-through. The Japanese have already driven northward along he Burma Road perilously close to Wangting Junction on the Yunnan-Burmese border.

Its fall would break the last road contact between Burma and China. A Japanese sweep westward to Bhamo in the Irrawaddy Valley from Wangting could place the enemy in the rear of General Stilwell's Chinese troops and also on the main British supply lines from India up the Irrawaddy.

Apprehension as to the fate of the war-worn and ill-equipped British and Chinese troops west of Lashio seems better founded than the assumption that a Japanese invasion of India or China from Burma is about to evolve. The terrain of the Burma Road, including the gorge of the Salween River, is a formidable barrier in any season. The Irrawaddy Road to India is little better for wet-weather fighting purposes.

It may be that Allied commanders are still relying upon those factors, expecting the foe to concentrate on an attempted entrapment and annihilation campaign in Burma for the few days that remain before the monsoon deluges begin.

TAUNGGYI FORCE IN PERIL

That might explain Stilwell's otherwise unexplainable move in holding on so long, even counter-attacking eastward, at Taunggyi nearly 100 miles southeast of Mandalay and midway between Japanese columns that have by-passed him on both sides to take Mandalay and Lashio. His forces at Taunggyi are in dire peril. London commentators figure their only hope of escape would be to scatter and fade away before Japanese lines close about them.

Chinese troops also are reported holding the front north of Mandalay, while the British forces are said to have shifted westward to the extreme right flank. Perhaps the Allies fear a Japanese seaborne attack on the Burma coast designed to sever coastal route connections with India behind the British lines.

There have been intimations from Washington recently, however, that the considerable Japanese naval force in the Bay of Bengal has been withdrawn for a Pacific concentration, possibly against American-Australian communication lines. There have also been Italian reports of both British and American capital warships passing into the Indian Ocean, otherwise unconfirmed.

WALES IS ANNOYED

Letter to Cardiff Mail

SIR.—The official mind of Whitehall has been ordered to pay attention to Wales! It is high time the ridiculous pose of aloofness of the English group mind to us Welsh people was rudely disturbed, and that "fine old English gentleman" be told exactly who and what he is, and what we are.

Taffy should have done it long ago and he may be thankful that he has a national newspaper so well-equipped to do the job for him. Contrast the attitude of this lofty old aristocrat to Wales, his loyal, peaceful and helpful neighbor, with the privileges he has for many years lavished on his truculent neighbor on the other side of the Irish Sea—fawned on him, sung his songs with tearful emotion ("Dear little Shamrock!"), bubbled over at his drollery, and to crown all presented him the other day with seaports of the utmost strategical importance to the nation in its hour of peril!

And how has Eire always treated him? Does anyone need to be reminded? L. G.

MEDALS FOR RATS

LORD HAW HAW, of Germany started something when he talked about the "rats of Tobruk—Germany's self-supporting prisoners of war."

The boys established something in the nature of an Order of the Rat. They made medals out of bits of shell casing and other scraps from the Debris of war and presented them to colleagues who, in the general opinion had earned them.

The metal itself is triangular and a rat is the central figure. The "ribbon" consists of a strip of copper or brass and is inscribed, "Presented by Lord Haw Haw to the Tobruk rats, 1941."

And I saw in the right hand of him that sat on the throne a book written within and on the backside, sealed with seven seals. And I beheld, and, lo, in the midst of the throne and of the four beasts, and in the midst of the elders, stood a Lamb as it had been slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the earth. And he came and took the book out of the right hand of him that sat upon the throne.

And when he had taken the book, the four beasts and four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps, and golden vials full of odours, which are the prayers of saints. And they sung a new song, saying, Thou are worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth.—Rev. v, 1, 6-10.

Rotary's Part In Post-War Days Discussed

Rotary's part in the developments of the post-war period were stressed at the regular luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club on Monday when the fourth object of Rotary, the encouragement of international goodwill, was discussed.

The program was under the direction of the Rotary Educational Committee headed by Rotarian E. L. Sackville as chairman.

Rotarian W. R. Morris began the discussion with a five-minute talk on the fourth object and then the Internaitonal Committee, represented by Rotarians D. T. Diplock, Robert Abbott, and Chairman T. J. Carley K.C., gave their opinions as to the responsibility of Rotary in the period after the war.

Explaining that the fourth object of Rotary was the development of international goodwill and peace, Rotarian W. R. Morris said that the present condition of the world left him with little to talk about. However, he said that the fourth object had been the feature of Rotary that had caused the greatest interest in the movement in Europe and that had been the impetus for the great growth in Rotary following the last war. All that Rotarians could do now, said the speaker, was to hope that in the peace that would follow "our victory" the Rotary spirit of international goodwill would prevail.

Closer Friendship.

Rotarian D. T. Diplock stressed the importance of developing a closer friendship and better understanding between the peoples of North America and those of South America and declared that while the radio, newspapers, magazines and other agencies were important, the greatest factor in bringing about better relationships was the exchange of students between North and South America and Rotary, he said, could play a great part in encouraging such an exchange.

Declaring that there were too many grandstand quarterbacks, people who criticized the efforts of others without any firm ground for such criticism, Rotarian Robert Abbott called atention to the advisability of refraining from helping the Axis cause by thoughtless speeches and unsubstantiated criticism. Rotarians, he said, could play a very important role in bringing about a better understanding between nations, if they would be careful in their remarks about other people. Here in Canada, where thousands of tourists came every year, much could be done to develop closer friendships between us and our neighbors to the south.

Rotary Ideal of Service.

Rotarian T. J. Carley, in closing the discussion, declared that the adoption of the Rotary ideal of service in the peace negotiations and in the development of the world after the war, would do much to bring about happier conditions. The speaker stressed the fact that a new social order was developing. It was clear that many of the measures that had been adopted as emergency laws during the war years would remain after the war was over. It would not be possible later on for vast fortunes to be amassed and passed on to the next generations for the succession duties would effectually take care of that. There was much to be said for individualism, nationalism and imperialism, as long as those things were kept under control and not abused he said. Lady Demands Sugar Ration For Her Poodle

WASHINGTON, May 5 —(AP)— Sugar goes back on sale in the grocery stores of the United States today after a week's suspension, but only those who register and obtain ration books can buy it from now on. The registration, conducted in elementary schools, started yesterday and will continue through Thursday.

The registration on the opening day proceeded without a serious hitch anywhere in the country, as far as reports here showed. At Shamokin, Pa., 124 teachers who had been on strike for a week returned to conduct the registration.

The general sentiment of those who signed up appeared to be that the allotment of one pound of sugar per person every two weeks for the next two months represented no serious sacrifice. The ration books contain stamps, one of which must be turned in to the grocer for each sugar purchase. The amount of sugar that can be bought with one stamp may be changed after next month, depending on the supply.

The allotment of one pound every two weeks goes for everybody, children as well as grown-ups. In Portland, Me., the father of a one-day-old boy procured a ration book for the baby just as he did for himself. However, another man there who was a prospective father was told to come back for the baby's ration book "after the event," in line with the regulations.

A tea-sipping dog will simply have to learn to get along without sugar.

A New York rationing board made this decision when a woman applied for a war ration book for her pet poodle. She said the dog had tea with sugar three times a day.

"The dog is accustomed to sugar," the woman icily replied when asked if it couldn't get along without it.

Just as icily, the board said "No!"

From New York, too, came the story of a bewildered old lady who thought she had to turn in her remaining supply of sugar to get a ration book. While officials were explaining to her that this was not required her bundle slipped from her hands and the sugar — two pounds of it — spilled all over the floor.

Hopkins Slips Up Bringing Cabbages To UK

LONDON, May 4—This is a story about cabbages and brussels sprouts, and if General George C. Marshall and Harry hopkins, read it perhaps they will understand the lack of enthusiasm with which their gift of greenstuff was received by Embassy officials when they flew here from America last month.

The General, who knows all the military answers, and Hopkins, who understands the intricacies of the lease-lend business, clearly are ignorant of the status sprouts and cabbage ossume on the English menu through the winter months, and if they come over again their friends hope they'll substitute oranges or bananas or cigarets for the vegetables.

The thought behind the gift, of course, was fine, but if Anglo-American liaison had been functioning a little better when the cabbages and sprouts were loaded aboard the general's plane at Bermuda everyone at the Embassy would have felt a lot better.

As it was everyone was in a great state of anticipation at the Embassy when it was announced that the General and Hopkins had brought a little present. Sub-secretaries and clerks and stenographers gathered around the two big crates. Someone pried loose a board and as everyone watched, the first box was seen to be filled with cabbages.

They were fine looking cabbages, just a day away from the Bermuda market place. The leaves were fresh and green and the heads were of ample size. But they were cabbages, and every one sighed involuntarily and then remembered their manners and thanked the donors.

Then the second crate was opened and there was as fine a batch of sprouts as any one ever saw. The clerks and the other help looked like people who couldn't believe their eyes. It was as though some one had played a practical joke. But they thanked General Marshall and Hopkins and hid their disappointment as well as possible.

The reason everyone felt that way is that whatever else may be missing from the English table there never is a dearth of cabbages and sprouts. They are items in the English tradition, and although Lord Northcliffe once offered a prize for anyone who could provide a recipe for making sprouts palatable, he ailed to get a good recipe.

It is practically impossible to escape cabbages and sprouts from October until May.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Although one section failed to fill—only one team desiring to enter the junior division—the Church League is all set for what should prove to be a successful season. There are four clubs, with a possible fifth in the bantam section and a quartette of teams in the juvenile department of the league. At a meeting in the Y.M.C.A. last night arrangements were made for the opening of the season next week. Monday night will see games in both the bantam and juvenile sections to get the loop away to a flying start. Entries in the bantam class are Mark Street, All Saints, St. James and George street and there is a possibility that Knox may come in as a fifth team. The juvenile clubs are All Saints, St. John's, George Street and St. James. Last night's meeting decided that the opening game in the juvenile section will be staged at King Edward grounds on Monday night next between the two finalists of last season, St. James and All Saints. The president of the Ministerial Association and Dave Leether, Peterborough's representatives on the O.A.S.A. executive will be invited to take part in the opening ceremonies.

* * * * * *

The bantam section will also get under way next Monday night with a game between George Street and Mark Street teams at Nicholls Oval. The league will use the Oval, and the Queen Mary and King Edward grounds this season with the majority of the games at the first-named park. The schedule for next week is as follows:

Juvenile Section

Monday, May 11—St. James vs. All Saints at King Edward.
Tuesday, May 12—St. John's vs. George Street at Nicholls Oval.
Thursday, May 14—All Saints vs. St. John's at Queen Mary.
George Street vs. St. James at King Edward.

Bantam Section

Monday, May 11—George Street vs. Mark Street at Nicholls Oval.
Tuesday, May 12—All Saints vs. St. James at King Edward.

Races Tighten Up

The race in both major leagues is steadily getting hotter. In the American loop only two games separate the Cleveland Indians in first place and the Boston Red Sox in fourth slot and in the National League the surprising Pittsburg Pirates have climbed to within half a game of the leading Brooklyn Dodgers, as the result of three Brooklyn defeats in a row. Yesterday the Cleveland Indians who had won thirteen games in a row before they blew into Boston Sunday were beaten for the second time in succession by the hard-hitting Red Sox 11 to 8. At that the Indians outhit the winners 15 to 11 and used Boston's favorite method, the homer, three times during the ball game, only to lose out. Heber Newsome got credit for the Boston win, although he failed to go the route and had to be rescued by Hughson in the eighth when the Indians scored four runs and threatened to wipe out the big lead held by the Sox. Jeff Heath, Ray Mack and Demming all hit for the circuit for the Indians but even that exhibition of power hitting failed to save the day. It was Newsome's fourth straight win as against no defeats.

* * * * * *

Detroit Tigers stayed up there by taking a 6 to 4 win over the Philadelphia Athletics, Fuchs, former Buffalo Bison winning his third big league victory. Besse did the tossing for the A's and suffered his third straight loss at the hands of the Tigers. New York Yanks won their third in a row, making a clean sweep of their series with Chicago by taking the Pale Hose 6 to 1. Joe McCarthy's club scored five runs in the third frame, one of their characteristic big innings to put the ball game on ice. It was a victory for Chandler who spaced seven White Sox hits and won handily. Humphries started for Chicago and was credited with the defeat, Haines taking over in the third. inning.

* * * * * *

Pittsburg Pirates gained half a game on the Brooklyn Dodgers by winning a close battle from the Boston Braves while the Bums were idle. As a consequence only half a game now separates the two clubs. It was the tightest ball game of the afternoon, a pitcher's battle between Klinger for the Pirates and Tobin for the Braves, the Bucs finally winning out 2 to 1 by scoring the winning marker in the ninth inning. Each pitcher allowed only six hits. It was another tough loss for Tobin who has been pitching great ball all season. What a help he would be to Boston's other big league club, the Red Sox. And as a contrast to that tight struggle Cincinnati Reds triumphed over the New York Giants 15 to 4. The Reds haven't been doing a lot of scoring this season but they broke out in a real rash against the Giants yesterday, scoring 12 runs in the fourth frame to make it a runaway affair. Starr was the winning Red pitcher.

Al Clark Honored

Al Clark has been honored at Clarkson Tech by having been awarded the Paul Pilon memorial trophy, as the player on the Clarkson hockey team contributing most valuable service during the season. The trophy, donated in memory of a Clarkson player who was killed in an automobile accident a few years ago, is awarded each season and this time Al Clark has been named as a worthy recipient of the distinction. Al and Grant Clark have been mainstays of Clarkson hockey for the past four seasons and the Peterborough twins are decidedly popular with the student body and with their fellow players. Incidentally they will say farewell to Clarkson Tech next Monday when the graduating exercises of the college will be held.

The Catholic Softball League which had the best year in its history last season with keen competition all the way down the line is all set for another campaign with the same five teams in line again. There are two entries from the Immaculate Conception parish, the Cubs and Champs while the other side of the river contributes the St. Peter's, Sacred Heart and Knights of Columbus teams to the league roster. While all the clubs have lost players since last season and pitching talent is said to be decidedly scarce the gaps have been filled in and the teams are ready to carry on. The league opening is scheduled for next Monday night on the Armour Road grounds where the loop operated last season.

Kentucky Winner Once Beaten By His Own Mate

By MASON BRUNSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE, May 5 — (AP). — There's a striking parallel-in-reverse between Mrs. Payne Whitney's Preakness entry of Shut Out and Devil Diver and another pair of colts which made history in the race eight years ago, when a Kentucky derby winner was beaten by his own stable mate.

This is not to predict that Shut Out, the derby winner, will be whipped by his stablemate, Devil Diver, in the 52nd running of the $50,000-added Preakness Saturday but it is true the Green-tree Stable connections still feel Devil Diver is the better of the two.

Shut Out and Devil Diver are approaching the Preakness in a situation similar in some respects to that in which Mrs. Iabel Dodge Slone's Cavalcade and High Quest came to Pimlico back in 1934.

Cavalcade, regarded as the best horse in Mrs. Sloane's Brookmeade stable, had won the derby easily from Discovery and Agrarian, while High Quest, winner of the Wood Memorial, was kept of out the Kentucky classic and saved for the Preakness.

The First Double Victory

The original plan was for Cavalcade to take rest after his derby triumph and for High Quest to represent Brookmeade in the Preakness. But Mrs. Sloane changed her mind and elected to win with Cavalcade and thus become the first woman to capture both the Derby and the Preakness in the same year.

She and the public wanted Cavalcade to win. But High Quest had other ideas. He led all the way and defeated Cavalcade by a nose in a terrific stretch battle to finish the mile and three-sixteenths in 1:58 1-5 —a record which still stands.

Of course, the stable must figure on a lot of other horses, too, including Al Sabath's Alsab, Emerson F. Woodsward's Valdina Orphan, second and third, respectively, in the Derby, and several others which ran out of the money in the Kentucky classic.

Stratford Pays Junior B Champs Honor

STRATFORD, May 5 — (CP).— Leaders in amateur and professional hockey joined last night in honoring the Stratford Kist Canadians, all-Ontario Junior B champions, at a complimentary banquet in the Queen's Hotel.

Clarence (Happy) Day, coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs, and Frank Selke, acting managing director of Maple Leaf Gardens, were the chief speakers.

Engraved wrist watches were given to the players by the City of Stratford. Ald. James Lumsden made the presentation. From Kist Canada, sponsors of the club, each player and team officials received travelling bags. The presentation was made by Alfred Riches, secretary of the firm.

The Sutherland Cup was accepted on behalf of the team by Coach Carl White. Bruce Burdett received the travelling bags on behalf of the players.

One of the guests of honor of the evening was W. F. Morenz of this city, father of Howie Morenz, Stratford's greatest hockey player.

REDS BATTER GIANTS 15 TO 4, SCORING 12 RUNS IN THE FOURTH

Everybody Bats Twice Around; Pirates Win 2-1

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Big innings are one of the commonest occurrences in baseball and a well known "sucker bet" is that the winning team in any game will score more runs in one frame than the losing team will in the entire game.

However, not many innings will compare with the frantic fourth at Cincinnati yesterday when the Reds tallied 12 times against New York Giants to come within two runs of the modern major league record.

Up till this explosion the puny Reds had not made a hit off Fidler Bill McGee and were trailing 1-0 because of a homer by Willard Marshall in the second inning. They made only six hits in the big blow-up, too, but they scored nine runs before the Giants got a man out, everybody in the batting order came to the plate twice and they still had the bases loaded at the finish.

Everything happened, including a triple by Eddie Joost with the bases jammed, three vital errors and four walks. Three runs were forced in by passes and another by a hit batsman.

After McGee and Hugh East were unable to retire any of the Reds, Harry Fellman was sent to the scene and even though he proved little if any better than his predecessors, Manager Mel Ott recognized the futility of the situation and left him on the mound until the bitter end.

This came eventually in the form of a 15-4 score and 36-year-old Rookie Ray Starr's second victory of the campaign. He allowed eight hits.

Braves Lose Out 2-1.

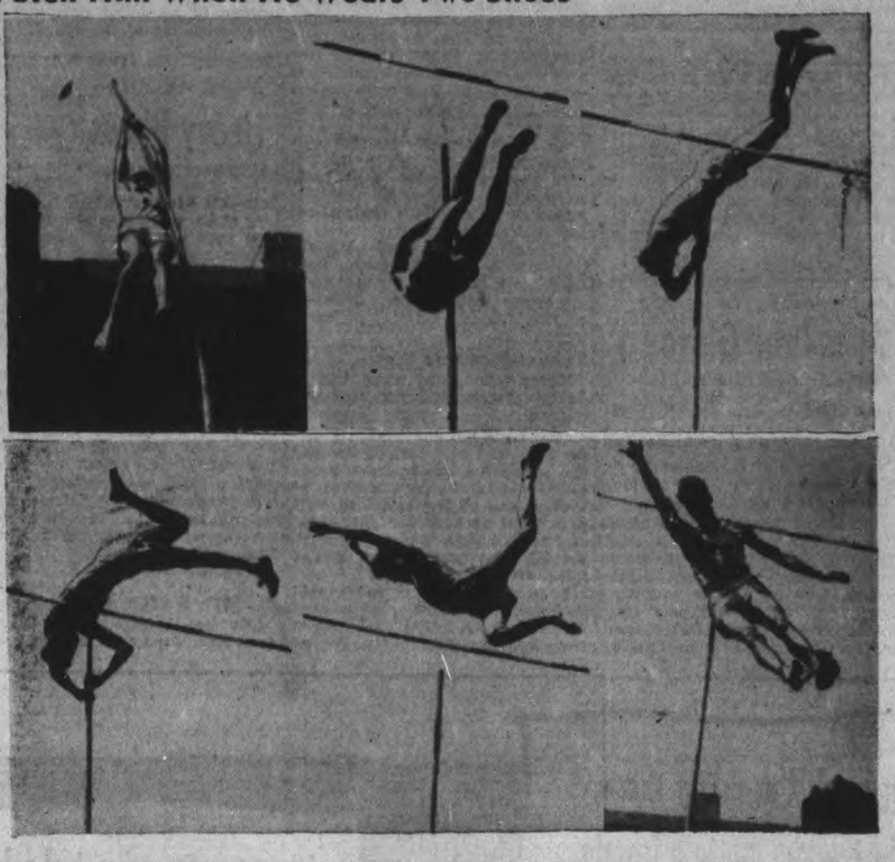
In the only other National League game Pittsburg Pirates pulled within half a game of the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers by nosing out Boston Braves 2-1 in a pitching duel between Bob Klinger and Kim Tobin. Each of whom permitted six hits.

Cleveland's lead in the American League was shortened to one game as Boston Red Sox took their second straight decision from the Indians 11-8. The Sox were outhit 15-11 and three of the Tribe's blows were home runs, but Boston managed to score six times in the first three innings and hold a lead the whole way. Dick Newsome was batted out in the eighth, yet received credit for his fourth victory without a defeat.

New York Yankees crushed Chicago White Sox again 6-1, bunching five runs in a big third inning and keeping the Chisox shutout till the ninth, when an error by Phil Rizzuto after two were out opened up a scoring chance. Spud Chandler allowed just seven hits.

Detroit Tigers maintained their hold on second place by whipping Philadelphia Athletics 6-4 with a 12-hit attack led by Jimmy Bloodworth, who accounted for two runs with a homer and a single.

Watch Him When He Wears Two Shoes



Boy, if A. Richard Morcom ever decides to wear two shoes when he pole vaults, just watch out. And he had better watch out, too, for he'll need a parachute to come down with. Morcom, who hails from New Hampshire, is shown in this magic eye series as he made his 13-feet-six-inch winning vault at the Penn relays in Philadelphia. The camera caught Morcom's action from take-off to the happy landing. Incidentally, it is not poverty that causes him to wear but one shoe. He thinks he can do better that way.

Rochester Whips Syracuse, 14 Hits For 10-3

By The Associated Press

Weather conditions and a speeded up schedule contrived yesterday to limit the action in the International League to a single contest, Rochester hammering Nate Andrews and Ben Wade of Syracuse Chiefs for 14 hits and a 10-3 triumph.

The Newark-at-Toronto game was postponed because of the weather but the remaining teams were not scheduled, having played their Monday contests in twin bills Sunday.

Both Andrews and Wade, who have had big league trials, were off form and the former was blasted for 10 hits in the opening six frames. Wade was even more generous, being touched for four in the two innings he toiled.

They were opposed by Lefty Ed Wissman, who was scored upon in only one frame. Goody Rosen, veteran right fielder, punched out a single in the second frame that brought home two runs after Andrews had driven in the first counter.

That uprising gave the Chiefs a lead that went unchallenged until the fourth when the Red Wings pulled even. A three-run blast in the sixth put Rochester out in front.

Although that was all the action on the league playing fields, there was considerable activity in the business offices.

Cleveland of the American league sent catcher Jim Hegan to Baltimore Orioles, subject to 24-hour recall. Hegan, a native of Lynn, Mass., was with Oklahoma City of the Texas League last season where he batted .242 in 77 games. He finished the year with the Tribe.

Syracuse signed infielder Bill Brubaker former third baseman for Pittsburgh of the National league. He will be used in utility roles and had been with Rochester all spring until his release.

Buffalo Fighter Wins Lions Club Show Cup

TORONTO, May 4—(CP).—One Buffalo fighter won but three others were defeated in the four main bouts on the Lions Club show staged at Maple Leaf Gardens last night before a crowd of close to 4,000.

In the 147 pound class for the Globe and Mail Trophy Prentiss Hall, Buffalo, won a three-round decision over Jim Maradon, Toronto central Ontario champion.

In the 126 pound class Red Ward of Hamilton won the decision over Tommy Stonhouse, Buffalo. At 160 pounds Jackie Ray, Toronto, scored a technical knockout over Leroy Green, Buffalo, at 2.50 of the second round. Bruce Richardson, Toronto, took the decision over Bill Sylvestro of Buffalo in the 147 pound class. All bouts were scheduled for three rounds.

Richardson, a copy boy in the Globe and Mail editorial department, has only had 10 fights. He started to box in January. But he stepped out and cleanly outpointed Sylvestro. Richardson, given expert ringside advice by Harry Hurst, the Montreal professional, who is now in the R.C.A.F. at Manning Pool, had the Buffalo boy on the verge of a knockout, but he was too tired to put on the finishing touch.

The youthful copy-runner was substituting for Tony Brandino of Hamilton.

Joey Ferrier, Toronto, won a three-round decision over Red McCann, the Central Ontario flyweight king, and Dennis Fedorik, a Central "Y" stablemate of Ferrier's whipped the featherweight champ, Patsy Brandino. Brandino fouled Fedorik twice in the last round and lost what advantage he had held until that time. McCann and Brandino are both from Hamilton.

Callura Beaten In Providence, Two Low Blows

PROVIDENCE, R.I., May 4—(CP).—Jackie Callura's string of victories in Providence rings was snapped last night, the Canadian featherweight champion from Hamilton, Ont., dropping a decision to Bobby (Poison) Ivy in a 10-round slugfest. Ivy weighed 130½, Callura 128½.

Two low punches, one in the ninth round and the other in the 10th, were charged against the Canadian and were instrumental in his loss of the bout, his first in four appearances here. Although Callura had point margins in those rounds they were scored for Ivy in accordance with Rhode Island boxing rules governing the landing of low punches, inadvertent or otherwise.

The punches in this case were inadvertent and apparently did no damage to the Hartford boy.

Ivy's ability to keep both hands busy also weighed in his favor with two judges and a referee, all of whom cast their ballots for Ivy. But Callura, a lusty puncher, had much the better of the hard hitting and was far fresher at the 10 rounds.

There were no knockdowns despite the ruggedness of the action. Ivy hit the deck a couple of times, however. In the seventh round he slipped and sat down and in the eighth he did it again when he lost his balance and was bumped, but not hit, by Callura.

The Callura family was not without a winner, however. Angelo Callura, brother of Jackie, needed but two minutes and 11 seconds to win the scheduled eight-round semi-final from Irish Jimmy Gilligan of Buffalo, 129¼.

Angelo, 127¾, staggered Gilligan with a looped left hook to the jaw early in the first round and in the process of trying to end the battle via a K.O. opened a gash over Gilligan's left eye. A second smashing punch to the same spot caused the cut to split wider and referee Tim Ferrick called a halt to activities and awarded Callura the verdict on a technical knockout.

"Schoolboy" Rowe, a former ace of the Detroit Tigers, has been sold to Brooklyn Dodgers for the sum of $15,000.

Ocean Blue Steps Record Time

PIMLICO, Md., May 5—(AP). — Equalling a track record that has stood for many years, Crispin Oglebay's Ocean Blue made his 1942 debut a smashing victory in the $5,000 added Jennings Handicap here on Monday afternoon. The four-year-old son of Blue Larkspur and Anchors Ahead took command at the first jump and led throughout the six furlongs. Mrs. T. Christopher's Doublrab was second, beaten a Sullivan's Transfigure third. Four Sulivan's Transfigure third. Four scratches reduced the field to seven.

With Jockey Tommy Malley, who won the Pimlico Oaks with Vagrancy last Saturday, in the saddle, Ocean Blue stepped the six furlongs in 1:10 4-5 to become a coholder of that mark with Mainmast and Con Amore. The electric timer credited Ocean Blue with a half-mile in :44 3-5. The record for four furlongs here is :47 2-5. The record for the Jennings was 1:11 2-56, shared by Handy Tom and Battle Jack, the latter fifth in yesterday's fifteenth running.

With Transfigure the favorite, Ocean Blue paid a $23.70 mutuel to his scattered backers in a crowd of 8,000. The victory was worth $4,100 to the winner.

Richmond, representing A. J. Sackett, was the only horse to get close to Ocean Blue and that was directly after the start. Malley, once in front by a good margin, came in to save ground. Richmond weakened and Doublrab came through on the rail. In the stretch, Doublrab hung and Transfigure closed some ground but Ocean Blue, under hand riding, held a daylight advantage to the end.

Wartime Boosts Cycling Racing

CHELMSFORD, England, May 5.—(CP)—British cycling is to have a national track for the first time in history. The National Cycling Union has taken a 21-year-lease on the famous Herne Hill track where great crowds gathered in other years to watch international stars kick up the dust.

Although competitions have been few since the start of the war, there are more cyclists in Britain than ever before because of the transportation problem and membership in cycling clubs has increased sharply.

This Welterweight Escaped With Guns

GLASGOW, May 5.—(CP) ... eran welterweight boxed of the ... French forces, Sgt. Robert Tunner not only escaped to Britain from France, he brought an anti-tank gun and two machine guns with him on the boat. On reaching England in June of 1940 he joined a Scottish regiment, later transferring to the Free French.

Roger Vauchein, another Free French welter, was imprisoned in Russia after escaping from a German prison as a member of the French army. He was freed when the Soviet Union entered the conflict.

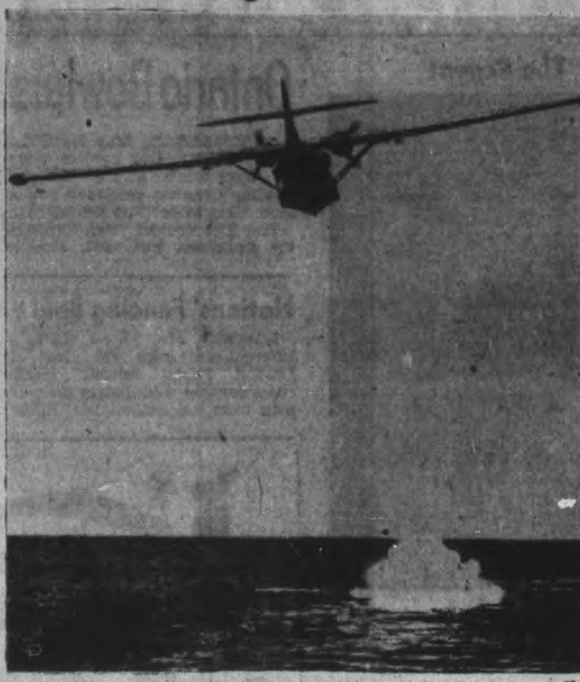
15,000 Instructors

OTTAWA, May 5 — (CP). — Labor Minister Mitchell said to-day that 15,000 war plant job instructors can be produced for Canadian industry within the next three months through a new training program inaugurated to-day at Montreal.

The inaugural course began under Clifton H. Cox of the Training Within Industry Division of the United States War Production Board.

Practise Bombing In Duce's Back Yard



In between patrolling the seas in search of subs and flying over shipping lanes to protect them against undersea raiders, this Catalina bomber of the R.A.F. is practising bombing while flying over the Mediterranean Sea. The bombs are not of the demolition type, but are made containing a smoke discharge. The real McCoy costs plenty of money, and there is no sense of wasting precious green backs in mock bombing, even if it is on Mussolini's doorstep.

Col. Ralston said policing the railways and evacuating the Japanese was not the army's job but he would call the matter to the attention of the ministers concerned.

Replying to a number of suggestions about the regulations and their enforcement the minister generally avoided statements of policy pending receipt of the committee's recommendations.

He said Government policy on the continuance of the ban on the Communist Party was not settled and the Government would give careful consideration to the recommendations of the committee. Conservative Leader Hanson asked for a statement on the internment of Communists.

The Franceschini Issue.

Replying to questions from John Diefenbaker (Con. Lake Centre) the minister said the original detention of James Franceschini prominent Italian-born Toronto contractor, was justified on the basis of information in the hands of the police.

Subsequently the former Minister of Justice, the late Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, ordered Franceschini's release on the grounds he was no longer likely to be a danger to the state and Mr. St. Laurent said the release was also warranted. He added it would, in his opinion, be recommended by one of the committees which now advise the minister on applications for release from internment.

While Franceschini was interned one of the former one-man advisory committees made a report on his case and Mr. Lapointe on the basis of the report decided to order continued detention. He said the minister, answerable to the House, had to take responsibility for all detention orders. The order for release came later.

"The information is that this man's health was such that without surgical intervention his life was a matter of days," said the Justice Minister. "That being the condition of his health, it was felt at that time releasing him would not in any way endanger the safety of the state. There are no grounds which have developed since which, in my opinion, would justify reinternment.'

The committee appointed consists of 15 members— 10 Liberals, three Conservatives, one each from the New Democracy, and C.C.F. groups.

Britain are in accord that Madagascar will, of course, be restored to France after the war or at any time the occupation of Madagascar is no longer essential to the common cause of the United Nations.

"In view of the fact that the island of Madagascar will be held in trust for France, in order to protect it from attack by any one of the Axis powers, any warlike act permitted by the French Government against the Governnment of Great Britain or the Government of the United States would, of necessity, have to be regarded by the Government of the United States as an attack upon the United Nations as a whole."

Approval of the occupation demonstrated the hardening of Washington's attitude since Laval's appointment as chief of government April 16 the day before Laval came to power the state department had announced it would recognize the deal with whatever government was in control locally of French possessions—either Vichy men or Free French.

An island of nearly 4,000,000 populaion Madagascar lies in the Indian ocean opposite Portuguese Kozambique, sheltering the 250-mile-wide Mozambique channel off the African east coast.

The east coast is almost a straight line with a mountain range down the island's backbone. Its lush acres are devoted to extensive cultivation of rice, tobacco, coffee and hardwoods.

Signs of Nipponese Coup.

There were many signs that a Japanese move into the area was impending.

Four days ago the French cruisers Montcalm and Marseillaise and the submarine tender Jules Verne were reported to have arrived at Madagascar. Vichy explained they were there to keep the island out of foreign hands. Whether any resistance was offered the British forces was not announced.

A British press despatch said yesterday that Madagascar reservistz were being called up. A correspondent at Tananarive, capital of Madagascar, was able to get through a report recently that Free French on the island were being rounded up and imprisoned under orders of Gen. Armand Annet.

There have been a number of anti-British broadcasts from Madagascar, and the Paris radio has spoken of an Allied campaign for the occupation of the island.

German bombers, which observers said apparently were escorted by fighter planes for the first time in their current "reprisal" raids struck sharply at two southern English coastal regions and the government stated "some casualties and damage were caused." The force was estimated by one watche rat 30.

The German radio said strong Nazi formations last night dropped explosives and incendiary bombs on Cowes, on the channel coast in the Portsmouth area, and also made Eastbourne, just west of Dover strait, a night bombing target.

It was assumed the fighters were assigned in an effort to reduce losses such as were encountered at Bath, Exeter and York.

Sub Offers Food To 21 In Boat

TORONTO, May 5.—(CP)—Chief Engineer Dan Lockwood told here yesterday how he and 20 of his mates survived the sinking of their merchant ship by a Nazi U-boat.

Struck by a torpedo, the ship sank in five minutes, said Lockwood. The crew managed to get to one of the lifeboats lowered and the submarine then came to the surface and ordered it alongside.

"The U-boat commander asked the name of our ship and her tonnage. Then he asked me if we had any sea biscuits and drinking water. I told him we had. He asked me if any of our crew were injured and I told him no, although I was scalded from the waist down."

Lockwood said at his request the commander had given him the position of the lifeboat and the course to the nearest land. The lifeboat picked up the remainder of the survivors but the cook and wheelsman died before they could be rescued. Theye were in the lifeboat 30 hours before a rescue ship picked them up.

Now fully recovered, Lockwood is going back to sea within the next few days. He is well-known among lake sailors and has been engineer on the City of Kingston, City of Windsor and Lennox. He makes his home in Kingston during the off season.

New Quisling Guards

LONDON, May 5 — (CP).—Dispatches from Stockholm said today that the bodyguards of Vidkun Quisling, Nazi puppet Premier of occupied Norway, had been replaced by specially German-trained Norwegian police "of a fair Germanic type" and that the grounds around Quisling's residence now bristle with anti-aircraft guns.

The original bodyguards were said to have been dismissed because they "were not selected with sufficient care" and because "certain incidents occurred."

and attempting to define the future would rather be tempting Providence."

He stressed, however, that the action was essentially 'a United Nations strategy and the British were merely the agents to carry it out."

With the lessons of French Indo-China (where the Japanese gained bases and concessions by treaty) and Syria (which the Vichy French defended against British-Free French forces) still fresh in mind, the commentator said it "would be the height of folly to suppose that the Vichy Government would lift a finger to resist the Japanese threat to Madagascar."

The occupation of Madagascar was called an action to "forestall a Japanese move against the Diego Suarez base.

Blow If In Jap Hands.

Japanese occupation of the French island would have had the 'gravest strategic consequences on vital sea communicaitons," one British authority asserted.

"Since the accession to power of Pierre Laval the Axis threat to Madagascar had become greater than ever," he continued, "and the seriousness of that threat had been underlined during the past two or three days by the fact that Japanese Admirals Nomura and Abe are apparently in Vichy where they are being handsomely entertained by the Vichy Government."

A Reuters pispatch said the admirals, Japanese co-ordinators of strategy with Germany and Italy, had left by air for Berlin to-day. They had been expected to remain, according to Vichy advices yesterday.

The British commentator said their presence in Vichy had been taken here as a sign that "yet further concessions by the Vichy Government to the Axis and, in particular, to Japan" were imminent.

Even before Lavals restoration to power, he said, Vichy France had proved its unreadiness to "take the necessary measures to prevent its outlying possessions from being used by Axis powers as bases or stepping stone for the purpose of Axis strategy."

I the last war, he said, his unit did not "trn up its nose" at reinforcements from any part of Canada and if the manpower of the country was to be used who were available for service at the moment had to be sent to the units which needed men.

George Cruicksnank (Lib. Fraser Valley) saiad he thought strategic snggestons from private members of parliment about the west coast defences and other matters were of little value.

"I suggest he (Col. Ralston) have a condensed report of some of the strategic points brought forward by some of the armchair generals here sent to Hitler and he will call the war of at once,'" he said.

Mr. Cruickshank did object, however, to the quartering of Japanese in box cars along the main line railways leading out of British Columbia as there were vulnerable points at which a handful of gunpowder would disrupt the lines,

In wartime, ADVERTISING performs even greater services for you

For all of us, life is different from what it used to be. All of us are busy with war work and war problems. All of us are pressed for time. All of us are watching our expenditures more carefully than ever. Anything that saves us time and energy and money performs a very vital service today. Advertising does that.

In days like these, advertising performs even greater services for us than in normal times. In days like these, especially, we are thankful that we have advertising to rely upon. It gives us up-to-date and reliable buying news...something which we need today more than ever before. • It tells us of new products and services...new prices, new uses, new sizes, new containers. It advises us on how to economize, how to conserve what we have...and how to cooperate with the government's war program. It instructs us on what to do to protect our lives and our homes in case of emergency. It lets us know what the manufacturers of rationed products are doing to help win the war. • Above all else, it maintains the flow of available goods from producer to consumer...and in doing this, advertising not only makes it possible for millions of people to keep their jobs in factories, stores, and offices, but also protects, for the peacetime years to come, the high standards of American life ...Advertising, which has served you and the nation so well in the past, is serving you and the nation even better today.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

CHIMNEY FIRE.

The Fire Department answered a call put in at 5:30 on Monday afternoon from the home of A. Cummings at 386 George Street. It was a chimney fire, and Chief Gimblett reported that there was no damage.

CHANGE OF WEATHER.

A farmer's wife who was in town on Monday for the first time in a couple of weeks told this story. It seems that the ladies have been waiting for several days to make the trip to town, but the men refused to leave the fields as long as the nice weather continued. So finally in desperation on Sunday, the ladies sent up a few prayers for a break in the weather, and their prayers were answered.

MORE GLASS.

For some days now citizens have been warned about leaving broken glass around on the roads, yet on Monday night someone left a large bottle which was completely shattered cluttering up half the roadway at the corner of Brock and Aylmer Streets. A number of cars, whose drivers were unable to see the glass in the dark, were driven straight through it and this will certainly not improve their tires.

NO ACTION YET

Hector McKenzie, 280 Monaghan road, reminded the Council Monday night that the city had not yet fulfilled its undertaking to him when he built the house in 1938. The level of the sidewalk was to be raised, and with that prospect the lawns were built up and kept six inches higher than the present level of the sidewalk. Mr. McKenzie wrote the council that he was not solely concerned about his own interests, especially in regard to a boulevard, but also because he has seen pedestrians sloshing through the slush of three winters without any sign or action by the city. The letter was turned over to the Board of Works.

CITY BUYS SUPPLIES

Tenders accepted by the Council Monday night in a report presented by Alderman Sullivan for a special purchasing committee were: cement from T. A. Rehill and Company at $2.80 a barrel, f.o.b. the dealer's warehouse; also gasoline requirements for twelve months beginning May 1 from McColl-Frontenac Oil Company at 29½ cents a gallon for No. 1 grade and 27½ cents for No. 2 grade, all taxes included. It was also decided to buy road oil from Imperial Oil Company, but that an order of at least one car be given to the British American Oil Company.

NEW SABOTAGE.

There was another false alarm turned into the Fire Department on Monday making the second in the space of a week. This is to be looked upon as the equal of any kind of sabotage and the penalties for the culprits are severe, six months in jail or a fine of $50.00.

C.P.R. CROSSINGS.

T. F. McArthur, C.P.R. freight agent, wrote the Council on Monday night that the company's crossings had been attended to "and all are in good condition." The Council had objected to the crossing of the highway at Kendry, and its local grievance was mainly directed to the C.N.R. for delay in levelling the crossing at Charlotte Street. "Get after the C.N.R. again," Alderman Gordon said.

"CAVALCADE OF CANADA"

The students of the Peterborough Normal School are this evening repeating their very highly successful production "Cavalcade of Canada," but preceding this there will be an inspection of the exhibits of handicraft work by the students in social studies and manual training. Home economics and art studies will also be shown and finally there will be the crowning of the May Queen and the valedictory address. The public is invited, with the viewing of the exhibits starting at 7.00 o'clock and the concert at 8.30. All proceeds go to the War Victims' Fund.

DOCTORS ON CALL.

The Peterborough Doctors are observing Wednesday Afternoon as a Half-Holiday throughout the year. Those on call on Wednesday Afternoon and Evening of this week are: Dr. F. O'Reilly, Dr. A. E. Hammond, Dr. H. V. Dobson.

Community Fund Drive To Start Friday, May 15

Peterborough War Services and Community Fund received its first boost on Monday night when the Peterborough Lions Club voted the sum of $100 to start the fund off, and every member pledged his solid support to see that the objective of $60,000 would be reached.

Comment in the downtown section indicated everyone had that "let's put it over" feeling, and the canvassers should have little difficulty raising the $60,000 in the seven day period from May 15 to May 22. $30,000 of this money goes to the Red Cross and the balance is divided among the local charitable organizations engaged in war and welfare work, of an essential character.

Last year the committee asked for $85,000 and received $124,000 which included $10,000 from the county. This year however they are asking for $60,000 and one reason for the reduction is the fact that the Government is maintaining the Y.M.C.A., Salvation Army, Canadian Legion huts war work out of revenue thus relieving the municipalities of the direct burden of maintenance during war time.

However every agency in the city particularly both orphanages have as a result of the war, been forced to assume a greater job in the set-up, and consequently the costs are higher. All organizations are doing their utmost to retain the delicate balance between the family unit, and society itself, in the face of wartime distractions and temptations, and money must be forthcoming to continue this valuable work.

A breakdown of the objective reveals the following: The industrial division is being asked for $25,000, while last year they received $45,000. The Special Names committee which consists of a list of 140 names of firms and individuals will be asked for $20,000. Last year this bracket accounted for $38,000. The Retail Division, covering downtown stores, offices, commercial houses is seeking $12,000, less than half of the objective previously obtained. The Ladies' Division is going after $3,000 and during the last Community Fund effort it was $8,000. Taking out the special names the drive boils down to the fact that one dollar and a half from everyone in the city and suburban area will take care of all the needs of the agencies listed during the current year.

On Friday, May 15, a dinner will be held at the Empress Hotel at 6.15 to launch the campaign, and at this meeting team captains and canvassers will get their final instructions. Every man and woman working on the campaign, has plenty of work to do without the Community Chest campaign and are therefore anxious to get the job done in record time. There will be a report luncheon on Tuesday noon, May 19, and a final report dinner at 6.15 on Friday, May 22. The dinners will not affect the contributions to the campaign because their cost is being borne by local industrial firms.

The Peterborough War Services and Community Chest Fund is authorized to act as a collection agency for the Red Cross, and the $30,000 being sought in this city is Peterborough's contribution to the $9,000,000 Red Cross appeal for all Canada.

It is understood that time payment of contributions through the salary deduction method will be arranged should any of the employees wish it.

On Monday evening, the publicity committee met in the office of H. L. Garner, chairman of this committee, and discusseed a program of publicity aimed at advising the people of the needs that exist and seeking their whole-hearted co-operation. Ross Dobbin and Gordon S. Matthews sat in at the meeting, and the members of the committee are as follows, H. L. Garner, chairman, Clare Collins, Dave Diplock, Jim Wharry, J. H. Jamison, Adjutant Norman Buckley, secretary and G. H. Roper, acting general secretary for the drive.

Recruits Have 10 Days To Join Rangers

City and district men who hope to join the Rangers must do so within ten days or their chances of getting in will have just about vanished. Before May 15, this regiment which has now about 235 men, all ranks, will move into new training quarters at Camp Niagara-on-the-Lake, and recruiting for the unit will stop in this city.

All men called up for reserve army training, and this includes the May draft of several hundred, can still be accommodated in the ranks of the Rangers, as 807 men and officers are required to bring the unit up to war establishment. Any of those who believe they can join the Air Force, can question the men from this city who stood in line with more than 400 other men at Toronto during the past week, only to be told to fill out an application, and await the call for a medical which may not come for six months. In the meantime, they must respond to the compulsory training call, in Peterborough for two months, then to some other camp across Canada.

Officers said today that the man who waits until the last minute and then expects everyone to break a leg getting him into the Rangers is causing extra work, and showing much of that attitude which should have been dispelled by the seriousness of the world situation.

It was reliably reported at headquarters of the Rangers that they must be in camp at Niagara by May 15, and this would indicate that recruits who are flocking to join Active Service units in other cities will be given a chance to fill the ranks of this regiment which should be made up solely of Peterborough city and district men.

The recruiting office will be open until ten o'clock at night for the convenience of applicants, and every man who receives his call, or any others seeking information is invited to call at the recruiting office and all information will be gladly given.

94 Births Recorded During Past Month

Of the 94 births recorded in Peterborough last month, 68 were those of families living in the city, 26 were of non-resident families. Three babies were born to unmarried parents. Of the 30 deaths, 17 occurred in hospital, and four of them were non-residents.

Forty-one marriage licenses turned $205 into the treasury and city licenses in April amounted to $1,493.66. In that amount bicycle licenses bulked largest for $600, billiard tables $500, transient trader (1) $250, plumbers $40, junk shops $30, and so no down the list.

Police court fines collected totalled $726.25 last month, of which the city's share was $365.52. The province got $243.73.

Three applications for mothers' allowance and four for the old age pensions were approved by the local board.

Increase Is Voted Deputy Fire Chief

Increased $200 from May 1, the salary of George Smith, deputy Fire Chief, was fixed at $2,000 a year by a bylaw passed by the council last night.

Alderman Sullivan, chairman of the fire and water committee, explained that Mr. Smith had received an offer of $2,400 a year to go overseas and take charge of a fire company in the Old Country.

"Our department has already parted with five men for the service," Alderman Sullivan said, "and only three of them have been replaced. We all feel that Mr. Smith is a very efficient man, and Chief Gimblett is of the opnion that he could not get anyone of equal ability to take Mr. Smith's place if he left."

Utilities Property

A bylaw authorized that a property on Romaine street be set aside for the Utilities Commission for the consideration of $1,000. The council holds the title to the land, but the Commission had complete use of it. This property is on the south side of Romaine street immediately west of the C.N.R. to Port Hope.

Draw For Pig Nets Sum Of $27.75 For British War Victims Fund

Many and varied have been the means by which money has been raised to help sufferers from air raids in Britain, but so far as records of the secretary of the fund go, today there is recorded the first that has come to hand with the whole proceeds of an effort coming into the fund as the result of a draw on a pig.

Two pupils from School Section No. 4 Chandos, Wally Reynolds and Doreen Bullied are responsible for this and they made a really good effort of it at that.

The pig was donated by George H. Bullied of Lasswade, and the splendid sum of $27.75 was realized as a result of the students work, and was forwarded into fund headquarters by J. G. Reynolds, the teacher of the school.

For consistency of effort for the fund, the employees of the Brinton-Peterboro Carpet Co. Ltd. have given a lead which is a real shining light in the records of activities on its behalf, and for the main part it has represented a regular collection on pay days and represents the giving of thousands of the smallest coins of the realm to make a total of $552.50 turned in to date with their 43rd donation in an amount of $10, which is listed today.

Another contribution of $3.00 has been added to the proceeds from the sale of tickets being sold by Mr. and Mrs. John E. Parker of Norwood on three prizes donated by two of their relatives living in Toronto, which brings the amount that they have realized on this particular effort to date up to $31.50.

The draw for these prizes will be made on Friday, May 15, in the Town Hall at Norwood, which is being sponsored by them, also in the interests of the fund, and tickets will be available that night in time to be included in the draw.

About $16.00 was left over after cabling £500 to the Lord Mayor of London on Monday so with today's receipts there is now a balance on hand of $58 to start thenext donation off with. On Sunday night the Cathedral City of Exeter received its second bombing in about one week's time, giving ample proof of a terrorism that is only superseded by the inhuman slaughtering of hundreds of innocent people on the continent as hostages for something they had no hand in at all.

Col. Rutherford Writes Mayor

A letter from Lt.-Col. W. S. Rutherford, officer commanding the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders overseas, was read at Monday night's meeting of the city council. He has succeeded Lt.-Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne of this city, and in that change of command Mayor Hamilton wrote to Col. Rutherford congratulating him on his appointment, and sending him the good wishes of the people of Peterborough.

Col. Rutherford thanked His Worship for his thoughtful and kindly letter. "I have command of one of the finest regiments in the Corps," he added, "and I am most proud to be connected with it. Many of the men are from your city. Lt.-Col. Hicks-Lyne was at one time identified with my old regiment, the 75th Toronto Scottish. Lately I have lost two excellent officers from Peterborough in Jim Turnbull and Alan Macnab due to the new age limit. They will make their weight felt in their new jobs in Canada. Of that I am quite sure. In the meantime I have younger officers to take their places such as Graeme Falkner, and the regiment will be heard from before this war is finished.

"Again many thanks for your kind wishes, and if there if anything I can do at any time to co-operate I shall be only too pleased."

Commends City On Sound Administration

"The City of Peterborough is another progressive Ontario municipality that is hitting the bell on sound administration and financing, as indicated by its auditor's report for 1941, just off the press," says "The Listening Post," publication of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

In 1930 Peterborough's tax rate was 39.2 mills, without including the rate for garbage collection and disposal. For 1942 the rate is 30 mills, including the garbage rate; a reduction from last year's rate of 2.8 mills.

The total tax levy was $926,000, while last year it was $805,000, a reduction of $101,000; and this year an additional $76,000 was sliced from the tax demand.

In 1941 the city collected better than 93 per cent of its taxes for that year, and altogether more than 104 per cent of the amount of the current roll was received. The city's net debenture debt was only $1,627,065 at the end of 1941.

While new building figures have been climbing above a million dollars annual for several years, the assessment per capita has been cut from $1,106 in 1941 to $1,028 last year. All this reflects a prosperity based on sound principles. The city passed through the last decade of severe testing on an even keel, paying off debts from accumulated funds easily while refusing to issue a new debenture for anything. It was "pay as you go" to a fine degree.

With wartime production the city's population is now crowding 30,000 without including the booming suburban population of the surrounding townships. However, the city council is pledged to continue its careful policy that for years has gained Peterborough a place on the municipal roll of honor of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce."

Presumably the refence to reduction of assessment in the last two years, quoted above, means from $1,106 per capita, made in 1941 for the purposes of this year's taxation, to $1,028 last year, the assessment made in 1940 as the basis of last year's taxation.

Rangers NCO's Shiver At Quebec Camp

Megantic, deep in the province of Quebec, clings to its snowdrifts. When Sergeants Mel Moncrieff, Chuck Steadman, George Martin, Jimmy Chambers and Corporal Mel Parnell left here the beginning of April to take a training course there, Megantic had drifts four feet deep and when they came back yesterday Megantic was still whitened with snow. It was over snowclad hills interlaced with deep pools of ice-water and bogs of slush that these five tough Rangers went on long route marches every day. Like Rogers Rangers of old they were usually marching waist deep in the water, slush, mud, and snow that mark early spring in the mountains of Eastern Quebec. Captain Dawson, the medical officer of the Rangers, said this morning that only their tough constitutions, combined with good food and quarters, held off a good dose of pneumonia. Jimmy Chambers did spend several days in the hospital with bronchitis, and on his first day up, went on a four-mile route march taken at top speed. This was only a part of their Junior Leaders' Course which included considerable practice in fieldcratf, but it shows Peterborough what her lads in the Rangers can take.

Six Indians Join Rangers Monday

Recruiting for the Prince of Wales Rangers received a spurt yesterday afternoon when six Mississaugas from the Curve Lake—or more properly the Mud Lake— Indian Reserve came to join the regiment. Already the unit has three men from Curve Lake who are enjoying army life and serving the Rangers well. Alan Taylor and John Jacobs joined in the middle of March and last week George Sunday signed up, too. Yesterday's applicants, including close relatives of these three, were Dalton Jacobs, Ben Taylor, Aubrey Coppaway, Sidney Irons, Victor Johnson, and Charles Taylor.

Major Eastwood of the Second Battalion, who is district Indian agent for the Dominion Government helped them through their preliminaries and pointed out the valuable services Indians had performed in the last war. Bushwork in the winter and guiding in the summer kept them in excellent health and gave them splendid training in fieldcraft.

Their individual abilities and the power of patient watching made them splendid snipers in the last war and should make them more useful to-day. Though able to act as individualists, they liked community life and the comradeship of the army suited them. Nor did they have trouble with army basic training. One of the six, Aubrey Coppaway, has already served, and in an Army Trade School qualified as a welder, before he was found to be under age.

This trip from Curve Lake recalls an incident during the mobilization of the 93rd Battalion in 1915. At that time, Mrs. William Taylor walked down from the Reserve bringing not less than six of her sons to enlist with the unit. The men yesterday came by car, but their actions show the same spirit of loyalty for which the Mississaugas have always been noted.

Oil Reclaiming Units Set Up At Army Camps

OTTAWA, May 5.—(CP).— Government departments have taken steps to salvage and reclaim used lubricating oil, said a return tabled in the House of Commons Monday for G. K. Fraser, Conservative-Peterborough West.

The Munitions and Supply Department said reclaiming units have been installed at several military centres. They operate under the general direction of Francis Farwell, director of mechanical maintenance of the National Defence Ordnance branch.

All used lubricating oil from Royal Canadian Air Force and Royal Air Force stations is sold by tender to private companies who reclaim it for further use.

The return said Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle has carried on extensive investigation into the reclaiming of used oil and when it is removed from vehicles which have been operated with care, and the oil changed at proper intervals, it is not burned. Consileration has been given to the general prohibition of burning or destruction of such oil.

The National Defence Department said instructions rad been issued to the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps that all used crank case oil was to be conserved and shipped to oil reclaiming points from adjacent areas. Reclaimers were installed at Debert, N.S., Sussex, N.B., Ottawa, London and Camp Borden, Ont.

Miss Elizabeth Walker Addresses Girls' Rally

Miss Elizabeth Walker was guest speaker at the girls' rally, held Monday evening at the Y.W.C.A. Introduced by Mrs. Huffman, Miss Walker spoke of the life of the girls in and around Rocky Mountain House, Alberta, where she was sent to do missionary work by the W.M.S.

Rocky Mountain House is a small western town with a population of about 800, about 80 miles west of Red Deer. It is called the Gateway to the West, and the title is not inept, because it was from Rocky Mountain House that David Thompson set out in 1792 and discovered the Columbia River. It was also to Rocky Mountain House that the first Protestant Missionary to the west went. Rev. Robert Rundle came from England to work among the Indians, and among the white settlers and their families, and his memory is preserved in the mountain which was named after him.

Today the main industry at Rocky Mountain House is lumbering. Life was hard and difficult for the first settlers there and it is still difficult. The houses are built from the logs of the forest and they are usually unpainted inside and out, and present a bleak, drab appearance. Furniture is of the roughest kind, usually made by the man of the house, for the town is so far from a railway, and the cost of freight so prohibitive that few people have bought furniture. Some home were more attractive than others, depending on the artistic ingenuity of the people, and Miss Walker saw in this a proof that our lives can be what we choose to make them.

She said that the trouble was that some of us needed help in making our lives beautiful and worthwhile; and the girls at Rocky Mountain House needed some one to show them not only how to make their home beautiful with what they had, but how to make their own lives worthwhile.

Miss Walker said that she had met many girls in that district who had had no Christian teaching, who had never heard of Christ, of the Bible, and had never been to church or Sunday School. It was her task to issue to these boys and girls Christ's invitation to a richer, fuller life. Sunday School was held after day school in the schoolhouse, and the remarkable thing was that the children were willing to stay and listen to what she had to say.

Working on the principle that you cannot reach a man's inner spiritual life without first helping him, Miss Walker played games with the children in the school yard, and found in many cases that they had never learned to laugh and play together. A summer camp was held last July, during which girls from the nine districts around Rocky Mountain House met and became acquainted with each other. Many of these girls struck up lasting friendships with girls from other villages and have corresponded regularly since the camp. Thus the get-together of one week had broadened the horizons of girls in tiny, secluded villages. They learned too, something of the graciousness of life. Few of them had never dreamed of using the lovely Alberta wildflowers to make their drab home more beautiful, and they had little knowledge of etiquette.

Miss Walker told the girls at the meeting that now was the time when they must decide what paths their lives shall take. She told them that what they are now and what they want to be will decide what kind of women they will be in the future. The choice today, she said, was between good and evil—between cross and swastika. "There can be no neutrality," she said, "in the choice between good and evil." She told the girls that God used them to fulfill His plans and that if they failed to use their talents for good they would be failing God.

Prior to the banquet the girls enjoyed a period of folk dancing and community singing led by Miss Jean Oulton and Mrs. Osborne in the gym, and afterwards two interesting discussion groups were held. Mrs. M. Pringle led a discussion on war work among teen age girl and Mrs. L. J. Pettit led on "A Girl's Own Religion." After these the girls gathered together to hear reports and for the introduction of the new executive. The slate of officers for the girls' council is as follows: President, Barbara Deyell of St. John's; secretary, Shirley Pringle of Murray Street; telephone committee, Phyllis Robinson of Trinity; Jean McIntyre of Knox and Jane Hall of St. Andrew's; councillors, Miss L. Brownscombe and Mrs. L. J. Pettit.

The rally was attended by 126 girls representing all the teen-age girls' church organizations in the city.

Home and School News Association

QUEEN MARY SCHOOL

The annual meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association took place on Monday. Miss Musa Cox outlined the method of teaching singing in the schools. Kindergarten children are divided into three groups. Those who sing immediately and well are called canaries; those who are not so good but can carry a low part are called robins; and those who "boom-boom" along on one note are called bluebirds.

Miss Cox thought that in order to instil a love of singing in the child it was most important that his mother should start him off very young in singing nursery rhymes and folk-tunes. This simplifies the work of the teacher and a child taught to carry a tune is not so self-conscious later in life, when he is asked to sing alone. Miss Cox expressed the hope that by concentrating on this vocal training we would one day have music of a national character.

Mrs. C. H. Crowe was in the chair for the meeting. Reports were heard from the secretary, treasurer and standing committees. The school choir, under the direction of Miss Musa Cox sang the songs which they had sung in the spring festival, "The Ashgrove," "Billy Boy," and "All Through the Night." Mrs. T. J. Carley gave her usual interesting report on current events, and Mrs. Vass reported on the Easter convention. Mrs. L. H. Ingram, past president of the association, conducted the ceremony of installation and the new slate of officers is as follows: President, Mrs. C. H. Crowe; vice presidents, Mrs. J. Turnbull and Mrs. L. Vass and Mrs. J. Fanning; recording secretary, Mrs. H. A. Craig; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. R. Barnsley; treasurer, Mrs. J. Adams; executive, Miss D. Hooey, Miss F. Walton, Mrs. N. Gell, Mrs. H. A. Mitchell, Mrs. R. A. Baker, Mrs. S. M. Ward, Mrs. F. Leslie, Mrs. S. Braund, Mrs. B. Ottewell, Mrs. James Heffernan, Mrs. D. V. Canning, Mrs. F. C. Walker, Mrs. H. R. Sills, Mrs. H. V. Dobson, Mrs. H. K. Clifton, Mrs. G. H. Moore, Mrs. G. Reader.

Mrs. Crowe thanked the association for re-electing her and expressed her appreciation of her executive during the past year.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL.

The annual meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held in the Kindergarten Room last night. Ruth Brown and Marie Cuss, pupils of Grade 6, taught by Miss Eagleson, presented a beautiful afghan which had been made by all the pupils, boys and girls alike. Master Clare Connell delighted the audience with a piano solo.

Standing committees were heard from and particularly interesting was the report of Mrs. J. Collis, representative to the War Service Council, in which she urged the saving of every possible article of salvage. Mrs. H. Tremain gave the report of the Local Council of Women, in which she stated that every woman can be of some service in some sphere at this time. And outlined the policies of the C.W.V.S.

The president, Mrs. A. W. Nelson, was in the chair and presented in interesting fashion her report of the annual Home and School convention held in Toronto in Easter week. Although condensed, her report covered all the highlights of the meeting and showed a great deal of time and work entailed. Annual reports were given. The outstanding report was that of the recording secretary Mrs. C. McBride, in which she stated the Queen Alexandra had passed the milestone of 22 successful years of work, and briefly outlined all the work carried on in the past year. Mrs. Nelson ably presented her first annual report, in which she gave credit to the support of all the members.

Mr. J. E. R. Munro took the chair for the election of new officers and duly installed the following: President, Mrs. A. W. Nelson; vice-presidents, Mrs. C. McBride and Mrs. E. S. Kingdon; treasurer, Mrs. K. J. Curry; recording secretary, Mrs. J. Curtis; corresponding secretary, Ms. A. E. Buck; executive, Mrs. D. C. Dixon, Mrs. N. L. Paterson, Mrs. C. Althouse Mrs. S. Barrett, and Mrs. J. Smith.

The children's picnic will be held at the Oval on June 19, but the members' picnic will be dispensed with. It was decided to hold open school on May 13.

Temple Songsters Brigade Presents Fine Concert

One of the most enjoyable musical events of the season was presented on Monday night in the Salvation Army Temple by the Temple Songster Brigade under the direction of Songster Leader A. Ben. Smith, with Songster Mrs. S. J. Richardson, A.T.C.M., as pianist.

Weeks of hard practice and splendid cooperation between the leader and the choir were evident by the splendid program presented.

The entire proceeds of the evening are being turned over by the Salvation Army to the distressed citizens of Kinmount. Up to last night the total proceeds were around $80, including personal contributions.

The sincerity of each member of the Songster Brigade was felt as the program commenced with the Brigade's theme song "Take My Voice," a song of consecration.

The stirring vocal selection by the Songsters, "Rule Britannia," was the opening number followed by prayer by Adjutant Norman Buckley, the Commanding Officer of the Temple.

The Salvation Army has in its ranks many soldiers and officers who are splendid composers of music, both vocal and instrumental.

The selection, "Majesty, Praise and Power", was one of the outstanding numbers by the Brigade, composed by a Salvationist.

Major Birchell a Salvation Army officer in U.S.A. composed a very lovely tune with the Lord's Prayer as the theme, which was sung by the whole brigade.

A very sweetly sung number by the Songsters was a beautifully arranged transcription of the hymn "Sun of My Soul."

Variety was a key note of the program with special numbers as follows: "If I'd My Way," a monologue by Songster Mrs. W. Wilkinson, accompanied by Mrs. S. J. Richardson. Songster Betty Craig gave an excellent reading "To an Old Nickel." Songster Art Jones sang splendidly a tenor solo entitled "In Heavenly Love Abiding," written to the tune of "Somewhere a Voice is Calling." He was accompanied by Songster secretary, Mrs. R. G. Routly. Songster Mrs. Mendel Braund's beautiful soprano voice was heard in the old hymn "Nearer My God to Thee," with Mrs. S. J. Richardson at the piano.

A women's vocal trio sang with much feeling a very difficult number, "Take My Hand." The trio was composed of Songsters Mrs. R. G. Routly, Mrs. M. J. Shaggett and Mrs. E. V. Payne. Bandmaster R. G. Routly played the accompaniment.

A stirring Salvation Army march, "Under Two Flags," was played as a piano duet by Songsters, Mrs. S. J. Richardson and Mrs. A. B. Smith.

"Storm Troops" from "The War March of the Priests" by Mendellson was the number presented by the ladies' xylophone ensemble. This ensemble is believed to be the only ladies' party of xylophone players in North America. The five members certainly gave a splendid performance. The ensemble incudes Songsters Mrs. Ronald Routly, Mrs. A. B. Smith, Mrs. E. MacDonald, Misses Ardyth Richardson and Ruth Smith, with Mrs. S. J. Richardson accompanying on the piano.

The closing numbers by the Songsters Brigade were the anthems "Unfold Ye Portals" by Gounod, which was sung in excellent style and a variation based on the hymn "Precious Name" arranged by the pianist, Songster Mrs. S. J. Richardson.

Salvage Committee Has Good Report For May Meeting

The regular meeting of the Civic War Service Council was held on Monday evening in the committee room, with Mrs. R. J. Kearns in the chair. A letter was read from the Board of Education, stating that henceforward no more metal, bones, grease or glass was to be stored at South Central School, arrangements having been made for this stuff to be store at the old lacrosse bowl.

Mrs. Clare Collins read the report of the salvage committee, which has had a very good month. Almost no difficulty has been met in finding drivers and very little with sorters. The C.W.V.S. has been of great help in this respect. Twenty-seven cartons of silver paper were sent to Ottawa to the refugee committee during the month of April.

An extra large turnover of salvage was noted, 120 lbs. of aluminum, 14,240 pounds of scrap paper, 765 pounds of satinette, 22,130 pounds of newspaper 1,023 pounds of rags, 4,560 pounds of tires and 179 pounds of scrap metal were disposed of during the month.

Bottles and broken glass have been added to the list of salvageable materials but no arrangements have been made as yet for handling these dangerous materials. It was decided to purchase a large ice-box for the storage of bones and fats, these to disposed of at frequent and regular intervals. An advisory committee of men, under the chairmanship of Mr. G. A. Gillespie, has been formed to assist the ladies.

The meeting voted $200 toward the Red Cross blood donors clinic to be opened in the old Metcalfe building.

DOROTHY DIX

Tuesday May 5—Dorothy Dix ....

WIFE, 30, IS ADVISED NOT TO WED HER LOVER

How Can Woman Expect to Be Happy With a Man She Can't Trust?

Dear Miss Dix.—I am 30 years old, married to a fine man who is very good to me, but I am desperately in love with a man I don't think I could be happy with. He is selfish, vain, famous for his philandering and temper. He admits some of his mistakes, but swears they have taught him how to live better and to appreciate the real feeling he has for me, and he wants me to divorce my husband and marry him.

I am very unhappy living such a deceitful life as I am and loving this man as I do, yet I don't think I could ever trust him. What should I do?—Desperate.

Answer.—Listen to your head instead of your heart and take the advice the old bean is trying to hammer into your consciousness Believe me, it is the voice of your Guardian Angel that is trying to warn you against taking a step that will wreck the balance of your life.

You are no lovesick girl in her teens. You are a sophisticated woman of 30. You have gone through the experience of marriage and you know how many things besides romance it takes to make a marriage a success. So sit down and try to figure out the risk you would take in marrying your lover. Granted that he is fascinating and that you are infatuated with him, how long have you ever seen infatuation last?

Haven't you seen it die out as quickly as a brush fire? Haven't you seen men and women, who were mad about each other and who broke all the laws of God and man to gratify their fierce passion, grow

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

In less than three weeks—to be exact, May 25th—the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club will commence their activities for the 1942 season. This year, as in former years, there will be a mixed tournament on the holiday, and from then on all games will be played according to schedule.

The men's games committee, under Chairman H. Clegg, met on Monday evening and they put the finishing touches on their work. They have drawn up an extensive program and all this will be printed in the schedule book. They have done a good job and their work has not been made less, due to the fact that there will be more 'home' bowling this season. The transportation situation has forced this on our club same as all other lawn bowling centres.

It is expected that the schedule committee will get busy at once and if everything works well the schedule books will be ready for distribution on the holiday. We understand that there are a few rinks that need a man or two and the skips are requested to hand their names in at once—that is if they want their names to appear in the schedule book.

The ladies' section has made a decided increase in their membership this season, thanks to the hard work done by Mrs. T. Doughty, chairman of the ladies' membership committee and supported by Mrs. H. Beatty and Mrs. H. Staunton

The ladies' games committee have also outlined a strong programme for the coming season and they too, are looking forward to lots of bowling. Their schedule is due to commence on Thursday, May 28th. This committee has also decided to run two mixed tournaments, one on the evening of Wednesday, July 22nd for the British War Victims' Fund and the other one on the evening of Wednesday, Aug. 19th in aid of the Milk for Britain Fund. But all this and a lot of other information will be printed in the schedule book.

The ladies' game committee is Mrs. H. Wilson, chairman, Mrs. H. R. Martin, Mrs. F. C. Dawe, Mrs. T. McDonald and Mrs. B. McLean.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

SCOUT AND CUB CRAFT SHOW

The cub activities will take place between 8 and 9 p.m. each evening, with the scout work following immediately.

On Tuesday evening all units will meet in Victoria Park and will parade from that point to the Market Hall accompanied by the Salvation Army Boys' Band. Mr. Ottewell, president of the Peterborough Boys Scouts' Association, will conduct the opening ceremonies.

To our parents and friends.—Your best appreciation can be realized by your attendance at this show. Remember it is for three days, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 5, 6, 7. Admission, free.

A WORD OF WARNING

Ou Sunday, May 24, two of the four British scouts now visiting Canada will be in Peterborough between 2 and 3 p.m. to talk to the cubs and scouts about things "over there." No definite program has been drawn up at present, as the Commissioner did not wish to interfere in any way with the scout craft show. But from now on we will get busy and prepare a program. In the meantime it is expected that every scouter will see that every cub and scout is making arrangements to be in the city on that day to show our appreciation to these young men who are coming to say, hello. Further arrangements will be published in this column when given.

ST. LUKE'S PARENTS' NIGHT

A real live program was presented by the cubs and scouts before a good gathering of parents in the Sunday school of St. Luke's Anglican Church on Tuesday last. The opening ceremonies were conducted in regular pack style to give the parents a better understanding of thing that their boys do. Akela Butcher, assisted by Commissioner J. T. Hornsby, Scouter Nokes and Baloo King conducted an investiture ceremony, in which Hewitt Hamilton and Danny Barkley were accepted into the world brotherhood of scouting as tenderpads.

Commissioner Hornsby, in a fitting ceremony presented the scout troop with their troop flag, donated by the mothers' auxiliary of the group, and followed up by presenting Akela Butcher and Baloo King with their scouters' warrants.

The troop program was followed with a demonstration of stalking. Bob Thomas proved a very good patient during the first aid, and Ernie Ferguson very capably demonstrated fire lighting with the aid of matches. Bob Thomas received a silver cup for showing the most progress during the past year; Jim Miller getting a hunting knife for second best and Rudolph Pollock received a watch hold holding third place. These award being donated by A.S.M. Martin McIlvena. Rev. Mr. Bousfield presented a shield to Garth Choate, patrol leader of the Wolves.

Akele addressed the parents on the coming scout craft show, urging them to give their support by their presence Rev. Mr. Bousfield spoke on the leadership of the group and the progress shown in the gathering of the equipment for both pack and troop. Scouter Nokes expressed his thanks to the parents for the splendid turnout, and to the mother's auxiliary for their work. In replying, Mrs. McIlvena, president, stated it was a pleasure to work with leaders such as St. Luke's enjoyed; Mrs. Pollard gave a short review of the year's activities, following which Mrs. Ferguson, as treasurer, reported a good financial showing. Mrs. J. T. Hornsby and Mrs. Bousfield were both present. The evening closed in regular scout style (eats) provided by the mothers and enjoyed by the sons.

The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close a very enjoyable evening.

On Tuesday evening the 2nd Armour pack will meet at 6.30 sharp at St. Luke's Church, and then proceed to Victoria Park for the parade and opening of the scout craft show.

On Thursday evening all cubs will be at the Market Hall not later than 7.30 p.m. to prepare to put on their part of the show.

To Dad and Mother: Don't forget your co-operation is needed to put the show over with a bang. Come along and join the fun.

5TH, ALL SAINTS', REPORTING

All members of the troop are expected to be on hand at 7 p.m. sharp in Victoria Park to take part in the parade and opening ceremonies of the scout craft show, Tonight, May 5 It is also expected that All Saints' will make a good showing in the scout craft display and scout activities.

Incidentally the Crow patrol has gained a 25-point margin in the patrol competition.

SACRED HEART GROUP

History was written again at Sacred Heart, when the group held its parents' banquet last week. About 130 people sat down to a supper well-prepared by the members of the ladies' auxiliary, to whom our thanks goes for the hard work they put into it.

Chairman for the dinner was Mr. J. E. Demmers of the group committee, while during the entertainment part of the evening, the role was filled by the scouters.

Outside visitors were Rev. Fathers J. J. O'Brien, J. Houlihan and Dr. Grant, all from the Sacred Heart; Rev. Father Finn from St. Peter's, and Rev. Fathers Begley and Welsh from Immaculate Conception Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Hornsby, Mr. B. Ottewell, president of the association, and Mr. E. Wolfe, A.D.C., who was also the guest speaker at the campfire program, were present. After dinner speakers were Father O'Brien, Mr. Hornsby, Mr. Ottowell and Father Finn. All expressed their admiration for scouting and the work carried on at Sacred Heart, especially. Many compliments were paid to the scouter in charge and the regret at his leaving the troop for defence service was expressed.

Toast to the King was ably proposed by P. L. Frank Lucano, and in the same manner thanks were expressed to the ladies by P.L. Paul Lazure.

During campfire, which followed the banquet, the cubs and scouts provided a very interesting and impressive program. During the evening three cubs were invested: J. Jones, L. Livings and G. O'Neill. The ceremony was carried out by Miss D. Grady, assisted by Miss M. Lucano and M. McCarthy. This was followed by a cub going up into the troop ceremony, when Carol Heath and Harold O'Rourke bid farewell to the pack. Immediately after, two new scouts made their scout promise. They ere Victor Cremasco and Vernon Grady, a former cub. Both scouts belong to the Bulldog patrol.

Enjoyable entertainment was provided by the patrols; namely skits by the Eagles and Foxes and the Bulldogs surprised the gathering with E. Mills' imitation of a train by a drum, and Victor Cremasco, a radit star and a newly-invested scout, singing. Victor also played the part of a soloist during singsong, which included several scout and modern war songs. The singing was done excellently and thanks goes to Mr. J. Armstrong, organist of the church, for playing the piano as well as assisting at the practices.

Our guest speaker, Assistant District Commissioner E. Wolfe, gave a very stirring talk to the boys and parents, taking as his theme the scout honor, comparing the life of a scout as just as there is a foundation made to every building that stands. We are sure his encouragements to all to carry out the scout honor and laws will be fulfilled.

Service year stars were presented by Mr. Wolfe to the cubs and scouts as well as second class badges to Scouts J. Hayes and George Freeman. Mr. Ottowell presented one-year leaders' stars to Miss D. Grady, Miss M. Lucano and F. McCarthy and 8-year star to Scouter Dominik.

David Jones was appointed as patrol leader to the Bulldogs, and Gerard O'Dette as a patrol leader to the Eagles. Both boys have served their probation to the satisfaction of the scouter, and they received their badges of office.

The evening was brought to a close by the cub mistress expressing her thanks to the parents for their support and Scouter Dominik also expressing his thanks and asking the parents for further support and co-operation in connection with the scouts and cubs so that when he takes charge again after the fight is over, the troop and pack will be in just as healthy a condition as it is at the present time. Scouter has thrown a challenge to every scout to stick to scouting through thick and thin, so that the troop may carry on successfully while he is absent.

All scouts and cubs are asked to be at the hall on Tuesday at 6.15 to march up to Victoria Park.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH PARADE

Cubs from Mark Street, cubs from George Street, cubs and scouts from Murray Street, also guides and brownies from Ashburnham, St. Andrew's, and the Salvation Army. The parade formed on Reid street and proceeded to the church from that point. Assistant Scout Master Alex Thorne read the scripture lesson and a short address was heard from Mrs. Whalon, district commissioner for guides in Peterborough. Rev. Dr. Young took for his tevt, "And His increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man."

ALL SCOUTS AND CUBS

FRANTIC WEEK-END

By EDMUND FANCOTT

CONCERT PARTY

CHAPTER XVII

Myra, unaware of Peggy's latest machinations, was enjoying herself no less than Ferdy as the two of them sunned on the wharf, their swim suits steaming in the warmth after a leisurely dip.

Ferdy thanked his pampering stars all over again, as he had occasion to do several times a year, for Myra's friendship. Surfeited with women who overworked their charms and traded on allure, he felt Myra to be the one female in all his broad and sometimes troublesome acquaintance who could be relied upon never to intrude beyond friendship upon his happy inclination towards bachelordom.

"Nice child, that kid sister of yours," said Ferdy.

"Too much like an electric eel for my comfort," said Myra. "I have a feeling that I can never be sure she isn't up to some mischief, some way or other."

"Vitality, that's her strong point. I'd like to paint her." Ferdy paused as if seeing her posed upon his studio throne for a portrait. "No, there's that touch of Vivien Leighishness about her face and eyes. It's been overdone. When is your brother going back?"

"He finishes his leave next week."

"Good face. Strong. I'd like to get a sketch of him in battle dress. Might be a good subject for the next exhibition."

"He is tops," said Myra who had a very deep affection for Michael and admiration for his strength of character.

"He seems to be attracted by Fay," continued Ferdy. "So is Nigel."

"I wouldn't be too sure about Nigel," said Myra.

"There's something about this place that gets them. Maybe it's the sun—maybe the altitude."

Myra snorted. "Reaction from long isolation in military camps."

Ferdy shut his eyes and felt the warm sun on his body. It was difficult to tell his age from his expression. The sandy hair, the sandy mist of freckles on his face, and the drinkles of humor around his eyes lent an illusion of perennial youth.

"Our friend Badly is quite a specimen, isn't he?" observed Myra.

"Not bad in his way," replied Ferdy drowsily. "A week up here and he might become human."

"He said he'd go mad, but I suppose there's not much difference."

Ferdy grinned. "We really must rescue Fay from him. We'll mix things tonight. Keep him away from her, cut in whenever he begins to talk."

That evening was even more serene than the previous one. After the hot day, coolness drifted up from the lake, the trees and over the hills the moon, already a little larger, cast a pale glow over the Laurentians.

There was a mellowness of mood over the party. The easy tiredness that comes with sunshine and bathing and walking had relaxed everyone. Everyone except Baldy and Peggy. Baldy had had an afternoon of unbroken sleep aided by three Tom Collinses and he was full of restlessness.

Peggy seemed just as full of spirits and energy as she had been all day. Nothing seemed to dampen her. Her plans had not gone as well as they might have done. She had steered Nigel to the view where she expected to find her brother and Fay. They had eventually found them, but not nearly as close to one another as Peggy would have liked. They were sitting on a rock at the top of a hill, apparently engaged in a quite ordinary conversation.

It would have been better had Michael worked as fast as she did herself, but that couldn't be helped. Perhaps he was really in love and that always slowed things up, reflected Peggy.

At dinner Fay had told the rest of the company about Michael's idea and they had all received it with enthusiasm except Baldy, who interrupted at every vital point with a grunt that registered disgust.

Peggy perceived his general frame of mind and whispered to Ferdy, who obligingly speeded up the replenishment of Baldy's glass, and shortly the grunts became less non-co-operative.

"You see," said Fay, "we could easily get a group together for rehearsal and if the show went well we should have the satisfaction of doing war work and doing what we wanted to do at the same time."

"Concert Party!" said Baldy. "Concert Party!" What does this country want—concert parties or dollars, good American dollars? With these contracts I got for you, you could make enough American exchange for this country to pay for a couple of Spitfires. Now there's war work for you. There's some real war work, bringing in the dough! The soldiers can sing to themselves, they're singing all the time, ain't they? Got nothing else to do with their time. What do they want—a three-figure dame wasting her talent in dough to buy stuff for them to fight with? That's a real job, that is."

Both soldiers sprung to Fay's defence with such a tongue-lashing that even the irrepressible Baldy couldn't bear up under it. He retired to a neutral corner to nurse wounded feelings and a fresh drink, but Myra, Ferdy, Fay and Ferdy's aunt entered the ring, giving Baldy a lecture on the morale-boosting importance of good entertainment for soldiers that left him with no defence save sputtering.

Looking about for escape, he thought he saw it in Peggy's mischievous wink. "After all," she said, "there is something in what Baldy says—even though I'd love the Concert Party idea because it looks like a grand chance for me."

Peggy looked prettily petulant, wondering if her latest strategy was having its effect on the cornered showman, or if he was too miserable to be influenced by anything less subtle than a falling safe.

But, Baldy darling—" he accent on the second word might have been gibe or genuine friendliness. "Baldy, do be sweet and play a sort of game with us."

Myra cocked her head suspiciously but Peggy rushed on before her sister could intervene.

"Just for tonight, let's pretend we are going to stage a Concert Party. After all, we may none of us—except Fay, if she likes—have another chance to meet a clever New York producer like Baldy." Peggy was at his side, her arm snugly through him. "Wouldn't it be tragic if we didn't learn all we can from him? He was telling me all his experiences on the stage only this afternoon, and really, with his background—!"

Fay caught the spirit of the ruse and entered in. "I don't see how Baldy can refuse us, especially since it's all in fun."

Baldy was warming perceptibly and the other were interested in Peggy's wheedling. Only Myra looked her suspicion. "I'd swap my favorite swear work to know what shenanigans that youngster is up to," she muttered to herself. "Whatever it is, we'll probably all find our lives upside down before this night's over."

Tornado Drives Car 100 Feet, Kills Five Persons

MAYBE IT'S BILL!

ALWAYS first to the phone is a girl in love . . . always ready to go out dancing. No wonder she appreciates the lift she gets from a bowl of Kellogg's Corn Flakes with milk and sugar. She knows it contains enough food energy to climb up and down stairs 50 times—walk over 3½ miles. She's the first to agree that Kellogg's gives her the real "Self-Starter" Breakfast.

LOOK OUT YOUR UNDIES DON'T BETRAY THE FACT YOU WORE THEM YESTERDAY

Join the LUX DAILY DIPPERS

No girl who wants to be popular can bear to wear the same undies two days running. It just isn't dainty! Things worn next to your skin can't help absorbing perspiration which quickly leads to unpleasant undie odor! So play safe, the way all dainty girls do—dip your undies in Lux every night, soon as you step out of them! Lux whisks away odor in a jiffy. It saves fabrics—keeps them bright and fresh as new, far longer. Start your daily dipping tonight.

TONIGHT—dip your undies in—LUX

IN MEMORIAM

SCULLY.—In loving memory of my dear mother, Annie Catherine Scully, who passed away May 4, 1939.

That she is dead, she is just away

She has wandered into an unknown land
And left us dreaming, how very fair
It needs must be since she lingers there.

weary of each other and actually come to hate each other within a few months? For infatuation is a matter of the senses. It rests on nothing that is deep and abiding and it goes as swiftly as it comes.

Fascination Is The Serpent's Technique

As for fascination, that is something that men drop at the altar. That is the technique that the serpent used to tempt Mother Eve into the apple-eating episode and that men have employed ever since in courtship, but they don't waste it on mere wives. How many husbands of your acquaintance still flatter and cajole their wives? You can count them on the first two fingers of your left hand.

Then how can you expect to be happy with a man whom you do not trust? If marriage has taught you nothing else, you must have learned from it that there can be no happiness in it unless it is founded on faith. A woman must believe in her husband and in his love for her as she believes in everything that is good and stable if she is to have any peace and sense of security. If she doubts her husband, her heart is torn by a thousand jealousies and suspicions and she never knows a minute's rest and quiet. Her soul is in a continual turmoil.

You say your man is "selfish, vain, famous for his philandering and temper." Each one of those qualities make him a bad risk as a husband. A selfish husband makes his wife a slave who must spend her life ministering to him. He never considers her pleasure or well-being. He takes the best of everything for himself. It takes an humble-minded woman to endure a selfish husband.

If you marry a vain man, you will have to spend your life flattering him and telling him how great and wonderful he is, and he will never so much as throw a compliment as you would toss a hungry dog a bone. The woman who marries a vain man has to be a perpetual incense-burner, and that is a hard and wearing job.

If you marry a high-tempered man, you will live in constant dread of his anger and have to walk on eggs to keep from doing or saying something that will provoke him. He will say things to you that will stab you like a knife in your heart. He will go into grouches or pass into the silence that will make you wonder why you did it.

The man who is a philanderer make life a hell on earth for his wife with his infideities. Every passing skirt is a signal for him to get up and follow. Every pretty face is a challenge to him to see if his line with the ladies still works. He puts a thousand humiliations on his wife and, no matter how much he reforms, his feet keep wandering until he gets so old and rheumatic they can only stumble home.

So you see your chance for being happy with a man whom you distrust and whose faults you know so well make him a pretty poor bet. Don't marry a man to reform him. Marry one who doesn't need reforming. You will make a bad mistake if you swap your good husband for this one about whom you have so many doubts. You had better stick to the sure thing, in my opinion.

Learn Shorthand in Spare Time at Home

Be Ready For That Chance

Be ready to seize that opportunity when it comes along. Added skills enhance your value in the business world. Learn shorthand in your spare time.

Shorthand isn't difficult. You can learn it in simple home lessons. Then when an opportunity comes you'r trained, ready to step in—with an advantage over unskilled workers.

In Pitman shorthand, you write symbols based on the sounds of words, instead of on their spelling. The word "pay," you learn, is a light slanting stroke followed by a heavy dot. "Say" is a light curve and a dot.

There aren't many sounds in the language, so you soon master the symbols. And for common phrases like "in order that . . . as soon as," you have abbreviated time-saving symbols, easy to learn.

Then for regular practice each day—with someone dictating to you, slowly at first. Before you know it you'll be taking real office-speed dictation.

Our 32-page booklet gives the essentials of the famous Pitman system in easy step-by-step lessons. Includes exercises; abbreviated symbols for words and phrases; pointers on acquiring speed, accuracy; can serve as a foundation for a business college course.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

A GREATER ADVANTAGE

MANY a good player will respond with another suit on his first turn and later support his partner's four-card major, even if he has four cards of the major suit, in order to show that his hand is pretty strong, but not quite strong enough for a double jump of the original bid. There is some advantage in that, but probably not so important as the one gained by other top-liners, who definitely indicate only three cards of the major suit when they support it after having bid something else as their first response.

North: ♠ Q 9 6 2 ♥ K 6 ♦ J 6 ♣ A K 8 7 6
West: ♠ A J 10 8 ♥ A 10 4 ♦ K 8 3 ♣ Q 9 4
East: ♠ K 7 4 ♥ Q J 9 ♦ A Q 10 7 ♣ J 3 2
South: ♠ 5 3 ♥ 8 7 5 3 2 ♦ 9 5 4 2 ♣ 10 5

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ♣	2 ♦	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

That 4-Spade contract was absolutely impossible to make, as West had to lose a trump trick to North in addition to two clubs, a club ruff and a heart. He and his partner were employing the method whereby a response of one suit, followed by support of the major, showed more strength than would an immediate raise of the major, but would not deny four cards of it. As a consequence, West knew a little more about East's general strength than he otherwise could, but had to guess as to whether he held three or four spades.

At another table in the same tournament, delayed support of a major was used by a pair to show that only three cards of it were held, whereas immediate support would guarantee at least four. The bidding there went exactly as given above, up to the point where East bid 3-Spades. That bid, however, let his partner know he had only three cards of the suit. West thereupon bid 3-No Trumps instead of 4-Spades, and made it. He won the third club, ran four diamonds, sent the spade J to the Q and K, took the spade A and 10, and the heart A was his ninth trick, making his contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A 6 5 ♥ A J 2 ♦ K 10 8 2 ♣ A 8 7
West: ♠ Q 9 4 ♥ Q 6 5 ♦ A Q J 7 ♣ Q 10 4
East: ♠ J 10 ♥ K 8 7 4 3 ♦ 9 6 3 ♣ 5 3 2
South: ♠ K 8 7 3 2 ♥ 10 9 ♦ 5 4 ♣ K J 9 6

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

If West opens this deal with 1-Diamond, and ultimately leads the Q of his partner's heart bid, how should South plan to make 4-Spades?

Diverting Bases

OTTAWA, May 5—(CP)—Transit Controller George S. Gray said today in a munitions and supply department statement that to take care of increasing transportation needs of war industries, "buses will have to be diverted from less-essential routes to runs in the crowded areas."

The statement said Mr. Gray has arranged with large companies handling war contracts in the Niagara, Toronto and Montreal areas for a canvass of their increased transportation needs. At his suggestion these companies are setting up plant committees which will study the problem.

2 Independents Show Britons Vote Changing

LONDON, May 5—(CP Cable)—British voters have given the government two-fisted evidence that they retain the right, even in wartime, to say who is going to represent them in parliament. Their choice is men they believe will do most to further a vigorous war effort.

Political observers believe last week's defeat of government-sponsored candidates in the Rugby and Wallasey by-election was due in large measure to the public's reaction to the political truce which for 2½ years has given Conservative, Labor and Liberal party choices an easy road into the House of Commons.

A National Government involving a party truce at the centre is still held essential in wartime, but the position is growing to what Reynolds News today called "party determination to preserve parliament as a refuge for 'safe' men and a shrine of old, outworn ideas."

Until W. D. Kendall won the Grantham by-election last March as an Independent no government candidate had been defeated in wartime voting and only a few had faced any kind of opposition.

Kendall's victory encouraged other Independents to stand and at the same time revived the means of the meaning of the word "election" the result that the voters sent two more non-party men to join him in Commons—W. J. Brown in Rugby and G. L. Reakers in Wallasey.

Some members believe the reason for the government reverses is that the electors are growing unwilling to have parliamentary representatives—not always of outstanding merit or personality—chosen for them. They think greater care will have to be taken in the selection of candidates is further rebuffs are to be avoided.

E. L. Granville, an East Suffolk Liberal National, who stumped for Brown in Rugby, declared in a week-end speech that too many blunders were made at the expense of brave men and that the "by-elections are only the beginning of a revolt against all that."

Brown, attributing his return to "rebellion of the electors of Rugby," said, "Tomorrow it will be a rebellion of the British people . . . against the whole system of government by vicious and vindictive parliamentary party machines."

Havelock High, Public School Students Spend Day Planting Trees

HAVELOCK, May 5—(ENS). — The township of Belmont and the village of Havelock schools were busy on Friday last at reforestation, under the supervision and management of teachers and pupils.

The trees are sent out by the government and arrived by transport truck packed in damp moss in cardboard cartons, and were unloaded back of J. A. C. Allan's hardware store for distribution to surrounding schools of S.S. No. 1, 2, 3, 6, 8, 9, 10 and 12, with 2,500 trees for Havelock High and Public school: Ten farmers in Belmont each took a large number of trees namely Messrs. C. McGowan, C. Barker, A. Brunton, H. Saltern, A. Thoms, J. Thoms, G. Dafoe, H. King, M. Fraser and F. McMullen. In Havelock many of the pupils took trees to their homes while others were planted at Messrs. Peter Haig's, Bernard Smith's, W. Griffith's and Robert Buchanan's farms, around the United church and at the village creamery. The teachers give the pupils special marks for care in planting and gardening to encourage more pupils to plant the trees so they will live: Trees are a splendid asset to any property, both in beauty and appearance and in years to come citizens will be proud of the labour spent in this manner by the school pupils.

Belmont W.I. Sponsors Shower.

On Friday evening about 200 guests assembled at the Stone Hall for a miscellaneous shower, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Flagler (nee Doris Ketchen), which was tendered them by the Belmont Women's Institute. An appropriate program occupied the early part of the evening, with an uncle of the bride, Mr. Jack Reynolds, Lasswads, as the efficient chairman.

The entertainment consisted of a violin solo by Messrs. Randall Ellis and Donald Anderson, a humorous reading by Mrs. George Brooks, 'He was there and so was I'; a vocal duet, 'Santa Lucia' by Jacqueline Puffer and John Anderson of Havelock, a violin and banjo instrumental number by the Aulthouse brothers, Mr. Ronad Young's sons sang 'Mississippi Blues,' accompanied by Miss Helen at the piano; Mr. Jack Flagler, Peterborough, sang 'I Love You Truly' and gave several piano selections, Mrs. Donald Anderson, a comic reading.

An appropriate address was read by Mrs. George Hartin to the newly-weds and two long tables piled with beautiful and appropriate gifts, consisting of gifts of money, silverware, cut glass, linen, pyrexware and kitchen utensils, were presented to them.

Mr. J. Flagler thanked everyone in a few well chosen words and all joined in singing 'For They Are Jolly Good Fellows.' A bountiful lunch was served by the ladies of the Institute and splendid music was provided for round and square dancing by Belmont's musicians for these happy occasions.

Leopold Never To Quit Palace Till Hun Leave

VICHY, May 5 — King Leopold of Belgium has vowed never to leave Laeken Castle, near Brussels, until German troops evacuate his country, it was learned yesterday with the publication of a White Book aimed at clearing Belgium of the charges that it failed to make a maximum military effort before surrendering in 1940.

The armistice convention allowed the Royal Family use of the castle, and there King Leopold resides with his three children, his new wife, Queen Mother Elizabeth, and his brother, Prince Charles.

Belgian refugee circles said that he has left the castle only three times. On two of them he was called to Berchtesgaden by Adolf Hitler. The third time was to inspect war ruins at Ostend.

On this last trip the King was recognized and cheered by the populace. He decided then never again to show himself until Belgium was free of German soldiers.

The White Book, published with King Leopold's approval by the Loyalist Committee of Belgian Refugees at Biarritz, is in preparation for the second anniversary of the Belgian Army's surrender to the Germans on May 28, 1940.

Invasion Stroke By Hitler Seen Shortly

LONDON, May 5 (CP)—A Canadian Broadcasting Corporation commentator, analyzing Hitler's Reichstag speech last Sunday as an Axis-concocted "army game" designed to screen bold strategic moves, said last night Germany "may attempt a smashing blow at Britain any time now—perhaps tonight."

The commentator, Bob Bowman of Ottawa, said in the CBC's "Canadian News Review" broadcast a Berlin-dictated invasion attempt may be "the big story behind the news" this week.

Bowman, recently returned to Britain, declared talks with the managing editor of a British newspaper convinced him that when Hitler "stood up and hinted at impending defeat" in his Reichstag speech, he was "only trying to pull the wool over our eyes." Bowman did not identify the British editor.

"It's just the old army game," he said.

The commentator declared Hitler has passed his most critical period in Russia. He had avoided "the most disastrous rebound" of the campaign but he was not likely to throw another 3,000,000 men into the battle.

Best Blitzkrieg General.

As portents of a possible German invasion, Bowman pointed to the presence on the Western Front of the German General von Runstedt, described as "Hitler's best blitzkrieg general." Ostensibly, von Runstedt was in Western Europe to organize channel defenses.

"Does that seem logical for Hitler's best blitzkrieg general?" Bowman asked.

Germany had 750,000 troops on the west coast of Europe, including "thousands of parachutists." Heavy enemy fleet units were concontrated at Trondheim and other coastal bases.

(The British Admiralty announced tonight that the German battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst and the heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen are definitely out of action and must undergo extensive repairs.)

Reason for Move Inferred

"Germany must attack Britain now before the Americans get over in force," the commentator said.

Bowman added that he thought invasion would come as a surprise to most Britons, although morale was good. The visit to Britain of General George C. Marshall of the United States Army was taken as a "portent of action" in the United Kingdom.

He said he did not share the belief Canadian troops in Britain were overtrained. They would constitute a "hard-hitting spearhead" against invasion.

Blaze In Belgium

LONDON, May 5.—(CP).—A large fire broke out during the week-end near the Eisden station in the Limburg mining disrict of Belgium and spread rapidly in the direction of Asch and Mechelen on the Meuse river, the Independent Belgian News Agency reported yesterday.

Learning To Fire Torpedoes

With a naval officer as instructor, cadets at the naval training station at San Diego, Cal., learn the art of firing lethal "tin fish" from torpedo tubes. Soon they will be firing their shots at enemy vessels in sea war of attrition.

Commons Lost In 2-Day Battle

LONDON, May 5 — (CP). — The Houses of Parliament were in the hands of 'enemy parachute troops' last night—after a two-day battle—according to the rule of a military referee.

In realistic invasion test with blank ammunition, fireworks and smoke pots, peers, commoners, government officials and members of the press gallery were routed by 1,500 British soldiers impersonating German parachute troops after a struggle through the miles of corridors of the historic buildings.

The invaders stormed Westminster Palace under cover of a smoke screen and gained a bridgehead in spite of the heavy fire of the defenders.

Frequent hand to hand encounters, in which peers grappled with privates, occurred in the mock fight which extended over several blocks of the Westminster area.

Fashionable Park Lane, Hyde Park and St. James Park were the scenes of fierce 'guerilla battles,' with the action particularly heavy around Victoria Station. In the end the invaders were forced to bypass that bastion of the defenders.

The invaders were well supplied with diagrams of the area and of the buildings, supposedly furnished by 'fifth columnists.'

The exercise started Saturday and the last shots were not fired until 10 a.m. to-day.

Felt Tired, Nervous, Rundown; Back Ached; Stomach Rebelled

Recommends Syntona to All Who Suffer Similarly. Says Stomach Felt Better From First Few Doses. Then Nerves Relaxed and Pains Went Away.

MRS. WESLEY HARRISON

"There has been such a definite improvement in my health since I've been taking Syntona that I will be only too glad to have others know about this medicine," said Mrs. Wesley Harrison 151 Tragina Avenue North, Hamilton, in a recent report.

"In the last year I was troubled constantly with a dull ache in my back, and, no mater what I tried, I couldn't get rid of it. I had become rundown, my nerves were bad and I couldn't sleep, so I felt tired and worn out right from the beginning of each day. My appetite wasn't very good and what little food I did eat just seemed to sour in my stomach and cause gas, bloat and cramps. I was subject to frequent headaches and I often felt light-headed and dizzy.

"My husband was using Syntona and it seemed to be helping him, so I decided to take some, too, and it helped my stomach right from the first few doses. Now, after a few weeks, I am feeling ever so much better. My nerves are relaxed and the pains have gone from my back, so I can get a good night's sleep and I arise mornings feeling rested and ready for the day's work. I am free of those dizzy spells and headaches and I can enjoy my meals without all that gas and indigestion."

Syntona produces these results with out the aid of harsh drugs or depressors. It is made only from the pure extracts of herbs, roots and barks that have long been known for their medicinal value. Make up your mind to take Syntona yourself. See how much better you can be feeling in just a short time.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

Steel Workers Back Murray

PITTSBURG, May 5 — (AP). — Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, today had a vote of confidence from the Steel Workers Organizing Committee in which the C.I.O. steel workers declared they would not tolerate any attempt to "undermine his leadership."

Four hundred S.W.O.C. delegates, meeting yesterday, adopted a resolution expressing "deep gratitude and loyalty" to Murray, their chairman.

The conferees took no action in regard to President Roosevelt's proposed wage stabilization program. Murray commented later at a press conference that both the C.I.O. and A.F.L. have expressed "unalterable opposition to national wage freezing."

"I have never known a war that is more of labor's war than this war," he said. "I know that in the United States there are forces operating that would like to have the trade union movement destroyed. These forces are commonly referred to as isolationists. They would rather impede the winning of the war through anti-labor legislation."

Addressing his home United Workers local at Cokesburg, Pa., Saturday, Murray broke into tears when he said he hoped "I am given the chance to live and die and fight for, and with, the miners."

This apparently referred to reports that the U.M.W. president, John L. Lewis, is planning to remove him as vice-president of the Miners' Union, his only salaried union job.

3 Departments Favor CNR Most

OTTAWA May 5—(CP).—Three cabinet ministers told the railway and shipping committee of the House of Commons today that the Canadian National Railway gets more than half the railway business from their departments.

Transport Minister Cardin placed the estimate for his department at 65 per cent Canadian National and 35 per cent Canadian Pacific Railway. Defence Minister Ralston and Munitions Minister Howe gave the division for their departments at 60 per cent C.N.R. and 40 per cent C.P.R.

The ministers indicated they would favor leaving the competing railways free to obtain business without any definite instructions being issued by the government.

This was in accordance with a statement made to the committee by R. C. Vaughan, C.N.R. president, who said al the railay seeks is to have any existing instructions for division of government business removed and the field left open to competition.

The committee lat year urged that the C.N.R., with larger mileage, more employees and higher fixed charges, should be given more government business than the C.P.R.

The committee resuming its session this year inquired what action had been taken.

R. C. Vaughan, C.N.R. preident, told the committee efforts had been made to obtain increased government business but without any great success. Some C.N.R. officials were under the impression instructions had been issued for a 50-50 division while he felt his road should get 65 per cent.

Ralph Maybank (Lib. Winnipeg South Centre) today insisted Mr. Vaughan should table correspondence he had had on the subject with various ministers. Mr. Vaughan objected on the ground the letters were marked "private and confidential." The committee last week passed a motion asking the correspondence be produced.

Red Siberian Reserves Score Victory

1st "Spring Division" Takes River Valley In Initial Engagement

By HENRY CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer.

MOSCOW, May 6.—(AP).—Russia's first 'spring division' brought out of reserve in Siberia and thrown into action on an undisclosed sector of the front, was reported to-day to have won a victory over the Germans and captured an important river valley.

Red Star, mouthpiece of the Russian army, said this vanguard of the new armies formed during the winter deep in the Soviet interior reached the front last month and proved its strength from its first fighting test.

Russian dispatches received in London said Marshal Simeon Timoshenko's troops, striking forward in a developing campaign in the Ukraine, had beaten off several German counter-attacks with heavy losses and kept the Germans from regaining their lost ground.

(These reports said the Germans counter-attacked in several sectors near industrial Kharkov and Taganrog in an attempt to break up what appeared to be a Russian spring offensive at the southern flank of the battlefront.)

Red Star reported that the 'spring division' attacked Nazi forces holding both banks of a river, and on the second day of its offensive had driven the Germans from their positions on one bank and captured a village there despite strong resistance.

Marblehead Home

WASHINGTON, May 6 —(AP)).—The United States light cruiser Marblehead, which the Japanese have several times claimed to have sunk, has arrived at an east coast port, the Navy Department announced today, badly damaged and torn by bombs but "very much afloat." The 7,050-ton cruiser has steamed 13,000 miles, half-way around the world, making a portion of the trip with her steering gear disabled and sometimes barely managing to keep afloat, to "bring her wounds of war home for healing and testify to the struggles of captain and crew to keep their badly damaged ship going, even though water at times poured like a torrent through her sides."

U.S. Bombers Fire Jap Burma Base

R.A.F. Rakes Barges, Fear Capture Facing Some Troops

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW DELHI, India, May 6—(AP)—United States heavy bomber forces lashed at Mingaladon airdrome just north of Rangoon three times this morning, following up Monday night's furious attack on the same objective in which, American sources said, 40 Japanese planes were destroyed and 25 others damaged.

A communique said three flights of planes, engaged in almost continuous long-distance attacks, set fires today which could be seen for 70 miles.

These attacks were a follow-up to complete the destruction of a large concentration of Japanese planes marshalled on Mingaladon, formerly Britain's major air base in Southern Burma.

How successful these successive blows have been was indicated by yesterday's announcement that 70 Japanese planes were known to be at this field, and today's unofficial report that already 65 of them had been destroyed or seriously damaged and a gasoline dump and hangars wiped out.

Sweeping through heavy anti-aircraft fire and the attack of at least eight Japanese fighter planes, the bombers today plunked 250-pound bombs into the centre of fires and explosions set in the previous raids.

R.A.F. Scatters Barges

The R.A.F., timing its blows with the American attack, struck anew at barges bringing Japanese war material and perhaps troops up the Chindwin river on the Burma front 400 miles to the north.

In the land fighting wear British and Indian forces were fighting a continued rearguard action in the Chindwin Valley.

As the main British forces fell back, a military commentator said they might have to abandon some of their heavier equipment, but that they are in no greater danger of entrapment than for the last three days.

However, it is conceded the Japanese may eventually cut them off, despite the heroice aid of civilian pilots flying troops and civilians out in unarmed transport planes shuttling between India and the front.

Vichy's Actions In Madagascar Hostile Says U.S.

By WADE WERNER
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP).—The Vichy Government's resistance to the British forces landing on Madagascar is regarded in United States diplomatic circles to-day as an act which might be construed as hostile to the United Nations and hence basis for a move against the Vichy-controlled bases flanking the Panama Canal.

The United States stood ready for any Western Hemisphere repercussions, but there was no official indication of what moves President Roosevelt might order in support of the British policy of seizing French military bases before the Axis has a chance to grab them.

Chief of Government Laval's sharp rejection of the American note backing Britain's action, coupled with Chief of State Petain's order to fight and Admiral Darlan's vitriolic denunciation of British "highway robbery" ended any expectation here Vichy might take the landing as philosophically as it took the Japanese occupation of French Indo-China last year. It raised the question of whether Vichy-controlled bases in the Caribbean area—Martinique, Guadeloupe, and French Guiana—could be allowed to remain in Vichy hands.

Diplomatic observers pointed to that section of the American note to Vichy which warned that "any warlike act permitted by the French government against the government of Great Britain or of the United States would, of necessity, have to be regarded by the government of the United States as an attack upon the United Nations as a whole."

Vichy, these observers stressed, not only has permitted such warlike acts against the British landing forces but has ordered them, and ordered them with vehemence. Therefore if such action is regarded as "an attack upon the United Nations as a whole," all French overseas bases under Vichy control must be regarded as hostile bases.

Fort Pounded Helpless After 28 Days

Beach Defences Gone Food, Shells Low Troops Overwhelmed

WASHINGTON, May 6—(CP).—Corregidor Fortress fell into the hands of the Japanese, the War Department reported today, after being pounded into helplessness by unceasing artillery fire and bombardment from the air.

The surrender of the Manila Bay fortress came after 28 days of siege climaxed by a day of constant firing which swept away the beach defences and made it possible for the invaders to pour ashore from steel barges.

The tired defenders long had been cut off from supplies and reinforcements.

A communique said that one of the last messages received from Lt.-Gen. Jonathan Wainwright before the fall of Corregidor reported that casualties among the defenders were heavy during the last few days, and the constant pounding by the enemy resulted in severe damage to military installations.

For the fourth consecutive day, there were 13 separate air attacks on Corregidor May 5, Wainwright reported, but the shelling by Japanese 240-millimetre siege guns was more disastrous than the aerial bombardment. The final artillery barrage detroyed barbed wire entaglements and blasted machine-gun installations and other centres of resistance, Wainwright said, and the Japanese brought their assault troops across the narrow stretch of water from Bataan peninsula in a large number of steel barges.

Corregidor's guns replied to the enemy artillery fire and shelled truck columns in Bataan during the last day, Wainwright reported, but the counter-battery fire was severely handicapped, as it had been throughout the siege of the Manila Bay forts, by lack of aerial observation.

American-Filipino troops continued to plague the enemy with guerilla warfare in various parts of Cebu, Mindanao and Panay islands.

Just how many survived the weeks-long ordeal of air raids and artillery bombardments was not known, but it was generally estimated there were about 7,000 men and women altogether on the fortified islands.

These included a naval detach-

Gas Conservation?

TORONTO, May 6—(CP).—Gasoline sales in Ontario for the first three months of this year increased by 7,527,222 gallons over the same period last year, Ontario Department of Highways reported today. Figures for April under rationing are not available, but officials believe sales may exceed the 25,253,437 gallons sold in April, 1941. The daily increase during January, February and March over the same period last year was 83,635 gallons, total sales for the three months of this year being 82,249,397, and a year ago 74,722,175 gallons.

RAF Lambastes Stuttgart 2nd Right In Row

LONDON, May 6.—(CP)—Industrial plants in Stuttgart again were bombed by the Royal Air Force for the second night in succession last night and British raiders also attacked other targets in Southern Germany, it was announced today. The raids were the third in a row against Germany since the start of a new series of aerial assaults Sunday on Hitler's war and industrial machines.

From these and other engagements, four bombers are missing, the Air Ministry announced.

It said the docks at Nantes were again bombed and airdromes of Northern France and the Low Countries were attacked.

A temporary waning of Nazi retaliatory raids was evident as the R.A.F. pursued a program of destruction which has taken heavy bomber command units into Germany 21 times since April 1.

Light German forces made dusk and dawn forays against southeast English coastal districts with bombs and gunfire, killing two or more persons and causing some damage. Four planes took part in the twilight attack. Two executed the morning raid.

A communique of the ministries of air and home security announced, however, that "during the the hours of darkness there was nothing to report."

The night raid into Germany followed four daylight sweeps across the English Channel against German bases in Zeebrugge, Belgium, and occupied France. Six British planes are missing from these engagements against four German craft shot down.

Waves Of Navy Planes Bomb French Harbor Forces While Tanks Spur Land Push

Two Of 3 Vichy Craft Sunk In Battle, Casualties Mount As French Fight Hopelessly To Hold Big Northern Base

By J. WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 6—(AP).—British commandos and light tank forces battled French Colonial troops at the outskirts of Diego Suarez today, and reports from Vichy indicated that the fall of that key naval base on the big island of Madagascar was imminent.

A joint Admiralty - War Office communique noted, however, that the advance of the British forces was being "resisted with determination and casualties today have been heavier."

"Operations continue with the support of our naval aircraft," it added.

The Vichy radio said latest reports from the island were that fighting between the British and French forces was growing fiercer and that waves of British planes were bombing light French naval forces in the harbor of Diego Suarez. Ten British planes were shot down yesterday, the radio claimed.

The British force, striking quickly to prevent Madagascar falling into Japanese hands as a threat to Allied shipping in the Indian Ocean, advanced about 20 miles from the shore opposite Diego Suarez, and Vichy announced loss of two of their three warships in a vain attack on British transports laden with men and tanks.

2 French Craft Lost

The French ships, sunk by British naval gunfire, were the 1,379-ton submmarine Beveziers and the 7,110-ton auxiliary cruiser Bougainville.

While Vichy said its forces were "resisting along the first line of Redoubts," they were being bombarded from the air and Madagascar's inconsequential air force was striving almost hopelessly to stave off the assault.

British planes dominated the skies over Diego Suarez and British warships appeared to hold firm control of the surrounding seas, a British military commentator said, so that the way was paved for the ground forces to seize the port's fortifications one by one from the rear.

This out-manoeuvring of Diego Suarez' outward defences accounted for the 20-mile British march in an area where the two coasts are only three to 10 miles apart.

The British commentator said the land configuration forced the troops to take a roundabout route.

Most of Crew Saved

The French said most of the crews of the sugmarine and the auxiliary cruiser, which once was a France-to-Africa passenger ship, had been rescued. Fate of the third French ship was not reported.

All Vichy accounts spoke of stout defence by outnumbered French colonials, but the British commentator declined to confirm a French estimate that the landing force numbered 20,000 and that parachute troops were being used.

The radio in German-occupied Paris was heard to say: "Fighting has been going on in Madagascar for 24 hours, and a handful of French Colonials, without hope of help or reinforcements from the home country, have been fighting step by step against the British aggressors.

Two More Escape Bowmanville, Muff Plane Dash

The passenger or passengers in the plane had disappeared from the scene before investigators arrived. The plane was damaged. It was believed by investigating officials the plane was stolen by two German prisoners of war who escaped yesterday from an internment camp at Bowmanville.

The prisoners both lieutenants in the German air force, are Reinhardt Pfundter and Ernst Wagner, the

Sen. Ballantyne New Tory Leader

OTTAWA, May 6 — (CP). — Senator Charles C. Ballantyne of Ottawa and Montreal to-day was appointed Conservative Leader in the Upper House at a caucus of Senators of his party.

He succeeds Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen of Toronto, who resigned from the Senate early this year before unsuccessfully contesting the February 9 York South by-election for a seat in the House of Commons.

Announcement of Senator Ballantyne's appointment was made by Senator J. J. Donnelly (Con. Ontario) who presided over this morning's caucus. He said the selection of Senator Ballantyne was unanimous.

Senator Ballantyne, who represents Quebec's Alma Division in the Senate, has been acting Conservative Senate Leader since Mr. Meighen's resignation.

Seventy-four years old, he was born in Dundas County, Ont. In the First Great War he raised a service battalion for overseas service.

In 1917 he became Minister of Public Works and later the same year Minister of the Naval Service, continuing in that post until his defeat in the 1921 general election and his retirement from office with Mr. Meighen's ministry on December 29 that year.

He was summoned to the Senate in 1932.

Canucks In Van Of 'Hot' April For Hun Targets

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 6 —(CP Cable) — The air ministry today summed up statistically details of the Royal Air Force's April offensive, supporting with figures Britain's claim that the Axis is being smashed from the air harder than at any time in history.

Crediting "more favorable climatic conditions" for the intensified bombing, the air ministry told how during April:—

1. 175 attacks were made on 62 targets in Europe, the Middle East and Far East.

2. 287 enemy aircraft were destroyed against an R.A.F. loss of 314, exclusive of the Far East.

3. 31 Axis ships were sunk, blasted or set afire.

These figures were compared with those of March when 136 raids were made on 55 targets and 155 enemy aircraft were destroyed for a British loss of 144.

Canadian crews have figured in operations in almost every theatre of the war and a spokesman for the R.C.A.F., reviewing the part they played in the offensive, disclosed that on the basis of the number of man-hours flown in active operations against the enemy, April was their busiest month of the war.

"The full extent of their operations can't be told but the measure of it can be gained from three highlights which marked the work of the R.C.A.F. personnel of three great battlefields of this second world war," the spokesman said.

Destroyer Bags U Boat, One Shot

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP)—"The debris in the water left no doubt that the sub had gone straight to the bottom—and for good." And so, naval auhorities disclosed today, another Axis undersea raider was eliminated by the Atlantic patrol. The job was done by an old four-stack destroyer whose spotlight picked out the submarine lying on the surface, charging her batteries.

A chief boatswain's mate manning a machine gun set fiery tracer bullets zinging out at the submarine, forcing some of the crew to leap into the sea.

The submarine fired two torpedoes, both of which were wide. Then from the destroyer came the sharp crack of a four-inch gun fired at almost point-blank range. There was a dull boom and a gaping hole showed in the side of the submarine, which slowly rolled over and disappeared. The destroyer dropped depth bombs also.

Corregidor's Rocks Fail Without Air Aid

Garrison's Gallant Stand Major Key In Blocking Invasion Of Australia

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The fall of Corregidor at long last gives the Japanese use of the strategic naval base over which this little Gibraltar stood such gallant guard, but the delay imposed on the enemy program of advance by the brilliant defence of Bataan and Corregidor has been of inestimable value to the Allies in the preparation of the all-important defences of Australia and otherwise getting set for action.

Manila with its defences was the barrier which the Japs had to crash in order to perfect their attenuated sea communications with the homeland and permit them to race onward toward Indonesia and Australia. Had they not been halted in the Philippines, Australia might long ago have experienced invasion.

Under the circumstances one finds it difficult to look upon the surrender of the rock of Corregidor as a defeat. Not only has it made an invaluable contribution to Allied arms but, as President Roosevelt said in his message to Gen. Wainwright:

"You and your devoted followers have become the living symbols of our war aims and the guarantee of victory."

Wainwright and his men never had a chance to win through against the overwhelming striking power of the attacking Japanese. Not only were the men without air protection and under a merciless cross fire from heavy artillery on both sides of the harbor, but they had run short of ammunition and even lacked sufficient food. They must have been in a state of physical collapse from want of nourishment and sleep after almost a month of continual bombardment, when the Japanese swarmed ashore and enforced surrender.

Corregidor was a powerful position. Most of its important defences were as in the case of the mighty Gibraltar, hewn out of the interior of the rock. Together with its three companion islands—Caballo, El Fraile, and Carabao, all of which possess forts—it dominated the great Bay of Manila and prevented one of the world's finest harbors from being used by the Japanese.

Lack of adequate air defence was one of the main causes of the loss of the Philippines, and the same was true of Malaya, Singapore, and Indonesia. Corregidor's rock strength couldn't offset that disadvantage.

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Hull said today that Vichy's rejection of an United States note backing up the British coup on Madagascar called for a reply, and he added grimly it would certainly receive one. Whether the reply would be in the form of a note or in the form of action, he left unanswered.

LONDON—(AP).— British forces blasted their way into the outskirts of the Madagascar naval base of Diego Suarez to-day despite heavy casualties by French colonials. An appeal by Laval's government for Axis aid was forecast by Free French sources in London after a day of furious activity by the Vichy regime. Some predicted Laval might declare war on Britain.

Zippers Still For Canada

St. Catharines Man Discovers New Secret Metal

OTTAWA, May 6 (CP)—Zippers will remain on the Canadian market, the department of public information announced today. But the Wartime Prices and Trade Board said that their use will still be restricted under the regulations established March 3.

At that time, due to war priorities, it was announced that women's dresses could have only one zipper each—nine inches for street length, 12 inches for evening. Separate skirts could have only seven-inch zippers, and housecoats, 28-inch zippers. Many children's garments could have no zippers.

It was learned here, however, that a St. Catharines, Ont., manufacturer has announced discovery of a secret metal composition, which can be used to make zippers. It was understood that the composition is made up of metals not vital to Canada under present war circumstances.

However, it was learned that the Wartime Prices Board has no intention of altering its ruling as far as ready made clothing is concerned, at least at present.

Vichy Being Kept Awake

Alarm Sounds As Strange Plane Drops Flares

VICHY, May 6 —(AP)—Advices from Paris said today that an air alarm sounded in the German-occupied French capital during the night.

A Vichy statement gave this review of aerial incidents since the week-end:—

"In the night of May 3-4, Toulon and Marseille were flown over. Anti-aircraft defences entered into action.

"During the night of May 4-5, an isolated plane flew over Chateauroux, later flying over Clermont-Ferrand on its way northward, passing Vichy in the direction of Moulins.

"This plane dropped flares, some of which produced a rather loud detonation.

"In addition it appears that a second plane flew over Cermont-Ferrand.

"If air raid precaution measures were not taken, it merely was out of consideration for the sleep of the population and in conformity to orders which specify not to give the alert except in case of real danger."

YES VOTE IS INCREASED TO 63 PER CENT BY THE ARMED FORCES

Armed Forces Vote 80 p.c. Yes

251,118 Yes, 60,885 No Latest Civilian Figures 63 P.C. Yes

OTTAWA, May 6 — (CP). — Eighty per cent of the members of Canada's armed forces were on record to-day in favor of freeing the Government from any restrictions on the methods of raising men for military service.

The result of the armed services voting in the manpower plebiscite showed a considerably larger majority of "yes" ballots than was shown in the civilian voting. Latest civilian figures for the civilian balloting showed 63 per cent voted "yes."

Here is how Canada's soldiers, sailors airmen, and members of the women's uniformed services voted: "Yes," 251,118; "No," 60,885.

The results, from members of the forces in the Dominion and overseas, were announced late yesterday by Jules Castonguay, chief plebiscite officer.

Here are the figures, given in four different divisions;

Overseas—Yes 60,474, No 23,707.

Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island—Yes 41,720, No 5,821.

Ontario and Quebec—Yes 93,203, No 20,341.

Manitoba Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia, and The Yukon—Yes 55,721, No 11,016.

No Districts Named.

The overseas figure comprised those who voted in the United Kingdom, Jamaica and Newfoundland. Originally it had been expected the returns would be announced by the special plebiscite districts established for the services—four in Canada and three overseas. The form in which the result was announced was apparently for reasons of military secrecy

An Explanation?

OTTAWA, May 6 — (CP). — Defence Minister Ralston plans to make a statement in the House of Commons to-day concerning the latest escape of prisoners of war from a Bowmanville, Ont., camp, it was learned to-day.

A 12-Hour Start.

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., May 6.—(CP)—Two German prisoners-of-war—the latest to escape from palatial quarters used here to house captured officers—had at least a 12-hour start on the road to freedom it was indicated when the last details of their break were gathered up early today.

The prisoners, both lieutenants in the German air force, are Reinhardt Pfundter and Ernst Wagner, the latter a former ski instructor who plied his profession in both Montreal and New York in 1937 and 1938.

They dropped from sight about 11 a.m. yesterday and it wasn't until the night roll call was taken that their absence was discovered. A description of the two men was not available to the press until 3 a.m. today. At that time no details were released as to how the men effected their get-away.

Wagner, who is said to speak both excellent English and French, is 34 years of age, give feet, nine inches tall and weighs 178 pounds. He is very fair in complexion; has blue eyes, is clean shaven and carries himself erect.

Pfundter is 21; five feet, four inches in height; 160 pounds in weight; has dark complexion and eyes; black hair and is of heavy, short build. He also speaks English. Neither prisoner has any visible marks or scars.

Deadline Is Fixed On Registration Cards

A dead-line has now been fixed by the Unemployment Insurance Commission for the return of registration cards and old insurance books to Employment and Claims Offices, according to Mr. Bill Mellis, manager of the local offices.

The final day for turning in those cards and old books is May 9, and anyone failing to do so will be liable to penalties. The information on these cards is urgently needed to make an inventory of Canada's available man-power. Also insurance books for the present fiscal year cannot be issued until the old books and registration cards are turned in to Employment and Claims offices.

Captain Holmes, in his address, stated that criticisms were so easy to make, but in his inspection of the Port Hope High School Cadet Corps they were very hard to find. Captain Holmes also congratulated the boys for their fine appearance on parade and stated they were exceptionally well trained. The Cadets were told of the camp at the Connaught Ranges this summer for boys from 16 to 18 years of age.

Captain Holmes was given the privilege of choosing the Cadet whom he thought exhibited the most esprit de corps which he claimed was a most difficult task, but for all-round work and appearance he chose Cadet 2nd Lieut. The best platoon was another another hard choice as all were equally good, but the honor went to No. 1 Platoon in charge of 1st Lieut. Gordon Elliott, who received the Charles Wickett Trophy, for the Charles Wickett Trophy, on behalf of his platoon, which was presented by Major J. A. V. Fraser.

A special honor then was bestowed on 1st Lieut. Gordon Elliott, when Major Fraser presented him with the special class D.C.R. Rifle Association Medal for having obtained 92 per cent average on three shoots which is a high score in the Dominion marksmanship competition.

Longmore, who reported during the morning that only one contagious disease had been brought to his attention since the first of the year.

Mrs. T. Dunham addressed council with the request that they contribute the cost of a wire fence bordering her property in the western part of the township. They offered to give the matter consideration and said it would be viewed when the annual road inspection was made. Reeve Chas. Calver of Campbellford interviewed the meeting regarding the use by the town of the township owned road maintainer. After some discussion they offered to rent it to the corporation at $18.56 per day together with two men to operate the machine. During the term of rental the town will also pay one half the cost of maintenance.

Next to be dealt with was the appointment of a weed inspector who is paid an hourly rate together with expenses. Robt. McCulloch was given the appointment replacing James Waters who held the position in 1941. He will continue at the same salary and the clerk was instructed to prepare a by-law covering the appointment.

Nab OBE Holder For $900 Theft

HALIFAX, May 6—(CP).—Florent Morin, 23-year-old Sherbrooke, Que., seaman who won the Order of the British Empire for repairing the scalp of an injured Norwegian sailor with only hooks and curtain clasps as surgical instruments, has been arrested here on a theft charge which arose in Montreal.

Detective Fernand Vachon of the Montreal Police Department arrived here today to take the seaman back to Montreal, where he is charged with having stolen $900 from an individual last April 18. Morin was arrested Sunday night by Halifax detectives who made no announcement of the incident until today.

Montreal authorities got on the trail of Morin April 23, Halifax detectives said, when a story of his surgical feat appeared in Montreal newspapers under a Halifax dateline. Last Saturday, the Halifax Police Department was asked in a letter to pick up Morin for Montreal authorities.

In telling of the operation for which he won the O.B.E., Morin said it was performed on the deck of a Canadian corvette which rescued Morin and the Norwegian sailor, along with a group of other seamen, from a lifeboat on which they had ben adrift three hours after their merchant ship was torpedoed off Iceland.

bombed their target.

"In the Middle East FO. R. C. Fumerton of Fort Coulonge, Que., continued his exceptional night flying exploits, scoring two victories over German raiders at Alexandria within 15 minutes.

"And in the Far East a Canadian-manned flying boat was the first to spot the approach of carrier-borne Japanese bombers to Colombo (Ceylon). This crew's report to Ceylon defence authorities—the last it ever sent out—was responsible for the heavy losses inflicted on the raiders when they reached the city."

It was in the European theatre that the Canadians had the busiest time, however. R.C.A.F. Spitfire squadrons took part in almost all day sorties among 56 attacks carried out day and night against 22 targets in occupied Europe, 14 of them against Le Havre, seven against Dunkirk, five against St. Omer and three against Cherbourg.

Some of the Boston and Hurricane bombers used in the sweeps were manned by R.C.A.F. crews, many of them by pilots getting into their first real actions.

Out Every Night

Meanwhile in the shortening hours of darkness R.C.A.F. squadrons were out every night that weather permitted, attacking targets in Germany and occupied France.

The Air Ministry said the Bomber Command as a whole attacked eight targets in Germany 19 times. Five raids were directed against the Ruhr, four on Rostok, three on the Rhineland and two each on Cologne and Hamburg.

In addition home-based aircraft bombed Italy once and an attack was made on the Skoda armament factories at Pilsen in conquered Czecho-Slovakia. Raids against occupied territory included two against the German naval base at Trondheim, Norway, while in the Middle East 57 attacks were made on 12 targets, 17 on Bengasi, 10 on Martuba, eight on Derna and six each on Berka and Crete.

Jungle Scrap On Near Naval Base

Vichy Admits Sub And Sloop Sunk; Casualties Light

LONDON, May 6 — (CP).—British troops are approaching Diego Suarez, the naval base and key to Madagascar after having smashed 20 miles through "stiffening French resistance" in a swift drive to clench the island for securing of the Allied shipping lanes in the Indian Ocean, a military commentator said to-day.

He named Diego Suarez and Antsirana as the chief objectives of the British advance which, he said, still is progressing "satisfactorily" although Vichy French resistance grew stronger as the British troops plunged through the jungle on the far northern tip of the island.

This source revised the original estimate of the distance between the Courrier Bay landing and Diego Suarez from 10 miles to the greater distance.

He refused to confirm the Vichy estimate of the landing forces as 20,000 or that parachute troops were being used.

Vichy strength was appraised at 1,500 Frenchmen and 3,700 Colonials. The French obedient to the Vichy Government's dictate to fight to the end, were believed here, however, to be inferior to the forces Britain has put ashore.

There was no British word on the possibility of future landings on the island, but it was pointed out here that Madagascar scarcely could be caled "safe" with occupation only of Diego Suarez.

Must Get Airdromes.

Airfields such as the one at Tulear on the south-west coast, down almost the whole length of the 1,000-mile-long island, it was pointed out, would afford the Japanese an opportunity to attack with air-borne infantry and parachutists as the Germans did to capture Crete.

These airfields, it was noted also, are vital if Madagascar is to be used as an air base for attacks on Japanese naval forces in the Indian Ocean and to patrol the three sea lanes passing near it.

These are: 1—Through the Mozambique Channel to Suez and Iran; 2—From the Cape of Good Hope to Colombo and Calcutta; 3—From the Cape to Durban, South Africa, thence to Australia.

In Vichy, it was announced that

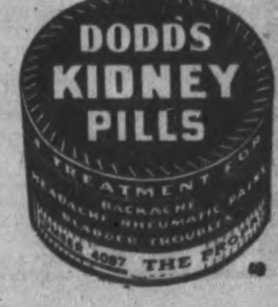
Cobourg Briefs

The Selrite store in Cobourg is moving shortly into the premises owned by Sam Stover, formerly occupied by a fruit store. This will leave the present premises of the Selrite store vacant. There are five vacant store on Cobourg's main business street.

At a meeting with W. A. Fraser, M.P. for Northumberland County, the town council were informed some weeks ago that it was impossible at present to get Cobourg a war industry or any other type of factory. Meanwhile the agitation grows to line up something for the town to increase business and provide the public with more money to spend.

May 30th is the date of Cobourg's main salvage drive with the Navy League playing a prominent part in the drive. The skating rink will be the main salvage depot where the task of storing and sorting the collected articles will be carried out.



Police Chairman Wants No Interference

PORT HOPE, May 6—(ENS).—The regular meeting of the town council took place on Monday with all but one member, Councillor Hugh Bird, present.

In the correspondence a letter from J. C. Kelley, acting salvage officer at Ottawa was read pertaining to the war trophies located in the town that have not as yet been turned over to the salvage and requesting that a decision be made, and that a reply to previous letters regarding this matter be sent. This refers to the iron canons now on display in front of the town hall.

Mr. W. E. Thompson, newly appointed chairman of the police committee, reported that a special meeting of this committee had met with Chief of Police Thos. Murphy in regard to hours and duties expected of the force, each being specified and pointing out that it is his intention to have the police department reorganized with a view to the betterment of law and order for the town. It was made plain that any interference from the members of the council or citizens at large would not be tolerated by the police committee and that any such complaints or criticisms of the work of the police should be made to Mr. Thompson as chairman of this committee, and he promised prompt action on the same.

A resolution was passed in regard to the Hagerman street sewer and a request written to the effect that a detailed report from the engineer must be before the council before May 16.

Councillor Moore, chairman of the finance committee, announced that at the next meeting of the council he would introduce a bylaw confirming the tax rate at 43½ mills for 1942.

Councillor Belyea reported his committee had unanimously agreed to the oiling of the following streets, which was ultimately passed by the council—Bloomsgrove avenue, Ward street, Barret, King, Hope from Ward south to highway, Dorset, Augusta, Brown, Bedford, Bramley from Dorset to Ridout, Victoria from Ridout to Trafalgar.

There were also two deputations. Mr. Morgan addressed the council asking the privilege of opening a pool room in the Outram block, corner of Walton and Queen street, in the old Bank of Montreal building, but no decision was given on account of a bylaw permitting only two pool rooms in the town.

Mr. Moore, chairman of finance, gave a detailed statement of relief vouchers issued and the number to receive relief in 1942 in comparison to 1941: April 1942, 10, April 1941, 14; expenditure—1942, provisions, $43.94, 1941, $44.55; fuel, 1942, $16.85, 1941, $15.60; shelter, 1942, $11.00, 1941, $8.50; March 1942, number of persons, 17; provisions $44.04; fuel, $33.20; Shelter, $10.68.

Two Cars In Crash East Of Cobourg

COBOURG, May 6—(ENS).—Two cars were involved in an accident three miles east of here when a car parked on the highway was struck in the rear by another car. According to Provincial Constable Broughton of Port Hope, who investigated, a car in charge of Arnold Bull of Cobourg was parked on the highway, with only a small portion on the shoulder of the road, when a car driven by Harold Mordon of Toronto collided with it. The accident occurred at ten o'clock at night. None of the passengers was hurt. Provincial Constable Broughton stated that a charge would be laid against Bull for parking on the highway.

Aggressive Boy Recovers Wheel

PORT HOPE, May 6—(ENS).—A few days ago when Charles Mark, Walton street, was returning home after school, on reaching the corner of Walton and Pine streets he noticed two young fellows from out of town hurrying up the hill with a bicycle which he recognized as belonging to his chum, Bobbie Town, of Bramley street, which bicycle had been left outside Strong's store while the lad procured his papers for delivery. Not knowing the two chaps who had the wheel young Mark accosted them and demanded where they had got that bicycle. He was told to mind his own business or they would bump his nose in for him but Mark continued to follow them along the street insisting that they give an account of their possession of the bicycle. At last, owing to the lad's persistency the two dropped the wheel and hurried on up the hill. Charles immediately grabbed the wheel and hurried down to the Magistrate's Office, where he reported the incident. Two provincial policemen were there who took him with them in their car and soon picked up the two culprits who were charged with the theft of the wheel in court the following morning, and let off on suspended sentence.

Magistrate Baxter congratulated Charles Mark on his foresight and aggressiveness which resulted in preventing the theft of his chum's wheel and bringing the guilty ones before the court.

Retain Denyes As Head Of Rotarians

CAMPBELLFORD, May 6 (ENS)—Rotarians here established a precedent on Monday when they named P. C. Denyes to head the club for the second consecutive year. Though the president's name did not even appear on the ballot and he was slated to automatically become the vice president, members were so satisfied with his leadership of the past year that they overlooked election rules and in tribute to the leadership under which the club nearly doubled in size during the past past twelve months they elected him again to the office. Other officers elected from the late of ten nominated a month ago were: Secretary, M. B. Sayers treasurer, R. J. Locke; executive, R. J. Bale, H. J. Taylor, E. A. Stuart.

H. D. Carling, City Traffic Manager for Trans Canada Air Lines, Toronto, was the guest speaker but he saved his remarks to be given as a prelude to the picture "Halifax to Vancouver by T.C.A.," which was presented before a large audience in the evening at the High School auditorium. He outlined the growth and development of the T.C.A. and briefly gave the gathering some idea of the important part it is playing in Canada's war effort. Some of the subterfuge adopted by air lines of the United States who were early in the passenger business was described by speaker Carling. He recalled a visit some years ago to an American airport when close scrutiny revealed the plane windows had pictures of people pasted on the inside to give the impression it was full and to thus help in overcoming the fear of air travel. Two years ago American Air Lines carried two million passengers and last year they doubled this figure. Growth of T.C.A. has been proportionately as great jumping from 22,000 in the opening year 1939 to 55,000 the following year and 86,000 in 1941. Though Canadians have in the speaker's opinion "taken to flying" there are still many who are in a position to fly (financially, it costs no more than rail travel) but do not. In addition to passengers Canadian Airways carried 1,400,000 pounds of mail or more than a quarter million letters every day, as well as 173,000 pounds of air express and 112,000 pounds of what came in the category of excess baggage.

Far-sighted Mr. Carling forecast that after the war more people than ever would take to the air and he expressed the feeling now held by many, that many an automobile would be replaced by an airmobile. The airplane is needed more today than ever before said the speaker who told something of the part T.C.A. pilots had played in the war effort by ferrying planes to Canada from U.S. factories and others who had been given three months leave to assist in flying Liberators across the North Atlantic to England thus paving the way for post war transoceanic travel by air. At the conclusion Mr. Carling answered a number of questions put to him by members of the audience.

Red Cross Active

The local branch of the Red Cross has already transformed a large amount of the material received a week ago into designs for blouses, skirts, and pneumonia jackets it was announced following the regular meeting Tuesday afternoon. With the material cut, and ready to be sewn the branch is now looking for additional volunteers to assist with this work and anyone desiring to help may obtain the material at the Red Cross rooms in the library basement.

Thanks was expressed to all who in any way contributed to the success of the bingo held on Saturday, when the ladies of Ward III raised $50 as a part of their contribution to the current drive.

To complete the effort to raise funds for the local branch Ward II will sponsor what is described as their final bingo of the season on May 9th.

At the close of the meeting an appeal was made to all those who are working on children's garments to complete and turn them in as soon as possible as one complete unit is being held up until all of this work is in.

W.M.S. Meeting

What was classified as a "War Meeting" was held by members of St. John's W.M.S. on Monday afternoon. Thirty-two women attended and listened with interest as Mrs. J. D. Mills read a paper by Eric Knight titled "They Don't Want Swamps and Jungles" and they also heard another timely piece "Let Us Stand Up and Take It" from a sermon delivered by Dr. Harry E. Fosdick. This latter article was read by the president, Mrs. E. C. Roberts. Mrs. A. E. Wragg offered a prayer for those in the armed forces and Mrs. A. D. Bennett prayed for the people in conquered countries and the prisoners of war.

During the business the treasurer, Mrs. E. Sykes, gave her report, revealing that during the first quarter $109 had been sent to the Presbytery treasurer in Roseneath. She also imparted the cheering news of the thank offering taken at last month's meeting. This had amounted to $80, she said. The sewing committee headed by Mrs. William Rannie and Mrs. Henry Free told the gathering a small bale had been packed during the month and sent to headquarters. Its principal contents were children's clothing.

Parish Hall Meeting

On Monday evening many of the congregation of Christ Church were on hand for a social gathering held in the Parish Hall. The event was arranged jointly by members of the Men's Club and the Parish Guild as a means of introducing them to Rev. A. C. Herbert and Mrs. Herbert of Hastings. Rev. Herbert is currently conducting the Sunday services at Christ Church following the enlistment in the Chaplain Service of Rev. T. S. Gault a month ago, and pending appointment of another rector for the Parish.

The evening was quite informal and opened with community singing for which the Men's Club president was leader with Mrs. James O. Benor presiding at the piano. Both Rev. and Mrs. Herbert took full advantage of the occasion to meet and talk with many members of the congregation and he lent additional interest to the affair by bringing with him and displaying a number of souvenirs of his ten years spent as a missionary in Canada's Arctic regions. Among them was a stuffed baby seal, Eskimo clothing, doll and boots. At the close members of the Parish Guild served refreshments.

Sir Edward Beatty Retires

For twenty-four years Sir Edward Beatty has been President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the largest privately owned transportation system in the world. He has seen the company through some difficult days and he has taken a great deal of rough with a very little smooth. He has always been deeply conscious of the duty of a great corporation toward the country in which it works, and he has done his best to make the C.P.R. a good citizen of Canada. His retirement because of ill-health is a misfortune for Canada at large, but it would be selfish to expect him to continue to bear so great a burden; he will still be Chairman of the Board, and so his experience and his remarkable intuition will not be wholly lost to the C.P.R. We hope that he will be happy in his partial retirement and that he will shortly recover his health.

Sir Edward is succeeded by Mr. D'Alton C. Coleman, who joined the C.P.R. in 1899. He has been Acting President for a year and in that time he has shown himself as the logical man for the Presidency. We wish him success and good luck in the arduous task which he has undertaken, and we congratulate the C.P.R. on having found so good a man to replace the good man that they have lost.

Death Of a Socialist Statesman

The death on Sunday last of Thorvald Stauning, Prime Minister of Denmark, took one of Europe's most experienced, wily and far-seeing statesman from the political scene. It was characteristic of Denmark, which combines advanced socialistic legislation with a conservative world-outlook and a popular monarchy, to have a Socialist and a labor leader as its Premier.

Stauning was born in 1874, the son of a poor cabinetmaker. He himself took up the trade of a cigar-maker and was president of the Cigar-Makers' Union by the time he was 22; he held this position for twelve years, during which time he raised himself to the point where he was the chief labor leader in Denmark. He was elected to the Danish parliament in 1906, and he became leader of the labor party in 1913. In 1916 he was appointed a Minister of State; his national duties mingled, but did not conflict, with his municipal duties, for he was a member of the Copenhagen City Council from 1913 until 1925, and its president during the last six years.

During the Great War Stauning took an active part in the Socialist attempt to end hostilities, which caused some stir at the time although it never came to anything. It was at this time that he was involved in a dispute with the American Minister to Denmark, who claimed that Stauning had spoken in a most unfriendly manner of the U.S.; Stauning said that he had been misquoted, and the matter was never satisfactorily settled. This incident, however, had an unfavorable effect upon his career.

Stauning first became Prime Minister of Denmark in 1924, and held office until 1926. He came to power again in 1929, after a heated election fought upon the question of disarmament. In 1932 he was elected once more, this time with an absolute majority. The 1935 elections gave even stronger evidence of his popularity and he remained at the head of affairs until the German occupation of Denmark. After that his task was to mediate between the conquerors and his own people and in this unhappy task he found exercise for his talents as a diplomat. His death came after a lengthy illness, and was not unexpected.

Stauning was a man of striking appearance; he was very tall, very big and wore a large red beard. In the Scandinavian tradition he did not consider that his position in the government prevented him from expressing his views in the press, and he was a regular contributor to the newspaper Social-Demokraten. He also wrote books, and even a play, which had an enthusiastic reception in Copenhagen; it was called Life's Lies, and it is possible that a man of Stauning's political experience may have known a good deal about such a subject.

Denmark will miss its Premier, for his long public career had given him a place in the affections of the Danish people which had little to do with his political views. He is succeeded by Orla Buhl, the Finance Minister of Stauning's government.

Getting Rid Of Misfits

It is interesting to read of the tests which are now given to volunteers for the Canadian Army to determine their aptitude for the tasks of a soldier. The mechanization of warfare has made it necessary for fighting men to possess more all-round knowledge and more ability to learn than was formerly the case, and the rapidity of action in modern battles leaves no place for the slow-witted or the merely dogged soldier. One slow man may be the cause of infinite trouble and perhaps the loss of many others.

Colonel Ralston has reported to Parliament on these tests, and has given it as his opinion that the number of discharges from the army might have been substantially reduced if mental tests had been given to volunteers from the beginning. Much money would have been saved as well, for it is often some time after a man has begun training that he is clearly discernible as unfit for army life.

Misfits, as a usual thing, are men who are incapable of learning as fast as the average man, or who are temperamentally incapable of living under the discipline of the army. They are more freqent than is usually imagined and the presence of a few of them in a group slows down the group's pace materially and makes the maintenance of a keen atmosphere unusually difficult. This is not to imply that the misfit is obstreperous or mentally deficient; he is simply a man who will never make a soldier, and he cannot be blamed for the fact.

But it is desirable to keep misfits out of the army in order to save time and money. We are glad to hear that the Government has obtained the services of skilled psychologists to deal with this problem.

Bombs And Books

The Nazis have amply demonstrated their hatred of books. Before the beginning of the war, and indeed ever since 1933, they have shown their bibliophobia by organizing bonfires in the principal German cities in which they burned the works of authors of whom they did not approve. That some of these authors were the flower of German literature meant less than nothing to the Brown Shirts; the poems of Heine were fed to the flames because he was a Jew, and the novels of Thomas Mann shared their fate because he was a liberal. Few German writers of any importance escaped this insult; Nietzsche was spared, because the Nazis did not really understand him, and so were able to identify his concept of the Superman with themselves and their Leader.

They must have been delighted, therefore, with the damage which they did in London, which has for so many centuries been one of the world's greatest centres of the book-trade. In the blitz of December, 1940, they wiped out Paternoster Row in the City, which was the heart of London's publishing world, and with it such famous houses as Hutchinsons, Blackwoods, Longmans, Collins, Nelson, Eyre and Spottiswoode, Ward Lock and Sampson Low, as well as the great wholesale distributing house of Simpkin Marshall. In Leicester Square the famous Studio firm was wiped out, which had for years been famous for its beautifully printed books on art; in the same district Macmillans had a narrow escape, but were uninjured. The publishers who suffered no damage have been most generous toward their stricken colleagues, and these continue to function in some form or other, but the loss of millions of volumes and an incalculable amount of paper cannot be set right in less than a decade of peacetime production.

The destruction of British libraries must also delight the Nazi soul. A great library represents many years of work and an investment of millions of dollars. The Plymouth Public Library, which was completely destroyed, was in no way remarkable, but 75,000 volumes were lost in it. Similar great municipal libraries were lost at Coventry, Liverpool, Lowestoft and Hampstead. Disastrous to the cause of learning is the loss of the library of the Birkbeck Institute, the workman's college of London, the library of the Birmingham Philosophical Society. The books in these libraries can be replaced, but at what a cost! The manuscripts which they contained are irreplaceable. Nor will any money replace the treasures of the Guildhall library, the Archbishop's library at Lambeth Palace, or the library of the Inner Temple, a thing of beauty apart from its immense value to learning. The library of the British Museum, the largest in the world, lost all its sections of law, archaeology and fine arts. The National Central Library, which was the greatest single source of books for provincial England, was completely wiped out.

What a triumph for the Nazis! More than 20,000,000 volumes destroyed, and some of them impossible to replace! And they know well that every one of those books was an enemy, speaking of freedom and the greatness of the human spirit. When the German Gutenburg invented the printing press he little thought what trouble his countrymen would one day take to destroy the result of his work.

But a Milton said in the Areopagitica (a work which the Nazis would regard as one of the most dangerous of all books), "A good book is the precious life-blood of a master spirit, embalmed and treasured up on purpose to a life beyond life," and spirits do not die. The Nazis may drop bombs as they will, but the eventual triumph will be with the books.

How To Live To Be 111

Most people would like to live to a ripe old age, but they place great emphasis on the "ripe." No one wants to live to be over-ripe.

The ripest ancient whom we have heard of in some time lives in Sapulpa, Oklahoma, and she is 111. She has been married and widowed nine times and she has brought up twelve children. Five months ago she was knocked down by a car, and her physician suggested to her that she should prepare to die. Instead she seized him with her unbroken arm and threw him forcibly to the floor. She is now in excellent health, all her bones have set nicely, and when last heard of she was digging in her garden.

There ought to be a moral in this somewhere. Probably a part of it at least is summed up in the dictum that variety is the spice of life. Many a woman speaks no more than the truth when she says that she is bored to death by her husband. If she could change him for a new model every few years she would probably find life more interesting. The rest of the moral is plain: if anyone tells you that you are about to die, knock him down. It is a wonderful tonic, and may bring you to a really ripe old age at 111.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Plant a war garden, but don't throw away your can-opener.

"Hitler and Mussolini Reported in Accord" says a headline. Like a note and its echo.

Popular music fans will be glad to learn that that escaped Nazi airman was captured deep in the heart of Texas.

A catalogue which we have received contains a list of war pamphlets printed by "The Argue Press." Well named.

Good news from Britain: Beverley Baxter has stopped writing for the newspapers.

"Rubber is a new token of wealth in Japan," says a war commentary. The rubber cheque has never won wide popularity here.

A bitter, but true comment from the Windsor Star: "'End of 40-hour Week Means End of Democracy, Labor Warns Congress'; sure, look at proud and happy France; she clung to the 40-hour week."

A boy of ten has been charged with stealing $104 from a service station in Toronto; probably the leader of that desperate gang which Col. Drew was complaining about in the Legislature.

A scientist hopes to perfect a method by which isolated troops may exist by eating grass. In case of winter warfare we suggest that he might gear his men to exist on snow, too.

Ottawa is taking a strong lead in some matters; 410 births were registered there during April. Records show that deaths have slightly increased also, but many people will find a way of blaming this on the Mackenzie King Government.

A Toronto magistrate has been touched by the fact that three men whom he has often sentenced have congratulated him on a promotion. It certainly seems a remarkable instance of broadmindedness.

India is called "timeless," and rightly so. When Alexander the Great invaded it he found it divided into 100 kingdoms; that was 2,300 years ago. Now it has nine major religions, 2,400 castes, and 225 languages.

LITTLE TOWNS

Great cities smile amused disdain
At sleepily little towns
That doze between the quiet hills,
Or sprawl by loitering streams.
But men have ever sauntered forth
From sleepy little towns,
And slow-born visions lead them where
The path of glory gleams.

May we who live and laugh and love,
And wait in little towns,
Be worthy of our heritage—
The time and space for dreams.

Babe Ruth and The Doctors

New York Times

THE Great Bambino on his return from the West Coast offered the perfect example of the average man who has just been delivered miraculously from a critical illness. "I'm smoking my usual quota," he told reporters. "Ten or fifteen cigars a day." Actually at the moment he was abstaining from cigars. When he arrived he was smoking instead a 40-year-old pipe, given to him by a Hollywood friend.

In other respects he had been taking it easy. Before going to the Coast to make a movie on Lou Gehrig's life he had been ordered to curtail his golfing, bowling and smoking. So he cut down on the golfing and bowling—being, presumably, pretty busy with the picture anyway—and played only six games of golf while out there, and bowled six times.

In other words, the Babe had cut out the things which, if done temperately, might possibly have been beneficial to him, while continuing furiously the smoking, which might conceivably — although here we run into sharply contradictory evidence—shorten his life. "I can't seem to stop smoking," he says, while proudly adding, "but anyway I'm not drinking."

THERE is something plaintively appealing about the great home-run slugger being subject to the weaknesses of the ordinary man. Ruth is in his late forties. He has become accustomed to his cigar and, to make a rough estimate, feels more comfortable with one in his mouth about half of his waking hours. Probably he has been spoken to quite sharply by the doctors, his family and his friends about this matter of smoking.

Usually the conversation with the doctor goes something like this: "Do you smoke much?" "Well, quite a good deal." "Notice any ill effects?" "No-o-o, no particularly." "What do you smoke?" "Cigars." The doctor pauses. "Well, you'd better cut them out."

As the patient is ushered out, the doctor usually lights up a cigarette himself and, not infrequently, with generous absent-mindedness, offers the patient a smoke himself. The patient, being a cigar smoker, is not greatly tempted. He may even wait until he gets to the next corner before he reaches into his coat pocket and starts violating the doctor's orders again.

THE doctors have only themselves to blame if their patients are, to a considerable extent, puzzled by the contradictory evidence between their prescriptions and their own conduct. Many smoke and some drink — and rule against these for their patients, or for some of them.

If the doctor is a young man, he plays a fast and strenuous game of tennis and squash racquets, and advises his patients to get more exercise. Here he take on the mantle of consistency. If the pressing demands of his practice finally, as he grows into middle age, prevent the doctor from getting to the courts consistently, he begins to give up the game. He now finds that when he does occasionally play it is a bit too srenuous, and begins to warn his middle-aged patients that they had better take up chess or bridge for exercise.

THIS is not said by way of being critical of the doctors. A physician would hardly be worthy of his profession if he did not consistently examine himself as well as his patients to try to discover the ways of health. If he finds that smoking and drinking in moderation do not seem to affect himself adversely, or too adversely, he indulges. If certain sports seem to him, at 40, to be too much of a strain, he would be less than human if he didn't measure patients by the standards applied to himself.

Yet people who enjoy their tobacco and their sports will probably rest their own case—human nature being what it is—on Dr. Logan Clendening's thesis. He, after discussing tobacco, exercise and longevity, says: "An impartial examination of all the means yet proposed to prevent early death or lengthen life leaves me with the conviction that nothing anybody does to himself after he is born makes more than a few hours' difference at the most."

A Bible Message For Today . . .

Behold my servant shall deal prudently, he shall be exalted and extolled, and be very high.—Isa. lii, 13.

He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows.—Isa. liii, 3, 4.

For what glory is it, if, when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye shall take it patiently? but if, when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye take it patiently, this is acceptable with God. For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps: who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth: who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered he threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously: who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed.—I Pet. ii, 20-24.

A DOSE OF HIS OWN MEDICINE

—New York World-Telegram.

• Patents In Wartime

WAR or no war, British inventors may still file applications for patents in Germany under the Trading With the Enemy Act of 1939 and still pay the fees required to maintain their rights. Canada and Germany likewise permit patent transactions with the enemy. In all these warring countries the national interest determines whether or not a license to deal with the enemy will be granted, so that patents are by no means inviolate. All the belligerents appropriate what they want in the way of technical ideas. Yet titles to patents are respected, if we may judge by the compulsory payment of royalties to the proper official. Licenses that permitted British dealings with the German Patent Office were also granted during the last war. The right to issue them was revoked early in 1918 and all enemy-owned patents were vested in the Custodian of Enemy Property. That the British will again turn to outright seizure there is little doubt. The British press is beginning to protest against a situation which it considers unmoral.

Theoretically it is possible for a German inventor to apply for a patent here through a neutral agent and for an American inventor to deal with the German Patent Office—but only theoretically. The President's recent order of seizure, which affects an estimated 25,000 patents held by enemies, means that an enemy applicant faces confiscation. An American who wishes to protect himself in Germany must obtain a license. As yet no licenses have been granted, and it is not likely that they will be. If they were Americans they would stand in a better position in Germany than do the British, because of the treaty of 1909, which exempts them from the necessity of working their patents there. That the Germans will respect the treaty so long as it suits their purpose to do so may be inferred from their treatment of British inventors.

That outright seizure of enemy patents is the correct procedure is clear. Licenses to apply for patents in an enemy country imply censorship, and censorship in turn implies that nice distinctions can be drawn between inventions of purely military and purely industrial importance—something impossible in totalitarian war. When the Treaty of Versailles was signed a provision was incorporated which provided for the restoration of confiscated patent rights, though with reservations intended to make the Germans pay reparations. It follows that if there is any injustice in seizing patents it can be rectified at the peace table.—New York Times.

• Madagascar Laval's Test

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Britain's surprise move to seize control of the French Island of Madagascar, off the southeast coast of Africa, has served to lighten the gloom in United Nations capitals over the Allies' plight in Burma and Japanese troop assaults on the Philippine Island fortress of Corregidor.

While primarily a defensive measure to protect the long and difficult Cape route of supply for India and the Eastern Mediterranean, British occupation of the French naval base at the northern end of the island would have strong offensive value as well. It would mark the beginning of the United Nations' effort to drive Japan out of the Indian Ocean.

MENACE ENEMY'S FLANK

With Diego Suarez Bay, site of this base, in British hands, the Allies would have a naval and air centre capable of threatening the Japanese flank in the Bay of Bengal. In this connection, there are insistent, but unconfirmed, reports from Axis sources that heavy British and American naval units have been moving into the Indian Ocean around the Cape and from the Mediterranean.

There is also a grim challenge to the Laval regime at Vichy in the Madagascar operations. It implements President Roosevelt's recent warning that the United Nations are prepared to take any necessary measures to prevent French warships and strategic colonial outposts from passing into Axis hands.

Madagascar is, in brief, a test case of what the return of Pierre Laval to power actually means so far as French military collaboration with Germany goes.

There is a striking difference between Madagascar and Syria, where former British-French comrades-in-arms met in battle. Britain made it clear in Syria she was moving, as she did in the abortive thrust at Dakar, only to support the Free French. This time London emphasizes that the powerful task force hurled against Madagascar is "all British."

The size and composition of this task force was not disclosed beyond the fact that it included strong naval and air detachments as well as highly trained commando units. It may be assumed, however, that the British Command, schooled by bitter experience in Norway and Greece, have concentrated enough troops, ships and planes to insure not only the capture of Diego Suarez base, but to hold it against possible Japanese attacks.

The full importance of this undertaking on the African side of the Indian Ocean cannot be gauged until Japanese reaction, in addition to that of Vichy, becomes known. It appears possible, however, that the challenge may prove to be the beginning of the battle for the Indian Ocean.

The French island is 2,000 miles closer to the Bay of Bengal centre of gravity than any other Allied base heretofore available on the Cape route. It is more than 2,000 miles from Ceylon, which, while limiting its usefulness as an air base for Bay of Bengal operations, also insured the British against land-borne Japanese air attack.

In any event, a firmly established United Nations foothold on Northern Madagascar must have an important diversion effect on Japanese plans for the Indian Ocean and Australia. This is not the least important aspect of the British attack.

"BUSHIDO"

IN the course of three years' residence in Japan, mainly spent in the society of Japanese people, it was never once suggested to me that the term bushido (the way of the warrior) could in any sense be translated by the European term "chivalry," with its familiar connotation deriving from the Christianized handling in the literature of the Arthurian Legends of the idea of perfect knighthood and approximating in more recent times to the highest conception of the term "gentleman." It was frequently explained to me that the term bushido represented in Japan the essential readiness of the warrior to lay down his life in battle since he regarded life as a transitory gift the enjoyment of which, like the blossom of the cherry tree, was necessarily of but short duration.—E. G. Hicks in London Times.

Laval Satelites Decide To Fight

VICHY, May 6 — (AP). — Jules Brevie, secretary of state for colonies in the Laval government, declared tonight that the Vichy forces on Madagascar were resolved to defend the island against the British occupation expedition.

The colonial secretary's declaration was in a message to Governor-General Armand Annet of Madagascar, which said:

"In the face of the odious aggression committed against the island of Madagascar, France has the duty to recall solemny that no provocation or threat on her part could serve as a pretext for such an attack.

"She stresses, as you declared only recently, that the great island is and remains resolved to defend itself against any aggressor.

"The mother country addresses her most affectionate greetings to the loyal population of the island, who have never ceased showing her absolute fidelity.

"She places complete confidence in you as well as in the chiefs of the land, sea and air forces and their valiant troops guarding the honor of the flag."

As Berlin Sees It.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts, May 6 — (AP).—The German radio declared today that the announced purpose of the British naval-military force at Madagascar—to forestall a Japanese move—was "a hollow pretense."

"As the British were unsuccessful against the enemy they seek compensation by violating neutrals and their old comrades-in-arms," the announcer said.

TOKYO (From Japanese Broadcasts, May 6—(AP).—A broadcast by Domei, Japanese news and propaganda agency, made this comment to-day on the British occupation of Madagascar:

"Competent observers said the military value of the occupation was doubtful as the Japanese navy now controls the Indian Ocean as well as Burma which is virtually under the Japanese. They said the latest action by the United Nations was made in an attempt to advertise the fact that the Allies are opening a second front which, however, they will be unable to carry out because the Allies lack men, shipping bottoms and materials.

Officers Wait As McNaughton Scans Army News

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, May 6 — (CP Cable).—As generals and brigadiers waited outside his door, Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton took time out at the start of a busy morning of conferences yesterday to read "The Canadian Press News" and said the new weekly paper for Canada's overseas troops will fill a long-felt need.

"The Canadian Press News will fill a need that has long been felt by members of the Canadian army overseas for closer contact with the homeland and news of what is going on," Gen. McNaughton said.

"I particularly appreciate the trouble taken to print French-Canadian news in French and we are all very grateful to the C.P."

The General was away all week-end. His copy, first of 30,000 printed on London presses, was waiting on his desk when he arrived at army headquarters this morning.

Troops at Canadian army and 1st corps headquarters were first to receive the paper during the week-end. They read it over one another's shoulders and pronounced an enthusiastic welcome to the four-page tabloid-size budget of home news.

Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar received copies at 1st Corps Headquarters and said: "The Canadian Press News is a welcome additional link between all ranks of the Canadian Corps and Canada itself. We all look forward to receiving future copies."

Hit With the Men.

The paper made a tremendous hit with field units as it flooded through the frontline defence zone. It was even more popular with them than with the troops at Army and Corps Headquarters who gave it an eager reception when first copies reached them on Sunday.

Without exception officers and men at Divisional Headquarters and in regiments and tented camps voiced enthusiastic approval. When the general distribution of 30,000 copies was complete the paper was the talk of the Canadian area.

"It's like getting a huge letter from home," said one soldier.

Hundreds of copies disappeared soon after they were delivered. The troops hid them in their kits as souvenirs to mail home. The provost corporal at a Division Headquarters who had a copy on his desk said he was having difficulty keeping it.

"Everyone coming here looks the paper over and wants to take it away," he said. "But it's going home in my next letter. Besides, I'm writing The Canadian Press to tell them what a swell job I think they have done."

A tour of the camps showed how the paper's distribution progressed during the day. The crew at an anti-aircraft gun sat down, scanning its pages....A copy made its way into a tank and the crew read it as they bowled along the country road....At most regimental headquarters copies were in messhalls and canteens by early afternoon.

"The Canadian Press News" brought everyone up to the minute on events at home. Its sports page proved an outstanding feature for practically all the troops. One senior officer remarked on how he found himself turning to the sports page first.

But the troops were interested in news of the manpower plebiscite and the goings on in their provinces. They found something in the paper from nearly every part of Canada and read the pages as keenly as if they were to-day's hometown papers fresh off the presses.

All Free Of Charge

The bulk of the 30,000 copies, distributed free of charge among the Dominion's fighting men, were delivered today.

The first few hundred copies arriving at army and 1st corps headquarters were quickly grabbed up, copies going to all ranks ranging from private to general.

Edited and published by The Canadian Press with the approval of the Dominion Government, the paper was described as "a tonic for a guy in bed" by Gunner Arthur Bell of Winnipeg, who received his copy at No. 1 Canadian General Hospital.

"The boys will certainly go for this," commented Sgt. H. V. Prince of Collingwood, Ont., at army headquarters. "We have not been able to keep up to date on news from home, and this is going to meet a really great need."

Bdr. N. T. Tresidder of Montreal and Toronto said the paper would make a hit with both English and French-speaking Canadians. Gnr. Jack O'Reilly of Geraldton, Ont., described the sports page "a pippin."

The French columns of The Canadian Press News will make every French Canadian "anxious to have the paper every week to read about his home town in his own language," said Pte. Paul Mainville of Montreal.

Distribution of the paper extends to every air station in Britan where Canadian men are located and every United Kingdom port where Canadian warships berth. In the army it is estimated there will be a copy for every sixth soldier.

More Dwellings On McCannan Ave.

Following an earlier letter to the council H. J. McCannan attended Monday night's meeting and requested that concrete sidewalks be laid on the north and south sides of McCannan avenue, a new street on his subdivision extending easterly from Monaghan Road and paralleling Chamberlain street.

Nine families are already living on the new street, and four additional houses are planned, two of them having been begun this week.

"We cannot build sidewalks from the houses to the street line until we get the sidewalk levels, and we can't level off the lawns and seed them," Mr. McCannan said. "I would appreciate it if something is done, reasonably soon."

Applications were recently received for several other sidewalks, and the council decided on Alderman Cotton's motion, seconded by Alderman Bradburn, to give notice of the intention to construct those which have been asked for, with priority to others previously advertised.

CENTRAL SCHOOL BOYS DEFEAT KING EDWARD TEAM BY 18 TO 10

Ask The Man Who Owned One

Training at Summit for his fight with Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott at Madison Square Garden on May 15, Allie Stolz, Newark, N.J., contender, listens to some sage advice given by Al Singer about titles and people who hold 'em. Mr. Singer ought to know. He once was the lightweight champion.

Sport Snapshots Across Canada

By SCOTT YOUNG

TORONTO, May 6.—(CP)—There may be a three-year-old in Ontario to beat Ten to Ace in the King's Plate, but if so he's being well hidden. Even the best of the contenders haven't been good enough to excite more than passing glances.

The Seagulls which drift in off Lake Ontario to Woodbine Park's Emerald infield these mornings find none of the peace and quiet of a few weeks ago. Everything is as businesslike as a race-track ever gets in the mornings. Railbirds gather in flocks around anyone with a stopwatch, trying to find an angle that could put Bill's Gift or Cossack Post ahead of Ten to Ace. It can't be done.

The big Giddings colt went six in 1:14:4 on a heavy track the other morning and his performances during the spring have been similarly impressive. He may go to the post the heaviest favorite in Plate history.

Incidentally:

Pep Kelly, whose career in professional hockey ran the gamut of Toronto, Chicago, New York (now Brooklyn) Americans, Springfield and Buffalo, has settled in St. Catharines, Ont., and will apply for reinstatement to amateur ranks... He has a war job in St. Kitts and may turn out for senior hockey there next year...The publication of W. George Hardy's latest book, "All the Trumpets Sounded," coincided with his recent visit to Toronto.

Margaret Gunning, eight-year-old ski enthusiast of Blue River, B.C., scaled the peak of Mount Cook in the Kamloops district on the long blades recently...She started skiing when she was four...Greg Kabat, coach of Vancouver Grizzlies in the Western Conference last season, broke a finger trying out for a baseball club in Vancouver. Some funny names have cropped up in sport lately...For my money, here's a lulu: The Department of Justice Mixed Bowling League (Ottawa)... Jack Dempsey (no relation to the restaurateur) got the first ace of the Montreal golf season last week on a 238-yard hole.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The City Softball League is all set for what should be a bangup season. With five teams lined up and an executive that is jampacked with softball experience the 1942 campaign should provide plenty of keen competition and thrills for the fans. The officers elected at a meeting last night are Norman Lewis, president, Ken O'Toole, vice-president, Fred C. Scates, secretary-treasurer, and Dave Leether, Harold Dormer, Max Board and Max Glover, executive. All of that outfit have long been connected with softball and every member of the executive is a worker so that the City Loop should operate smoothly and efficiently. The teams who will battle for the championship this season are the Military Training Centre, Peterborough Hockey Club, the former Chesterfields under the management of Roy Parnell, the Peterborough juvenile O.A.S.A. team and the Hastings club. With those clubs on the roster a lively struggle for league honors can be expected.

* * * * * *

It was decided to open the league a week from next Monday, May 18, with the opening game a benefit for the British War Victims' Fund. Every effort will be made to make the starting fixture a real show in order to raise a substantial sum for the War Victims' Fund. During the season the league will stage two other benefit games, one in connection with the O.A.S.A. war services fpnd and the other in behalf of the Navy League. The league will operate this season on the baseball diamond inside the Riverside Park enclosure but there will be no admission at the gate. The usual collection will however be taken up at all games. It is possible that there may be other clubs who will seek membership in the City League and on that account entries will not definitely close until next Monday, May 11. Any club wishing to get a franchise will have to make application before that time.

Referring to the club bags, windbreakers and wrist watches showered upon the Stratford Ontario junior B champions, the time pieces coming from the city council Milt Dunnel has the following pertinent remarks in his sport column in the Stratford Beacon-Herald: "The big bun feed in honor of our Kist Canadians tonight is one of the reasons why this hamlet is a favorite spot with hockey players who look around. It's not every town that hands out watches, and club bags and jackets at the end of the season—even to a championship winner. And that's not to infer that the Kanucks are not worthy of every memento they'll get. From the Soo to the Sydenham, they've given Stratford the kind of publicity that you just can't buy—for any kind of folding money. One of those eight-column lines in a metropolitan gazette is something you can't pick up in the open market. On the other hand, the kids are lucky too. in having sponsors, a mayor and a majority of city fathers who appreciate the advertising value of what they have done. There are towns where the watch dogs of the strong box wouldn't give a dime for the Stanley Cup and the Diamond Sculls. You don't hear much about those burgs. They're mentioned occasionally in the obit notices, when some person dies."

Cleveland Bumped Again

After riding high, wide and handsome over all opposition until they arrived in Boston three days ago the Cleveland Indians have had a devastating experience in a series with the Red Sox that saw Lou Boudreau's team trimmed three times in succession, after winning thirteen in a row. Boston power simply swamped the Indians. The Croninites took yesterday's game 13 to 3 and that meant a total of 32 Boston runs in three games against the Cleveland outfit. Boston grabbed off the first game 8 to 4, the second 11 to 8 and then came back with 13 markers yesterday to make the series a rout. Ken Chase, former Washington left-hander went the distance for the Sox and hung up an easy win as his teammates pounded four Cleveland pitchers for 16 hits, including Ted Williams' sixth homer of the season. Kennedy was the losing Indian twirler. Meanwhile New York Yanks grabbed off their fourth straight win at the expense of Chicago White Sox getting the winning marker in a 5 to 4 triumph in the 10th frame. The hero of that battle was Joe DiMaggio who after a number of lean days with the willow cracked out his third and fourth home runs of the season and then won the game in the extra inning with a triple. Hank Borowy, former Newark Bear got credit for the win although Lindell started the game. The loser was Johnny Rigney. The victory put the Yanks in second place, only half a game behind the Indians.

* * * * * *

Russell Christopher, former Yank farm hand at Newark pitched a smart three-hit effort to give the Philadelphia A's a 2 to 1 win over the Detroit Tigers, with Dizzy Trout the victim. Johnston knocked in the winning run with a double in the eighth frame. In the other American League game Washington Senators with Early Wynn on the mound triumphed over the St. Louis Browns. Harris worked for the Brownies and allowed the Senators only five hits but the St. Louis cast did not help their pitcher much, coming up with four boots.

* * * * * *

Brooklyn Dodgers increased their margin over the second place Pittsburg Pirates yesterday by trimming St. Louis 3 to 1 in an eleven innings battle while the Bucs were absorbing a shellacking at the hands of the Boston Braves. The Bums with the veteran Larry French doing the throwing for them had quite a time beating their old rivals the Cards. They were all tied up at 1-1 at the end of nine but the Dodgers pushed two over the plate in the eleventh to win. Hank Pollet was the losing tosser. Cincinnati and the Giants had an equally close battle with the seasoned gunners Bucky Walters and Hal Schumacher hooked up in a pitching duel in which each allowed only five hits. Walters had the satisfaction of slamming out a single in the tenth that sent the winning run over and gave him a 2 to 1 victory. Boston developed unusual batting strength slamming out 16 hits against the Pittsburg Pirates and defeating Frankie Frisch's club 7 to 1. Philadelphia, with Johnny Podgajny on the firing line defeated Chicago Cubs 4 to 2 in the other National League game.

Some Baseball Mysteries

There are several mysteries about big league ball this season. One of the biggest questions bothering the experts is what is the matter with the Chicago White Sox who were picked to take second place in the American loop and now find themselves deep in the cellar with only four wins in 21 starts. The plight of the Chicago club is so bad that Manager Jimmy Dykes has decided to bench all four members of his regular infield in today's game with the Boston Red Sox. And a second mystery is the miserable showing of many of last year's star pitchers in both loops who find it impossible to get going. For instance Bucky Walters of the Cincinnati Reds did not win his first victory of the season until yesterday and many others who were burning up the big show last campaign seem to find it difficult to get anywhere. No one apparently has an explanation for either the falling to pieces of the White Sox or the collapse of pitching celebrities.

He's Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox who also tops the loop in runs scored....Jimmy Wallace, the rookie southpaw who stopped the Pittsburg Pirates yesterday as the Braves defeated the Bucs 7 to 1 is only 20 years old. He's a left-hander....The Peterborough Hockey Club softball team will workout at the Ashburnham Bowl tonight at 6.30 and the juvenile team of the City League will practice there tomorrow night at the same hour. 12-Run Lead Is Piled Up Early In Game

Central School had little trouble triumphing over King Edward in a School Softball League game, winning a seven-inning affair by 18 to 10. Central took the lead in the first inning when they scored four runs and were never headed after that, adding eight more counters in the second frame. King Edward's only big inning came in the third when they sent five runs over the plate. By innings:

to Cyclists:
PLEASE MAKE YOUR BICYCLES LAST LONGER!

YOUR faithful C.C.M. Bicycle that has been your reliable means of personal transportation may, anytime now, become your only means of convenient transportation—so—look after it—keep it in good repair—oil it frequently and ride it in a "bicycle-conscious" manner.

And, in your effort to keep it in repair, don't be extravagant in discarding old parts—parts are scarce as many of the materials from which parts are made have gone to war. If your saddle seems to be "shot" look it over carefully, maybe a nut here and a rivet there will put it in usable condition again. Or if a wheel seems beyond repair, take it to your C.C.M. dealer—you will be surprised how he can straighten it and, with the help of a few new spokes, make it as true as new. And so on with every part of your bicycle—keep it in good order and let your dealer help you to keep it on the road, using your present parts and accessories where possible. For those people who are engaged in war work of any kind, and who do not now own a bicycle, there are still some new C.C.M. Bicycles available, in spite of bicycle material supply having been reduced, therefore, our output of bicycles curtailed accordingly.

The fact that the high standard of quality of C.C.M. Bicycles and the accuracy with which they are made has been in no way impaired and will not be, increases our difficulty of production. But the war won't last forever and C.C.M. Bicycles, which have been built to high standards of quality for over 40 years, will continue to be built when "Peace breaks out again."

See your C.C.M. dealer about putting your bicycle in shape for the season, or, if you are a war worker, ask him if he can supply you with a new C.C.M. so that you may ride to and from your work.

FRENCH OUTHURLS CARDS' BEST AS DODGERS TRIUMPH BY 3 TO 1

Braves Wallop Pirates 7-1; Reds Take Giants

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

The headlines today acclaimed laughing Larry French as the star of Brooklyn Dodgers' 3-1 conquest of St. Louis Cardinals and the attention was well deserved.

The affable lefthander, who will be 33 years old in the fall and is approaching the end of the line in the major leagues, outpitched young Howard Pollet in a sizzling struggle at St. Louis. He not only hurled four-hit ball that should have been a shutout, but he twice singled home Dodger runs including the one that broke a tie score in the 11th inning.

But the forgotten man in the Brooklyn rejoicing was catcher Mickey Owen. The little dynamo who caught 128 games last year and helped guide Whit Wyatt and Kirby Higbe to 22 victories apiece has been in eclipse this spring.

It hasn't been because he dropped that infamous third strike in the world series. Rather it has been because the Dodgers acquired two additional, and better hitting, backstops in Billy Sullivan and rookie Cliff Dapper. Manager Leo Durocher decided to use Sullivan, the veteran from Detroit, against righthanded pitchers, and has been putting Dapper's .471 batting average to work against the southpaws whom Owen ordinarily would have opposed.

As a result Owen had worked only 45 2-3 innings on eight games until yesterday, when he got the call against his former St. Louis teammates.

Although a .168 hitter, Owen seized upon his opportunity and made two of Brooklyn's seven hits.

Pirates Slip to Braves

Pittsburgh Pirates, who had crept within half a game of first place in the National League during the Dodgers' slump, were walloped 7-1 by Boston Braves, who made 16 hits, including four by former Pirate Paul Waner, and had the benefit of six-hit pitching by Jim Wallace, a cherubic youngster just recalled from Hartford of the Eastern league.

Bucky Walter, who had lost four straight games, pitched Cincinnati Reds to a 2-1 10-inning decision over New York Giants. He and Hal Schumacher each allowed five hits, but three of the Reds' were successive singles in the 10th—with Walters getting the first.

The Phils beat Chicago Cubs 4-2 by taking advantage of five walks, five stolen bases and three errors, plus nine hits.

Boston Red Sox staggered Cleveland Indians into their third straight defeat 13-3 by collecting 18 hits for a total of 28 bases. The Tribe was so upset it contributed four errors and could do little with the dozen hits given by Boston's Ken Chase.

Joe DiMaggio had himself a day at Yankee Stadium, hitting two home runs and a triple to drive New York to a 5-4 triumph over Chicago White Sox and lift the world champions back into second place in the American League. The Sox scored all their runs in the first innings, then were held to one hit by relief artist Hank Borowy. After DiMaggio had put the Yanks back in the game with his homers, he tripled the winning run across in the 10th.

The victory set the stage for a two-game series opening today between the Yanks and Indians with first place the prize.

Detroit Tigers were herded out of second by the three-hit hurling of Russ Christopher as Philadelphia Athletics won 2-1.

Washington beat St. Louis Browns 5-3, although held to five hits. The Browns made four errors.

Leafs Bobble 6 Losing To Bears 10-9

By the Associated Press.

Frank (Pancho) Snyder, manager of the Jersey City International League Giants, caught what he thought was his last game of organized ball in 1932.

But Snyder had to oil his creaking legs and go behind the plate again yesterday when his only available catcher, Hugh Poland was banished by Umpire Johnny Grabowski in a game Montreal won, 3-1.

The Royals took advantage of Snyder's long inactivity by stealing five bases. Gene Moore was especially troublesome, swiping both second and home. Pancho did manage to toss out one would-be thief.

While all this was going on, Warren Sandel of the Little Giants and Al Sherer of the Royals, both former members of the St. Louis Cardinal chain, were hooked up in a mound duel. The veteran Sherer bested the rookie lefthander. The only run Sherer allowed was a home run by Joe Orengo.

In the only other game played, the fans at Toronto saw a comedy of errors. Toronto Maple Leafs committed six bobbles as they lost to Newark Bears 10-9. Newark was guilty of two misplays.

Besides the errors there were 21 hits, 12 bases on balls, seven stolen bases, a hit batsman, and a wild pitch. Frank Kelleher of the Bears led his team's attack with two homers and a single, driving in four runs. Johnny Wyrostek of the Leafs also hit for the circuit.

White Sox Hoist Whole Infield

NEW YORK, May 6 — (AP). — Manager Jimmy Dykes, whose Chicago White Sox have lost twelve of their last thirteen games, said last night he would bench his regular infield for an entirely new foursome in Wednesday's game at Boston.

The new infield will consist of Murrell Jones at first base, Jimmy Webb at second, Leo Wells at shortstop, and Dario Lodigiani at third. It will replace Joe Huhel, Don Kolloway, Luke Appling and Bob Kennedy of which only Kolloway is batting better than .210.

The new field "can't be worse, and it might be better," said Dykes.

Tuesday's 5-4 setback at the hands of New York Yankees was the Sox' seventeenth in twenty-one starts this season and their ninth by one run.

Track Outrider Joe Muran Never Sees Finish

LOUISVILLE, May 6—A weazened little man, dressed in a red jacket and cap, was present at his twenty-sixth consecutive Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs last Saturday—but he still has to see one.

Furthermore, during the last twenty-five years he has been on various tracks during the running of more than 30,000 races—but he still has to see the finish of one!

Never Misses Work

This remarkable man is Joseph Matthew Moran. He has never missed a day of work in the last twenty-five years. He is the first and only man to fill the job he now holds.

Joseph Matthew is the outrider at all Kentucky tracks. He's the fellow who leads the horses to the post and probably is the butt of more gags than any person connected with racing. You've probably heard it said many a time, "I wanta bet on that man in the red coat who is riding that pretty horse."

Moran has been on the job at Churchill Downs since the job was created in 1917. He also has served at the Fair Grounds, New Orleans; Lincoln Fields, Arlington Park and Oaklawn Park.

While Joseph Matthew hasn't seen the finish of even one of the 30,000 or more races, he has seen the start of practically every race in which he has led the field to the starting gate—and that's every race every day he has worked. Due to the peculiar job our hero holds down it is extremey doubtful if he will ever get to see the finish of a race.

It is his duty to make a bee-line for the backstretch as soon as a field of horses is despatched. Of course, this doesn't apply to the sprint races that start along the backstretch, for he's already there.

While Moran's job is to time the walk to the post to get the field there as closely as possible to the scheduled post time, a far more important task is to lend assistance to riders on unruly horses, both before the start and after the finish of a race.

Busy on Backstretch

It is because Moran's main work is on the backstretch that he is still awaiting the thrill of witnessing the finish of a race.

While Moran never fails to get a big hand any time he stops a runaway horse, he modestly declares it's the pony who does most of the work, not the outrider. He says:

"A good, sensible pony with a monkey on his back could do the job almost as well as a man. Once your pony has caught up with the riderless horse you only have to stick out your hand and the horse's bridle will slip into it."

During his many years as outrider Moran has led most of the great horses to the post for one or more races. Many o' War is the notable axception. "Big Red" never happened to race at any of the tracks where Moran Worked.

Ump-Baiter Rule To See Many Managers Gated

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, May 6 — (AP). — If Ford Frick has his way his rule that National League managers must not leave the bench to protest ball and strike decisions will remain a rule, even if the pilots are chased so often they pull a tendon.

"I expect," Frick says, "that every manager will be ejected at least twice before he learns the rule means business."

Frick is unperturbed by criticism of the rule. Even the game at St. Louis last Sunday when both Billy Southworth of the Cards and Leo Durocher of the Dodgers were banished left him cold.

"It's a good rule," he insists. "The managers never have won one of those kind of arguments. They're just putting on an act. They can't call the pitches from the bench. The rule doesn't apply to legitimate squawks on other decisions, or to pitchers and catchers protesting on balls and strikes."

Which seems a fair enough argument. Obviously a bench manager isn't in a position to disagree with ball and strike decisions.

Durocher's cute trick of talking around the corner didn't work last Sunday. The Dodger pilot came up with the idea that by striding toward the plate and addressing his remarks to his catcher or pitcher he could get around the rule.

Umpire Ziggy Sears, however, didn't need a diagram to know that Leo was talking in curves and that the remarks ostensibly aimed at other ears had a sharp hook which brought them right to him. The spirit of the rule was being violated, he decided.

Ejection seems, on the surface, to be a rough penalty for such a trivial offence as protesting ball and strike decisions, but without a severe penalty for such ham acting the practice would continue, with the consequent delay of games and the boring of fans by comic opera scenes which invariably have the same ending.

Would Increase Loans Of Housing Plan

As a means of encouraging the private building of houses, Alderman Dutton proposed Monday night that the terms of the National Housing Act be extended to authorize loans up to 90 per cent of the cost of dwellings undertaken with the assistance of this governmental plan. The suggestion was referred to the finance committee for further consideration.

Alderman Dutton said that a serious housing shortage continues in Peterborough, causing overcrowding with a tendency to lower the standard of living and some menace to public health. The Board of Health had investigated this condition, and found in quite a number of places that families lacked sufficient sanitary conveniences, a state of affairs which, he said, was conducive to the well being of the city.

The scarcity of housing accommodation and also the building of houses should be a responsibility of the federal government, Alderman Dutton said. The government had spent between fifteen and twenty-five millions of dollars on houses for wartime workers and at the same time was denying other individuals the right to occupy those houses. "The government ought to do something quickly and make whatever provision it can to see that people have an opportunity to build homes for themselves."

Alderman Sullivan said that quite a number of houses built in and around Toronto under the 80 per cent lending plan had been abandoned by the people who undertook them. If a man was required to put up only 10 per cent of the cost his interest in the property might not become a serious concern to him, with the result that some houses would "fall back on the lending companies, and they do not want to go into the real estate business."

"Our experience in Peterborough has been very favorable according to the reports of the insurance companies," Alderman Dutton said.

"It seems to me that this is a first class time to mind our own business," Alderman Gordon remarked. "I read the other day that a vociferous member of parliament has been asking about this 90 per cent."

The discussion turned to the detail of costs as compared with three and four years ago, and the council eventually passed the proposal on to the finance committee.

the 2,156-ton sloop Bougainville, specially equipped for tropical service, and the 1,379-ton submarine Beveziers had been sunk attacking the British fleet in Courrier Bay.

There was no confirmation of other reports that the French had two cruisers at Madagascar and one British informant expressed belief that Vichy had only "light coastal ships" in those waters.

The landing yesterday, under cover of air and naval support, was Britain's answer to threatened Japanese investment of the island in the struggle for mastery of the seas.

The strategic importance of Madagascar was emphasized by the authoritative report today that Japanese submarines had been operating in the Indian Ocean along with the battle fleet whose presence there already was known.

A British source, discussing the naval situation in the Madagascar area, said a Vichy convoy bound for the island recently had been intercepted.

He called the defences of Diego Suarez against sea assault "fairly formidable on paper" and said the harbor afforded a deep water anchorage for a large fleet but that the drydock there, although large enough for cruisers, was not in top condition.

The British forces presumably hope to enter Diego Suarez from the land side before its installations may be destroyed by the French.

Although advices from Vichy sources said last night that the British troops had reached Andrakaka, four miles from the naval base, which lies on the island's east coast across a 10-miles-wide isthmus from the landing point on Courrier Bay, a terse British communique intimated there was opposition.

"Operations are proceeding and our casualties so far have been light," it said.

"It is understood that the governor-general of Madagascar has declared his intention to resist."

The Straw for Laval?

British sources speculated whether the Madagascar coup would be the final issue putting Vichy unequivocally in the Axis camp and rumors were current here that Pierre Laval, chief of government in the Vichy regime, would leave soon for Berlin to discuss with Hitler himself any consequences of the Madagascar investment.

A Vichy cabinet session called for today was being watched closely for indications of the future relations between Washington and Vichy.

Whatever the political repercussions, the British press acclaimed the military move—which the British authorities said was undertaken by them alone on behalf of all the united nations. The Daily Mail called it a demonstration of the Allies' "new offensive spirit."

The Times warned that it still was too early to speak of "occupation" of Madagascar but it expressed hope that "the prompt and determined action Britain has taken . . . with the full concurrence of the United States" would end the menace to essential sea routes.

"Our plans for victory demand the occupation of Madagascar," said the Daily Mail.

pulsion it should be open and above board. Col. Ralston asked for the man's name but Mr. Hanson refused to give it, saying the man would be "marked."

Col. Ralston said men in active army, whether home defence or generl service troops could obtain dependent's allowance if they obtained the consent of their commanding officer before they marry.

"The man who is active will get the consent. The man who is not active will not get it," said Mr. Hanson.

"I challenge my friend to produce a case in which a young man has been refused because of the fact that he was on home defence and told he had to enlist and go active," said Col. Ralston.

"I am not going to give the case because that man would be a marked man," said Mr. Hanson.

"Before my friend makes a statement of that kind he should have submitted the case to me," said the minister. "He has indulged in considerable rhetoric on the basis of a statement of facts which I challenge in the most positive way from instructions which I have received.

Must Have Consent.

"Exactly the same treatment, under regulations is laid down for both active and home defence men. Neither can get the dependent's allowance if he marries without consent of the commanding officer."

In opening his statement Mr. Hanson said all soldiers should have the right to marry. There could be no greater compelling reason to induce a trainee to volunteer for active service than to deny him the right to marry if he did not, but no more discreditable position for a Government department to take.

"In England they are encouraged to marry," he said. "I am told there are 400 marriages a month among the Canadians in England. That is all to the good and we shall have some new blood in the country in the times to come, I hope."

Col. Ralston was questioned on Army matters throughout the sitting and will be before the House again to-day on his part of the War Appropriaitons Bill.

At the opening of the sitting Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced appointment of Col. O. M. Biggar of Ottawa as Director of Censorship and the bringing together under one head of the censorship activities relating to press, mails, telegraph, telephone and radio, operated now under different departments.

In future all will be under the administration of War Services Minister Thorson.

Announcement of the service vote on the recent manpower plebiscite was made outside the House during the evening and passed without comment from members who took part in the discussion.

Laud Two Departed Senators.

The Senate met for the first time since the Easter recess but with no business on its order paper, adjourned till Thursday after leaders paid tribute to two Senators who died recently, Hon. J. H. Rainville of Montreal and Hon. W. H. Sharpe of Winnipeg.

A defence of the contribution of French-speaking Canadians to the Army was made in the course of the Commons debate by J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) who said French-speaking people are being libelled and slandered because they have not been given proper credit for their enlistments.

He asked for a statement of the racial origins of the men in the Army and said if the French-speaking people are not doing their share they would take the blame, but if they were doing it they should get credit for it. He said French-speaking troops now are defending Canada on both coasts and overseas. They got no credit for their enlistments in English-speaking regiments or in provinces outside Quebec. A census should be taken of all units, wherever recruited, to find out the number of French enlistments.

Defence Minister Ralston said that would be too big a job to be done now as every man would have to be asked his racial origin. It could not be done simply by checking over the names and counting up the French names.

Mr. Pouliot submitted it could be done that way as there were just as many French-speaking people with English names as there were English-speaking people with French names.

Wants More Pictures of the King

The member for Temiscouata complained that the picture of the Commander-in-Chief of the Canadian forces, the King, is not displayed in recruiting offices. He said if the Defence Department would send pictures of the King and Queen to all recruiting offices it would do more good than sending copies of speeches by cabinet minister on the plebiscite.

Replying to a question from J. A. Ross (Con. Souris) Col. Ralston expressed satisfaction with the work of the Canadian Women's Army Corps. He said about 2,200 women are in the Corps now and the Department has requisitioned for 5,000. He believed 15,000 could be used and foresaw the employment of women in the operation of anti-aircraft guns.

Two doctors, both eminent in the profession, disagreed on a point of medical practice during the debate.

Dr. Herbert Bruce (Con. Toronto-Parkdale), speaking of the correction of defects in men who do not pass their medical examination, suggested the ordinary army physician should not be permitted to perform hernia operations.

Dr. J. J. McCann (Lib. Renfrew South) took issue when he obtained the floor sometime later. He said under modern medical practice the average young surgeon is perfectly competent to operate for hernia and thousands of young surgeons are performing such operations successfully.

ments originally consisting of some 3,500 marines and blue jackets who made their way through shark-infested waters to Corregidor when Bataan was abandoned April 9, and a group of army nurses.

300 Air Attacks

Since Dec. 29, when 35 Japanese bombers subjected Corregidor to a three-hour attack, that island alone had had 300 air raids. For the most part, gunners in the fortress kept raiding bombers at such high altitudes that their aim was ineffective.

The final, long-awaited attempt to storm the island was preceded by a day which saw the fortress bombed 13 times and shelled almost continually for five hours.

The persistent shelling from both sides of the harbor was believed to have worn down and blasted away the island's shore defence, which presumably included pill boxes, barbed wire entanglements and other instructions.

A final tribute was sent by Predent Roosevelt to Gen. Wainwright and his gallant men during the closing hours of their struggle to beat back the invading swarms.

"During recent weeks we have been following with growing admiration the day-by-day accounts of your herioc stand against the mounting intensity of bombardment by enemy planes and heavy siege guns.

"In spite of all the handicaps of complete isolation, lack of food and ammunition, you have given the world a shining example of patriotic fortitude and self-sacrifice.

"The American people ask no finer example of tenacity, resourcefulness and steadfast courage. The calm determination of your leadership in a desperate situation sets a standard of duty for our soldiers throughout the world.

"In every camp and on every naval vessel soldiers, sailors and marines are inspired by the gallant struggle of their comrades in the Philippines. The workmen in our shipyards and munitions plants redouble their efforts because of your example. You and your devoted followers have become the living symbols of our war aims and the guarantee of victory."

DID YOU TAKE A LAXATIVE TODAY?

Do you really know why constipation is so harmful?

You probably know that constipation sets up poisons in the large intestine or colon. But do you know that these poisons seep through the walls of the colon and infect the bloodstream? They set up toxic accumulations in kidneys and liver and are contributing causes of rheumatic pains, sciatica and backache.

Most laxatives only act in the colon. Kruschen does more. It is the laxative with a double action. Besides ridding the colon of stagnating waste matter, Kruschen's mineral salts have a diuretic action. They flush the kidneys, help to clear the bloodstream of all poisonous matter, and so protect your whole system from that form of infection.

Kruschen is a British product, obtainable at all drug stores, 25c and 75c.

FIRE LOSS $14,191.

Fire loss for April was $14,191.42, Chief Gimblett reported to the council for April. Damage to buildings was determined at $3,105.84 and contents $11,085.58. The department responded to 72 calls.

CAMP MOVED.

The bunkhouses and other camp buildings at the Canadian Nepheline Mines at the Blue Mountains have been moved to another site a short distance away from their original location. The vein of ore was found to run directly through the previous site of the camp, hence the decision to move the plant. It is expected that the transportation of ore by water will begin almost at once. The company's tug was in operation last season on the route between the head of Stoney Lake and Lakefield between May 5 and November 19.

HOSPITAL TRUSTEE.

E. R. Wilson was re-appointed to the Nicholls Hospital Trust by the council Monday night. His present term which was begun with his previous appointment as a member of the council, expires June 1. Alderman Cotton said he had been a member of the Board but had resigned because its meetings were held at 4 p.m. "I was too inconvenient for me from a personal point of view. I don't think the company would have objected to me attending meetings at that time of the day."

APRIL RELIEF.

Peterborough spent $1,405.21 on relief in April. The total number of persons getting help was 166, of whom 36 were head of families, 82 dependents, 10 single men and 38 single women. The number of orders for provisions was 166.

CHANCE TO GET WITNESSES.

Because the accused said that she had not a chance to get several witnesses she wanted, a charge against Mr. Cecilia Clarke of faailing to send a child to school was enlarged until Thursday. The woman was told the case would have to go on then.

SUBSIDY CONFIRMED.

Although it was anticipated back in February, the one mill contribution from the Ontario government was confirmed in a letter to council Monday night. This municipal subsidy is the equivalent of one mill in the local tax rate for this year. "Received with thanks,'" Mayor Hamilton commented when that letter was read.

CHANGE STREET NAMES.

A by-law to change the name of Gordon avenue was held up by the council Monday night. Alderman Bradburn said tha a request had been received to dispense with Albertus avenue because of duplication in the south end of the city. A list of proposed nominal changes was prepared in 1939, including Rink and other streets, "and I think we would be wise to go into the question of all these changes." Alderman Bradburn said.

FREAK ACCIDENT

Fred O. Goodfellow, local plumber had an unusual accident while fishing at Haliburton last Sunday, with three other local fishermen. He felt a sharp sting on the leg, and thought he had been struck by a stone, as he walked from the boat along the shore. The leg swelled considerably he has been confined to bed at his home since that time, under the care of his physician. He scoffs at the idea of a snake biting him, because he would have seen the reptile. Some boys were quite a distance away, and one of them may have been using a small calibre rifle.

INTERESTING TOPIC

The "Pickwick Landing Project" of the Tennessee Valley Authority and related projects of employee housing with preventative measures for malaria control will be discussed at a meeting of the Engineering Institute on May 7 in the Paragon Hall. This is student and junior night, and the general public is invited. R. Scott, S.E.I.C., Test Dept, C.G.E., will be the speaker, and A. M. McQuarrie, Jr., E.I.C., C.G.E., will speak on sound reproduction covering the equipment and methods used in modern up to date recording and reproduction. He has had several years commercial experience.

THE RIGHT IDEA

Roy Parnell, Rubidge street, won a pair of shoes in the Kinsmen Radio Show held last Friday. When he was given the prize he took the shoes to the C.G.E. and raffled them off, realizing $10.00 on the venture which he turned back to the Milk for Britain Fund. Then he tried to convince the winner that the shoes should be raffled off a second time, but the winner wanted the shoes so he passed it up, on the promise he would institute another plan soon, that would bring more money to the fund.

WOMAN DOES MAN'S JOB

On the old Norwood Road in Otonabee township, a smart looking girl, garbed in overalls and white shirt was noticed by motorists on Wednesday as she plowed a field. She was cutting through sod, using a team of horses and a walking plough, a job that would stump most husky city men, many of whom won't even go to the trouble of spending a few nights training in the reserve army units.

BREN CARRIERS HERE

Last night at the Armouries men from training centre A 11 at Camp Borden, put on a demonstration of Universal Bren Carriers for members of the Second Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers. Men gathered around each carrier to hear a short talk on its mechanism and to examine and ask questions. Officers of the regiment then went for a short drive in the carriers. This morning the carriers went down to the Training Centre for another demonstration.

FAILED TO RETURN

Police watched a local hotel for hours last night, waiting to arrest a fifteen-year-old Little Britain boy who is wanted in Lindsay on a charge of stealing an automobile and $30. The lad registered at a hotel here early in the evening and paid in advance for his room. Officers kept a watch for him but the boy failed to return to the hotel.

Special Bingo On May 19 For War Victims

Ever since the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund was inaugurated, Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion with George Gimblett as president and G. G. Torrance as treasurer, has been a very staunch supporter of the fund, and already it has benefitted to the extent of within a few cents of $675. By far the largest portion of this has come to hand through their giving a portion of the receipts from the regular bingo games which are held every Wednesday night in aid of their own welfare work.

Now, they are out to hold a special night on May 19, from which the total proceeds will all come to the fund. It is planned to have thirty games for 25 cents, and a freeze-out at the end. There will also be two door prizes. Bob Hotrum will be master of ceremonies, giving his services to the cause as in many other similar ventures, and to him goes a lot of credit for the services he has rendered not only to this fund, but to other various war charities which have benefitted in that way.

The Get Together Club is a small group which was organized to hold weekly meetings at the home of its members in a social way, wherein a small charge as made, with the object of giving it to help the people of Britain who were suffering from air raids, and passing that help on to them through this fund.

In today's list they are credited with their 14th donation, per Mrs. M. Youdell, whose husband and son have been serving in England for some time, with an amount of $7, which brings their total raised to date for the fund up to $154.25, a splendid help from such a small circle, demonstrating what really can be accomplished by steady work.

Once again the penny box located at the Capitol Theatre has turned in one of the finest donations of its kind when collected by the secretary of the fund on Tuesday afternoon, when 686 coins were counted to show a total of $11.70 of which over six hundred were in coppers.

Every day now sees wanton damage to civilian property and a number of people killed and injured, all of which must require large assistance from the Lord Mayor's National Air Raid Distress Fund, to which all moneys from this city and district has been sent. The help that has thus been given to these stricken people by this fund will ever remain a bright spot in the history of the city and district, to which all who helped may claim to have had a share in.

Assaulted Wife Pleads Guilty

Arnold Bruce, who pleaded not guilty Monday to a charge of assaulting his wife changed his plea to "guilty" this morning and was allowed to go on suspended sentence for one year.

After the accused had made his new plea this morning Magistrate Langley called for evidence in the case.

"I could give you some evidence," said Crown Attorney McElderry "but I understand that a reconciliation has taken place and the wife is not anxious to press the charge."

"I suppose she is not anxious to have her husband go to jail," commented the Magistrate.

Crown Attorney McElderry said that the Crown would be satisfied to have the accused allowed to go on suspended sentence and His Worship acted on the suggestion, Bruce's own bond was accepted and the main condition of probation was that he must report regularly to the Chief Constable.

War—25 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press

Scouts And Cubs Display Work In Market Hall

The three-day scout and craft display, held for the first time in the Market Hall, got off to a good start when cub and scout groups from nearly every church in the city paraded from Victoria Park, down George Street, to the Market Building, behind the Salvation Army's Boys' Band, Tuesday night.

The program will be different on each of the three nights and the first show was put on by the cubs of Murray Street and George Street and St. John's Churches. They engaged in a variety of hilarious games which ended with a singsong. This was under the able direction of Misses G. Marshall and L. Dewart and Frank Pammett.

A most impressive performance was given by St. James' Sea Scouts under Stan Leggitt. The scouts first gave a demonstration of ship's ceremony, with inspection and changing of the watch.

Then they engaged in signalling, directed by Staff-Sgt. Chapman of the Prince of Wales Rangers. The boys have been training with him once a week for over two months. Their final display was a drill by five scouts, trained by George Smith, deputy fire chief, in gas mask drill.

Effective Displays.

While the centre of the hall was reserved for the demonstrations, the displays of work were laid out along each wall. Along the north end of the hall were two striking arrangements. In one corner stood a large Indian wigwam, while in the other there was a display by St. Luke's Scouts, built to represent four caves where the scouts go to tie their knots. Around the outside of the caves was depicted the campfire circle with totem poles.

Each scout and cub had to contribute something of his hobby to the display. A painting of the late Lord Baden-Powell, Chief Scout, was unusually well done, as were many scenic pictures done in oils. This whole group was the work of Ronald Gynane of the St. John's Rovers. Other striking objects were a model ship, the U.S.S. North Carolina, and a log fort and stockade made entirely of matches, represented hours of intricate craftmanship.

Other things on view were picture collections of British and American planes and ships, match-box collections, etchings and some very fine water-color sketches, model aircraft, leather and wood work, and an unusual wooden ship representing an old Roman galley.

This first large-scale demonstration of cub and scout work was a fine effort, and the leaders, Commissioner Hornsby and Assistant Commissioners Lewis Grant and Ernie Wolf, deserve a great deal of credit for their splendid show.

River Front Dump Is Condemned

The river front dump with its perennial fire was condemned as 'bad practice' by Carl W. Caskey, deputy Fire Marshal, Toronto, in a letter to the council last night.

Mr. Caskey visited Peterborough some months ago to address the convention of the Brotherhood of Threshermen, and in an observing stroll around the city he noticed the fire on the west bank of the river opposite King street. His letter advised that some more suitable place should be found for the disposal of waste materials.

"If he can show us a more desirable place we'll be glad to use it," Alderman Dutton said. The letter was referred to the fire and water committee.

This dump by the river has the advantage of being central and therefore convenient, and seems to be safely spaced from both shores. But, Mr. Caskey sees a menace in high winds and inflammable material.

Local Builder Given Staff House Job

The Eastwood Construction Company has been awarded by tender the Wartime Housing Company's contract for the construction of a staff house for single men engaged locally in war industries.

Providing dining and sleeping quarters for more than five hundred men, this projected building will be erected on the west side of Monaghan Road, opposite the northwest corner of the C.G.E. property and the end of Wolfe street.

From E. A. Peck, K.C., solicitor for the Chamberlain estate, it was learned today that Wartime Housing intends to expropriate the property which lies immediately north of the Waddell home and reached from Monaghan Road up and over the hill to High street.

The 'staff house' comprises dining room and lounge, 226 feet by 65 feet fronting on Monaghan Road, and three parallel wings to the west of it, each of them 282 feet by 33 feet.

The central building in this project consists of two storeys and basement. The dining room is laid out at one side of the main entrance and on the opposite side there will be a rest room with mezzanine floor. These two spacious rooms are two storeys in height. The basement includes boiler room, bowling alleys and snack room.

All Two Storeys

The dormitory buildings are also two storey structures, each floor being designed entirely for bed rooms. Total accommodation is estimated for 532 men.

The plans indicate that the distance from the front of the front entrance to the rear of the third dormitory is 350 feet.

Recent reports have intimated that steadily increasing employment on made-in-Peterborough munitions will require from 1,300 to 1,500 more workers. Two housing projects, the staff house on Monaghan Road and the planning for another block of 250 houses, including the thirty proposed for Park street south, are required for the additional families and single men who will be needed for the expanding war industry of this city.

Frost Nipped Asparagus Crop

Frost nipped the asparagus crop in the truck gardens of Peterboroug's suburbia Tuesday night, but the bloom of the apple orchards and the strawberry patches escaped injury.

From 80 degrees at the end of the week the weather turned abruptly to the chill of Monday and Tuesday, descending to 32 degrees, or one degree below freezing.

"Write frost" was reported by the early wayfarers this morning, and it lingered to a later hour on the shingles of most roofs.

"Yes, we have no asparagus today," Herb Doig told the Examiner. "It may have been only one degree of frost in the city, but it was enough to kill off the asparagus until it sprouts again in a couple of days. I took two days' cutting to Toronto, 310 dozens, and that has been our average clip of late. But, there's no use lamenting about it. We've got to expect some frost in early May, and besides we'll have lots more asparagus in a couple of days. Beets and carrots are doing well. They were in a protected spot and were all right to-day."

Harold Johnston put out a lot of tomato plants, but did not take any chance on last night's ominious change in temperature. He covered his first planting of tomatoes.

Norman Lillico said the prospects for a heavy bloom in his orchard and strawberry patch is quite promising and evident already.

"I did not see any signs of damage to the flowers this morning," he said.

FIER FROM TEXAS

Observer Tabor Stone who practised law in San Antonio, Texas, was a visitor to the city today with Observer Peter Arnoldi of Toronto. Both are serving in the R.C.A.F. Arnoldi, a former Grove School student, brought his friend up to see the school. The Texan was anxious to meet the parents of C. E. McKee, who is in the cosmetic business in San Antonio and who is former resident of this city.

Firemen's Double-Breasted Uniforms Fail To Get Approval Of Clothing Administrator

Gone are the double-breasted uniforms of hte Peterborough Fire Department with the peace time abundance of wool, oil, sugar, and all the other staple commodities upon which the Japs and Germans have laid grasping and bloody hands.

Presumably for the first time since the Department was developed from the voluntary to the paid and permanent basis, the new issue of uniforms will be reduced to the single-breasted coat. And the officers and men came close to losing that extra pair of trousers.

A month or so ago the Council tccepted the tender of Grafton & Company for twenty-two four-piece blue serge outfits at $41.50 each.

Four pieces contemplated the usual and standard double-breasted coat, vest and two trousers. That customary prescription by Chief Gimblett ran contrary to clothing administration restrictions on two points—the extra pair of trousers and the double-breasting of the coat.

Correspondence with H. R. Cohen, Montreal, administrator of fine clothing for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, finally agreed to paring down the coats for the fire fighters to the single-breasted idea. Mr. Cohen then agreed to grant the Department the additional pair of pants. On that basis the Council's order has now been officially approved.

Purchase of shirts was left by the fire and water committee to the chairman, Alderman Sullivan, and Chief Gimblett.

Rangers Officers Visit Niagara Camp

On Tuesday, Major R. J. Bolton, acting Officer Commanding, Prince of Wales Rangers, accompanied by two or three members of his staff, paiad a visit to the barracks, Camp Niagara, to inspect the new summer quarters which the regiment will very shortly occupy. All members of the party were much pleased with the camp. The site is well situated and is fitted with excellent facilities. Members of the regiment are glad to know tha they will train under the finest conditions and look forward keenly to the trip to Niagara next week.

Recruiting for the regiment continues steady. There were six applicants for enlistment yesterday and seven men, whose names will appear in Part II Orders late today, were taken on the strength. The recruiting office will remain open for enlistment daily during the rest of the week from nine in the morning until five in the afternoon.

In the afternoon, the Rangers went on a route march to Jackson's Park under the command of the paymaster, with Lieutenant Jack Kirkwood serving as adjutant for the trip. To-morrow there will be a two hour march in full web equipment. These are all part of the preliminary training in preparation for the trip to Niagara.

Planes Over Vichy

VICHY, May 6 — (AP). — Unidentified planes flew over Vichy and Clermont-Ferrand early yesterday, dropping observation flares and propaganda leaflets.

GEESE FEEDING

A portion of the large flock of wild geese which passed over this city last Friday night spent the night near Lake Chemong, and were noticed by many farmers feeding in a field near the lake. The geese were plump after a season down south, and were en route to a spot in Northern Canada.

Serious Charge Faces Lakefield Man

Arrested here Tuesday night, Donald Lloyd, 28-year-old Lakefield car salesman, was arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on a charge involving eleven automobiles, described by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., as representing a value of $8,000.

The charge was laid by Norman C. Dittman, branch manager of the Industrial Acceptance Corporation Limited and charged Lloyd with taking eleven automobiles "fraudulently and without color of right and converting the said automobiles to his own use with intent to deprive the Industrial Acceptance Corporation Limited, the owner or persons or corporation having a special property or interest therein, temporarily or absolutely of such automobiles or of such property or interest therein, contrary to the provisions of the Criminal Code and Section 377 thereof."

T. J. Carley, K.C., appeared in behalf of Lloyd this morning and the accused declined for the present to elect. Neither the Crown nor the accused was ready to proceed this morning and the Lakefield man was remanded for a week for preliminary hearing on the charge. Bail was fixed at $2,500.

Kingston Presbytery Conserves Gasoline

KINGSTON, Ont., May 6 (CP)—In an effort to assist in the conserving of gasoline and rubber the Kingston Presbytery of the United Church has decided to hold only three meetings a year instead of four, as at present. The presbytery has recommended Rev. J. J. Black of Lindsay for the presidency of the Bay of Quinte Conference, which will be held this year in Lindsay.

Two Motorists Fail To Report Accident

Failure to report a recent accident on the Norwood - Hastings highway proved an expensive proposition to an employ of the Canadian Nepheline Mines who was involved in the crash and to the proprietor of a Norwood garage who towed in the wrecked automobile.

Both men, J. P. Creighton, the driver of the car that figured in the crash and Frank Hotts, Norwood garage man who was called in later were charged with not reporting the accident to the authorities and both entered written pleas of guilty.

Creighton was fined $25 and $2.50 costs and Hotts $10 and $2.50 costs.

Sergt. Gordon T. Puffer who entered a plea of guilty said that the accused had claimed that the amount of damage done in the accident was not as large as had been stated.

However Provincial Constable Archie Grayling of Havelock who laid the charges said that he had an estimate of the damages from a garage and the amount had been placed at $175. Describing the crash the officer stated that Creighton's car had run along the shoulder for a long distance after it left the travelled portion of the highway, and finally had turned turtle, making a complete somersault. Constable Grayling stated that a quantity of beer had been found hidden near the scene of the accident. The car was very badly damaged, he said.

A Healthy Liver
Sedentary workers and those whose occupation forces them to adopt a position in which the body is cramped, often suffer with liver trouble and bowel complaints.
When the body is held in an unnatural position for hours at a time the spinal nerves become constricted by tightened ligaments and improper position of vertebrae.
This reduces the flow of mental energy going to the liver and intestines so they have not the strength to do their work properly.
The cramped position of the body also compresses these organs and adds to their inability to function as they should.
Our spinal manipulation combined with properly regulated exercise and right habits of living do produce decidedly beneficial results in cases of liver and bowel disorders.
If you wish to be healthy we can help you keep your liver in better working order.

Cavalcade of Canada Marks May Day Celebrations By Normal School Students

Dr. J. A. Bannister, principal of the Normal School, crowned Miss Helen Foster, outstanding girl student, as May Queen at the annual May Day celebration, held in the auditorium on Tuesday evening. In conjunction with the May Day celebrations, an exhibition of the students work in social studies, manual training, household economics and art was on display about the big hall, and a colorful pageant, "Cavalcade of Canada," was presented, for which the lines were written by Dr. Bannister and the music directed by Mr. Quirt McKinney.

The work of the students was very fine and showed evidences of painstaking care, and a very real interest in teaching. The scale models of foreign scenes, the big maps, and the model buildings proved fascinating to the visitors, as did the variety and ingenuity of various scrap books, kept by the students. Among the scrap books, these containing demonstrations of how to make those folded paper objects beloved of small children were particularly interesting. A fine proof of the student teachers ingenuity was a table of small books designed to teach children to count.

"Salt and Flour Maps," posters, and clever calendars were everywhere, and all were neat, skilful and attractive. There was a fine display of plasticine modelling and some beautiful examples of soap-carving. There was also some weaving set up on handlooms, and some examples of wood-work done in manual training classes. In the Art Room there was a really fine display of the work of the students in the kind of art they would teach their young pupils. An interesting display masks, such as children might make for themselves, opens up a whole new realm of interesting possibilities to the mind. A simple but effective method of painting, in which the paint is smoothed thickly all over with a brush, and the picture made by wiping it off with the fingers, showed some attractive results, and should prove attractively messy to young children.

In the Home Economics Room the work of the girls in their sewing classes was displayed, as well as their scrap-books. The keynote of their worked seemed to be an attractive simplicity and a use of the materials that are to hand. There were dainty collar and cuff sets made from two hankies; guest towels and table cloths from flour sacks, and a doll's cradle made from a six-quart basket and the skirt of an old dress. All of this work was neat and artistic, and most attractively displayed.

The "Cavalcade of Canada" was marked by careful and conscientious learning of lines a clear, unconfused delivery. The musical numbers were outstanding, for their purity of tone and the obvious enthusiasm and enjoyment with which they were performed. Miss Helen Williams, A.T.C.M., deserves especial congratulations, not only for her accompaniment of the singing, but for her execution of her own piano solo. A rare and pleasing clarity of enunciation marked both speaking and singing. The entire cast showed such general excellence in these respects that it would be almost impossible to choose any single individual as outstanding, but Miss Marion Fraleigh, mistress of ceremonies deserved special mention. Miss Fraleigh was constantly on the stage and had a great deal to say and she carried off her part with grace and ability.

The cavalcade was designed to show the cultural contributions that have been brought to Canada from Europe and made by the early settlers. The cavalcade was presented to the May Queen by the mistress of ceremonies and the countries came forward one at a time and spoke of their contribution, after which some example of that contribution was given. Where the contribution was music or folk-songs, these were sung by the students of the Normal School. Charming folk dances were performed by picked groups. The entire performance showed a neatness of execution and moved quickly, with none of those dragging gaps when nothing happens that are so common in this kind of thing. It was very well-directed.

Those taking part in the pageant were as follows: May Queen, Helen Foster; Valedictorian, Elwood Moore, Leader, Greta Huffman; Mistress of Ceremonies, Marion Fraleigh; page, Ida Fitzpatrick; France, Norma Sine; England, June Walker; Scotland, Frances MacMillan; Wales, Helen Worseley; Ireland, Helen Evans; Holland, Margaret Russell; Belgium, Isabel Rutherford; Scandinavia, Fay Fleming; Poland, Eleanor Jarvis; Russia, Barbara Argue; Columbia, Verna Benns; pianist, Helen Williams; train-bearers, Monica Cannon and Helen Glover; flower girls, Eleanor Bigelow and Gwen Varcoe.

The valedictory address, in which the outstanding boy student paid tribute to the school and its teachers, and to all who had helped them during the year, was delivered by Ellwood Moore of Castleton, and Miss Helen Foster, May Queen and outstanding girl, comes from Campbellcroft.

George Street W.A.

The ladies of the George Street W.A. were welcomed to the May meeting by Mrs. A. McHoull and Mrs. E. L. Sackville. The president, Mrs. W. G. Harris, opened the gathering with the reading of a poem, "Mothers."

Mrs. C. H. Fulford had charge of the devotional period and was assisted by Miss L. Allen who read the scripture and Mrs. M. Morrow, who gave the prayer.

The guest speaker was Mrs. D. B. Avison, who gave an inspiring "Mother's Day" message. Mrs. C. Renaud was accompanist for a duet by Mrs. A. R. Bennett and Mrs. F. Board. A vote of thanks was given the guest by Mrs. W. G. McLaren and Mrs. C. S. Staples. Mrs. J. M. Fanning reported 23 calls for the visiting committee and Mrs. W. H. Girven 32 for the membership. Letters of thanks were read by Mrs. C. W. McGee.

The president announced the recital to be given on Friday evening, May 8, in the church by Mr. C. Renaud's pupils and the Lakefield Glee Club.

Edith A. Wills Is Bride Of John B. Gray

The marriage took place in St. Luke's Anglican Church on Tuesday of Edith Agnes, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Wills, to John Bauder Gray, son of Mr. S. A. Gray and the late Mrs. Gray of Owen Sound. Rev. George J. Bousfield officiated at the meremony, for which the church was decorated with pink snapdragons, ferns and apple-blossoms, and Miss Margaret Flowers played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Keith Wills, the bride was charming in a white mouseline de sole gown with a sweetheart neckline, three quarter sleeves, and a full skirt with a short train. She wore a halo-shaped finger-tip veil of embroidered silk net caught with seed pearls, and carried a bouquet of American beauty roses and white sweet-peas. She was attended by Mrs. Max Curtis of Toronto, Miss Ruth Prattey of Toronto and Miss Helen Steer. They were gowned in mouseline de soie dresses, one pink and two turquoise, on lines similar to the bride's, with hats of gardenias and ribbon, and they carried bouquets of purple iris and sweetheart roses. Mr. Gordon Gray attended the groom and the users were Mr. Evan Fraser and Mr. Walker Jones.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Kawartha Club, where Miss Allie Curtis, aunt of the bride, received, wearing a gown of turquoise blue crepe with a matching hat and corsage of yellow roses and violets. The groom's sister Mrs. W. J. Bryson of Toronto, also received wearing a gown of beige crepe with a hat of turf-tan felt and a corsage of pink roses.

Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip to points north. For travelling the bride wore a two-piece crepe ensemble of blue and white polka dot, with turban to match and navy accessories. They will live in Paris, Ontario.

With Girl Guides

The Girl Guide local association held its bi-monthly meeting on Tuesday last at the home of Miss Stephenson, 756 George street.

Mrs. Dunkerley reported on the progress of the two Guide companies and the Rangers.

It was suggested that a field day for all Guides, should be held sometime in the near future, possibly at Nicholls Oval.

Mrs. Dunkerley suggested that all who could, should go to the commissioners meeting at Toronto on May 14 and 15, where Guide problems and war work for Rangers will be discussed.

An extraordinary meeting with regard to the field day was suggested at a time nearer the proposed date—and so the meeting was adjourned.

WORKING GIRLS BEWARE OF PARASITIC HUSBANDS

Piker Fortune Hunters Prey on Girls With Good Jobs

Not long ago I asked a young woman why she had divorced her husband, to which she replied: "I did it because I was determined not to be one of the fool women who spend their lives slaving to support an able-bodied man. When I married John, he had a good job and so did I, and we had wonderful plans for a marriage that would be a real partnership, with both of us working and saving until we got on Easy Street and could buy the vine-wreathed cottage in the suburbs that every woman's soul yearns after.

"We got off to a grand start, for I was still living in the pertty apartment that Mother and I had, with all the good furiture that she left me when she died, and all John had to do was just to come in and hang up his hat and be as cozy as you please, with none of the fear of the installment collector that haunts most newlyweds' dreams.

John Gives Up Job

"Well, everything went fine for a few months. Then one day John came home with the news that he had given up his job. It was a sad tale of an overbearing and tyrannical boss who put indignites upon him that his proud spirit could no longer endure. He loudly proclaimed that he was a man and not a mouse and, by George, he wouldn't stand being treated like a slave, and he would go somewhere where his talents would be appreciated.

"I sympathized with him, as a bride would, and said how lucky it was that I still had my job and we could live until he found something to do that suited him. I thought that he would be up bright and early the next morning in pursuit of work, but he casually remarked that he thought he would take a few days to rest up and look over the situation before he settled down to anything permanent. He didn't want to do anything in a hurry.

Slumbers While Wife Works

"Well he didn't. At the end of six months he was still looking for work and praying God not to find it. And I was getting up in the morning and going to my job, while he slumbered and slept. Then it dawned on me that he was never going to do another lick of work as long as he had a wife to support him.

"And so I told him in no uncertain terms that I wasn't running a loafers' boarding house, and cast him out. And when he had no longer a comfortable place to stay and three square meals a day, he wasn't so choosy about a job and he went back to work. I tell you we women are responsible for a lot of the no-account men, but I am not one of the husband supporters any more."

This woman's story, with individual variations, comes to me every day of the week, for one of the problems of the modern woman is the parasitic husband who marries for a home. And his poor, tired wife, who is worn to a frazzle trying to hold hown two jobs, doesn't know whether it is her duty to cherish him in idleness, or throw him out on his neck.

Have Girl Friend On The Side

It used to be that only millionairesses were married for their money, but nowadays there is a piker variety of fortune-hunter who prey upon girls with good jobs and deliberately marry them in order to be supported. Almost before the ink on their marriage certificates is dry they quit their jobs and join the Weary Willies who spend their time loafing around pool rooms and listening to the radio and watching amateur baseball games. Generally they have a girl friend on the side on whom they spend the money their wives have earned. For, of course, after having pounded a typewriter all day or stood behind a counter and then come home and gotten dinner and cleaned the house, Mary is too tired to want to step out of an evening.

Of course, the parasitic husband may say in his own defence that turn about is fair play, and that what is sauce for the gander is also sauce for the goose, and that inasmuch as a lot of men supporting trifling wives who lay down on their part in the domestic partnership, why shouldn't a woman support a lazy husband without feeling herself ill-used?

But the situation doesn't always work out the same way, for custom and convention have made the husband the prop of the family and the wife the leaner, and when you reverse the order the whole edifice of marriage tumbles down. A woman can be a poor housekeeper and a poisonous cook and still be pleasant to get along with and still love her husband, but a man whom a woman supports is always a surly dog that bites the hand that feeds it. The man whom his wife supports invariably comes to hate her because she has the strength he lacks, because she has the grit and determination he has not, because she is a success and he is a failure, because she gives and he takes, because she is a better man than he is, and he knows it, and the world knows it.

And that no man forgives his wife.

Boys of 18 Not Ready For Marriage

Dear Miss Dix.—In these times when men are growing more scarce each day, what do you think of girls 20 and 21 years of age going out with boys 17 and 18 years old? In my opinion future wives will be several years older than their husbands, and I am wondering what chance of happiness there will be for couples in this class? Please give your opinion.—Wondering.

Answer.—Well, of course, in a practically Adamless Eden girls can't look a gift date in the mouth and be choosy about it. They have to take what they can get. As long as girls of 20 and 21 just step out with boys of 17 and 18 to the movies or go dancing, the age question doesn't matter, but it matters a lot when it comes to marriage. For girls of 20 and 21 are ready for marriage and boys of 17 and 18 are not.

A girl of 20 or 21 is mature. She is a grown woman. She knows what she wants in a husband. She is ready to settle down. But a boy of 17 or 18 isn't ready to marry. He is still a child, for boys do not develop as fast as girls do. He has no idea what kind of a wife he will want when he is a man and, as a rule, has has no money with which to support a family, nor any trade or profession by which he can even earn a living for himself. So it is a tragedy for him to marry.

After a man is 30 years old it does not make any different whether his wife is younger or older than he is, provided the difference is not very great, because by that time he has come to himself. But while he is in his teens or his early twenties it is a mistake for him to marry a woman older than himself because her attitude toward him is always more material than wifely.

Should Forget Man Who Jilted Her

Dear Miss Dix.—The boy I was in love with has married another girl and life is miserable for me. I am a business girl, but I hate my work and want to marry. I have a chance to marry, but I don't love the man. Should I marry him, or wait on the chance that the boy friend I still love will leave his wife and come back to me? I'd be willing to wait a year for him if that is what you suggest—Miserable.

Answer.—Well, it isn't at all what I suggest. My suggestion is that you forget both the man who jilted you and the one you don't love and centre your interest on your work until some man comes by who loves you and whom you love. Keep yourself free for Mr. Right.

TALENT SCOUT

CHAPTER XVIII

Ferdy, Peggy was pleased to note, had decided to join Fay in co-operating with whatever devious plans the younger girl had in mind. He filled Baldy's glass again while Peggy carried on the Baldy eulogy, embellishing his confidences of the afternoon.

She described how Baldy had "wowed 'em" in the days before burlesque had come to stay with his act that shared billing with a lady of unquestionable charm—one Blossom. "Wowed 'em," that is, until he made the mistake of marrying her. Her words tumbled out with feigned admiration and enthusiasm that mellowed Baldy until he beamed and struck the rest of the company, and especially Nigel, as high comedy. She had no regard for sequence, but her praise of Baldy, her mock saga of his sometimes savory but never colorless career, fell on receptive ears. Even Myra forgot her misgivings in admiration for this glib and entertaining youngster.

"We could learn so much from Baldy," Peggy rattled on.

The rest, tumbling to the spirit of the thing, joined in, and soon Baldy basked in the position that flattered him most. As the centre of the company he had been frozen out of a few minutes before—and centre of it thanks to Peggy—he was soon talking over the account of his personal history and adding glorious, of alcoholic embellishments even Peggy hadn't dreamed of.

The upshot of it all was that after dinner he was mellowed and anxious to demonstrate just where his own particular talents could lead them.

Peggy egged him on and was promoted to the role of the lady Blossom for purposes of demonstration. Fay played the piano.

"Say," said Baldy to Peggy after the first few tryouts. "You can dance! Now try this one."

He began to tap and Peggy followed him with a natural knack for picking up steps. Then he demonstrated how Blossom would make a mistake and how he would and how they'd quarrel and how she'd pull his hair and it came off . . . .

"Now for this concert party you want . . . ."

Then he went on, improvising a program as he went, playing half a dozen parts himself and working in Peggy and Fay. He proved himself a comedian with a natural flair for improvisation, and he kept his small audience in a state of laughter and anticipation until he caught a glimpse of himself dishevel and dripping with perspiration.

"Well, folks," he announced. "That's all. Next show at twelve midnight."

Then he retired to change into another new outfit—salmon pink slacks and sports shirt.

"I still prefer to hear you sing Grieg," said Nigel to Fay.

"What about me?" said Peggy.

Myra interrupted. "You ought to be spanked and put to bed. But still you were'nt so bad, even though I am your most dubious critic."

Ferdy grinned. "You were wonderful, Peggy—quite professional. That is what you want to hear, isn't it?"

Peggy grinned back at him and nodded.

When Baldy returned to the company it had split up to do various things. Fay and Michael and Nigel were out somewhere in the moonlight.

Peggy met Baldy with a long cool drink ready to set at his elbow.

"Say, you read my thoughts," said Baldy who felt at last he was really being appreciated.

Peggy looked at him and shook her head. "You know, Baldy, you are all wrong."

"What do you mean?"

"You need a manager. You shouldn't be managing other people. You need one yourself."

Baldy shook his head. "Don't wish that on me. I've been married and I know what it's like."

"I don't mean that, Baldy. A man with a talent like yours shouldn't be looking after other people's talent. With the right management you'd be way up at the top with Hollywood running after you."

Baldy shook his head. "So I would, honey, so I would, but between you and me, it's jealousy, professional jealousy that kept me down. Couldn't fight it. The bigger and better you are the harder they gun for you. Jealousy, that's what it was. Jealousy, the curse of the profession, though I'm too big for that kind of thing myself. Bigheart, that's what my friends used to call me. Baldy Bigheart, the guy that never refused a touch, and did they touch me! You can't be soft-hearted in show business. Look at me now, wasting my talents, all because I got a soft heart for Fay; look at me, I stand to lose a hundred and fifty a week on my cut if she quits. Am I squealing? No, I'm helping her put on a show so's she can quit."

Peggy went to fill his glass. She returned ready for the full impact on her act. She sighed, green eyes gazing, full of admiration, into his.

"I'll bet you could make something of anyone."

Baldy purred. "That's me, honey. Let 'em keep their jealousy. Let 'em try to keep me out and I'll break in anyway. I'm creative, that's what I am. Do I care what I do? Do I want to put on an act, night after night, in a show that's going to run, with me in it, for three years? No, I say. I'm an artist. I create talent. Give me a half baked clam that's got rhythm and in six months I'll show you some real class."

I'll bet you could," said Peggy. "I'll bet you could have made something out of me even if I hadn't been going with Fay."

Baldy leaned forward. "Say honey. You can dance, you can sing—good! If I took you up, gave you a line of your own, I'd get you in small time in a week, in big time in a year."

"I'll bet you could," murmured Peggy. "Too bad!"

"It really is too bad," mourned Baldy. 'If it wasn't for me having my hands full with Fay, and hangin' onto my own gravy train, I could haev you warblin' in the best clubs in ten months." He took another deep gulp of his drink.

"That's not what I mean," prodded Peggy sweetly.

Baldy was suspicious. "What's up?"

"I was thinking it's too bad about Fay."

might be, but it was felt in the

'Fly Cop' Gets Three

London, May 6 (CP).

THE R.A.F. bagged four German planes during the night and a "fly cop" Czech flight lieutenant got three of them. Flying over three German airfields in the R.A.F. tactic of waylaying German raiders as they return to home base, this pilot was credited with shooting down three of six Heinkels he encountered over one airdrome in northern France. He used a four-cannon Hurricane plane.

The fourth plane was shot down off the south coast, which the Germans raided.

The air ministry communique told of other attacks.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, May 7

Although the astral influences for this day are expansive, warming and promising, with encouragement for important aims and objectives, yet there is sign of mental and emotional disturbances or agitations which might prove a frustrating force having a disappointing influence on best hopes and wishes. Indulgence in highly nervous and intellectual ideas or tensions as well as other extravagances or excesses may prove perilous to fortune, credit and peace of mind. Business, as well as social, domestic and friendly relations may be disturbed unless handled with good judgment, frugality, moderation, and precaution.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of many expansive, hopeful and encouraging influences, which may be diverted to lucrative, happy and productive fulfillments if a tendency to mental and emotional stresses as well as to extravagance, indulgences and over-zealous tactics is curbed. Reasonable, temperate, friendly and considerate behavior is recommended if excellent auguries are to be permitted to operate. Be alert to fraud and entangling alliances in all contacts and there may be definite growth and profit, with much pleasure.

A child born on this day should have much efficiency, mental ability and ambition, but its over-expansive, extravagant and zealous nature may prove its undoing in both business and private life, unless given early direction in the use of its fine talents.

New Slip Covers Brighten Living Room

Simple to Make

Winter gloom soon disappears when you brighten up your living-room with gay slip covers. It's easy to make any slip-cover and fit it the pin-on way.

The welting that trims the seams is also easy to sew on. In a color that matches a color in the fabric, it looks smart, professional!

To start the cover, remove cushions and smooth fabric over chair, starting at top-back and continuing to edge of seat. Pin down every 3 inches where seams will be and cut 1½ inches outside pins for seams.

Other sections you fit one at a time the same way—front, sides, arms and back. Where the fabric bunches at curves, take darts as in our diagram. Then pin pieces together and remove cover.

The welting is inserted from the right side and stitched in the seam. The deep gathered flounce goes on last of all.

Full details of making lovely slip covers are given in our 32-page booklet. Tells how to fit chairs, sofas and automobile seats the pin-on way. Gives directions for finishing seams, trimming; for making flounces.

For your copy of "How to Make Slip Covers" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

POOLING INFORMATION

TO DETERMINE his plan of action, a general assembles all of the information available to him, and from it deduces other facts about the enemy which he does not directly know. Those secondary facts, which are merely inferred, may be the most vital of all It is the same with a declarer at bridge who must pool his knowledge from various developments before he can build a winning plan.

At two duplicate tables, West made that same third hand opening bid of 1-Diamond, and South wound up at 4-Spades. Only one of the two declarers, however, made his contract, although in each case West led the heart Q to the A and two spade tops followed.

Both declarers lost one trick each in spades, hearts and diamonds. The unsuccessful one also lost a trick in clubs when the finesse of the J failed.

The winning declarer, realizing that the lead of the heart Q by West showed that East held the K, reckoned that this gave West a pretty weak hand for an opening bid, and that, therefore, West very likely held the club Q, which would win a finesse. He therefore eschewed the finesse, and built a squeeze. To the fourth trick, he led a small spade, letting the Q win and the heart 6 went to East's K. When the club 5 was returned, he took it with the K, so as to leave the A as an entry into dummy for a squeeze. Next he led the diamond 5 and, as he hoped, West came in with the A and returned the Q to the K. The heart J furnished a club discard, the diamond 8 was ruffed and the last spade laid down. South also held then the club J-9, with the A-8 and the diamond 10 in dummy. West could not discard the diamond J without making the 10 good, so he tossed the club 10. Thereupon the diamond 10 was discarded from dummy and the final two tricks were made by clubs.

Havelock W.I. Summary Day Plans Complete

HAVELOCK, May 6 — (ENS). — May meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Monday afternoon with a good attendance, and the president, Mrs. C. Price, presiding. The canvassers for the Cemetery Fund were named: East-end, Mrs. William Woodbeck; Centre, Miss E. Wright; West half, Mrs. Joseph Hoffman, and West-end Mrs. Wesley Johnson. The auditor's report by Mrs. Chiles and Mrs. Clarke was read and adopted. The new co-operative program was studied and it was decided on—"Uses for Whole Wheat" for first choice, and "Quilts and Quilting" for second choice. Mrs. William Woodbeck was appointed district director for this year. Delegates to the convention in Warsaw on May 26 are Mrs. C. Price, Mrs. W. Woodbeck, Mrs. Joseph Hoffman, and Mrs. George Chiles.

All plans for Summary Day to be held here on Friday were completed. Program convener for the meeting was Mrs. J. Hoffman.

The reports of the district executive meeting held in Warsaw, April 21, was given by the director, Mrs. Robert Jones, and she urged conveners of standing committees to send in their reports at once. The roll call was answered by each member writing on a slip of paper a general economical hint in cooking. A visitor, Miss Smythe, acted as judge, and Mrs. R. McCutcheon won the prize for having the best and newest idea. Mrs. Hoffman read a humorous "Springtime Sonnet." Mrs. J. W. S. Clarke gave a splendid demonstration on making an eggless suet pudding, which was later served with sauce. She also gave every member a typewritten copy of the recipe, which will likely be tried out in every Institute home. The meeting closed by singing "God Save the King." and refreshments were served by Mrs. John White, Miss E. Wright, and Mrs. C. Price.

U.S. Army Gets Priority On The Lowly Herring

Every year, from time immemorial, millions of herring have swarmed up the Taunton River to spawn at the headwaters near Middleboro, Mass., and every year it was either the Indians with their traps or the white men with their nets who caught them in thousands. But either way, the tasty fish ultimately satisfied someone's appetite. This year the U.S. army has put in its order and the herring will, in their own way, help beat the Axis. Photo at LEFT shows the millions of herring in the water, headed upstream. The other picture shows the herring (or alewives) being pulled in with a dragnet. In this spot the daily catch runs up to 1,000 barrels.

Monster Salvage Campaign For Wednesday

HASTINGS, May 6—(ENS).—In a communication read at Monday night's Hydro Commission meeting, the Department of Munitions and Supply outlined the immediate need of all rubber for use in Canada's war effort.

Discussing this request, the commissioners decided to utilize any available used or surplus rubber equipment to swell the village's monster salvage day slated for Wednesday, May 13.

In addition a letter from the Hydro Electric Power Commission requested the local body to forward a list of all such material on hand.

Emphasizing the acute need for the strings of colored lights used in Hastings during the past several summers, commissioner L. E. Kelley declared that these should not be disconnected until so requested by the government.

"In a tourist centre such as this the main street would look pretty dead unless the colored lights were on," added Mr. Kelley. "They're certainly a big aid to our business," agreed commissioner H. G. Fairman, and it was tentatively decided, barring a request to the contrary from the government, that the lights would be connected Saturday, May 23.

Coinciding with the decision of the Department of Munitions and Supply that the contemplated local hydro project of T. F. Lain, the local commission informed the Toronto contractor that the matter was closed for the duration.

In answer to several requests for clarification of rates from local hydro consumers who do not spend the winter in Hastings the commission decided that in such cases either a "domestic" or a "summer" rate might be used. "The matter is entirey optional," pointed out Dr. W. E. Wilson, the chairman.

E. M. Hess, local service man reported that the tree trimmer was broken and he was subsequently authorized to purchase a new one immediately.

It was pointed out that as a result of the stoppage of all rural work due to the shortage of available material, the local commission's payroll would be halved. This will entail a similar decrease in the Workmen's Compensation levy.

On motion of Commissioners Kelley and Fairman the following accounts were ordered paid: Hydro Electric Power Commission, March power, $329.35; H.E.P.C., Ontario statement, $12,87; Bell Telephone, $2.13; Royal Bank, collections, $3.70; Dept. of National Revenue, war tax, $48.17; Mort. Knight, refund, $4.00; Mrs. Charles Lynch, refund, $4.00; Alton Thompson, refund, $4.00; Harold Wilson, material, $14.00; E. M. Hess, salary and postage, $76.49.

Nine suggestions were reported as received in the past month. Awards went to three of these. The Star was awarded the oxide plant. W. Hilton was appointed floating member for May. Other reports were that of the Benevolent Relief Fund by C. H. Buskard, Health and Investigation Committee by J. A. Rice, and Publicity Committee by J. H. Hemphill. The session was made further interesting through talks by J. A. Rice and D. Robertson on the recent Industrial Accidents Prevention Convention held in Toronto, the speakers having been delegates from the Deloro Safety Committee.

Sunlight's "EXTRA-SOAPINESS"

ANY soap—bar, powder or flakes—will remove the "all-over" dirt from clothes. But almost everything you wash has certain extra dirty parts which require special treatment to get them really clean. Where sheets have been folded down, where heads have rested on pillow-cases, the collars and cuffs of shirts, smocks and children's clothes—these parts call for Sunlight's "extra soapiness"

Sunlight has a wonderful "extra soapiness" which enables you to get right at the extra dirty parts. Apply it lightly—just a touch of Sunlight and you leave a film of soap right on the dirt. And because it is Sunlight Soap you're using, this thin, soapy film is enough to loosen the last speck of stubborn grime, and the rich Sunlight lather carries it away. That is the Sunlight method of washing — an amazingly effective and safe way of getting clothes spotlessly clean.

You'll find this "extra soapiness" a wonderful help in household cleaning, too. It gets everything spotless in no time. And Sunlight is so pure, it's absolutely safe for hands—keeps them soft and white.

MADAGASCAR YIELDS MAJOR BASE TO BRITISH

Britain Gets 2 New Campaign Hints

Cruiser Is Lost But 90 p.c. Convoy Saved

Running Arctic Fight Costs Nazis Destroyer, 5 Planes

LONDON, May 7.—(CP).— Loss of the 10,000-ton cruiser Edinburgh and four convoyed merchantmen in a running sea fight along the storm-tossed Arctic supply lane to Soviet Russia was announced to-day by the Admiralty, which declared that 90 per cent. of the convoy got through safely despite plane, warship and U-boat attacks.

The attacks, severest from April 30 through May 2, cost the Germans one destroyer sunk, another damaged severely, at least two dive bombers destroyed and another perhaps crippled, the Admiralty said.

Two British convoys were targets of the air, sea and undersea assaults. One, laden with war supplies, got through 90 per cent intact, with a loss of three ships. The other, headed home, lost one ship in ballast.

The Admiralty said the Edinburgh, completed in 1939, was struck twice by torpedoes and "later had to be sunk by our own forces as towing was no longer practicable in the weather conditions prevailing."

The fight apparently was the same reported three days ago by the German High Command, which said a 10,000-ton British cruiser had been sunk. This German version claimed six convoyed ships totalling 37,500 tons also were sent to the bottom in a furious running battle which lasted for several days. The Germans admitted the loss of five planes and one destroyer.

Japs Sweep 25 Miles In China

Give Kai-Shek's Troops No Chance To Wreck Burma Road

By SPENCER MOOSA
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHUNGKING, May 7—(AP).—A Japanese mechanized spearhead with warplane support has swept 25 miles along the Burma Road into Chinese territory and reached the town of Chefang where heavy fighting is in progress, a Chinese army spokesman said today.

The spokesman said it was not clear how far the Japanese intended to penetrate Yunnan Province which contains the Chinese section of the Burma Road, but the lightning drive to Chefang, so rapid the Chinese had no time to destroy the highway, raised speculation as to the prospects of an offensive with Chungking, the capital, as the objective.

En route the Japanese completed occupation of Wanting, Chinese Customs station at the Burma border at which the new Japanese invasion of China began two days ago.

(For some weeks close students of Japan's intentions have suggested that her next major move might be a campaign to knock Free China out of the war. This might take the form of a drive northeastward through Yunnan toward Chungking synchronized with other attacks from the old China fronts in Shansi, Honan and Hupeh Provinces, northeast and east of Chiang Kai-Shek's capital.

Objective Reached.

(In Tokyo the Domei agency quoted officials as declaring that the chief objective of the Burma campaign had been practically attained with the entry into Yunnan and occupation of Akyab on the Burma west coast. This suggests that a major Japanese purpose was not merely to close the Burma Road to aid to China but to use it as an avenue of invasion).

The Chinese spokesman said fighting continued in Southern Hunan province, where the Japanese launched a series of attacks from Sinyang, 150 miles north of Yankow, late last month.

He insisted, however, that these operations were minor, the Japanese intention apparently being to give fresh troops battle practice and to forage for supplies. (When the Honan attacks began it was suggested that they might develop into a big westward push toward Chunking.)

The spokesman expressed doubt that the Japanese would be able to complete their occupation of Burma and insisted that if they attempted a major invasion of China from that direction they would encounter much more formidable Chinese resistance than that of the 5th and 6th Armies sent into Burma.

"That was just an expeditionary force," he said. "China has four to five million troops." (A considerable proportion of these, however, lack modern equipment and training).

Chinese reports continued to tell of widespread Japanese air activity. New attacks were reported in Chekiang and Kiangsi provinces (where the Japanese have been bombing potential United Nations air bases for weeks), and Japanese planes also ranged widely over Yunnan.

Several of the chief towns of Yunnan were bombed yesterday in raids that suggested either an attempt to paralyze the movement of reinforcements toward the Burma border or to prepare the way for invading forces.

Refuse To Let Troops Mine Coal

Prefer Fuel Rations To Weakening Army At This Time

LONDON, May 7 — (CP). — The Government to-day rejected proposals that in order to avert fuel rationing thousands of miners be released from the Army "on the eve, perhaps, of great new campaigns.'

Hugh Dalton, president of the Board of Trade, speaking for the Government at the opening of a House of Commons debate on rationing, said that release of sufficient men to produce the 10,000,000 tons of coal which the Government hopes to save by rationing "would mean the blotting out of whole battalions of some of the finest regiments in the British Army."

"You would propose to pick the eyes out of large sections of our striking force on the eve, perhaps, of great new campaigns, much canvassed and much debated," Mr. Dalton said.

The prospect of new campaigns also was mentioned by Prime Minister Churchill in a letter to Lt.-Cmdr, L. W. Joynson Hicks, Conservative candidate for Parliament in the Chichester by-election.

"The time approaches when our accumulated strength will be matched against our enemies in every theatre of war," Mr. Churchill wrote.

Endorsing Mr. Joynson-Hicks who is the son and heir of Viscount Brentford, he said the Government had "moulded the nation from a condition of relative defencelessness into a mighty instrument of offence."

New Moves Expected

"It is not for me to say anything more than that this is the moment when many people anticipate we may be moving towards a new armed climax in the war when we shall want all fighting men we can call upon to shorten the war and bring us victory."

Some members estimated 35,000 men would be needed to make up the coal deficit. They would represent more than two divisions in numbers, but their withdrawal actually might disrupt the organization of several divisions.

However, Mr. Dalton announced that 11,000 men would be released for work in the Pits. 7,000 from the army and 4,000 from civil defence and industry, but said the govern-

Suspect Nabbed At Aurora Believed Nazi

TORONTO, May 7—(CP).—Police officers are on their way here from Aurora with a man whom they believe might be one of the two German air force officers who escaped from the Bowmanville prison camp Tuesday noon.

He is being taken to R.C.M.P. headquarters in Toronto by Constable Alex Ferguson and Chief Fisher Dunham of Aurora.

The man in custody was noticed loitering around the Aurora railway station and police were notified.

A cache of clothing was found in the rear of a house near Aurora earlier today.

Cyril Ireland made the discovery when he moved into the vacant house located just north of St. Andrew's College.

Fleet Enters Harbor 3:30 pm After Double Assault Wins Day, Cost Of 1000 Men

Governor Gives Up Upon Sighting 23 Ships Pouring Troops Ashore In Courrier Bay; Mine Sweepers Already Clearing Big Harbor

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 7—(AP).—France's Diego Suarez Bay fortifications, the best naval base of Madagascar, have fallen to British forces and "terms of surrender are now being drawn up."

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons that the British fleet is expected to enter Diego Suarez harbor about 3.30 p.m., but added that the first assault Tuesday may have cost more than 1,000 men.

The Prime Minister, the War Office, the Admiralty, the Ministry of Information and military commentators contributed to details of the occupation intended to block the Japanese threat to Indian Ocean supply lines.

The village of Diego; Antsirana, the chief port of north Madagascar; and the Diego Suarez naval base were won in swift succession by the operations of British sea, land and air forces within less than 48 hours after they established a beachhead.

Antsirana's capture was announced by the Admiralty and the War Office in a joint communique.

Marines Create 2nd Front

"The main attack was launched from the south," the communique said, "but the landing of Royal Marines from the north created a valuable diversion."

Apparently referring to actions already announced by Vichy, officials said a French submarine and sloop had been sunk in Diego Surez harbor in the attack upon Antsirana, where the French had developed the chief naval base of Madagascar.

Governor-General Armand Annet was reported in Vichy broadcasts to have telegraphed that 23 British ships were in Courrier Bay at his back, ready to augment the "crushing numerical and material superiority of the assailants" with fresh landings.

Vichy had reported that the British naval force included 23 warships, of which five were of heavy tonnage, signifying battleships or large cruisers.

"A counter attack carried out by a landing company from the sloop D'Entrecasteaux even enabled us to reoccupy some positions which we had had to abandon," the communique said. "According to the latest news, very violent fighting continues."

Three planes from the aerial assault force based on an aircraft carrier in Courrier Bay were declared by the communique to have been shot down—this amending a previous figure of seven—and seven British tanks were reported destroyed.

Four Officers Captured

"We took prisoners, four of whom were officers," it said.

The British forces struck by land from the rear instead of by sea in a frontal assault upon Diego Suarez where naval guns command the eastern approaches.

It is eight miles by air from the mangrove-bordered shore of Courrier Bay east to Diego Suarez, but more than twice that distance over the rugged land across the isthmus and around Diego Suarez Bay.

British Attack Isle Off Crete Rome Reports

CAIRO, May 7.—(CP). — While Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck's headquarters to-day confined its announcement to the bald statements that "normal patrol activity continued yesterday," the Axis indicated Britain has seized the initiative at two points in the Mediterranean.

Rome reported that British forces had assaulted the Island of Kupho, or Kuphonisia, about five miles off the southeastern tip of Crete, and that in the western desert British armored units had been operating east of El Mechili.

British headquarters did not comment on either report. As is customary, the Rome communique claimed British forces had been repulsed at both places, at Kupho by the Axis garrison and at El Mechili by artillery fire.

El Mechili is about 120 miles west of Tobruk and the Rome announcement, if confirmed, means that Lt.-Gen. Neil Ritchie's 8th army has sent its patrols to the deepest point of penetration since it overran the entire Libyan 'hump' last winter.

Kangaroo Upsets Georgetown Spot

GEORGETOWN, Ont., May 7.—(CP).—Possibility that a kangaroo which escaped an Australian airman near Montreal last Tuesday has found its way into this district was seen to-day with reports that a boy living on a farm near here had seen a kangaroo yesterday.

The boy, Bruce Ismond, said he found a kangaroo walking calmly around with farm animals. When he moved toward it, the kangaroo dashed into a bush. A long search by farmers in the district proved fruitless although the animal later was reported to have been seen jumping a fence on a nearby farm.

A kangaroo escaped from the baggage car of a train at St. Lambert, Que., a Montreal suburb. It belonged to one Australian airman but was mascot for a group of Australians and New Zealanders.

Georgetown is 20 miles west of Toronto. There was no explanation how the kangaroo, if it was the one who escaped from the airmen, could have travelled the close to 400 miles between Montreal and Georgetown in one day.

Reds Drive Wedge At Leningrad

MOSCOW, May 7 — (AP).—The Red Army, attacking across bogs on the Leningrad front, was reported to-day to have driven a wedge between two German forces and encircled one Nazi detachment in an important sector west of the long-besieged city.

Red Star said the Russians captured a junction point which the Germans had held throughout the winter. This action, the army organ declared, cut the road which united northern and southern wings of the enemy force in this area.

The Soviet Information Bureau said Red Navy ships have sunk a 5,000-ton Axis transport in the Barents Sea and Red Army units have taken a further toll of the German invaders on the Kalinin front.

The Russians also reported the capture of several German centres of resistance on the Leningrad front after they had been isolated by the spring flood and artillery fire had sunk rafts laden with reinforcements for the strong points.

Thirty-seven villages were reported to have been recaptured by the Russians on the north-western front, of which Leningrad is a part, during operations which have expanded with improved weather. Soviet reports said 1,650 Germans were killed in three villages.

Despite spring floods and the absence of roads in some sectors, the Russians were reported to be pressing repeated attacks and inflicting heavy losses in men and material on the Germans.

The exact location of the sector west of Leningrad and the size of the encircled German detachment were not given, but the action appeared to be one of the most extensive of recent sharp local engagements on the Leningrad front.

(There was a possibility that the captured junction point was Krasnogvardeisk, 20 miles southwest of Leningrad, where the railroad from Leningrad forks, one line running westward to Estonia and the other continuing southward to Pskov and to Warsaw.

(Or the captured point might be Luga, 75 miles south of Leningrad on the Leningrad-Warsaw line. At Luga a small road runs eastward to Novgorod, north of Lake Ilmen.)

Soviet cavalry attacking the rear of German forces endeavoring to consolidate on the Kalinin front northwest of Moscow occupied nine villages and killed 938 men, reports said.

In the Bryansk sector 210 miles southwest of Moscow, guerillas have liberated 25 villages and have forced the Hungarian 200th division to

Expect Full Jap Fury On China

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—Flushed with conquests in Burma and the Philippines, Japan is expected by United States military strategists today to turn in full fury on China in an effort to knock out that potentially-powerful United Nations force.

As the war in the Pacific entered its sixth month, these military experts pointed out, however, the headlong rush of the Japs had carried them to a point where they might turn in any of several directions. Their only reasonably sure course will be an attempt to cut the supply line to Australia.

As the experts here view them the possibilities in order of their probable occurrences are:—

1. A pincer's squeeze on China, one main force striking from the north and the other from the south, the latter employing the armies already emerging from Burma into China.

2. An attack on Russia, which

Old Folk, One Hope of Break in Germany

Youth Too Thoroughly Steeped In Nazi Creed Of Superiority, Brutal Militarism

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

There have been indications lately of discount in Germany, the latest being the report (unconfirmed but from a responsible source) that some of Hitler's generals have notified him that if his 1942 campaign in Russia fails they will try to institute a plan of their own calling for "abolition of the Nazi system."

Naturally the question arises as to how much of a hold Nazism has on the German people. In this connection Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has said that it will require many years after the war to educate German youth to understand that democracy is better than Hitler's theory of racial superiority and hatred for other peoples.

That certainly is true, and it will represent one of the greatest of the post-war problems. But it also is a matter of immediate moment, since Hitler is depending heavily on the support of young Germany to pull him through.

The manner in which the young German mind has been Hitlerized since the Fuehrer assumed control nine years ago is one of the phenomena of our time. So thoroughly has it been carried out by intensive training that Nazi youth sees only one goal—supremacy of the German race.

Hitler has become the supreme being for these young folk.

And throughout runs the spirit of brutal militarism. Might is right, and the Germans are the supreme race to which the rest of the world must bow.

This amazing regimentation has been achieved through officialdom getting hold of the children and forcing their minds into the Hitlerian channel, without permitting any other influences to intervene. This scheme of monopolizing the young mind is one of the reasons for Hitler's war on the churches, which have fought to keep from surrendering all training of the children to him.

With the young folk thus regimented, such discontent as there may be—and there is small doubt that it exists—is mainly among the older people who have submitted to the Nazi chief's rule but haven't become Hitlerized. It is doubtful whether many of the German youth are deserting their leader.

That is a very important point when we consider the possibilities of the Germans refusing to follow Hitler further. I know from personal study in Germany just before the war that many of the older people were utterly opposed to the Nazi attitude toward religion and the churches, to the Hitlerization of childhood, to the persecution of the Jews, and even to expansion by force of area.

It is among the elders then—the fathers and the mothers of the youth who are now dying for Hitler—that we are likely to find the most discontent, and many observers believe this might reach the breaking point in time, just as it did in the first Great War.

EXTRA!

BERLIN (from German broadcasts), May 7.—(AP)—The Tokyo radio claimed today that Japanese forces from Burma had crossed the Indian border west of Paletwa and penetrated to 62 miles from Chittagong. Paletwa is 80 miles north of the Burma port of Akyab. (This report lacked confirmation in Allied quarters.)

11,574 Lost On Corregidor

All Troops Mainly U.S., Except 1,269 Civilians

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP). — The United States War Department announced to-day that approximately 11,574 soldiers, sailors, marines and civilians presumably were captured by the Japanese on Corregidor and the other Manila Bay forts.

The estimate was based on reports received up to April 15, a communique said, and did not take into consideration casualties which might have been suffered in the last three weeks.

The total included 2,275 naval personnel, 1,570 marines, 3,734 American soldiers, 1,280 Philippine Scouts 1,446 soldiers of the Philippine Commonwealth Army, and 1,269 casuals, including civilian individuals not otherwise classified.

The communique was issued at a press conference by the Under-Secretary of War, Robert P. Patterson, who said that Lt.-Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, commanding the American-Filipino forces, presumably was among those captured.

JAPANESE FLEET SEEN PREPARING ASSAULT ON THE TRADE LINES

3rd Battering Handed Stuttgart

After Electric Works, Engine, Tank Plants In Big City

LONDON, May 7 — (CP). — Royal Air Force bombers, continuing their smashing attacks at the industries feeding Hitler's war machine, hammered at Stuttgart last night for the third successive night and roared into France by daylight to-day.

Seven of the night raiders were lost, the Air Ministry said.

The raiders went in considerable force to smash at the southern German manufacturing city, which produces aviation engines, tanks and electrical equipment, and at other targets in that region.

As in the last two nights, the R.A.F. encountered clouds and haze over Stuttgart and other targets in southern Germany which prevented observation of results, informed sources said. It was presumed, however, that the Bosch electrical works again was the principal target.

Sticking To Policy

Dock sat Nantes also were hit for the third successive night and raids were made on airfields in German-occupied territory.

Launching of the successive attacks on Stuttgart and Nantes kept up the theme of the Royal Air Force's new offensive of pounding time and again at key objectives.

Thus in the last two weeks the British fliers struck four nights in a row at Rostock, penetrated to former Czecho-Slovakia twice to strike at the Skoda works at Pilsen, and bombed Trondheim in Norway twice.

Single raids during that period were made against Cologne, Kiel and Gennevilliers, a Paris suburb.

Following up the night attacks, a large formation of Royal Air Force craft droned across the English Channel at mid-day today, flying at a great altitude.

The German air force refrained from attacking Britain during the night but this morning four Messerschmitts dived out of the haze over the Channel onto a southeast coast town and unloaded bombs which destroyed a large country home.

There were no casualties and little other damage was reported.

Mother Choses Jail Term In Car Theft

NEWMARKET, May 7—Clarence Sedore and Mrs. Winnifred Handy, both of Aurora, pleaded guilty to a charge of car stealing in police court yesterday, and were sentenced to one year in Ontario Reformatories. Sedore will serve his sentence at Burwash, but Mrs. Handy's destination awaits conideration by the authorities.

Crown Attorney N. L. Mathews advised the court he was agreeable to a suspended sentence for Mrs. Handy, to enable her to remain at home and care for her four small children, on probation.

"My children are all right," replied the woman. "My mother will take care of them."

"You would prefer to go to jail?" asked Mr. Mathews.

"Yes," said Mrs. Handy.

Duncan Tillett, of Roches Point, whose car figured in the case, testified that he had seen the pair enter his car and drive away, at Sutton, on the night of April 25. County Constable William Hill, whom he notified, said he found skid marks on the road, and near by found Sedore and Handy, wet and muddy, endeavoring to "thumb" their way into Newmarket.

"We had been drinking, and took Mr. Tillett's car," Sedore told Magistrate W. E. McIlveen. "Mrs. Handy wanted to get home to her children. If we hadn't been drinking this never would have been done."

Mrs. Handy, whose husband is overseas, offered to pay the car damages. "It isn't a case of paying at all," replied Magistrate McIlveen. "As it is set out in the act, the theft of an automobile calls for one year in prison."

The court record showed previous convictions against Sedore: for breaking, entering and theft, at Newmarket in 1940, when he was given three months in Guelph Reformatory, and for theft, in July, 1941, when he was sent to Burwash Industrial Farm for six months.

South Americans Complacent; Still Feel Safe

Small countries in South America are resting secure in the belief of North American protection in the eventuality of an invasion. Moreover, no one envisages even the bare possibility of an attack from Europe, least of all Venezuela, which is in line west of Dakar, Mrs. Chas. Dibbin, former Peterborough resident, intimated today.

Venezuela, whose principle industry is oil, ranks as the third greatest oil producing country in the world. Because of the enormous wealth brought in by oil, this country has one of the highest tariff rates in the world. On some articles there is as much as two or three hundred per cent increase on New York prices.

There is not a great deal of agriculture, though there is some farming done in the high parts of the Andes. Nearly all food stuffs must be imported and so prices rise even higher. In the past this country has been cruelly exploited by foreign companies. Rubber production has been carried on in a small way, and though they are now planting rubber trees in larger numbers, it will take years to develop this industry to any great extent.

The people are extremely pro-ally in feeling and everyone is anxious to do his bit to help, and the small German minority has never given the authorities any trouble. The Pan-American line-up of nations is still in its infancy, but it is universally believed that it will play an important role in the future.

Sparsely Settled

There is a large native population, but this vast country is not thickly populated. Most of the foreigners in the country are connected with the oil industry and the two races do not mix. In the matter of education therefore, the oil companies have set up their own schools for their employees' children.

Mrs. Charles Dibben, sister of Edwin Dibben of Peterborough, has just returned with her two children from Maracaibo, Venezuela, after a residence there of thirteen years. At present she is staying at the Empress Hotel, but will soon be moving to a home on Downie street, where she will live for the next six months.

Ralston Orders Inquiry In Nazis' Escape

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 7 — (CP). — After more than two weeks discussion of army matters the House of Commons today is scheduled to hear something of the wartime functions of the Royal Canadian Navy and the part played by Canadian ships and seamen in keeping the ocean lanes open for the transport of troops and materials of war.

Navy Minister Macdonald is expected to make a statement and then be questioned by members on his part of the $2,000,000,000 war appropriations bill.

Since the House resumed after the Easter adjournment and intermittently for several days before the adjournment Defence Minister Ralston has been under questioning on the Army and its operations.

When the House adjourned last night Conservative House Leader Hanson said it would be agreeable to the Opposition if Mr. Macdonald were available today and Col. Ralston said the Navy Minister would make a statement.

Answering a question from Mr. Hanson when yesterday's abbreviated sitting began, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said he will make a statement in a few days on the government's proposals resulting from the vote on the recent man-power plebiscite.

The Prime Minister also said he would make a statement on the future of the Vichy government ministry in Ottawa when Pierre Dupuy, Charge D'Affaires of the former Canadian Legation in France, arrived from London, possibly later this week.

Pobe Bowmanville Break

Col. Ralston announced the appointment of a board of inquiry to investigate the escape of prisoners of war from the camp at Bowmanville, Ont., from which two German prisoners made a getaway Tuesday. The board will consist of Col. G. S. Stairs of Montreal, Col. K. R. Marshall of Toronto, and Col. C. M. Edwards of Ottawa.

The defence minister said there had been four different commanding officers at the Bowmanville camp and escapes had occurred under all of them. He wanted to find out where responsibility lay.

Considering the class of men sent to Canada for internment, said the minister, the record has been good. He declared only 80 escapes had occurred and all had been re-

Allied Bombers Pay Bases a Visit, Results Undisclosed

UNITED NATIONS' HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 7 — (CP).—Increased Japanese naval activity in the waters around New Britain, presaging perhaps a southward thrust against the lifelines of this invasion-threatened continent, was announced today by United Nationals' headquarters.

The announcement also reported activity by Japanese warships near Bougainville in the Solomon Islands, some 300 miles east of New Britain, where the enemy already has established bases. These vessels were "attacked successfully" by Allied bombers yesterday, the communique said, but it gave no details concerning the results.

These developments emphasized the continued danger menacing Australia, although headquarters reported diminishing Japanese air pressure on Port Moresby, vital Allied outpost on the south shore of New Guinea.

Observers expressed belief the lessening of aerial attacks on Port Moresby was direct evidence of the hard blows dealt Japanese airdromes at Lae, on the northeast coast of New Guinea, and Rabaul, New Britain.

An air corps spokesman said that repeated attacks on these bases had cut the potential striking power of the Japanese air force, and declared that to keep pace with the Allies" steadily - increasing air strength the enemy must keep pouring in a steady stream of reinforcements.

Timetable Just Delayed.

The spokesman warned, however, that the danger of further southward penetration by the Japanese had not been removed, although their timetable may have been upset.

Headquarters did not elaborate on its statement concerning increased Japanese naval activity around New Britain.

New Britain—where the Japanese have bases at Gasmata as well as Rabaul — lies about 550 miles airline northeast of Cape York, Australia.

The 100-mile waterway between New Britain and New Guinea, which lies to the west, is the natural gateway through which a seaborne military men agree the Japanese will undertake sooner or later. The timing is almost certain to depend on developments on the Russo-German front.

3. An assault on Australia itself probably designed to wipe out north coast bases for Allied offensive action rather than to lead to the conquest of the entire continent.

4. Raids in force, if not full-scale attacks, against either Hawaii or Alaska or both because of their offensive threat.

5. The conquest of India, or at least its eastern coastal areas and sections near Burma, an undertaking which might well depend on whether the Japanese could expect a friendly or an actively hostile populace.

The mere magnitude of these possibilities suggests, military men said, that before the United Nations can turn the tide of war in the Pacific they must expect to suffer heavy new blows.

make a deep withdrawal after seven days fighting, it was said.

Some of the hottest fighting on the whole front was reported to have been under way in the Lake Ilmen section south of Leningrad for almost a month.

Dispatches from his area described German losses as "really colossal" and some reports estimated that the German casualties had averaged 1,000 a day.

The Germans were said to have put parachutists into action repeatedly and without success on this front. The Russians said Nazi mass attacks were met with withering artillery fire.

Soviet cavalry were reported in action northwest of Moscow, where nine settlements were said to have been recaptured from the invaders.

Cattlemen Cut Offerings As Price Drops

CHICAGO, May 7—(AP)).—United States cattle producers, reacting quickly to sharp price declines since the office of price administration's announcement that ceilings would be imposed on dressed beef, have reduced substantially shipments to all major markets.

A drop of 25 cents to $1 per hundredweight in values late last week, followed by another 50-cent decline Monday, convinced producers their best bet in resisting the downturn is to curtail marketings. Livestock circles said today producers had gone into curtailment with a vengeance.

Reversing the trend of earlier this year, cattle offered for sale in 12 principal centres in the first three days this week totalled 102,300 head against 129,800 in the comparable period of 1941. In the same period last week, 149,200 saleable head arrived.

A feature of the cattle runs was the practically complete absence of choice or prime steers. With packers reducing the premiums normally paid for such offerings, the supply has consisted mainly of mediocre grades. Early last week, before the O.P.A.'s order, choice cattle brought $17.25 per hundredweight at Chicago. The top this week, established Wednesday, was $15.75—paid for much less attractive quality.

Shipyard Keeps Woman Welder

VICTORIA, May 7.—(CP).—The shipbuilding firm employing Mrs. Ethel Harvey as a welder has no intention of discharging her, one of its spokesmen said yesterday. Mrs. Harvey began work Monday and a few hours later she was told by a union agent that unless she quit her job, male welders would walk out.

"There are no skilled welders available and they (the Union) could not supply us with this class of labor," said the spokesman. "Mrs. Harvey is working alone in a small shop and she is doing the work assigned to her satisfactorily. We are prepared to take on more women welders, providing they are skilled."

A. Clyde, business agent of Boilermakers Union, Local No. 1, claimed that employable men are available.

"Our position is that so long as there are men available there is no need for women to work in the shipyards," he said, when asked where the union stood on the matter.

It is understood the Boilermakers' Union is obtaining the views of its members on the question of Mrs. Harvey's employment.

ment was determined to go ahead with rationing in some form.

Saying the army has "a great hope" that it will go into action soon, Mr. Dalton asked "what sort of echo" was likely to be raised in Washington, Moscow and the occupied countries if the army were weakened now simply to avoid inconvenience to civilians.

He said there was a possibility that without rationing now the coal shortage might force the shutting down of some gas and light plants next winter.

The battle of the Atlantic "is still in a very critical stage," he said, and it is essential to save shipping space by using domestic coal, rather than importing oil, wherever possible.

It might be necessary to send "a great deal more coal" to Russia next winter.

11,000 Sent to Mines

Mr. Dalton said that the 11,000 men being released for coal mining would replace only a portion of the 25,000 annual average "wastage" in the industry. He explained that while 10,000 youngsters enter the pits every year, 35,000 leave because of illness, accidents or age.

Output is steadily declining, he said, and unless steps are taken to close the gap between demands and prospects of supply "it may widen into a chasm which might engulf the whole of our war efforts and the hopes of our country and the world."

The rationing plan, announced in a white paper April 28, immediately ran into considerable critics, particularly upon the charge that it would be more economical to release thousands of miners from the forces instead of hiring clerks to operate the rationing system.

Under the plan coal, electricity and gas would be cut off once a household used its annual ration. It was devised by Sir William Beveridge, economist, and announced by Mr. Dalton. Coupons usable for any fuel would be issued under the plan which is scheduled to go into effect late this month or early in June.

A Mail Haul

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, May 7 (AP) POSTAL authorities reported today seizure of thousands of letters brought from Europe aboard the Portuguese ship Serpa Pinto for clandestine delivery "to innumerable American destinations."

The letters, bearing no stamps, were reported to have come from Axis and Axis-occupied countries.

Three seamen aboard the Serpa Pinto were arrested last night, and authorities said they admitted that $15,000 in United States currency taken from them had been supplied "by an agent to buy platinum."

Rooms Available For 1,000 Men

"Peterborough could afford rooming accommodation for one thousand persons, men or women," said a citizen who knows his community in more of its details than the average. "They did not consult me about it, of course, and never would, but frankly I don't think that staff house for Wartime Housing should be required. The rooms are here if they are made available. I know people who fully intended to take in wartime workers and when they telephoned to a certain place, their address was taken, and that was all they ever heard about it.

I know two women who are occupying two houses. I believe they are seven-room houses, across the river. When night comes one stays with the other. There is accommodation for twelve to fifteen persons in those two houses that are being used by only two persons. Stories from Russia say that housing accommodation is mostly on the basis of one room to five persons. If those two houses were in Russia they would be roofs for thirty to forty people. We would not like it, much as you hear about the dubious vistures of Stalinism in the ordinary course of living.

You do what you are told in Russia, and if that means living five to a room that's the way you live. If Peterborough were in Russia we could accommodate 75,000 people without building another house, not a single temporary wartime house.

We have 5,000 houses here, more or less. Assume three rooms to a house, that means 15,000 rooms; multiply that by five and you have 75,000 persons. They would be packed in like the proverbial sardines, and they'd have to like it, but that is one of the realistic ways in which the Russian idea would operate if Peterborough were somewhere beyond the Don. You would not have any wartime houses or staff houses or anything like that. The 25,000 people who are living here now would simply be told to push over and make some room. I said there was room here for another 1,000 with comfort. A housing commissar like Stan Longhurst would find room for something like 50,000 more persons and never lay a shingle."

Selwyn War Workers Plan Salvage Drive

SELWYN, May 7 — (ENS). — At the monthly meeitng of the War Workers, held in the hall on Wednesday, Mrs. Chalmer Sweeting donated one quilt top and Mrs. Ed. Preston a lining for one quilt, and Mrs. Wesley Davis and Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyl each a large bundle of quilt patches. In the day's work there were two quilts tied down and one quilted.

Completed work turned in included: Twelve pairs socks, three scarfs, and four baby feeding bibs.

A salvage drive was discussed and everyone is asked to gather up anything they have to give and further announcement will be made as to the date and places of dumping.

A delightful pot-luck dinner was enjoyed at the noon hour.

As a means of raising money it was planned to have a waist measuring contest of the members, each one to pay one cent for each inch of their waistline.

Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald spent the week-end in Peterborough with her sister Miss Emma Elliott and other relatives.

The many friends of Mrs. Rex Wilson will be pleased to learn that she is progressing favorably in Nicholls Hospital, and is expected home this week-end.

WINNIPEG, May 7—(CP).—Formation of a Synod board on church life and development was approved at the closing session of the Provincial Synod of Rupert's Land, Church of England, here last night.

The board, which will study conditions and problems in the dioceses will report periodically to the bishops and the house of bishops.

Members of the board include Bishop H. D. Martin of Saskatchewan, and Bishop L. R. Sherman, Calgary.

More Rice, Bread Fed Captives

OTTAWA, May 7—(CP). — The External Affairs Department announced last night it had received information that Canadian prisoners held by the Japanese were receiving "a substantial ration of rice" supplemented by other foods, and that little disease—excepting some cases of dysentry — existed in one camp where prisoners are held.

A return tabled in the House of Commons last week said about 2,000 Canadians, members of the armed forces and civilians, are interned at Hong Kong and Kowloon and another 70 civilians apparently are interned in Japan proper.

The External Affairs Department statement said its information was received from the British Ambassador in Chungking.

The statement said:

"This information would indicate that Canadians are receiving a substantial ration of rice supplemented by vegetables and bread daily and a small quantity of meat. They are allowed to send out their truck to bring in their food. They are also reported to have their own ovens for baking bread."

WHISKY WITHOUT SODA

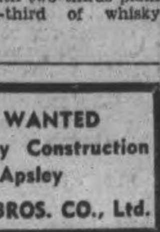
A Pimple Covered Face Kills Many a Romance



The lives of many young people are made miserable by the breaking out of pimples, and you probably know of cases where a promising romance has been spoiled by those red, white, festering and pus filled sores on the face.

The trouble is not so much physical pain, but the mental suffering caused by the embarrassing disfigurement which very often makes the sufferer ashamed to go out in company.

The quickest way to get rid of pimples is to improve the general health by a thorough cleansing of the blood.

Burdock Blood Bitters helps to cleanse the blood and with the blood cleansed the complexion should clear up.

J. M. Donoghue Cobourg Teacher Joins Active Army

COBOURG, May 7.—(ENS)—Girls attending Cobourg Collegiate Institute now outnumber the boys due to enlistments depleting the attendance of the boys, and also on account of boys with training in the machine shop of the school, taking jobs with war industries. About 45 pupils, mostly those who come from farms, have left school for the terms to assist in the planting on their farms.

Another member of the collegiate staff entered the active service forces when Lieut. J. M. Donohue reported for duty with the 36th Battery here. He is being replaced on the staff by D. L. Walden of Toronto. Two other members of the collegiate staff are overseas, Captain Gordon King and Major Bob Ostrander.

Junior Grade Pupils Help Raise $49.10

PORT HOPE, May 7—(ENS). — Miss Iletta Brownlee's class, Grades 3 and 4, at the Central Public School realized $49.10 on the sale of tickets sold on an afghan made by the pupils of this room. The wool was donated by the pupils, who knit the 166 blocks in a variety of colors.

The draw was made by T. W. Stanley, and the holder of the lucky ticket number 300 was Mrs. W. Vick of Brown Street, and was sold by Betty McMurray.

To add interest to the selling, Miss Brownlee gave a prize to the pupil who sold the most tickets, and this went to Bobbie McDerment, who sold 60 tickets.

The $49.10 is to be divided amongst nine different organizations for war work, namely: Red Cross, Chinese Relief, Russian Relief, I.O.D.E., British Bomb Victims, Navy League, Junior Red Cross, Crippled Children Fund, H.M.C.S., Port Hope, minesweeper, Salvation Army war work.

Ministerial Body Plans Annual Outing

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7—(ENS) With an eye turned towards the swift approach of summer members of the Campbellford and District Ministerial Association made preliminary plans for their annual outing when they gathered for their monthly session here on Monday. The clergy met in the parlors of St. John's United Church and Rev. J. W. T. Hicks who presided, conducted the devotional period. Rev. G. N. Maxwell and Lieut. Alex Turnbull were named to the committee which will make the arrangements for the June outing to be attended by the clergy and their wives. A year ago they spent the day at Dr. C. S. Reddick's camp on Round Lake and though no definite plans have been formulated nearby Trent Bridge is being considered as the possible site of this year's outing. Address of the day was given by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson of Havelock who gave a thoughtful and instructive talk on prayer. Rev. J. R. Bick reported on the continued illness of Mrs. C. S. Redick of Whitevale (formerly of Campbellford) and the secretary was instructed to write to the family expressing the concern of the local clergy and their hope for her recovery.

W.M.S. Meets

Members of St. Andrew's W.M.S. heralded spring at their regular meeting for the month held on Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. A. C. Connor gave an appropriate reading bearing the title "A Message from the Garden." She told the ladies (many of whom had already planted their own gardens) of the beauty of the gardens of Eden, Babylon, the beautiful gardens in the ancient city of Damascus and finally of the garden into which Christ stepped as he arose from the tomb. During the business an invitation to attend the meeting of the Mission Circle to be held at the home of Mrs. Wynn on May 19th was accepted on motion of Mrs. A. G. Thompson and Mrs. C. Milne Program of the afternoon was provided by the president, Mrs. A. C. Connor's group and included the scripture lesson by Mrs. Seymour a reading by Mrs. J. Storie titled "The Religion of the First Lady of China," a paper on Miss Williamson a missionary in India by Mrs. A. Hay. The program for the June meeting will be in charge of Mrs. F. Adamson's group.

The work of tagging was done by 36 girls of the local collegiate, the captains being Frances O'Connor, Shirley Holman, Betty Richards, Agnes Tough and Nadine Weicker.

Cold weather has dampened the enthusiasm of local trout fishermen this week and has also put a crimp There is still a quantity of snow in wooded sections a few miles north of in the efforts of local gardeners. C.A.S. Meeting Indicates Staff Too Small

PORT HOPE, May 7—(ENS). — Annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society of Northumberland and Durham was held on Wednesday in the Sunday school of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Fred Rosevear was in the chair. The opening prayer was taken by Rev. R. L. Seaborn followed by the president's address, and she said in part:

A number of changes have taken place during the year. We realised some time ago that the ever-increasing amount of work required larger office accommodation, and in our search for suitable quarters we had in mind as well a location that would be more convenient to the public. In December we moved into our new office at 12 John street immediately at the rear of the Royal Bank where we have ample accommodation and most convenient of access to the public. Improvements will have to be made to make the offices more soundproof, but otherwise they are very satisfactory and we have received favorable comments on our location.

I don't know whether Mr. Thompson, the treasurer, intends to comment on the increasing difficulty we are having to make receipts equal expenditures, but it is causing us real concern. Our present staff is unable to handle the increasing volume of work, to which the war is adding materially, with the despatch it warrants, but with the increased cost of food, clothing, building maintenance, office rent, etc., we do not see as yet where the money can be raised to pay for additional staff. A committee has been formed to investigate ways and means of raising additional revenue, but they have not had sufficient time yet to make any recommendations.

Mrs. Hodgert has requested several times to be relieved of her duties, but we were unable to secure a trained social worker to take over her work, and she consented to carry on. That, of course, would not solve our problem as we need an additional worker to the present staff. In the County of Hastings, just to the east of us, which has a population slightly greater than Durham and Northumberland combined, they have a superintendent, two field workers, two stenographers and three cars as against our staff of a superintendent, one field worker, one stenographer and one car. Peterborough and Victoria-Haliburton counties, both of which have considerably smaller population than our two counties, have the same size staff as we have, but have two cars instead of one.

Shows Deficit

Minutes of the last annual meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. Gordon Garnett and the treasurer's report followed by Mr. Brodie Thompson. In this report, the total receipts showed $17,072.41; expenditures, $17,087.02; leaving a deficit of $14.61.

A medical report was read by Mr. Hodgert which was signed by Dr. Benson.

Mrs. Hodgert's report was read by Mrs. Goss and was a most interesting report on the Care of the Children in Foster Homes, which is Mrs. Hodgert's division as social worker of the society, and her report was both interesting and comprehensive.

The superintendent's report was the next on the program and Mr. K. J. Hodgert gave a most interesting outline of his work and the details involved.

5,764 Voted Yes In East Riding

Final returns in the Hastings-Peterborough riding on the plebiscite to relieve the Government on all commitments regarding overseas service revealed that the people down East voted five to one in favor of the release.

H. W. Sabine, returning officer at Marmora, stated to-day that a corrected tabulation indicates 5,764 people voted "yes," while 1,327 voted "no." This is a small vote in view of the fact that there are 16,500 votes in the far-flung riding.

Campbellford Girls And Boys Parade At Inspection

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7 (ENS). —Far different from the once over the cadet corps got a couple of years ago was the careful inspection they received on the High School grounds here Wednesday morning from Captain T. C. Holmes, D.C.O., Kingston. He spent two hours and twenty-six minutes on the parade ground reviewing the training.

In addition to the fifty boys on parade a nearly equal number of girl cadets in gym suits gave a demonstration of their marching ability and very capably gave an exhibition of a variation in the Danish type of rythmic exercise. Though their part in the inspection was undreamed of a few years ago it offered no greater contrast than did the vastly more extensive training of a distinctly military nature received by the boys.

Much less emphasis than usual was placed on squad and close order drill and many of them felt just a bit silly carrying the wooden rifles designed for fledgling cadets of the Public School a decade ago. However, the rifles they would have used had been turned over to the military in the fall of 1940, and were probably being put to use with more purpose.

Went Over In 1939

No brass hat, Capt. Holmes (who went over with the First Division was invalided home late in 1940) spoke to the boys in language they understood, pointing out their mistakes and giving them suggestions as they proceeded in their demonstrations of semaphore signalling, Morse, knot tieing and first aid. He didn't time the signal crew on the test message he gave them to transmit by semaphore pointing out that accuracy was more important than speed at this stage of training. The group who demonstrated Morse receiving and sending likewise received commendation for their ability after comparatively little practice. Knot tieing included the short, long and eye splice, granny knot, surgeon's, bowline, weavers, and square while for first aid they demonstrated resuscitation fireman's grip, forearm splint, broken leg splint and head injury bandage.

Captain Holmes said "You have done very well indeed and your steadiness on parade is noteworthy. If you can do this on inspection you have learned a lesson that might well be carried into life after school." He pointed out the appearance of the cadets was good because "you have gone to some paints to get uniforms that fit . . . signalling with the buzzer and first aid were exceptionally good . . . you have developed coordination . . . you have had a very successful inspection."

Inspector Holmes also pointed out that the Government was operating a cadet camp this summer for boys 15 to 18 which will probably include a trip to the Capital. Concluding he congratulated Principal E. H. Greig and the P.T. teachers of the staff for their part in preparing the students for inspection.

Principal Greig announced school would be closed for the balance of the day and added, "I am very proud of the way you conducted yourselves this morning." Chairman of the Board of Education F. C. Bonncastle also spoke briefly offering his congratulations to students on their fine performance.

The officers were as follows: Company Commander, P. MacDonald; Platoon Commanders, Neil McKenty, Glen Maxwell; Sergeants, Howard Rowe, Charles Black. Girl Cadets: Coy. Cmdr., Rosamund Peloquin; Platoon Cmdrs. Helen Wood, Gladys Wood, Gladys Grills; marker, Helen Young.

First Move In Madagascar

While the Japanese are completing their conquest of Burma our spirits are given a sudden lift by the news of the British occupation of Madagascar. The fourth greatest island in the world, having an area of 228,000 square miles, Madagascar is separated from the mainland of Africa by the 250-mile width of the Channel of Mozambique. In Japanese hands this island would provide a base for naval operations against our lines to India and Australia, giving the Japs virtual control of the Indian Ocean and threatening any naval move from the Middle East or around the Cape of Good Hope. We have struck first, and if the Japs want Madagascar they will have to fight for it.

Had Britain not sent an expedition against the island it is possible that the Japs might have had it for the asking. Laval, the Vichy collaborator, might have been glad to give them the use of the island in return for favors still to come. The seizure of Madagascar is quite as important politically as it is strategically, for it makes an end of any show of consideration for the wishes of Vichy. Until recently Britain has been inclined to avoid offending Vichy, in the hope that such a course might lessen Petain's inclination to accede to the demands of the Germans. But Laval is an out-and-out collaborator, and nothing whatever is to be gained by considering his wishes.

The Union of South Africa broke off relations with Vichy last week, which may be taken as an indication that troops from that Dominion may be preparing to forestall German attempts to take over French colonies in Africa. The United States State Department has also taken a very firm line with Vichy, assuring the Laval government that "any warlike act permitted by the French Government against the Government of Great Britain or the Government of the United States would, of necessity, have to be regarded by the Government of the United States as an attack on the United Nations as a whole." This is a clear warning that the United Nations have taken Vichy's measure and are not going to permit any collaboration which they can possibly prevent.

The attack on Madagascar, so far as the news dispatches now at hand show, is being carried out with a high degree of skill and efficiency. The French forces are resisting, but they are not present in great numbers and it is doubtful if they have any heart for such work. The effect of the attack has been to raise the morale of the United Nations, to show Japan that we mean to take the initiative whenever we have forces to do so, and to show Vichy that we mean to deal in actions, not words, in future.

A New Waterpower Scheme

Owing to the greatly increased demand for hydro-electric power which the war has brought about Canada is quite likely to face a shortage this autumn. According to present estimates 200,000 horsepower will be wanted by the Fall which is not available at present. Where this is to come from is still a mystery, but doubtless some of it will have to be made up by a voluntary limitation of domestic use of power. This, of course, is a mere stop-gap, and something will have to be done immediately to remedy the situation.

Meanwhile the Ontario Government is giving serious consideration to a plan to unite with the Quebec Government to develop horsepower on the Ottawa river, either at Carillon, or farther north at Pembroke. It has been estimated that such a development would produce from 300,000 to 400,000 horsepower a year. Work of this kind is necessarily slow, however, and it would be at least two years before the power was available.

A rapid decision is prevented by the feeling that the Dominion Government and the Government of the U.S. may shortly begin to develop waterpower on the St. Lawrence, which would be more than adequate to take care of present needs. It is difficult to believe that such a plan will be put in motion and completed in a shorter time than two years, however, and the need is an immediate one. Surely it would be possible to obtain some assurance that when the St. Lawrence scheme is completed, the Ottawa development will not be rendered wholly useless, and then to go ahead with the Ottawa plan? If Canada's industrial expansion continues to be as great as it has been in the past twenty years there should be a use for all the hydro-electric power which can be developed on the Ottawa, as well as the St. Lawrence supply, a great part of which will be taken up in the U.S.

Inhibition Instead Of Prohibition

One of the most sensible articles on the liquor question which we have seen in a long time appears in the Port Arthur News Chronicle. It is a discussion of the suggestion of W. J. Stewart, M.P.P. for Parkdale, that the proper way to deal with the abuse of liquor is by educating school children to be temperate, rather than by prohibiting the sale of liquor in the Province. The suggestion boils down to one of inhibition in place of prohibition.

Temperance does not mean total abstinence. It means the sensible use of liquor. A great deal of liquor is consumed in this Province every year and we venture to say that the greater part of it is drunk by temperate people. They like a drink or two, but they do not drink to excess and they do not spend an immoderate amount of their money on liquor. We cannot see that they do any harm or that anyone is justified in wanting to prevent them from having liquor at all.

There are others, of course, who drink to excess and who spend far too much money on their indulgence. It is desirable that they should be checked, and we agree with Mr. Stewart that the best way to check immoderate drinking is to educate the young against it. The present generation of habitually heavy drinkers cannot be reformed by legislation, but the coming generation may be prevented from making similar mistakes by proper education.

Heavy drinking cannot be blamed upon natural depravity; it is a form of neurosis and it can sometimes be cured by the proper kind of psychiatric treatment. It is rare for an habitual drunkard to be a happy man or woman. If school children were instructed in the evil results of excessive drinking, and were taught to regard it as a form of disease, rather than a sign of moral inferiority, they would know better how to deal with the use of liquor when it became a factor in their own lives as adults.

Restrictive legislation has been tried and it was found to be an unsatisfactory solution to the liquor problem. Education is a better way to cope with the matter, and we should like to see it tried. We venture to say that it would decrease the number of heavy drinkers without restricting the liberty of the moderate drinkers.

Let Us Know Ourselves

Mr. Malcom MacDonald said recently that Canada has no talent for blowing its own trumpet. He is quite right. Canadians do some interesting and surprising things; in some matters, such as that of price-ceilings, for instance, we take a lead and show the way to our neighbors. We are a large importing and exporting nation in peacetime. In war we supply first-class troops and first-class equipment for our side. We produce a number of essential commodities in great quantity. We ought to make a noise in the world but we don't. Why?

Youth is one reason. We have not existed as a Dominion for very long, and in that time we have not made any spectacular trouble in the world. When Europe thinks about us at all it thinks of us as a part of America, and not especially different from the U.S. When the citizens of the U.S. think about us, which is not very often, they entertain some very queer notions about us. Even Britain, which ought to know us best, is astonishingly ill-informed about many aspects of Canadian life. We are too young to have made much of a dent on the consciousness of the rest of the world.

Lack of a decided national character is another reason for our trouble. What do the people of other nations think of when they talk about "a Canadian." The name calls up no clear image. Even our cartoonists have been unable to evolve a suitable symbol of Canadian thought and character. Britain is always John Bull, for although no Britons wear top-boots, Union Jack waistcoats and beaver hats that solid figure does, in a most effective way, express the essential parts of British nationalism. So also with Uncle Sam: the rangy Yankee is as unlike Donald Nelson or Wendell Willkie as can be, but the figure is a good representation of their spirit. Canada has no comparable figure. When our cartoonists want to show the spirit of this country they draw a vacant-looking fellow in riding-breeches and a Boy Scout hat and label him Canada; the symbol is ineffective; we are not like that.

The question is: What are we like? Do we know? Has the Canadian character jelled enough for its outlines to be clearly discerned? As long as we remain nebulous in our own eyes we will be nebulous to the rest of the world.

Can we afford to be nebulous to the rest of the world? No. The obvious thing, then is for us to begin a process of self-examination as a people, in an earnest attempt to find out what we are really like. It is a job for our writers, our artists, and our newspapers. It is a job which must be approached in a spirit of honesty; it will not do merely to thump the drum and tell Canada that she is wonderful. We have had enough of that sort of thing and we have outgrown that stage of national development. Canada has reached a period in her history where honest self-examination is needed. Already we have had a taste of it. Bruce Hutchison has written one honest book about Canada; John McCormac has written another. No one will agree with everything that these two men say, but they have sought truth as they know it. They have made a beginning and it is time for us to go on. When we really know ourselves we may begin blowing our own trumpet without the risk of too many sour notes.

The Obvious Name

Not long ago President Roosevelt called for suggestions for a name to be attached to this war. Suggestions have since been made by the score; some are meant to be taken seriously, others are obviously facetious. "Stooge War" and "War of Axtermination" clearly will not do; "Peace War," "Universal War," and "War For Free Civilians" have no punch in them. We feel also that "Hitler-Roosevelt War" is a name which simplifies the matter unduly. We have our own suggestion; we think the proper name for this war is "Armageddon."

The reason will be found in the sixteenth chapter of the Book of Revelation, in these verses: "And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty. And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon."

If any reader is unable to identify the "three unclean spirits like frogs" he may apply to this office for further information.

SIR FRANCIS

The captain of the Golden Hind is on his way to England
To keep a drowsy promise that he made once long ago,
And he's scanning world-horizons from the deck of Freedom's flagship
Where he craves no better pleasure than to sight and singe the foe.

He was sound asleep and fathoms deep beneath blue Nombre Dios,
But he heard his drum in Devon and he's coming ably back
With armored cruisers round him and battlecraft above him
More wide-awake than ever and more eager to attack.

And his fleet will sweep the Seven Seas once more for Merry England
And his ships will clear the Channel as they cleared it long ago.
Oh, he may have slumbered ages, but he's still the same Sir Francis,
And he craves no better pleasure than to raid and rout the foe.

Comfort For Bad Spellers

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

FOR my own part, I am a reasonably good speller. True, I have never really known when to write 'practice' and when 'practise' and I am sometimes brought up short by such words as 'commitment,' but upon the whole I manage very well. By a judicious avoidance of words about which I am doubtful, I can write pages and pages without making a single mistake and I may be appealed to with confidence for an opinion on any hard word. Conventionally 'hard' words such as 'Constantinople' or 'rhododendron' or 'chrysanthemum' have always been easy for me; it is on short, perverse words in daily use that I usually come to grief. Therefore the reader will understand that I am not speaking for myself, but for the oppressed millions of bad spellers everywhere, when I say that I can see very little use in acceptedly 'correct' spelling.

Hitherto I have kept this opinion to myself, for the expression of it seemed to be a kind of anarchy, an attack at the root of the social system. But the social system is taking so many hard knocks these days that one more can make no difference. Also, I have discovered a powerful advocate for my belief that conventionally 'correct' spelling is nonsense. Recently I was re-reading a chapter in "The Dance of Life" by Havelock Ellis, who was certainly one of the greatest critics to live during the present century, and there I found that I had marked a passage in which he expressed himself thus: "The laws of spelling, properly speaking, are few or none, and in the great ages men have understood this and boldly acted accordingly. They exercised a fine personal discretion in the matter and permitted without question a wide range of variation. Shakespeare, as we know, even spelt his own name in several different ways, all equally correct." Does that rejoice the hearts of bad spellers? Contain your excitement, there are better things to come.

ELLIS has no sympathy with orthodox spelling at all. He regards it as a needless form of regimentation and like the honest man he is, he smites it hip and thigh. "More anaemic ages cannot endure creative vitality even in spelling," he says, "and so it comes about that in periods when everything beautiful and handmade gives place to manufactured articles made wholesale, uniform and cheap, the same principles are applied to words and spelling becomes a mechanic trade. We must have our spelling uniform, even if uniformly bad." These are hard words, but true. In childhood we spend hundreds of precious hours learning to spell words in one way, arbitrarily selected, when we might put that time to the acquirement of some really useful knowledge. For correct spelling is nothing more than a form of mean ostentation, and the 'good' (or conventional) speller seems to say to the 'bad' (or artistic and individual) speller— 'Look at me, I am just like everybody else, why aren't you?' What a waste of time!

Already I can hear the rumble of those who want to explain to me that orthodox spelling is convenient; it is no more convenient than it would be if we all wore clothes of the same pattern and color, so that we would never have to know our own from anyone else's. Listen to my supporter, Ellis: "It is convenient, we say, to be rigid and formal in these things, and therefore we are content; it matters little to us that we have thereby killed the life of our words and only gained the convenency of death." And he continues, from his own experience: "When I was a teacher in the Australian bush I derived far less enjoyment from the more or less 'correctly' spelt exercises of my pupils than from the occasional notes I received from their parents who, never having been taught to spell, were able to spell in the grand manner." I can vouch for this. Once, for my sins, I had to undertake the task of explaining the intricacies of the English tongue to a Chinese girl; her richly ornate spelling was the only light in my life in those dark days.

I HAVE never known a really bad speller who did not possess a good deal of originality and charm. Indeed, some of the most delightful people that I have ever known have been shocking spellers. The converse is not true; perfect conventional spelling is not a sign of a black heart or a base mind, but some fine spellers are certainly very dull folk. They lack color and dash. They have little real interest in words, and their vocabularies are apt to be scanty and pallid, though perfectly spelled. Juicy, sinewy, voluptuous prose is beyond them.

The craze for standardized spelling is still very young. Our great-grandfathers allowed themselves plenty of leeway when they took up the pen and if they called a horse a 'hoss' they were quite likely to spell the word so. Of course, if they were ignorant or stupid men those qualities showed in their spelling as in their behavior; once a man casts off the cloak of conventionality in spelling he stands naked, with every facet in his mind exposed to the light. If he calls his food 'vittles' or 'mete an taters' we can fairly see him at the table shovelling it in with both hands. On the other hand if, as it was in a letter which I received recently from a young lady, 'license' is spelt 'liscense' we have a pleasing variation and a suggestion of generosity which is most engaging.

I do not expect that this article will do anything to alter the present system of spelling. Conventional spellers will continue, in their pride, to spell in the way which they have learned with so much pain. But I earnestly hope that I have raised the spirits of the bad spellers; they are artists, in their way, and deserve more encouragement than they get. Someday I hope to see an advertisement inserted in a paper by some gentleman of superior taste, reading thus: "Wanted—A stenographer, who must be young, pretty and an artistic speller."

• Australia's Test Near

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 7 —(AP)— Tragically certain as the outcome was at Corregidor from the hour American-Filipino defense of Bataan Peninsula collapsed, the actual surrender of the fortress and its flanking forts that guarded Manila Bay must come as a shock to public opinion in the United States.

Against all odds, hope had persisted that somehow the brave little company in the batteries of Corregidor would win through to relief as their gallant comrades in the fox-holes of Bataan had not.

It was not to be. The only wonder is that Corregidor survived so long the plunging fire of Japanese howitzers high-placed on the close slopes of Marivales Mountain on the southern tip of Bataan.

SYMBOL OF VALOR

General Wainwright made it clear that it was these guns, not Japanese air power, that wrecked his defenses as German heavy howitzers smashed the most powerful forts of that day in Belgium in the first World War.

Yet the story of Bataan and Corregidor, like that of lost Wake, will live forever as a bright symbol of valor—and of grim resolution to redeem its promise pledged in the American blood shed there.

That is the lesson of Corregidor for Americans as it is the lesson of lost Hong Kong and Singapore and now Burma for Britain, of Borneo, Java and Sumatra for Dutch comrades in arms. The outposts of freedom in the Orient have been breached, but its citadel is in the hearts of men, hearts resolved to keep the faith.

The test of that for Australia, the last eastern bastion of the United Nations in the Far Pacific, may have been brought measurably closer by the fall of Corregidor. Its capitulation releases powerful Japanese siege forces and equipment for use elsewhere.

GAIN FINE HARBOR

The huge harbor of Manila will now be available for Japanese use to press southward against Australia or American - Australian communication lines.

With Burma lost and grave fears openly expressed in Chungking and New Delhi for escape of much of the Chinese-British forces still fighting rearguard actions on Burma's borders, an early Japanese attack against Australia seems likely. Weather probabilities in Burma point that way. The terrain of the Burma Road to China seems to forbid an immediate Japanese march that way and the Himalayas present a no less natural barrier to a wet weather invasion of India from Burma.

If that estimate is sound, it leaves the Japanese two alternatives for prompt expansion of their conquest march—and it is the fate of aggressors that they must march on. One is across the Bay of Bengal to attempt sea-borne invasion of India. The other is against Australia or its vital communications with the United States.

• Music In Wartime

Modern war involves spiritual as well as practical measures of defense. At such a time art, especially music, becomes one of the great strongholds of liberty. It is not merely a coincidence that multitudes pack Carnegie Hall and join with the maestro in singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" after Toscanini has discoursed the heroic music of Beethoven; that attendance increases at all the important musical events, and that wholly exceptional interest is manifested in the musical activities of the coming summer. Perhaps the most striking of these manifestations is the response from every part of the United States to the announcement of the seventh annual Berkshire Symphonic Festival, which is given in late July and early August by Serge Koussevitzky and the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Stockbridge, Mass. From California and Oregon, from Georgia and Louisiana, from the Middle West and all the Atlantic seaboard—in fact, from thirty-two of the forty-eight States — orders are pouring in.

This occurs, moreover, in a year when the announcement of the definite dates of the festival was long delayed; in a year of heavy taxation, rationing of tires and gasoline and other numerous exigencies of wartime. The evidence seems to point to a patronage satisfied with the festival's assurance that adequate means of transportation to the concerts will be provided, and determined to attend its performances with an enthusiasm transcending any difficulties that conditions of the moment may engender. Charles A. Thompson, chief of the division of cultural relations, may have been more prophetic than he knew when he said that "music is one of the great satisfactions of life that cannot be touched by rationing or priorities, cannot be sunk at sea, nor seized by conquering armies for their own use."

• Long Slow Trips

IS IT three single trips a year or three round trips? Twice recently Mr. Churchill has said that a ship carrying supplies to the Middle East around the Cape of Good Hope can make only three "voyages" a year. He did not make it clear whether a voyage meant going and return. President Roosevelt in his recent fireside chat was explicit on the two-way passage. He asked people to look at the map. They would see that a ship from the Atlantic seaboard to the East Indies by way of the Cape, or direct from California, would take four months for the round trip "or only three round trips in a whole year."

Now it is obvious that four months for a ship to carry desperately needed supplies to a vital front and come back for another load is a painfully long time, especially when enemy planes go two hundred miles an hour. It shows the enormous strain imposed on our shipping facilities. But it is not a snail's pace wholly or chiefly imposed by the war.

The world's cargo in peacetime did not move at lightning speed. The ordinary freigher or tanker made perhaps 250 to 300 miles a day. The shipping news in the morning paper in peace years would note the arrival in New York of a tanker or tramp forty days from the East Indies—almost a month and a half. With time out for loading and repairs, the peace tempo was perhaps four round trips in the year, even with the Mediterranean open.—New York Times.

QUEER SORT OF JOKE
(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Some people have queer ideas about a joke. In Montreal in a little over half an hour someone turned in eleven false fire alarms. As a result equipment was called out from no less than twenty-two stations, including three hundred and fifty firemen and eight-eight pieces of apparatus, and two hundred gallons of gasoline were wasted.

A Bible Message For Today . . .

For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ; who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works.—Titus ii; 11-14.

For we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, and hating one another. But after that the kindness and love of God our Saviour toward man appeared, not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost; which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour; that being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life.—Titus iii; 3-7.

To The Editor . . .

BLOOD GROUPS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Judging from the number of questions which have been asked me, there is considerable misapprehension regarding the blood groups. The blood groups have nothing to do with the quality of the blood. The blood group is a personal characteristic. We could divide all the people in the world into groups on the basis of their blood group, just as we could divide them on the basis of the color of their skin, or the color of their eyes. The blood groups, however, occur in all peoples no matter what skin color they have, but in differing proportions. In Canada and Western Europe there is about 34 per cent in the A group and about 12 per cent in the B group. As one goes eastward in Europe and on into Asia, the B group increases in numbers and the A group decreases, but never disappears.

We have found that these various blood groups do not always mix and, if blood of the wrong group is given to a sick person, serious reactions may occur and even death result. The necessity for blood grouping and cross checking before a transfusion is obvious.

Peterborough Farmers Will Need At Least 1000 Harvest Commandos

How about some harvest commandos If this weather continues to promote growth at the rate of the last two weeks, farmers will have a big hay crop on their hands early in June.

Ordinarily it might be said that taking in the hay and gathering the later harvest is the farmers' problem, and as they sowed so let them reap. But, these are not ordinary times, an observation that has been reiterated with varying degrees of eloquence and emphasis for the last three years.

Prospects are already beginning to point to heavy crops this season in circumstances of abnormal shortage of farm labor. That is a brief statement of the rural problem as it is likely to develop. And that problem inspires the question whether any men in this city would be willing to lend a hand during the brief haying season? The main harvest comes later, and need not be considered for the present.

Perhaps some city men who could get an afternoon off would reply that the farmers should call their sons back from the munitions plants to handle the grass and grain crops. Just a word with them.

Some sons of the farm have gone into munitions plants, and others have enlisted in one or other of the armed forces. In this county, according to the survey made by the Agricultural War Council, the reports received from 1,146 of the 2,200 farmers showed that 77 young men had enlisted from Peterborough farms, 37 others had been called to the reserve force, and the total number likely to be called for training this year was 244. It may be that the actual numbers should be doubled because replies came in from only half the farmers of the county.

Hired Men Facts

Opinion fairly close to the farms suggests that the actual number of farmers' sons who have gone into munitions plants is not so large as street notions estimate. Many of the sons of the land have an actual potential stake in it. Farming is their business, and most of them are staying on the job through the war period.

When you scan the ranks of hired men, the outlook is not so encouraging.

Here are some of the facts partly reflecting the loss of man power in that direction.

Total number of hired farm hands ed in 1941 (Peterborough County)—53.

Tota lnumber of hired farm hands left for work in war plants in 1941—128.

Total number of hired farm hands who left for work in other occupations in 1941—148.

Those are obviously serious losses which cannot be charged to the farmer and his son. The hired man is a free agent who may pick up and take himself to other jobs whenever he wishes. That is the glory or the weakness of democracy in war time, according to your estimate of it.

Here is another pertinent fact: the average increase in farm wages between last winter and prior to the war was 84.6 per cent. And if hired men took themselves off to city jobs it cannot be said that the farmers did not make some financial effort to keep them on the land. But, the farm increase was not so attractive as the new wages held out in city jobs.

The Number Needed

Here are a few more concluding facts from the agricultural survey:

Number of farmers in this county with hired help for the present, 165; with adequate hired help, 437; without adequate help, 519; number of extra men required, if available, 427.

Such is a brief sketch of the farm situation as shown from the incomplete reports. These figures are not totals. They are only the total from the 1,146 farmers who replied to the questionnaire.

These facts tell the plain story that help is going to be needed during the peaks of the approaching season; and the first peak will come when the hay has to be cut and piled on to wagons and hauled to the barns.

Are the men of Peterborough city going to do anything about this need? Are they willing to do anything?

How many men are able and agreeable to "knocking off" for even half a day to help some of those farmers who frankly say that they have not an adequte supply of help?

Probably that question might as well be left for a few days' consideration . . . And in that consideration don't leave yourself out of the scheme by repeating the vague gossip that somehow the farmer is to blame for his shortage of labor. Neither fairness or common sense or plain fact informs that opinion with its note and effect of adverse and subversive propaganda. How about it?

Forty Millbrook Cadets Parade In Fine Showing At Inspection

MILLBROOK, May 7—(ENS).—The Millbrook Cadet Corps, over forty strong in two platoons, senior and junior, made a fine showing at the annual inspection held on the school grounds on Tuesday at 2 p.m., Captain T. C. Holmes, District Cadet Officer, home from overseas service in the present war, warmly congratulating the Cadets and their officers on the efficiency with which the marching and various manouvres were carried through.

The excellent manner in which commands were obeyed and the details of the drill smartly followed was particularly commendable in view of the fact that the letter telling of the date of Captain Holmes' visit had inadvertently gone astray, and the Corps had practically only two days in which to prepare for the inspection.

Taking the salute at the march past the receiving base, marked by two large flags, besides the Inspecting Officer, were Lieut.-Col. E. H. Bounsall, Sergeant Harwood, and the Cadets' Instructor, Percy Hamilton, Principal of the Public School, and member o fthe Reserve Corps.

The Cadets were under command of Cadet Captain Donald Pritchard; Cadet Lieut. Donald McKnight, Platoon No. 1; and Cadet Acting Lieut. David Hatherly, taking the place of Cadet Lieut. Karl Fee, absent through illness. In command of the various sections were Cadet Corporals John Greer, Barry Fee, Evans Hatherly, Bruce Stewart, David Fallis and Donald Edmunds. Cadet Lieut. Teddy Stinson was drummer for the parade from the Armouries to the school grounds and return.

The physical culture exercises, carried through with precision and despatch, were under the direction of C. E. Wilson, B.A., the new member of the Continuation School staff.

Praise by Inspector

Following the inspection, Captain Holmes spoke briefly, stating "You have done a fine job, with only two days' notice of this inspection. Your appearance is smart, your uniforms clean, pressed, your shoes polished, and the whole making the best kind of impression. I hope you will be able to cover the other subjects, such as map reading, etc., on the curriculum, another year, and I particularly wish to congratulate you on your steadiness on parade; the boy who can do that has something that will stand him in good stead, and bring him to the top in his life job."

The silver trophy, given the local Corps by the Prince of Wales' Rangers some years ago, for the best section in the drill, etc., at the inspection, was awarded to No. 3, Corporal Barry Fee in charge, the other members being Cadet Privates Conrad Stinson, Zenas Ward, Ian Gibson, Reuben Arson, and Thomas Peers. The best dressed Cadet was Private Herbert Ball, who received a money award, the gift of Lieut.-Col. Bounsall.

Captain Holmes also presented the medals won in rifle shooting. That of the D.C.R.A. going to Cadet Captain Donald Pritchard, whose score was 199 out of a possible 200; and that for the best record in the school to Cadet Corporal Barry Fee.

Before the parade back to the Armouries, where the annual treat of ice cream, soft drinks, etc., was enjoyed through the generosity of G. T. McPherson announcement was made that the Cadet from the local Corps entering active service during the past year was Donald Kerr.

As a matter of interest, it might be added that at least forty-seven of the Millbrook Cadets of former years are now overseas on active service, and several others are enlisted and training in Canada to take their part in the present world struggle.

Dr. J. E. Middleton Sells Residence And Ten Acres To Jas. G. Wharry

Real estate transfers in Peterborough during the last two months indicate a fairly general increase in values, according to some reports of sales.

Enquiries have been active, and many of them have developed into transactions, with other spending.

Some comment has been heard that a new restriction intended to give further protection to tenants may become an impediment to the business of buying and selling real estate.

Owners intending to sell houses must give their tenants three months' notice to vacate. This regulation is coming into effect at a time when many owners of dwellings have not had other opportunities of selling at fair values. Whether or not this damper will disclose itself in a decline in transfers should become apparent by midsummer. Some owners are decidedly dubious.

One of the more interesting sales reported some weeks ago was the purchase by James G. Wharry, executive of the Quaker Oats Company, of the suburban house built and occupied by Dr. J. E. Middleton on the township side of Monaghan Road near Jackson Park. It is understood that Mr. Wharry has acquired ten acres of land with the attractive Middleton house, and that change of occupation will not take place until the end of the summer.

Some of the sales of which information has been received since the passing of winter are listed herewith.

NEW YORK, May 7 — (AP). — Speaking perhaps, with a touch of prejudice aroused by recent events, James J. (I always have a story for you) Johnston argues that there's no such thing as a punch-drunk fighter....Some of the boys reported that Abe Simon's recent retirement was a result of his desire to avoid taking one punch too many ....Says Jimmy: "Look at all the sparring partners; look at the guys who used to fight 20 rounds in every fight....Look at all the punches they took....The only ones that act queer had something wrong with them all the time only it didn't show up while they were in fighting shape. They never begin to act punchy until they let themselves out of condition."

Lust To Meet Berger In Title Bout

By DICK MATHEWS

Western Canada boxing followers are hailing Al Lust, youthful Medicine Hat scrapper who now holds the western welterweight crown, as one of the most promising boxing finds to come down the pike in many years.

Virtually unknown before he stalked from his training quarters to knock the championship crown from the brow of Nick Serada of Winnipeg, Lust has successfully defended his title on four occasions and has looked more impressive each time out.

Lust comes by his boxing ability honestly, for he is the youngest member of a famous Medicine Hat fighting family. First member of the Lust tribe to hit the boxing headlines was Eppy Lust, who campaigned successfully on the Pacific Coast for some years. Next came Young Tunney Lust, a middleweight who knocked all his opposition into a cocked hat and was virtually forced into retirement by lack of challengers.

But Al promises to surpass both his brothers in the quest for fighting fame.

Serada, who succeeded to the championship mantle when Ronnie Beaudin cast it aside to camping in Eastern Canada and the States, did not anticipate much trouble in disposing of the young Gas City battler in their first engagement. But he found, to his sorrow, that Lust was a very tough customer indeed. The match ended in the 10th round with Lust the winner by a technical kayo.

The dose was repeated in a return engagement, with Albert again winner by a technical knockout.

Then Beaudin returned from his eastern campaign and promptly demanded a shot at the title he once held. Beaudin, himself a clever boxer, was out-generalled by Lust and dropped a 10-round decision. Lust's smart craftsmanship dispelled any doubts previously held of his ability. Some critics had been inclined to scoff at his right to the title, claiming he was nothing but a slugger who had been lucky on two occasions but wasn't likely to last long against a smart operator.

Lust's next opponent was Joey Bagnato of Toronto. It took Al just three rounds to chill Joey.

His next title defence was against Tom Shaw, veteran English scrapper now stationed with the R.A.F. at DeWinton, Alberta. Shaw, participant in 150 bouts in the Old County, was no match for the champion and was fortunate to last nine rounds in the face of a furious barrage.

Lust is not expected to fight again prior to his bout with Berger, scheduled for some time in July according to present arrangements.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

The Church Softball League executive announced yesterday that there has been a change in the setup for the opening game in the juevnile sectino of the loop. Instead of being played at King Edward grounds as originally announced it has been decided to take the lid off the season by playing the first game next Monday night at 6.30 o'clock at the Ashburnham Bowl. Appropriate opening ceremonies are being planned and it is hoped to get the season away to a flying start by a good battle between the two juvenile clubs which faced each other in the playoffs last season, St. James and All Saints. Incidentally it has been decided not to open the bantam section that same night, as first proposed and the game between George Street and Mark Street clubs planned for the Oval Monday night will be deferred until a later date. The bantam section has gained another recruit since the meeting the other night, the St. James bantams having decided to enter the loop and there is a possibility that there may still be another entry before the season opens, bringing the total to six clubs.

The Chesterfields, the team piloted by Roy Parnell last season which eventually won the City League honors and made a good showing against the Oshawa Laundry outfit in the O.A.S.A. playdowns will travel under new sponsorship and a new name this season. The former Chesterfields will have the backing of the Adam Hat Company and Ed Riley, local representative of the company and will be known as the Adam Hat Royals. The Parnell outfit has lost a few players from last season, principally because of the decision of the Peterborough hockeyists to enter a City League team but the gaps have been filled. The Royals have been working out for some time and they expect to be fit and ready when the City Loop gets under way a week from next Monday.

Yanks Take Lead

The American League race is all tied in a knot and today finds only a half a game separating the three clubs at the top of the heap. New York Yanks ousted Cleveland from the top shelf yesterday by handing the Indians their fourth loss in a row and as a result Lou Boudreau's team are now tied with the Boston Red Sox for second place. Boston hung a trimming on the Chicago White Sox to stay up there. In taking over first place the Yanks shut out the Indians 3 to 0 behind smart pitching by Ernie Bonham who held the losers to five scattered hits. It was the first loss of the season, after five straight wins for Jim Bagby who started the game for the Indians. Boston Red Sox handed the White Sox their 19th loss in 23 starts but it took ten innings and some great clouting by Second Baseman Bobby Doerr to turn the trick. Veteran Ted Lyons pitched great ball for the losers and had a 1 to 0 shutout until the eighth when Doerr socked a homer to sew up the game. The teams battled on into the tenth frame and once more Doerr with a teammate on the runways slammed out another circuit clout and there was the ball game. The Red Sox second sacker has been batting sensationally as if to rebuke the sports writers who a week or two ago were hailing Joe Gordon as the greatest second baseman of the current crop.

Perhaps the most dramatic feature of the American League card yesterday was the spectacle of old Buck Newsom, cut loose by the Tigers, facing his old club and shutting them out with only one hit, the pitching classis of the season. Interestingly enough the only blow made off Newsom's delivery was made by Doc Cramer who was a Senator last season and out to do his utmost to defeat his former club yesterday. Cramer slapped out a triple to rob Newsom of a no-hit, no-run game but died on third when the veteran right-hander went to work on the next batter. The Senators cracked out ten hits, off the delivery of Newhouser and Manders. They scored a single run in the sixth and that would have been enough but for good measure they added six more in the seventh to win the argument 7 to 0.

* * * * * *

In the other American League game played yesterday St. Louis Browns with the dependable Elden Auker pitching seven-hit ball defeated the Philadelphia Athletics handily 7 to 2. Roger Wolfe was the losing pitcher. There was only one game played in the National League and it was merely an exercise gallop for the St. Louis Cards who triumphed over the Phillies 11 to 2. Mort Cooper held Hans Lobert's club to six hits while the Cards hammered 14 off the best pitches of Cy Johnston and Blanton. The blows included homers by Terry Moore and Enos Slaughter. St. Louis blew the game wide open in the third inning when they chased six runs over the counting station and after that display of power the game was merely a parade.

The difficulty about making hockey plans for next season at this long range is indicated by the announcement that Wally Stanowski, Pete Langelle and Johnny McCreedy of the Toronto Maple Leafs have received their call for military service, and that other professional hockey players will soon be in the list. By the time the next practice season arrives the roster of the N.H.L. clubs is likely to be very materially changed and all clubs in the cash and carry circuit will have to build up new lineups from married players not called out for service and veteran hockeyists above the present age group. However, while the quality of the hockey may slip a bit, the clubs should be able to ice fairly formidable teams and the competition will probably be as keen as ever. Right now however the hockey moguls are all at sea. They cannot decide just what should be done in the way of plans for the next campaign.

Sybil Ecobichon, who long has been one of the mainstays of the Ladies' Basketball League at the Y.W.C.A. has left for Kingston to enter the canteen service of the Canadian Women's Army Corps. Her services will be greatly missed around the Y, especially when another cage season rolls around. For a long period she has been acting as official scorer and timer of all the Ladies' League contests and was always on the job. Some of the star players might be missing or perhaps a referee would get a night off and fail to put in an appearance but Miss Ecobichon was invariably there to record the lineups and keep track of the scoring performances of the players. Players of the Ladies' League and basketball fans will wish her good luck in her work in the Army. Incidentally the Ladies' Loop has made a notable contribution to the C.W.A.C. with five of its personnel already enlisted.

He has already won two games for Hornell in the Pony League....Syd Fenn of the Saskatoon Quakers, voted the most valuable player in the senior Saskatchewan League last winter has enlisted as a private in the Canadian Army Postal Corps....The Ontario Senior Lacrosse group has managed to round up six clubs by admitting Owen Sound into the select section....Sun Again may start in the Preakness. If he does the Calumet meteor will give the selectors a few more headaches....Whirlaway, favorite in the big race, added the $20,000 Dixie Handicap to his long list of triumphs. Toronto Leafs Are Likely To Lose Four TORONTO, May 7.—Military service bugle calls have been answered by at least three, and possibly four, members of the Stanley Cup championship Toronto Maple Leafs this week, and also by at least one member of the Boston Bruins.

Ordered to Take "Medicals"

Wally Stanowski, Pete Langelle and Johnny McCreedy of the Leafs, and Roy Conacher of the Boston Bruins, it is learned, have been instructed to report to the registrar of their military district immediately for medical examinations preparatory to basic training assignments. Likelihood is that Don Metz, pinch-hitter star of the Leafs in the recent Stanley Cup title series against Detroit Red Wings, has either received his call signal at his Wilcox, Saskatchewan, farm or will get it shortly.

Metz was called in for a military service medical check-up early in March, with indications he would be ordered to report for training at any time.

At the moment Don and brother Nick are engaged in spring seeding at their Wilcox farm.

Drafting of prominent major and minor professional hockey players, as well as well-known senior amateu stars campaigning in Canada and United States, for military service doubtless will be a large-scale development of this Spring and Summer.

What Happens Next?

Whether the call to military service will so deplete the playing ranks of the National Hockey League, the American Association and the Eastern States Hockey League that programs of these organizations for next winter will be abandoned still remains uncertain.

National Hockey League owners, coaches, managers and other officials will be surveying the situation in meetings here Thursday and Friday, May 14 and 15. Minor league delegates are also expected to participate in some of the conferences.

Langelle and Stanowski of the Leafs, received their service calls Tuesday morning, just as they were preparing to leave for their Winnipeg homes. Last fall they had been transferred from the Winnipeg Rifles reserve unit to the Toronto Scottish. It is understood they received permission to make the Winnipeg trip, with instructions to report to Manitoba military authorities for medical examination and assignments.

Johnny McCreedy, Toronto rightwinger, and a bridegroom of less than two weeks, will report to local military headquarters.

Roy Conacher, Toronto-born leftwing sharpshooter of the Boston Bruins, who had been with the Queen's Own reserves for the past two years, received notice yesterday to report within three days for his medical.

Muzz Patrick First

Many Canadian-born professional and amateur hockey players now established as residents of the United States, have either received Draft Board calls or expect them in the near future. Muzz Patrick, defenceman for New York Rangers and son of Manager Lester Patrick, was the first major puckchaser to get a United States Army signal. He was drafted for service last fall and is now located at Fort Dix, New Jersey.

To Join Air Force

WINNIPEG, May 7 — (CP). — Johnny McCreedy, 25 - year -old rightwinger of Toronto Maple Leafs, world's hockey champions, hopes to enlist in the Royal Canadian Air Force on his return to Toronto from a honeymoon in the United States, his sister, Mrs. O. Hanson, said here last night.

Johnny, a prolific scorer, skater and stickhandler on three Dominion amateur championship teams and star with Trail Smoke Eaters who won the world's amateur crown with eight straight victories in Europe in 1939, joined the Maple Leafs last season and helped them win the Stanley Cup a month ago.

Mrs. Hanson said her brother, a member of a Toronto (Reserve) unit, had taken a medical examination preprataory to going on active service, but had not received the results yet.

Johnny married Ila Maxwell of Sydney, N.S., soon after the Maple Leafs won the Stanley Cup.

"When he returns to Toronto I think he will try to enlist in the Air Force," his sister said. "He told me last summer he wanted to be an air observer, but he told my brother, Russel, recently that he now wants to be a pilot."

LONDON, May 7.—(CP).— Wartime brings queer quirks such as the "tea-car timetable" soccer league operating in the Midland.

Seven isolated military units there rely on the regular visits of a Y.M.C.A. tea car for communication with each other. The list of fixtures and results are posted on the door of the vehicle. Two artillery units, a service corps, traffic control police and some Czech gunners form the group.

Nor would this happen in peacetime: Eleven year old Joan Bungay keeps the score in Surrey Colt Cricket Club matches and will score the big match against Lords in August. She took scoring tuition from her father and due to shortage of men scorers travels with the Colts.

Joan is considered something of an outstanding mathematician because— well, did you ever try to work out a bowling average and keep a cricket score?

That old master of the ring, Nel Tarleton still bowls them over. British featherweight champion at 36, he kayoed Pancho Ford of Wales in the fifth round of a scheduled eight-rounder in London despite a weight disadvantage of 10 pounds. On the same card Paddy Lyons of Dewsbury dusted through to a close decision from Joe Marsh of Montreal. Marsh, 14 pounds heavier, could not penetrate Lyons' defence.

Some of these Canadians who came to Britain to play hockey before the war may know David Baptie, a former captain of the Wembley Terriers team. Just 22 and a sub-lieutenant in the fleet air arm, he's reported killed on active service.

'TINY' ED BONHAM WINS 4th FOR YANKS BLANKING INDIANS 3-0

Boston Red Sox Down Chicago; Tigers Lose 7-0

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

Mr. Big among all the pitchers in the major leagues this year seems likely to be Ernest Edward Bonham of New York Yankees.

"Tiny" is perfectly cast for the part, because he stands 6 feet 2 and weighs 215 pounds. But more than that he has won his first four games this spring, three by shutouts, and yesterday he subdued Cleveland Indians 3-0 to return the Yankees to the pinnacle of the American League.

It took Bonham only an hour and 24 minutes to mesmerize the Indians in one of the quickest nine-inning games of the season. He was matched against Jim Bagby, who technically had become the leading pitcher in the big leagues by winning five games without a defeat.

It was Cleveland's fourth straight loss after winning 13 in a row and dropped the Tribe into a tie for second with Boston Red Sox, who nosed out Chicago White Sox 3-1.

The latter game was a stirring pitching duel between old Ted Lyons and Joe Dobson, each of whom allowed six hits. Lyons could cope with all the Red Sockers except Bobby Doerr, who hit a home run in the eighth and another with one on in the ninth to account for all Boston's runs. Chicago's only tally also was a homer by rookie Leo Wells, who was one of an entire new infield Manager Jimmy Dykes started in an effort to break his club's string of 13 losses in 14 games.

Newsom Shines Again

Buck Newsom pushed back into the spotlight by pitching Washington Senators a 7-0 shutout of Detroit Tigers on one hit—a triple by Doc Cramer. The Senators scored six of their runs in a big seventh-inning flurry.

Elden Auker submarined St. Louis Browns to a 7-2 decision over Philadelphia Athletics by keeping seven hits scattered. The Browns made an even dozen, including a three-run homer by Vernon Stephens.

Only one game in the National League escaped inclement weather and in this St. Louis Cardinals plastered an 11-2 defeat on the last place Phils. While Morton Cooper kept Philadelphia in check, his teammates made 14 hits, among them homers by Terry Moore and Enos (Country) Slaughter, and treated themselves to a six-run spree in the third frame.

Vernon Stephens, Browns — Hit homer with two on in sixth to help beat Athletics.

Ernie Bonham, Yankees — Shut out Indians on five hits.

Bobby Doerr, Red Sox — Hit two home runs to beat White Sox.

Buck Newsom, Senators — Pitched one-hit spectacle to shutout the Tigers.

Terry Moore, Cardinals — Hit a home run and drove in two tallies with double to lead attack on Phils.

Most Talked About Baseball Rookie

Perhaps he won't win honors as the "Rookie of the Year," but Froilan (Nanny) Fernandez, sensational shortstop of the Boston Braves, certainly is the most talked about star recruit now. When Fernandez, born of Spanish parents in 1918 at Wilmington, Cal., slapped out eight hits in a row, he really made baseball observers take notice. His spectacular clubbing put him among the five top hitters in the National League, and his play afield is pretty to watch. Fernandez, called Nanny in baseball, was one of the brightest stars in the Pacific Coast League last year. He was runner-up to Johnny Moore in batting, hitting for .327, and he led the league in batting in runs, totalling 129. A natural ball player right from the start, the young Brave shortstop began playing pro ball with Yakima, Wash., in 1939, after graduating from a Wilmington high school. San Francisco bought him the next summer for a big price and the youngster wound up the season batting .304 for the Seals. An all-around athlete, Fernandez starred in basketball and track while at school. He did enter business college after high school, but the lure of baseball was too great and he quit to play with Yakima. Fernandez is a right-handed batter and thrower, stands five feet nine inches tall and weighs 170 pounds.

Whirly May Top 'Biscuit Cash, Scores In Dixie

BALTIMORE, May 7.—(AP).—Whirlaway, the Kentucky Cannon Ball, may become the first $500,000 money winner in all racing records.

Seabiscuit still holds the all-time money-winning record with his $437,730 but even the oldest inhabitants, still gasping for air at the way Whirlaway ran around and away from a classy handicap field in the Dixie yesterday, couldn't see how he could miss picking up all the marbles between now and next July 4.

Here was the horse who was despised in Florida a year ago. He was beaten four lengths in the Blue Grass Stakes. Then he started to click, and, with yesterday's $19,275 prize Blenheim's best son showed a bank balance of $371,811 for his two-and-a-fraction years of racing.

Yesterday he came from 20 lengths back with 128 pounds on his back to whiz past Mioland and Attention.

A Bit Of Revenge

On top of all the other satisfaction for the long-tailed little fellow from Warren Wright's farm in Kentucky, he got sweet revenge on one of the horses which broke his winning streak last July and then wouldn't give him a chance to even it up. This one was Attention, who hung it on Whirly in the Arlington Classic after he had swept the triple crown of Derby, Preakness and Belmont.

This time, Whirlaway let Mrs. Parker Corning's pride and joy fight it out with Ed Bradley's Best Seller and Alf Vandervilt's Impound for the early pace. Then he started to move, and breezed by.

In the stretch, although he drifted out a bit, he was the same Kentucky Cannonball of old, and he hit the wire, going away, in the flying time of 1:57, just one-fifth of a second away from the track record held jointly by Pompoon and Seabiscuit.

As he came prancing home, after making up close to twenty lengths from the half-mile mark to the finish of this 72-year-old classic, a crowd of 20,000 cheered the chestnut skyrocket they'd backed down to $5.30 for $2.

All in all, it was just a pushover for Eddie Arcaro and Whirlaway, although he was top-weighted at 128 pounds and had only arrived from Kentucky two days ago. At the finish, he was three-quarters of a length ahead and going away from Attention, who was ridden all out, and another neck in front of Mioland, who was closing gamely, and just nosed out Challedon for the show spot.

Behind this quartet in order trailed Best Seller, Impound, Texas Jack Sullivan's Air Master and E. G. Hackney's Sir Alfred.

Probably never in the long history of the Dixie or, for that matter any other race, has a field so rich in talent gone to the post—and for a $20,000 pot. The first four horses at the finish represented $1,029,491 in earnings after they got through paying off—Whirlaway, Attention ($3,000 for second), Mioland ($2,000 for third), and Challedon $1,000 for fourth. "This grand" for big Pete boosted his earnings to $333,860, leaving him in fifth place in the all-time money winning lists.

Barrett Floors Wings 9-4; Royals Win 3-2

By The Associated Press

Charles (Red) Barrett of the Syracuse International League Chiefs is the club's "meal ticket." Barrett started his team off on the right foot when he won two of its first five games. Then he won two more games each of which snapped the Chiefs out of a losing streak.

Yesterday Barrett hurled a 9-4 victory over Rochester Red Wings for his fifth triumph of the campaign.

Albert (Dutch) Mele and Clyde Vollmer led the 15-hit attack on two Rochester hurlers with four hits each.

By winning, Syracuse evened its two game series with the Wings and also moved into fourth place in the standing as Jersey City Giants were defeated by Montreal Royals.

John Carl Wittig of the Jersey City Giants had a hectic afternoon in Montreal as he allowed the Royals only five hits, yet lost the game in 10 innings 3-2.

Wittig's wildness was the main cause of the defeat, the third in four games the Jerseys have suffered at the hands of Montreal. The righthander issued nine bases on balls, uncorked a wild pitch, and committed two errors, the last permitting the winning tally to register.

To make the loss more heartbreaking, Wittig got three hits including a two-bagger and scored one run. Lester McCrabb, recently acquired from Philadelphia Athletics, made his first start on the mound for the Royals. McCrabb was touched for nine hits in eight and a third innings.

Other scheduled games were postponed.

5 Teams Ready For St. Kitts In Lacrosse Loop

TORONTO, May 7.—(CP).— Six teams will contest the championship now held by St. Catharines in the Ontario Lacrosse Association's senior series this year, Dan Millar of St. Catharines, Association president, announced last night after the opening meeting of the O.L.A.

The teams are: St. Catharines Athletic, Brampton, Owen Sound, Mimico, Hamilton and Etobicoke. The Owen Sound team is the only new entry this year.

The opening game of the season will be played in Toronto June 1 between the two suburban teams from Mimico and Etobicoke. In compliance with the government's gasoline conservation policy, Hamilton and Owen Sound, the two farthest removed teams, will play only two games in the series, one in each centre. Each of these games will count four points for the winner instead of the usual two.

Representing the teams at last night's meeting were: Jim McLeod of Owen Sound; Jack Manning and J. MacDonald of St. Catharines; J. Mackenzie of Hamilton; Fred Sanford of Mimico, and Murray Scrutton, Reg Hamilton and Norm McGair of Etobicoke.

TORONTO, May 7.—(CP)—Predicament of the Week: What to do with a crate of live turtles. The problems belongs to Jack Lillington, outdoor columnist for the Vancouver Province, and is a good enough example of what perverse forms readers occasionally take to express admiration (or otherwise) of newspapermen.

An interesting angle on industry-sponsored athletics is emphasized by Ralph (Montreal Star) Adams: That the competitive urge in sports can be applied to increased industrial efficiency by proper organization of workers.

In almost every large industry the various divisions keep a type of boxscore on daily production, making every employee competition-conscious. The competitive spirit probably could be increased by inter-division baseball or hockey leagues.

Scott Kennedy, secretary of the Winnipeg Rugby Football club, bought a race horse cheap the other day. Here's how: He was watching early-morning workouts at Whittier Park in Winnipeg with R. J. Speers, the west's Mr. Racing. A group of juveniles from Speers' Whittier Park Stock Farm breezed by.

"Which one do you like?" asked Speers.

"It's yours for what you have in your pocket," Speers said.

Scotty turned out his pocket, found 37 cents.

He got the horse. Name: Omar's Gift.

Oil Heat Users Must Find Different Fuel

OTTAWA, May 7—(CP).—Munitions Minister Howe announced yesterday some 600 owners of oil heating plants east of the Rocky Mountains have been ordered to switch to coal or some other fuel by July 31.

"The oil shortage is becoming increasingly grave," said Mr. Howe. "The needs of the Navy and of essential war industries must be met before any fuel oil can be released for civilian use."

The Minister said a warning is being mailed by G. R. Cottrelle of Toronto, Oil Controller, to approximately fifty owners of heating plants on the Prairies, about 250 in Ontario, about 250 in Quebec, and about fifty in the Maritimes.

These 600 comprise owners of banks, warehouses, theatres, bakeries, apartment houses, office buildings, churches, institutions, Provincial and municipal establishments, and commercial and industrial plant using oil for heating and the production of steam.

They do not include private residences.

LAKEFIELD

Church Honors Jean Blewett

LAKEFIELD, May 7.— (ENS.)—The congregation of St. John's Anglican church honored Miss Jean Blewett Monday evening at a happy gathering in the Sunday school rooms, when she was the recipient of a miscellaneous shower in honor of her marriage this Saturday.

Magistrate O. A. Langley as genial chairman, in an informal presentation address lauded the bride-to-be, and Jean, assisted by her cousin, Sybil Lennox, displayed the array of kitchenware gifts to her friends.

After the singing 'For she's a jolly good fellow,' a delectable lunch was served by the choir.

On Tuesday evening Jean was honored by fellow members of the Westclox power press department at the home of Miss Ruth Murray, Donegal street, Peterborough.

Some twenty girls gathered for a jolly evening, during which Miss Blewett received many beautiful gifts, tokens of the group's esteem.

Previous, during her last afternoon at the plant, the entire department pleasantly surprised the future bride with the gift of an exquisite walnut end table.

Fleet Enters

numerical superiority of the British forces seemed to be preparing their listeners for loss of the base and observers said the Vichy forces might take to the hills for guerilla warfare.

A Paris broadcast today said there was "no sign of any hope that Madagascar can withstand the British attack."

The announcer said the British attacking forces "have been considerably strengthened," saying his source was reports received during the night.

Among Vichy reports underlining concern there was a statement that unforeseen developments had prevented the chief of government, Pierre Laval, from making a planned trip to Berlin to consult Hitler about Madagascar.

Freeing French Pilots

A Lisbon dispatch to the London Daily Express said between 30,000 and 35,000 French pilots, aerial gunners and ground crew members would be released from Nazi war prison camps June 1 to fight over French territory against British air attacks.

Again, however, the London Daily Express quoted the Vichy radio as saying two 7,000-ton French cruisers, Marseillaise and Lamotte-Picquet, had been missing since Tuesday and speculating that "they may either have joined the British or are trying to rejoin the French fleet in Indo-China."

Preparing Coup 3 Months

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that a protocol is being drawn up between the commanders in Madagascar and that the British fleet is expected to enter Diego Suarez harbor about 3:30 p.m.

He disclosed that preparations for occupation of the big island in the Indian Ocean had been under way for three months.

In order to prevent bloodshed so far as possible, strong forces of all arms were employed, the Prime Minister stated.

The French naval and military commanders have surrendered and Diego Suarez has been captured, he asserted.

"We trust the French nation will in time come to regard this episode as a recognizable step in the liberation of their country including Alsace-Lorraine, from the German yoke," Mr. Churchill declared.

Mr. Chiurchill's statement:

"In order to prevent bloodshed as far as possible, very strong forces of all arms were employed and preparations were made over the last three months.

"Landings were, as already made public, successfully accomplished, and by Tuesday evening our troops were in contact with French forces in and before Diego Suarez and before the promontory of Antsirana and the promontory of Oranjia.

Night Attack Wins

"The first assault on the Antsirana position at dawn yesterday was repulsed with losses that may have exceeded 1,000 men, but Maj.-Gen. Sturges of the Royal Marines, who commands the troops on the island, attacked during last night and captured the promontory of Antsirana.

"The French naval and military commanders surrendered. The town of Diego Suraez also was captured."

"Early this morning a further attack was made on batteries at Oranjia in the entrance to the harbor.

"These have now surrendered and a protocol has been drawn up between the commanders of either side.

"Minesweepers forming part of a powerful covering fleet under Admiral Syfret which had been assembled had already begun their work and it is expected the fleet will enter the harbor about 3.30 this afternoon.

"These operations, which were not without risks of various kinds, have been carried out with great dash and vigor.

"The French also fought with great gallantry and discipline. We grieve that bloodshed has occurred between the troops of our two countries whose peoples at heart are united against the common foe.

"We trust the French nation will in time come to regard this episode as a recognizable fact in the liberation of their country, including Alsace-Lorraine, from the German yoke."

Ralston Orders

captured so far except one who got away, one who died of wounds and three who were killed. The minister paid tribute to the work of the Veterans Guards who serve at the camps, and said the total guard establishment is between 7,000 and 8,000.

The minister said the question of enforcing the compulsory service laws of The Netherlands and Norway on citizens of those countries living in Canada is under discussion with their governments. So far the laws have not been enforced, but the question is being considered in connection with Canada's right to call up nationals of other countries under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

J. J. Kinley (Lib., Jueens-Luenburg) urged that the postition of some of these men be clarified so they would know what their duty was. Some foreign governments are calling men up to the age of 37 years, whereas the Canadian Government calls only up to the age of 30. Some of the men concerned were doing useful jobs in Nova Scotia war industries, but felt they might get a black mark from their own people if they did not answer the call. He thought they should be told they were governed by Canadian law.

Col. Ralston promised to give consideration to a suggestion from J. F. Pouliot (Lib., Temiscouata) that pictures of the King and Queen should be displayed in recruiting stations and mess rooms.

Answering questions from Joseph Harris (Con., Toronto-Danforth) the defence minister outlined steps taken by the department to implement recommendations of the war expenditures committee of last session. One recommendation was that surplus fat be removed from beef and hog carcases at the packing houses before the meat is shipped to the army, and that such parts as the spare-ribs, tail, skin, hocks be left with the packer.

Wider Meat Variety.

That recommendation was considered but it was decided it would be better to continue to buy whole carcasses in order to provide a greater variety of meat dishes.

So that there is no waste, steps are being taken to ensure the use of all residue parts of the beef and hog carcases," said the minister.

"Mincing machines with sausage attachments are provided, together with authority for the purchase of sausage casings, seasonings, etc. I remember meeting a cook on the Pacific Coast who wanted a sausage machine. I promised to get him one and it has gone to him. The machine is very useful from the point of view of dietetics and also from that of saving.

"Recipes have been circulated to all units, giving complete instructions for the making of beef and pork sausage, headcheese, pickled pork and corned beef.

"The issue of three ounces of lard per man per day has been discontinued, so that cooks now are compelled to obtain this supply from the dripping and rendering of fats of meats. All other residues of meats from kitchens, such as bones, rough fat, and kitchen grease are disposed of by sale."

At one stage of the debate Mr. Pouliot declared the Defence Department was suffering from "elephantiasis" which he described as a disease in which parts of the body grew too big.

John Diefenbaker (Con. Lake Centre) sought detailed information as to the age groups represented in volunteers enlisted in the Army from January 1 to April 30, 1942.

The Lake Centre member contended it would be impossible to draw conclusions as to the success of the volunteer system until it was known what numbers of men subject for the draft anticipated their call-up by volunteering.

Col. Ralston said that the information would require a great deal of clerical work and that he would advise later whether or not it could be obtained.

Fishermen Out For Rock Bass

GORE'S LANDING, May 7. — (ENS).—The fishing enthusiasts of this village are out in full these Spring evenings. The pier is lined with small boys and adult boys, all with a line and pole, catching the 'morrow's dinner of rock bass and mudcats. A very special "hole in the pier" is said to produce most enormous rock bass, and a lady caught a mudcat in this mysterious dark cave, which was fully twelve inches long and difficult to land. At this time of year, the rock bass are quite delicious and firm to eat.

Bancroft Party Gets 80 Trout

BANCROFT, May 7 — (ENS). — "A" Company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment (Reserve Force) held its first parade of this season on Friday, when over 100 officers and men were present. The boys marched from the orderly room through the main street and up to the Fair Grounds where they hold their drills.

Quite a number of local fishermen were out on the first of May to try their luck in nearby streams and lakes and from all reports they met with great success. One party returned to town with a catch of 80 speckled trout while another party of fishermen returned on Saturday with a catch of twelve speckled beauties, none of which went under one and a half pounds.

Draw for Quilt.

During the show in the Community Hall on Saturday evening the draw took place for the Whitney blanket donated by the Bancroft Woollen Mills to the local Red Cross. The lucky winner was the Rev. L. J. Kennedy, parish priest of Bancroft. The net proceeds from the sale of tickets was $33:70.

Sister Edna Broad, D.D.G.M., made her official visit to Bancroft Chapter, O.E.S., No. 157, on Friday evening. A pleasant evening was spent and much credit was given the officers for the very efficient way their work was exemplified. The Chapter Room was nicely decorated with flowers, and at the close of the meeting the District Deputy was crowned "Queen of the May' and presented with a bouquet of red roses and white carnations and also a gift from the Chapter. Tables were set up at the close of the meeting and a bountiful repast brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

The three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hannah of Boulter met with a painful injury on Sunday while out playing. Lumb of Bancroft was summoned and reduced the fracture.

50 Years Married.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maxwell of Bancroft observed the 50th anniversary of their wedding on Sunday at home when the family played host to their parents. The celebraiton came as a complete surprise to the elderly couple as they had no idea that any function was being arranged for their benefit. A banquet was nicely arranged on long tables in a room whose four walls were banked with cherry blossoms from which streamers criss-crossed the ceiling During the dinner James Maxwell, eldest son made a presentation of a large electric refrigerator to his mother and father on behalf of the family. Thirty-one members of the family were present for the occasion, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. James Maxwell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Maxwell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Maxwell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Maxwell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McLeod, Mr and Mrs. Fred Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Reynolds, Mrs. Charlote Sararas, Mrs. Cassie Maxwell, Miss Bessie Maxwell, and 14 grandchildren. In contemplating the possibility of such a Japanese thrust observers took into account the fact the fall of Corregidor had made Manila harbor available to the enemy as a new base of operations and released men and equipment for duty elsewhere.

They recalled, too, that thus far in the war the Japanese have been quick to strike in a new direction after each success.

VARIETY IN COLOR

For those who have been troubled by the lack of variety in wool lately, there is an extremely attractive display in a window on George street. The strands have been linked in an intricate pattern that is most unusual and the whole affair is fan-shaped.

THE WRONG IDEA

A telephone call to the Examiner indicated that some people understand the 4th Field Battery Reserve Army has stopped recruiting. This is not true, as 100 men are needed to round out this reserve unit at Peterborough. Married men over 30 who will train two nights a week are wanted.

A.R.P. LECTURES

"Elements of First Aid," will be the subject of the A.R.P. lectures next Sunday afternoon at 2:15 in the Lyceum and Monday at 8 p.m. in the same place. Dr. Avison will be the lecturer with members of St. John Ambulance Association. This is the second lecture of the new basic course.

GARDENING CAMPAIGN

A. G. Metheral, relief officer, is having the north end community gardens plowed this week. The gardening program will be discussed at tonight's meeting of the relief committee. That does not mean the lots are intended simply for that purpose. Any citizens who wish to grow things this season can get a lot or two.

STARTING PHEASANTS

Jack Stuart of the Quaker Oats, has turned loose a large number of pheasants on the Rifle Range, in the hope they will multiply and spread over the country to the point where a hunt can be organized in a few years. At present a deputy game warden is policing the section every day, and strict measures will be taken with any person found molesting the birds. No person other than a soldier on duty is allowed on the rifle range property, so a double fine can be imposed. Boys with 22 rifles are the ones whom the game warden is particularly watching for, as these seem to have little appreciation for game life of any description.

Four Aldermen Are Appointed To City Playground Committee

Mayor Hamilton has appointed Aldermen Curtis, Swanston and Dutton as representatives of the council to a playgrounds committee of the Kiwanis Club.

Gordon Miller, Leo Copp and H. S. Longhurst from Kiwanis broached the club's playgrounds proposal to the finance committee of the council last week. At least one swimming pool to be constructed at Riverside Park was included in the club's plans but its estimated cost halted aldermanic interest. It seemed to be quite definitely understood that a swimming pool expenditure would not get the council's support this year. However, the joint committee of Kiwanians and Aldermen is expected to hold an early meeting at which the proposed club enterprise will be discussed.

If Kiwanis will prune their playground plans to a comparatively simple and inexpensive undertaking of supervision in several sections of the city for the summer months they will probably get the degree of co-operation from the council which they apparently are seeking.

In fact it was learned at the city hall this morning that as chairman of the property committee Alderman Swanston has already suggested that the Park street wood yard be cleared of its remnant pile of hardwood and be laid out in two or three softball diamonds for the children of the southwest neighborhood. That is an indication of aldermanic interest in the general idea of some playground work this summer, and may be accepted by the Kiwanis Club as an earnest effort of the council's sympathy for some organized effort to attract the children from street play and the movie theatre addiction.

MISS JULIA McARTHUR.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7.—(ENS).—Following a life which had been devoted to the service of others Julia McArthur died in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, on Monday morning at the age of 63. The deceased lady was a practical nurse and had spent almost her entire life in this district, where she was held in high esteem both for her ability and her devotion to duty. She was born in Seymour township, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McArthur, but for nearly thirty years had made her home with the late Mr. and Mrs. William Shapter, Hastings Road. Miss McArthur's death came after nearly five months' illness.

McAuley. Interment was made at St. Marys cemetery. Bearers were Messrs. David McCook, Ernest McCook, Robert Innes, Edward Forestall, Joseph Kelleher, John Sullivan.

Among those from out of town who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shapter, Mrs. Ella Greer, Mr. and Mrs. D. Trotman, Jr., Mrs. D. Trotman, Miss Helen Trotman, all of Kingston.

St. George's Day Echoes Aid For War Victims

On April 23, Lansdowne Lodge, Sons of England, gave their customary recognition to the patron Saint's day in England by holding a social evening in the Lodge rooms, having also the dual purpose of helping those who had suffered through air raids over Britain, a most appropriate thing in conjunction with all that St. George stood for in his traditional defence of the weak as against the strong.

From this the sum of $30 was reported in the columns for the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund a few days later, duplicating what had been done for the same cause just one year previous, and now today, an echo of this appears in the form of an additional $10.50 which has come to hand per their secretary, W. G. Shiner, this having been sent in by members of the Lodge who were unable to be in attendance for the occasion, but who wished to be associated with the purposes for which the evening was held in addition to the celebration of the day itself, thus demonstrating their loyalty not only the Lodge itself, but also to the cause it espoused on behalf of those stricken through air raids over their Motherland.

Another instance of this same loyalty to the land in which one first looked upon the light of day, has come to hand with a contribution from Mrs. E. M. Blackbourn of Hastings, who was born in Norwich, England, one of the old Cathedral City's recently to feel the weight of German lust for destruction of the old beautiful landmarks of English culture of many centuries standing, and who very aptly gives her donation of $3 as coming from a citizen of "a no mean city" Norwich

The box at the Dominion Bank yielded $1.97 when collected by the secretary for the fund on Wednesday, keeping up its good work to help things along.

Draw For Afghan

Six ladies in the south end of the city, Mrs. L. D. Letellier, Miss Albina Gordon, Mrs. J. Martyn, Mrs. J. E. Demers, Miss Maude Theobald, and Miss Josephine Gordon have knitted a very fine Afghan, and the pupils of a public school in Janetville are sponsoring the sale of tickets for a draw on it, to make their second effort on behalf of the fund under the direction of their teacher, Milburn Jones. Tickets are 10 cents each or three of 25 cents.

Peterboro Men Charged In Jewel Theft

COBOURG, May 7 (ENS)—Fred Revoy, 287 Park street and Wallace Coombs, 283 Park street, both of Peterborough were arrested on Wednesday evening by Provincial Constable David Adair of Cobourg, on a charge of theft of jewellry.

Police claim that at an auction sale of the farm of George McBain on Tuesday, May 5, three old and valuable rings were stolen. One was a three stone diamond, another a solitaire, and the third a ruby. The first two are valued at $250 and the third while of lesser value from a monetary standpoint has a sentimental value as an heirloom.

Police allege further that Coombs was wearing the ruby ring when arrested by Adair, and both men appeared before Magistrate R. B. Baxter, and were remanded without plea or election Thursday afternoon.

Commanding Officers Are Named For Cobourg And Lindsay Units

Recruiting for two active service artillery units in the district is proceeding satisfastorily and the new O.C.'s have been named during the past week. Both are young aggressive officers who are picking the cream of the recruits who are seeking enlistments with the batteries.

Major J. D. Lander is in command of the 56th anti-tank unit at Lindsay. He went overseas in this war with the 9-15 Field Battery from Toronto, two years ago, and returned to Canada a short time ago to assume command of this new artillery unit for the 6th Division. Down at Cobourg, Major H. K. Walker of Guelph, has assumed command. He went overseas about two years ago, and after receiving extensive training in the new type of warfare was chosen to command the Cobourg unit, which is listed as the 36th Field Battery, 7th Division.

Young men who wish to go active with either of these units and who do not wish to go to either Lindsay or Cobourg should write the officer commanding at either point giving all information, and advice will be forthcoming on his suitability as a as a recruit.

Examiner Carriers Sell $656.75 In War Savings Stamps In Week

The week ending May 2 closed with a fine addition to the War Savings stamp sales of Examiner boy and girl carriers. Their total for the week was $656.75, the third highest total since these hard-working salesmen took over their self-imposed task of assisting in Canada's war effort.

Some splendid individual sales marked the week's return with a former high man. Wilbert Edgar of 577 Sherbrooke street, in top place again. His week's returns were a grand total of $97.25, one of the highest yet turned in. Second in sales is Nancy Leith of 617 Gilmour street who has repeated as weekly winner many times with a fine contribution of $77.50. In third place is Weldon Fanning who comes into the higher brackets again with $44, and another boy, Bill Leahy, who has improved his sales rapidly lately, is in fourth place with a further $41.75 followed closely by Keith Orde who brought in $41.25 and Elva Laing with $40 and George Clark $39. Lewes Gaskill of the north end is a strong contender for that section with sales of $30, Don Pagett $20 and Victor Doughty $19, both from the south end.

Some boys with smaller but welcome additions to the grand total are Bill Paterson, $9; Walter Noble, $7.75; Cyril Robinson, $7.50 and Grant Finnie, $7.25. Space forbids mention of a large number of boys and girls whose sales are regular but not in the prize winning class, but which help to swell the funds going to Canada's war treasure chest.

Announcement of the winners of the grand prizes for the month of April will be made in Friday's paper, along with the location and time of the presentation of the trophy and its accompanying rewards.

Last Minute Rush On To Join Rangers

This week the Armouries is working on the double preparing for the move to Camp Niagara next week. The spearhead of the attack is the quartermaster stores where Captain Jim Morley is organizing an advance party of fifty men, who will set out early Monday morning for Niagara-on-the-Lake. Captain Morley will be in charge of the group and Gar Poole will be the senior NCO. There will be a few men from each of the five companies and cooks, butchers, storemen and two or three clerks in the party. They will be responsible for the preparations of quarters and rations for the main body which will arrive later in the week. Much of the equipment and clothing from the quartermaster stores is being boxed up already and will be taken by rail and in the battalion vehicles with the advance party.

These stores will then be set up in the new camp and will be ready for issuing when the Rangers arrive in strength. Food, too, must be prepared in advance for rations must be ordered two days ahead of time. The men of the advance party themselves are getting their final issue of equipment and medical attention today, they will be paid too, and go on leave Saturday morning prior to their departure on Monday. Here R.Q.M.S. Jim Fields will continue in charge of the stores and prepare to outfit any recruits enlisting at the last minute.

Monday will be moving day also for two other Rangers. Sergeant Ivan Fletcher is leaving the Keene bus service completely and going on to Lansdowne Park Ottawa for a period of training on the maintenance of army transport, which will qualify him as a driver mechanic. L-Corporal Caravaggie will arrive on the same day at Wodstock where he will attend the driver mechanic wing of the A. D. and M. School there.

E. W. Stinson, of Norwood, came on sick parade yesterday morning and was at once taken to Nicholls Hospital where he was successfully operated on for acute appendicitis. Captain Dawson, Medical Officer for the Rangers, said this morning that he was progressing very favorably. His friends both in the regiment and at Norwood will be glad to know that he is recovering rapidly.

17-Year-Old Youth Pays $40.00 Fine

Seventeen year old Bernard O'Brien was fined $40 and $2.50 costs or twenty days in jail in police court this morning after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of having driven or permitted his car to be driven carelessly.

The charge laid under the Highway Traffic Accident was a sequel to a recent accident on Water street north.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., relating the circumstances to the court, said that O'Brien's car, travelling north on Water street, had crashed into a parked automobile and O'Brien and two other youths in the car with him had been injured and both vehicles damaged.

"There was some evidence of drinking but not sufficient to warrant a charge of drunken driving," he said.

"It could easily have been a charge of reckless driving," commented Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

"I was not driving the car myself," said O'Brien. I was in the back seat and a friend of mine was driving. I have not heard from him as to just what happened.

The accused admitted that it was his automobile that had been involved in the accident.

Four Men Are Fined For Illegal Fishing

For illegally fishing by other means than angling or trawling four local men were fined $10 and $2.50 costs in police court this morning after they had entered written pleas of guilty to the change.

The four were Ronald Lee, Lawrence McGarrity, Herb Henry and Robert Robertson and it was indicated they had been using gaffs in the river.

The charges were laid by Fish and Game Overseer L. J. Lyons.

Milk Delivery To Factories Shows Increase

Some of the cheese factories in Northumberland report the volume of milk this month to be twice as heavy as in May last year. Some of the patrons say they are having difficulty in getting 30 and 40 gallon cans.

The weekly report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture says Northumberland orchards promise profuse blooms, and the blossoming is likely to be two weeks earlier than normal.

Seeding is far advanced in most of the area of Central Ontario. Victoria estimated 35 per cent complete, but Prince Edward says 50 per cent is done in that county. Rain has been general and pasturage is lush. Prince Edward tomato growers are transplanting seedlings.

In Hastings County the agricultural program is broadly two weeks ahead of the average season's work and growth. Sheep have been clipped earlier than usual, fruit trees are two weeks ahead of time, with their buds, and some of the farmers had even contemplated seeding when this week's report was compiled.

Spring Grain Up.

Peterborough finds a good crop of lambs, and much of the spring grain above ground. York farmers have been joined by "quite a number of high school boys this week."

It may be of some interest to farmers to note a contrast in attitude and action. A deputation from the Ontario Agricultural Council, an organization that was formed years ago, went to Ottawa this week with a list of requests and urgings including thirty-cent cheese. This cheese question had been discussed by the Department of Agriculture since the middle of the winter. The Cheese Producers of Ontario made their representations and finally the basic price of 20 cents a pound was agreed upon in the new contract with Great Britain. Subsidies increase that price to a possible maximum of 24 cents, and most of the factories will make a lot of 24-cent cheese. But, this deputation of farmers takes off to Ottawa after the cheese price has been determind with more or less satisfaction throughout the country, asking for an increased price at this late date, and generally tending to disturb a commodity which was settling down into operation.

Out to Produce Maximum.

This comment is inspired by the report from Lenox-Addington this ewek: "Since the price of cheese has been set farmers know where they are at, and making every effort to produce the maximum. On the local board this week 1,269 white cheese were all sold at 19¼ cents a pound."

Somebody should have told the Ontario Agricultural Council they would be better advised to omit the cheese clause from their petition to the Federal Government.

Grenville County finds a rapid increase in the volume of milk and cheese factories are moving into high gear. Grass has made remarkable growth.

Leeds says both old and new hay meadows look fairly good, but Prescott and Russell report more meadow damage from the winter than had been expected. Carleton says: "Reports about poor meadows are quite general."

Over in the western end of the province Norfolk reports: "Hay and pasture have made phenomenal growth." Lambton says alfalfa fields are showing a splendid thick stand and heavy growth. This crop is evidently flourishing all across the province.

Perth County reports 90 per cent of the seeding finished. Weather was favorable and tractors worked day and night. Wellington says inquiry for stocker cattle for pasture farms is quite keen.

Miss Dorothy Moffatt Is Hostess To Y.P.U.

FRASERVILLE, May 7 —(ENS)— The Young People's Union met on Tuesday night at the home of Miss Dorothy Moffatt. A brief worship period was held, after which it was decided to hold a theatre party next week. Rev. M. Rowland, citizenship convener gave an address on "Fascism and Nazism." Contests were enjoyed at the close.

The local boys' ball team is right on the job again this year, already having organized and is practicing a couple of nights a week.

Miss Doris Preston of Peterborough spent Sunday at the home of her friend Miss Elinor Pue.

Mr. and Mrs. George Clarke and sons of Millbrook, visited at the home of the former's parents on Sunday.

The Monthly General Meeting of the Women's Auxiliary for the Navy will be held at the Y. W. C. A. Friday, May 8, at 8.15 p.m.

All members are requested to attend as there are several important points to be brought before the meeting.

Women Battle In Laneway Near Havelock

The story of an argument between a married woman and a 20-year-old girl over suspicions, as to the relations between the girl and the woman's husband that started in a local beverage room, and culminated in a hair-pulling battle in a laneway near Havelock was told in police court this morning when Mrs. Agnes Ketchum of Havelock charged Ila McLaughlin, whose home is seven miles east of Havelock, with assault occasioning bodily harm.

The girl, who was defended by W. B. Gordon, pleaded not guilty but was eventually convicted of common assault by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. and fined $10 and $1.75.

Mrs. Ketchum told of coming to Peterborough with her husband and the McLaughlin girl. The accused and herself visited a beverage room here during the afternoon and Mrs. Ketchum said that there had been some words and that when she went into the rest room the accused had pushed her.

Wanted Rations Book

That night the three drove back toward Havelock together and near the village her husband had stopped the truck and demanded his gas rations book. Then he grabbed her to get the book. Mrs. Ketchum said that she had seized the keys from the truck, got out of the machine and ran up a farmer's lane and hidden the keys.

She said that the McLaughlin girl had followed her up the laneway and demanded the keys and when she refused to tell her where they were the accused had struck her in the face with her fist. Then Mrs. Ketchum said the McLaughlin girl had pulled her hair so that large quantities of it were loosened and had bitten her on the abdomen and leg and kicked her. Mrs. Ketchum also testified that her husband had seized her and thrown her down.

To Mr. Gordon Mrs. Ketchum said that it was the relations between her husband and the girl that had caused the trouble. She said she had taken the keys because her husband had threatened to drive away with the truck and not come back. A handful of hair was put in as an exhibit.

Dr. Donald Holdcroft of Havelock testified as to the injuries he found on Mrs. Ketchum after he had examined her the morning after the alleged assault.

Pleads Self Defence

Miss McLaughlin was the only defence witness. She said that when Mrs. Ketchum had taken the keys from the truck and gone up the laneway she had followed her because they could not get home without the keys. As she got near Mrs. Ketchum, the witness said, the complainant had picked up a stone and fearing she was going to be hit the accused said she had seized Mrs. Ketchum by her wrists.

"Then she bit me on the wrist," said Miss McLaughlin showing the wrist to the Magistrate.

The accused said there had been another "tussle" when they got back near the truck.

"I might have pulled her hair; she was pulling mine," the witness admitted.

Commenting on the fact that the husband had not been called as a witness Magistrate Langley said rightly or wrongly he decided to find the accused guilty of common assault.

"The evidence of the doctor was not helpful on the point of actual bodily harm," he said, "because there had been testimony that the woman had also been assaulted by her husband and her injuries might have been caused in that way."

Mr. Gordon asked for suspended sentence but Magistrate Langley declined to grant that request. "She knew this woman did not want her around," he said.

Annual Rental Blocks Housing Project

Wartime Housing Limited have decided to abandon their 30-house project on the Park street property owned by the city, H. S. Longhurst, administrator for the company, informed the Examiner today.

"They consider the rental of $250 a year too much," Mr. Longhurst briefly said in explaining the company's sudden switch of interest from the south end area which has been used for years as a municipal wood yard.

The company proposed in its letter to the council Monday night "a nominal rental of $1 a year," but the council debated the alternatives of $300 and $200 and finally agreed on $250.

Rumors reaching the council of late have mentioned that Wartime Housing has been looking over a large area of the Hatton estate north of Charlotte street and west of Walkerfield House, home of the Hatton family for many years.

Mr. Longhurst declined to comment on this rumor. His statement was confined to the retreat from Park street. However, for several weeks past rumors have been intimating that Wartime Housing was looking to the western border of the city as site for their next project of from 200 to 250 temporary houses for munitions workers.

Col. G. E. Hatton Awarded O.B.E.

Word was received this week that George S. Hatton, a former Peterborough boy had been awarded the O.B.E. and promoted to the rank of Brigadier-General.

The information came to Mrs. Douglas J. Lawrie from her aunt in England, Mrs. E. F. Hatton, telling of the promotion of Mrs. Lawrie's cousin, Colonel George S. Hatton, who is related to quite a number of Peterborough people.

Brig.-General Hatton is 42 years of age and lived with his grandmother, Mrs. David G. Hatton at 480 Charlotte street, for ten years while attending the Grove School at Lakefield, Upper Canada College and Royal Military College. He graduated from R.M.C. in 1917 and was gazetted as a lieutenant in the Royal Engineers, and proceeded to England.

After the war he served in Egypt under General Allenby, was in Iraq, Palestine and latterly served three years with the Imperial Forces in India. When World War 2 broke out he was on leave in England, and was immediately sent to the Near East, where he has been on duty in Libya, Egypt and Palestine. He was mentioned in dispatches in December, 1941.

His last visit to Canada was in 1923 when he spent quite some time in Peterborough. His father was in the Imperial Service and was a medical doctor at St. Georges, Granada, British West Indies.

Dr. Bruce Urges Vitamin Bread

OTTAWA, May 7—(CP). — Dr. Herbert Bruce (Con. Toronto-Parkdale) said in the House of Commons yesterday he favored making use of bread containing a recently developed vitamin-rich flour compulsory for both members of the armed forces and civilians.

Dr. Bruce was taking part in a discussion on health of Canadian soldiers. He introduced his subject on the new flour recently developed under government supervision to give white bread a vitamin content previously only possible in brown bread.

He declared: "If our people are suffering because of the lack of nutrition, as was shown by the recruitments in the early period of this war, and I presume it is still going on, then my point is that it is highly desirable that the government should make it compulsory that not only our troops but our civilians should have the benefits of this so-called 'Canada-approved' flour."

Havelock Red Cross Raises Objective From Tax Rate

HAVELOCK, May 7 — (ENS).— A special executive meeting of the Red Cross was called at the request of Major Watson, Toronto, when he was visiting branches in this district. The main purpose was to discuss the Havelock-Belmont Red Cross objective which is $1,100. He highly commended the president, T. P. Lancaster, for his suggestion that the objective be raised from the grant given by the County Council, which would consist of ½ mill from all property owners. Anyone wishing to make a further gift may do so to the local secretary or treasurer. A canvass of salaried persons, who are not taxpayers, will be made. Major Watson was so enthused by this idea, that he said he would present it to headquarters and make it known to other branches, who might otherwise not be able to reach their objective.

The $9,000,000 objective seems large, but it requires $5,000,000 alone for boxes for prisoners of war, as well as countless other demands. The Major spoke of the shortage of wool and material and asked the members to donate more time to fund raising events, now that the amount of work will be limited to quotas.

The work for prisoners of war was greatly stressed, as there are 80,000 prisoners now, of these one-half are cared for by Canada and the rest by Britain, but eventually the Red Cross hopes to be able to relieve Britain of this extra burden. Japan has refused to let boxes go to the prisoners, but rather than have the prisoners there without anything from home the agreement has been reached whereby Canada sends food by the ton to be distributed by the International Red Cross.

The vice-president, Mrs. A. Anderson, presided for the regular meeting on Tuesday, when seventeen ladies were busy quilting, cutting out patches, pressing and labelling. The Buying Committee was given authority to purchase locally flannelette to finish up the present quota. The treasurer reported a bank balance of $85.49.

Claim CN Crews Jobless While CPR Short Men

OTTAWA, May 7—(CP).—Canadian National Railways locomotive firemen and engineers between Port Arthur, Ont., and Wainwright, Alta., are suffering from unemployment, while the Canadian Pacific Railway is short of men, H. R. Moore, representative of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, said today before the Railway and Shipping Committee of the House of Commons.

The situation was particularly acute among older men with 15 to 22 years' seniority, he said. In the Porth Arthur to Wainwright District 473 men in this category were unemployed.

Younger men were able to take other employment without losing seniority rights, but older men had to return to work when they were called to protect their seniority.

"During a time when we feel that conditions are such that we should be operating at a maximum rate, we find that we are at a very low level as far as employment is concerned," Mr. Moore said.

Business started to fall off last September and since that time men with 20 years seniority had about two weeks steady work. This condition had previously existed on the C.P.R. but now was reversed.

C.N.R. engineers and firemen feel their railway is not getting its share of government business, Mr. Moore said. He had talked to soldiers and airmen who had made seven or eight trans-continental trips with travelling on the C.N.R.

R. C. Vaughan, C.N.R. President, said that while there was little difference in mileage between the C.N.R. and C.P.R. in the West there had been larger grain crops along the C.P.R. route and the C.P.R. also had the benefit of larger lumber and commercial coal business.

Save 400 Tires From Wreck

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, May 7.—(CP).—More than 400 tires have been salvaged from a merchant vessel which ran aground on the Nova Scotia coast some weeks ago, waterfront sources said to-day. This number, they said, was believed to be a large proportion of the tires in the wrecked ship's cargo.

The tires, some of which are valued at $1,000 apiece, range in size from 5½ feet to 20 inches in diameter. Many of these piled in a warehouse here were thickly coated with lard, which was also part of the ship's cargo.

Some of the tires drifted seawards and a number were picked up by a fishing schooner, which took aboard as many as she could, but was forced to let the rest go. Most of those salvaged were picked up near the wreck by coastal residents in that area and by fishermen.

The amount of salvage paid on the tires could not be learned, but one fisherman was reported to have received $475 for one large lot.

Various other things have turned up from the cargo. One was a container for explosives. There were several gadgets shaped like microscopes. No one in the warehouse knew their use

New Officers Are Installed

HAVELOCK, May 7—(ENS)). — The officers of the Home and School Association were installed on Tuesday evening at the May meeting by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson. Officers installed were: President, Mrs. H. Pollock; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. R. W. Goheen; Secretary, Mrs. Fred McKenzie; Treasurer, Mrs. John White; Social Convener, Mrs. Wm. Woodbeck; Membership Convener, Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft; Executive Convener, Mrs. W. J. Nobes.

Mrs. H. Pollock, treasurer, reported a bank balance of $34.92. A letter of resignation was read from Mrs. Harry Watson as program convener, and it was decided to carry on without one, until the September meeting. Mrs. Frank McKay reported that the teachers had not yet definitely decided what they wanted to buy for their classrooms and they were given one week longer.

Auditors appointed were Miss Verna Buchanan and Mrs. R. W. Goheen. Before vacating the chair, Mrs. Taylor thanked all for the cooperation she had received, and asked everyone to assist her successor. The new president, Mrs. Pollock, presided for the balance of the meeting. Three appropriate songs, in honor of the closeness of Mother's Day, were sung, "Mother MacCree," "M-o-t-h-e-r Spells Mother," and "Home Sweet Home." Rev. Andrew McLaughlin, Toronto, was present and gave an interesting talk on his experiences, travels, and interviews with private secretaries of noted leaders, now that he has retired from the active ministry and has taken on press writing as a hobby. He especially mentioned the fine reception given at the O.E.A. in Toronto at Easter, at the inclusion of more religious instructions in schools, as being the first step for a firm foundation for the new order. While he was in Ottawa last week he saw thousands of cards of acknowledgment for boxes from the Red Cross received by prisoners of war.

A piano solo, "Murmuring Breezes," by Mrs. J. W. Wilkinson, was much enjoyed. Rev. D. K. Perrie gave an interesting address on "Matters of Education and Religion as it Affects the Life of the Child".

Badminton Club Enjoys Social

LAKEFIELD, May 7—(ENS). — The Badminton Club held its closing night for the season on Monday. A weiner roast had been planned to be held in the park, but due to the unexpected cold spell, the evening's festivities were held in the Memorial Hall.

A round robin of badminton was played followed by dancing, with Mrs. Fred Brown at the piano.

Lunch was served, with Miss Mary Davis, Don Hendren, and D. L. Minshall in charge.

10-Year Job Faces Japs Fixing Burma Oil Wells

CALCUTTA, May 7.—It will take the Japanese ten years to restore the blasted Burma oil fields to capacity production, American drillers said yesterday on arrival here from Yenangyaung and Chauk, where they helped put the torch to more than 4,000 wells in eight days.

"We left behind nothing the Japanese could use," said G. Whitley Batson of Texas, an employee of the Burmah Oil Company, who helped with the Yenangyuang destruction. "We destroyed 3,021 wells with explosives which dropped the pipes to the bottom and by firing the free flowing wells."

He said they also fired thousands of barrels of oil stored in tanks, then tore down tank and derrick superstructures and cut up the machinery with torches.

The demolition was carried out between April 10 and 18, but most of the work was packed into the last two days after British authorities ordered total scorched-earth destruction.

Whitley was one of five American drillers who participated in the demolition, then set out on the long evacuation trail toward Calcutta by river boat, truck, train and foot. They were the last of about twenty-five American oil men to leave the beleaguered colony.

About 100 Americans, Scotsmen and Anglo-Indians made up the full demolition gang, Whitley said, and the last batch to leave "got out by the skin of their teeth."

"The Japanese fired on them with a trench mortar from a bluff on the bank of the Irrawaddy as they boarded a launch and escaped northward," he said.

Flower Girl Holiday

LONDON, May 7 — (CP).—Grey-haired flower girls who sell their wares on the open sidewalks of Drury Lane were remembered on Tuesday in the will of Mrs. William Pennington-Bickford who left a trust fund from an estate of more than $100,000 to give the old women an eight-day holiday at the seaside every year.

Rev. J. M. Gordon Is Nominated Quinte Conference President

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7. — (ENS).—A glow of satisfaction swept over both clergy and lay representatives alike when they heard the encouraging report of their campaign for wiping out the United church deficit which was given them at the May meeting of the Cobourg Presbytery held in Castleton on Wednesday. Rev. G. A. Siscoe, D.D. General Secretary of the United Church in Canada came all the way from Toronto in order to present the report in person and he told the gathering, numbering about 40 odd, that practically a million dollars had been paid on the deficit ($1,700,000) during the past year And in addition to this the United Church had also sent $50,000 as an out and out gift to aid the British churches in bombed out areas.

Nominations Made.

Other business of the day included a review of the year's work in the various churches of the presbytery and preparations for the annual conference to be held in Lindsay during the first week of June. Rev. J. E Anderson, Brighton, was elected president of the Cobourg Presbytery and will replace Rev. J. M. Gordon of Port Hope, who was subsequently nominated for the office of president of the Bay of Quinte Conference. As moderator of the United Church of Canada they nominated Rev. C. J. L. Bates, formerly president of Kobe University, Japan. This nomination will be forwarded to the General Council which meets in Belleville next September. For the office of presbytery secretary, Rev. M. L. Fisher of Gore's Landing, was chosen. To facilitate the printing of minutes and other business of the presbytery the meeting authorized the purchase of a duplicating machine. Considered under the heading of general business was the request for a change of pastoral relations by Rev. R. A. McRae of Hilton and the transfer of Rev. T. M. Wesley, Cambourne, who has been called to Cainsville of the Hamilton Conference. This former secretary of the Cobourg Presbytery will take up his new work July 1st.

Improve Your Salads With Your Own Dressing

By MARY MOORE

"Egbert won't eat salads—that's why I'M so fat!"

Because her husband didn't want "grass" she let herself pile up to a 200-lb. liability!

With my own two ears I heard a friend of a friend of mine say that yesterday at a tea (where, by the way, we had chicken salad and health wafers—no sweets).

Then came the answer that makes this a story: A little Viennese lady, who married a Dane, chirped up: "Neither would Horry (short for Horatio I guessed) until I made my own dressing of half mayonnaise and half boiled dressing."

They all wanted to know how she did it and since it does have a definite Southern European angle I'm giving it to you along with a few others, so you can convert your recalcitrant Egberts (if any) to eating salads and wanting them.

If you still are not far-sighted enough to see that we all must be 100 per cent fit to help our forces win the war you ought to realize you will feel better if you eat Nature's best foods in their original state. A good principle to adopt is this: "When I can get food fresh and raw in season I should eat it in that condition (not cooked), and as soon after it is gathered as possible.

After fresh foods are gathered, milk included, they lose their vitamins gradually, when they are exposed to air and sunlight. One thing you must act on from this tip is to bring the milk in and put it in the refrigerator as soon as it is delivered.

Horry's Favorite Salad Dressing.

(Note.—Hard cooked egg yolk will emulsify oil just as well as uncooked yolk—and is inclined to result in a thicker dressing). One egg yolk—hard cooked, one egg yolk, raw, ½ teaspoon each sugar, salt, made mustard, ¼ teaspoon each pepper, Worcestershire sauce, 1 cup chilled oil, 3 tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar. Place the hard-cooked egg yolk in a bowl, and mash it very finely with the back of a silver spoon or with a wooden masher. When the yolk is like powder, add the raw yolk and stir until the mixture is smooth, then put in the sugar, salt, pepper, mustard and sauce. When the whole is well mixed, add the oil by tablespoons, beating constantly between addition until each addition is incorporated thoroughly. As it becomes very thick, add the vinegar or lemon juice by teaspoons to thin it. Keep well covered if it is used this way.

Second Part. — This is a boiled dressing: ½ cup vinegar, 1 teaspoon fat, 3 egg yolks, 1 tablespoon sugar or corn syrup, ½ teaspoon mustard, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1/16 teaspoon cayenne, cream, sweet or sour (our Vienna friend said she wouldn't consider using anything but sour cream). Heat the vinegar to the boiling point and melt the fat in the vinegar. Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Add the sugar, mustard, salt and cayenne, mixed. Gradually pour the hot vinegar on the yolk mixture, and cook in a double boiler until thick, stirring. Add whipped sour or sweet cream just before serving if served without mixing with First part.

The next step is to mix these two mixtures together. Mix them with a spoon in a bowl and store in a clean, dry quart jar OR keep separate so that you may use one or the other, and only mix them at the meal time when you are serving a salad that would be good with the mixed dressing.

A mixed mayonnaise and boiled dressing is good on many types of salad, but I think especially with potato and celery salad, cabbage and parsley salad, and chicken salad, and if and when you can get an avocado it is good with avocado and grapefruit salad on endive.

Men seem to have definite dressing preferences. The following is the only dressing of any kind the husband of another friend of mine will eat.

Gar's French Dressing (With cheese)

One teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, dash of cayenne pepper, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 6 tablespoons salad oil, 2 tablespoons finely crumbled roquefort OR finely grated old Canadian cheddar cheese. Mix all ingredients and shake very well and serve on

Gar's Salad

Watercress, shredded leaf lettuce, chopped cooked side bacon, pimiento. Various amounts of these things may be used,—but the fat which comes out of the bacon is a necessary ingredient—only 2 slices of bacon are need to give the salad the necessary flavor Gar requires. Try tossing it at the table, with Gar's Salad Dressing. Tomato may replace the pimiento if you can't get pimiento.

Chicken Salad

Chicken salads are going to be even more generally served than they have been, for chicken is the first thing that many hostesses' minds turn to when salads are indicated, but most of them are served too dry. Notice the high proportion of mayonnaise to the amount of chicken and greens in our recipe.

To each 2 cups of chicken use ¾ cup genuine mayonnaise (first part of Horry's Favorite Dressing), and 2 cups salad vegetables, which could be celery or peas or cucumber; OR the salad vegetables might be mixed, which they usually are. Use 1 cup peas and one cup celery or 1 cup celery and ½ cup peas and ½ cup diced cucumber. If you wish to extend the salad further without using more chicken add chopped nuts, but be sure if you do select walnuts that are not rancid. Mix the chicken with the mayonnaise and vegetables just before serving on well cupped leaves of head lettuce. A nice accompaniment is a spiced pear or peach, and a nice garnish is fine strip of pimiento or finely chopped parsley.

Mayonnaise

First part of Horry's Favorite Dressing is a good and favorite type of boiled dressing.

Sweet Salad Dressing

One-quarter cup each lemon, orange and pineapple juice, 2 eggs beaten, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup cream whipped. Heat the fruit juices in double boiler. Beat sugar into beaten eggs, add to hot liquid, and cook until mixture coats a metal spoon (about 3 minutes). Stand upper part of double boiler in dish of cold water, beat mixture until cold with rotary beater. Just before serving, fold in whipped cream. Other fruit juices may be used — peach could replace the pineapple, grapefruit could replace the orange. The lemon juice is necessary. This dressing good with fruit salads.

If readers would like the Tomato Soup Mayonnaise that so many people find popular with their families, or my own Russian Dressing, or my mayonnaise made with corn syrup in place of sugar, or any other dressing they prefer, write to me and I will send you these recipes by mail.

ALL SORTS of clever and ingenious ideas appeared in the new fashions, for designers have done wonders to help us get the utmost out of our new clothes. Jean Schlumberger, who created a wonderful collection for the season, likes the little print frock so he has dressed it up a bit. The one shown is of pale pink crepe with a black bow knot pattern. A black waistline jacket and a full black lace skirt that ties around the waist with black silk ribbons transforms it into a perfect "after five" costume, the dress top serving as a blouse.

Mum's Weiner and Bean Casserole

(Contributed by Mrs. May).

(My married daughter gave it that name and I can't think of a better.)

Into a large casserole pour 1 large can of pork and beans and sprinkle over it about ¼ cup bottled catsup, and mix this down into the beans a little. Over top of it spread 1 pound of weiners which you split open to make them look like more, and spread them very sparingly with thinned made mustard. Add about ½ cup boiling water by pouring it in at the side of the dish and put in moderately hot oven to heat through and brown the wei[n]ers. This supper covers two situ[a]tions; it is fast to prepare and v[ery] easy on the pocketbook. I oft[en] order 1 pound of weiners on Sa[t]urday and keep them in the ice b[ox] for the emergency meal that [is] bound to crop up during the wee[k].

If they have not been used [by] Friday I give the children "h[ot] dogs" for lunch on Friday a[nd] they think ther are having a ra[re] treat.

Thanks, Mrs. May—more wom[en] than I will like that practic[al] talk. We'd like more of yo[ur] ideas, and ideas from oth[er] women who have learned to man[]age from necessity.

Baby's Own Tablets bring quick relief from teething troubles, constipation, simple fever, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic, simple croup and colds. Try them. 25 cents. Your money refunded if they are not effective.

Year of Achievement Shown In Report of War Work By Provincial Chapter I.O.D.E.

The regular meeting of the Major Bennett Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. James King, Monaghan road. Miss Lorraine McCarrol volunteered to convene the party for the soldiers to be held Monday evening at the Y.W.C.A., assisted by Mrs. B. A. More and Miss Isabel Milliken.

Mrs. More, who represented the chapter at the I.O.D.E. conference held in Hamilton recently gave an interesting report on the conference.

The conference was held at the Royal Connaught Hotel in Hamilton and the organization which met to hear the reports of last year's work has now served the Empire for 42 years, through three wars.

Mrs. Hyland H. New, provincial president, welcomed the delegates to one of the largest conferences in recent years. The conference was honored by the presence of the charming wife of His Honor the Lieut. Gov. of Ontario. "You have achieved great things and have won the respect and recognition of the people of the province," was the tribute paid by her. Mrs. Matthews enlarged on the apt quotation, "The national life has ended when it's people have lost the power of noble anger."

The featured speaker on Wednesday afternoon was Mrs. W. B. Horkins, national president, who brought greetings from the national chapter and gave a warning about loose talking in war-time, admitting that it was becoming a serious problem.

A letter of interest, from General McNaughton, written to the General McNaughton Chapter, Dundas, asked that members do all in their power to help the English brides brought out by men of Canada's armed forces, returning for training.

All committees returned very favorable reports, one of the highlights being the report of the War Convener, Mrs. C. D. Hickey. During the past year the I.O.D.E. has shipped to the armed forces 131,943 articles worth $103,617.13; to the bomb victims in Great Britain, 258,409 articles worth $134,800.27; to military hospitals in Canada, 2,078 articles worth $975.00; to other organizations in Canada, 9,148 articles worth $6,828.52; to Polish relief, 21,076 articles worth $24,328.90; made with materials of other organizations and returned to them, 30,881. This makes a total of 453,535 articles valued at $282,904.83. In addition contributions of money were made as follows: I.O.D.E, war funds, $34,134.30; other organizations for war work, $22,098.57; hospitality and entertainment for armed forces, $2,437.71; welfare work for families in the armed forces, $2,013.01; general work for armed forces, $364,495.71.

Mrs. Percy J. Phillips, Ottawa correspondent of the New York Times, addressed the dinner meeting on Thursday evening, giving some of his experiences before coming to Canada 11 months ago, after 20 years' residence in France. "The war will never be won the easy way," he said. "Without full acceptance of responsibility by every citizen; without obedience, without courage and without authority."

A.Y.P.A. District Council Marks 21st Birthday With Reunion and Party

The District Council of the A.Y.P.A. celebrated its twenty-first birthday on Wednesday evening with a gay reunion in the Parish Hall of St. John's Church. About ninety members and former members of district A.Y.P.A. groups, and officers of the Council, gathered together to recall old times and to celebrate the occasion with an A.Y.P.A. pageant, and the cutting of a large birthday cake graced with twenty-one candles.

Miss Jean Horsefield, first president of the council, was on the platform, with Ken Gibson, current president, Miss Clemena Long, secretary of the council, and Mr. Elmer Brown, the first secretary. Mr. Elmer Brown, in a brief talk, gave a summary of the early history of the council, which was founded in May, 1921, at St. John's Lakefield. Three branches were represented at that first council meeting, namely St. Thomas, Millbrook; St. John's, Lakefield, and St. John's, Peterborough. They were joined during the year by All Saints, Peterborough, and Christ Church, Omemee. Since then the membership has grown until it includes 13 branches of the A.Y.P.A.

Especial tribute was paid to the late Miss Blanche Graham of Lakefield, through whose untiring efforts the council came into being. Three life memberships, the highest honor this organization has to bestow, have been awarded in the district to the late Miss Graham, Miss Clemena Long and Mr. Bert Graham.

Mr. Ken Gibson, president, paid especial tribute to Miss Clemena Long, who as convener of the gathering, had worked hard to make it a success. Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's made a brief speech in which he welcomed the visitors to the gathering and to the church.

Following the opening exercises, a pageant of A.Y.P.A. was given by some of the members. Appropriate lyrics, set to familiar tunes were composed by Miss Queenie Hope and Miss Kay Chivas acted a accompanist. Those taking part were Miss Beatrice Curtis as Canada, Mr. Ken Gibson as United States, Victor Coleman as England, Iris Forbes as Scotland, Mary Cavalier as Britanni, Douglas Weir as Africa, and Eileen Biddle, Mrs. R. Pearson and Clemena Long representing the armed services.

Afterwards the company was served refreshments and witnessed the cutting of a three-tiered birthday cake by Miss Jane Horsefield. Tea and coffee were poured by Miss Florence Hutchinson and Mrs. W. P. Robertson at a graceful table, centred with the cake, which was flanked by white tapers in crystal holders and decorated with blue and white streamers.

After refreshments Mr. Jack Marshall conductd an auction sale of the top tier of the cake and collected $9.30 for the British War Victims Fund. Mr. Marshall also conducted an amusing quiz during the recreation period. During the opening exercises Miss Clemena Long read a number of letters from former members expressing their regret at being unable to attend the reunion.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. F. Dorrell, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Graham, Mr. and Mrs. R. Krant, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Hewitt, Mr. and Mrs. R. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Harloff.

200 Attend Dinner At St. James' On 25th Anniversary

The twenty-fifth anniversary of St. James' United Church was concluded with a silver anniversary dinner sponsored by the congregation on Tuesday night, when nearly two hundred present and former friends of St. James' were in attendance. Receiving the guests were Mrs. F. W. Craik, Mrs. Stokes and Mr. A. E. Prest, who welcomed the visiting clergy, including Rev. H. L. and Mrs. Roberts of George Street United Church. Rev. C. C. and Mrs. Boyter of Park Street Baptist Church and Rev. H. J. and Mrs. Mahoney, Knox United Church.

Silver was the dominant note in decorations and table service over which Mrs. M. Wood presided as convener. Silver baskets of tulips and narcissus centred the white tables, lovely with streamers of silver and white. Silver candles and holders completed an attractive ensemble. Shaded lights, potted ferns and a profusion of spring flowers provided a charming setting for this anniversary occasion. The necessary kitchen arrangements were efficiently managed by Mrs. G. Harris and a well-trained committee, while young ladies of the congregation acted as waitresses.

No formal porgram was used but delightful piano and vocal solos by Miss Elva Sollitt and Clinton Welch were enjoyed during the supper hour. Thus concluded twenty-five years of earnest endeavor in one of the youngest and most successful United churches of Peterborough.

For Friday, May 8

Perplexity, confusion and probably keen disappointment are the adverse aspects dominant in this day's planetary chart. Affairs generally may be subject to this disturbing condition although the intimate affairs are more likely to be affected, with romance and other emotional relations subject to surprising or erratic development. Sudden change of a radical and uprooting force may be encountered, with disruptive visitations in home or love affairs. Sound judgment, discreet and regulated conduct are enjoined especially in dealings with the opposite sex. Be alert to duplicity.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves plunged into a year of deception, imposition, disruption, particularly in the domestic, social or emotional life. Obstacles and frustration may prove upsetting, but if radical change be necessary be discreet, moderate and regular rather than reckless, hasty and impetuous. Particularly circumspect conduct is recommended in dealing with the opposite sex. Safeguard the health and possessions as well.

A child born on this day may have a melancholy, morbid or erratic tendency which have unhappy reactions on its intimate life, unless its supervision receive early direction or discipline. This applies particularly to females.

LOVE WALKS IN

CHAPTER XIX

Baldy sat up with a jerk that shook his jowls. "What's too bad—about Fay?"

"Can't you guess?" Peggy's tone was as innocuous as jam. "I rather imagine she's going to be married before any of us realize what's happened."

'Married?" Baldy was aghast. With stubbornness he could deal. But romance?

"Yes. My brother, you know. She things he's wonderful, and well—no mistaking how he feels."

Badly groaned. Peggy went on. "And now when you find someone you can work on, you can't get her."

"Who's that?" asked Baldy, suddenly wary.

"Me, of course. But I'm going on this Concert Party."

"That's right," said Baldy sympathetically. "You go."

Peggy wasn't beaten yet. "Just as the glamor girls are going out you get someone who could stand in for Vivien Leigh..."

Baldy sat up as though he had been struck. He looked at Peggy. "So you could," he said slowly. Then he shook his head. "No, it wouldn't do."

Peggy agreed with him. "No, it wouldn't. But that's what the public is going for. People get tired of these flapjacks swaying at the microphone. They want something vivacious that can knock 'em out, something like you made out of Fay Ransom."

"You got a point there, honey. Something new, always something new. Say, how old did you say you were?"

"Nineteen," lied Peggy.

Baldy shook his head. "Too old. Too set. The deb has been worked to death. People are sick of 'em. But if you could get a sub-deb craze, something fresh and fluffy from the nest, kid spirits....say how old did you say you were?"

"Seventeen," said Paggy.

"Split the difference," said Baldy: "You look a kid, yeah.... and them green eyes."

"If I only had talent," said Peggy.

"Nuts on talent," said Baldy. "Give me Baldy Brien, a good columnist and a half-wit and we'll make a genius. And I ain't shootin' a line."

He looked at Peggy critically, studying every inch from top to toe. "Get up," he said. "Swing round." He paused. Might take a chance. I can't lose. Say, kid, I could get you a stand in a cheap joint, friend of mine, twenty-five a week, ten for me, fifteen for you. Doesn't mean a thing to me and if you can live on fifteen I'll cut my commission to forty per cent till we see if you can break into the fifty a week class. If you can keep 'em looking at Benny's place I'll get a band leader in to look you over. That'll show 'em. The world's the same all over—knock 'em out in the Cafe de Paris. All it needs is management, and that's me."

He continued to study Peggy as though she were a biological specimen.

"Yes, if I could keep you from getting tough, keep you fresh, keep you a year in Benny's place while I get your voice worked up and some good dancing steps—it's a chance, a chance in a thousand, but that's the game, that is, a chance in a thousand. While you got one winner, you got to have something new coming up."

He took up his glass and drained it, looked at his wrist watch. "Half-past ten. I'll get Benny long distance. O.K. kid, I'll give you a chance, take it or leave it, and you help me get Fay back on the dotted line.

Peggy jumped up, delighted. She had what most girls would give anything to have, a chance to go to New York, a chance on the stage. Money and the job meant nothing so long as she had her chance. After seventeen years the world suddenly became the exciting, thrilling place she had dreamed it might be. Nigel didn't matter so much now.

Nothing mattered. Only one thing could stand in her way. Myra and her family would forbid her to go. Peggy flicked off the lights. She could think better in the dark.

How could she keep Baldy quiet until she got away? How could she get away before her family could stop her?

She sat on the arm of a chair, a slim, attractive girl of seventeen, just out of high school, and dreamed dreams of a career that would begin in a New York night club and end in Hollywood. It was all a miracle, mused Peggy romantically, giving her machinations far less credit than they deserved. Her chance and worth fighting for!

Baldy had wandered to find the telephone. A long distance call to New York, from Ferdy's house, gave him the pleasant feeling of being extravagant at someone else's expense and a feeling that at last he was doing something constructive after wasting his time all day.

Peggy sat in the darkened room, her leg swinging idly and her mind a thousand miles away in her dreams. She did not notice Nigel standing near the French windows watching her for a moment before he came in.

Something had happened to Nigel in the moonlight. He had wandered out with Fay still hankering after something elusive in her strange mixture of sophistication and simplicity, still attracted by the striking combination of dark red hair and quiet good looks. But he could find very little to talk about. He felt awkward and ungracious. He was almost thankful when Michael joined them and he felt the burden of talking eased. He found himself slowly becoming more distracted by the moon riding high in the sky, by the line of the dark trees below the house; he felt curiously uncertain. A day ago nothing in the world had seemed more desirable than to be near Fay Ransom, to get to know her well and to find some channel by which their friendship might flow into something deeper.

Now he was confused. Nothing had gone quite as he had wanted it.

He slipped away and wandered back to the house, deciding to read awhile and go to bed. He crossed the darkened verandah and stopped by the window as he saw Peggy, unconscious of him, swinging her leg over the arm of the chair, her eyes bright with dreaming young dreams. The half-moon was shining right through the window and full on Peggy in the darkness.

Something happened to him in that moment that he could never quite explain. They say that when a man is drowning he sees the whole of his life flash past him in a few seconds. That was the experience that Nigel had, but in a thrillingly different sense.

DOROTHY DIX

WAR MARRIAGES USUALLY DO NOT BRING HAPPINESS

Boy Shouldn't Add Domestic Anxiety to Dangers and Hardships

Dear Dorothy Dix. — Will you please tell us what you think about young people marrying during the war?—D. A. W.

Answer.—I think it is a mistake and that it would have a lot of trouble if they would wait until after the war is over. I know that when a boy and girl who are in love with each other, or who even think they are in love with each other, think about being parted they get very sentimental and teary and feel that they would like to have some tie binding them together, and so they are tempted to snatch a bite of wedding cake, even if they can't have the whole loaf.

But the concensus of experience of all war marriages is that the majority of them bring happiness to neither party, and oftener than not they end in divorce.

Consider these points: It will not conduce to a girl's happiness to be a war widow instead of free, because if she has a husband at the front convention will demand that she sit at home of an evening and read an improving book instead of going about with her crowd. She cannot step out with boys and go to parties without getting herself talked about, as she could do if she were still single. No matter how brotherly the boy is, nor how innocent the amusement she induges in, they are taboo to her for the duration, and she will find it dull and stupid with nothing more exciting to do than to look for the letter that may not come and out of which the censor has cut everything that she wants to know.

And it would certainly add tenfold to the worries of the youthful bridegroom to leave a wife behind him. He might wonder what his girl friend was doing and whether she was spending her time knitting sweaters or dating some other lad, but his thoughts would not be tinged with the bitter jealousy they would have if he was speculating about whether his wife was true to him, or was running around with some conscientious objector.

He would feel that he was a heel if he played around with other girls he met in camps, but he would be hungry for female society and longing to dance with the pretties, and there would be many a time when he would wish that he had kept himself free to do so. And bitter, indeed, would be his depression if he had to wonder if Sally still had her job and, if she hadn't, who would take care of her? And if his mother and father would look after her when they tried so hard to keep him from marrying her? The dangers and the hardships of war are all any soldier boy should have on his mind. He shouldn't add domestic anxieties to them.

Both Will Be Changed By War

Consider also this: Both the girl and the boy will be changed by war. He most. But these times are sobering even the most fluffy-headed little girl and making her face the realities of life as she has never done before. When Johnny comes marching home he will find a different girl from the one he left behind, and you will find him a different boy. He will have aged years in as many months. He will be disciplined. He will have been through experiences that have given him a new viewpoint on almost everything in life.

Maybe when you meet you will find new things to admire and love in each other. Maybe you will have lost your taste for each other. Maybe your experiences will draw you closer together. Maybe you will find each other strangers who have nothing in common.

How must better it will be, then, if you have both kept yourselves free to make your choice of whether you will spend your lives together, or part and go your separate ways, without any heartbreak or the mess of divorce.

Consider also the practical side, that when the war is over the boys are going to have to start life afresh with mighty little money in their pockets. They have got to hunt for jobs, or build up their professions again from the bottom, and having to support a wife is going to be an added burden on shoulders that have already borne so much. Unless a girl has a fortune of her own she should have heart enough not to wish herself on a soldier.

Furthermore, don't forget if you are so unfortunate as to have married one of the soldiers who will not come back, and you have a child and no money, you will find it terribly hard to be able to make a living for you both. You will have to work your fingers to the bone to support it, and many a time your heart will be torn to tatters because you cannot even give it the food and environment it needs.

You are young. You will not want to spend your life grieving over the loss of one whom your tears cannot bring back to you. But few men want to marry a widow with a child. They want children of their own, not to have to support another man's child.

These are some of the reasons why it is wise for boys and girls to put of ftheir marriage for the duration.

Unfaithful Father Fears His Son

Dear Dorothy Dix.—For two years I have had an affair with a girl only two years old than my son. As I had no intention of deserting my family or of causing them any humiliation our meetings were arranged so skillfully that I thought that there was no way of anyone finding out about them.

But recently when I reprimanded my 18-year-old son he flung this affair in my face, calmly telling me that he was through taking orders from a man of my type, and threatened to tell his mother of my unfaithlessness if I didn't let him live his own life. If this thing came to light, it would wreck my life. I live in constant fear of being exposed by my own son, and don't dare to correct him in any way. Can you offer any advice?—Remorseful Father.

Answer.—Be sure your sin will find you out. Then men and women who indulge in illicit affairs always think that they can get away with with it, but they befool themselves. No matter how skillfully they think they have covered up their tracks, someone always discovers them. And all their friends and acquaintances are gossiping about them behind their backs.

You certainly can't expect your son to have any respect for you, or listen to your lectures on the moralities, when you are carrying on an intrigue with a girl young enough to be your daughter. But I don't think, unless you push him to the wall, that the boy will tell his mother. He will have enough family loyalty, and especially sex loyalty, not to do that.

But my advice to you is to humble yourself before your son. Don't try to justify your conduct. Confess your weakness in having yielded to temptation. Tell him how little happiness your wrongdoing has brought you and how bitter is the punishment you are enduring in knowing that he has a contempt for you, and promise him to break off the affair with the girl and walk straight hereafter.

That will bring you together on a man-to-man basis, but you have lost your father-and-son relationship forever.

Good Manners Help You Win Friends

Avoid Errors in Public

"What can you expect of people who don't know that the girl should enter the row first," the Browns sigh as Bob and Jane charge into their seats at the theatre. And Bob and Jane would like to know the well-bred young Browns better.

Such points of etiquette are simple enough to learn. On a double date at the movies one man enters the row first, the two girls next, the other man last.

At dances — crude for a man to ask a girl, "Have you got this dance taken?" But smooth and correct is "Shall we dance this?" Nor does a well-bred girl make herself conspicuous by walking across the dance floor alone, but asks her escort to take her.

Very formal parties with a receiving line? No hesitations when you know it's proper for the girl to precede the man down the line, introduce herself and her escort to the person at the head.

Have better times, win new friends by knowing fine points of etiquette. Our 32-page booklet explains manners for movies, dancing, formal parties, other occasions. Gives pointers on introductions, correct dress, good form at games.

For your copy of "Etiquette for Young Moderns," send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

COMMON SENSE IS BEST

CONVENTIONS of play are very fine and very important things. But it is pretty hard to find anything which will beat good old-fashioned common sense, or what some people mistakenly call "card sense." In all of the countless thousands of hands which have been seen by the very best players, none of them ever has noted one case of any such thing, but an uncountable number of examples whereby "horse-sense" has decided the issue.

North: ♠ 2; ♥ 10 8 3; ♦ Q 10 8 4 2; ♣ K J 6 2

West: ♠ K J 9 8 3; ♥ 7 6 4 2; ♦ 7 3; ♣ 9 3

East: ♠ Q 10 7 6 4; ♥ A K Q J 9; ♦ None; ♣ Q 10 4

South: ♠ A 5; ♥ 5; ♦ A K J 9 6 5; ♣ A 8 7 5

(Dealer East. Both sides vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	Dbl	2 ♠	3 ♦
3 ♥	4 ♦	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	5 ♦	Pass	Pass
5 ♠	Dbl	Pass	6 ♦
Dbl

Bottom score was earned on this deal by East because he woodenly stuck to conventions instead of using his head. Against the 6-Diamond contract, he led the heart K and, upon seeing the singleton in dummy, watched his partner's play carefully to decide what his next lead should be.

When West played the heart 2, he decided that it was a request for him to switch to the lower-ranking of the two black suits, whereas a high heart would have asked for the higher ranking. As a consequence, he led the club 4 to the second trick, the J winning. The simplest examination of the hand will make it very clear that North had no trouble to take the rest of the tricks.

It may be that West could have made East's job easier by playing the heart 6 on that first trick, but West did not consider this necessary in view of the fact that he had made two bids of spades in support of East's original call. When the dummy showed up with the Spade A, it became a virtual certainty that West had the K, and that therefore a spade lead to the second trick could not hurt. Furthermore, East should have seen that his club holding was such that he was absolutely certain to take a trick in it, regardless of what North held, if he refrained from leading it. His club lead, in other words, was unpardonable.

Of course, with perfect play by everybody granted, North and South should get to only 5-Diamonds on this deal, and when their opponents bid 5-Spades, they should have been doubled.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ 8 7 5 4; ♥ J 5 4; ♦ K 8; ♣ K J 10 2

West: ♠ J 9 6; ♥ 10 7 6 3; ♦ A 7 5 4 2; ♣ 3

East: ♠ A 10 3; ♥ K 2; ♦ Q J 10 9; ♣ Q 9 5 4

South: ♠ K Q 2; ♥ A Q 9 8; ♦ 6 3; ♣ A 8 7 6

(Dealer East. Both sides vulnerable.)

What is the only defense by East and West on this deal which will defeat North's contract of 3-No Trumps?

Peterborough Man Gives Up Tool-Making Trade To Serve In Air Force

Aircraftman Emile Armstrong, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Armstrong, 214 Carlisle Avenue, looks a little bewildered as he scans a giant panel with its maze of switches and meters. All of the mysteries, however, unfold as the young airmen take the 6 months' course in the $14,000 demonstration Power Laboratory operated in conjunction with No. 1 Wireless School in Quebec. This boy who was a brilliant mathematician at the Collegiate, had started the trade of die-making, the finest trade in the industrial world today, and he left this behind to serve his country. He is the oldest boy in a large family.

Former U.S. Superintendent Of School Is Now Training In Canadian Air Force

GORE'S LANDING, May 7—(ENS)—Ferrying planes for the R.C.A.F. may appear to be a long way from county superintendent of public schools in Yavapai, Arizona, but Flying Officer Carl Hickerson, a recent visitor to this village, has taken both these jobs in his stride.

Fond of fishing and enjoying the restful beauty of Rice Lake, Mr. Hickerson spent the week-end at Willow Point, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Wallace. Last year, Mr. and Mrs. Hickerson and their 9-year-old son spent a happy vacation at Willow Point and Mr. Hickerson appreciated the excellent fishing to be had in Rice Lake.

In his work as superintendent of schools in Arizonaa, Mr. Hickerson said his position was similar to our Ontario school inspectors. He had 73 schools to supervise which included health service. In this department, 3 nurses were employed who worked with him. Arizona still has the three-trustee system for administering education. Their financial setup is different from that of Ontario in that the county treasurer is responsible for all money for educational requirements. The trustees draw on the treasurer for their budget to run the various school sections.

Flying Officer Hickerson has been flying since 1932. He has been in one crash since coming to Canada. About a year ago, while in a bombing plane with another flyer, they cracked up near Picton. As they were about to land the plane and were only 150 to 200 feet up, another plane ran into them from the rear. Mr. Hickerson was badly injured, one leg being broken in 8 places. He spent 6 months in hospital. At present, he is attached to the ferry squadron, Air Force headquarters at Rockcliffe.

Six Lakefield Girls Are Ready For Farmerettes' Fruit Brigade

LAKEFIELD, May 7 — (ENS).—Fourteen High School pupils have already left classes under the farm assistance move, Principal J. F. Harvey reported to the Board on Monday night.

Of these, ten boys are helping on their parents' farms, one has gone to a cheese factory and another to a butter plant. Two girls are assisting at home. Eight more boys are still at school but enrolled ready to go wherever called, and six girls are waiting the signal to join the farmerettes' fruit brigade.

The trustees granted J. W. Aymer, mathematics teacher, leave of absence for the duration. Mr. Aymer is now completing his Officers' Training Course preparatory to an active service assignment.

The eternal salary issue flared forth when Mr. Harvey broached the subject of a $200 raise for D. L. Minshall, science and agriculture teacher now receiving $1,500. It was intimated Mr. Minshall intended to leave unless the raise was forthcoming.

F. L. Erskine was of the opinion if one got a boost the rest would want it, and Chairman J. W. Ridpath agreed that that was only right, but was dubious if the move was wise in times when it was necessary to keep taxexs as low as possible.

Mr. Harvey made a plea that the Board keep the staff together in the interests of the school, stating the organization was operating smoothly and the standing very satisfactary.

It was at this point that F. L. Erskine fired a shot into the school staff in general charging few pupils came out fitted to take part in the business world. Principal Harvey replied stating the whole school system must not be condemned because Mr. Erskine had had the misfortune to employ some boys that had not worked out satisfactorily in the hardware trade.

He suggested things like that could be avoided if employers seeking boys would consult the principal first as to what lines they were showing ability for. He proposed the Board consider the advantages of a commercial department— something that would meet Mr. Erskine's complaint—giving the pupils some idea of what the world of business was all about.

B. Q. Dench, getting back to the salary issue, favored raising all if one was raised—and B. F. Blake asked if replacements on the staff were available which Mr. Harvey answered by pointing out the number of young men answering the call to the colors and the ones in draft age, all of which was making heavy inroads on the teaching list.

Mr. Dench claimed the school in the past years had had only two loyal teachers, Mr. Harvey and Miss Dunn, now Mrs. Stabler, claiming the others had stayed only for the experience then moved on, and when asked by the chairman as to his opinion on a raise for Mr. Minshall, stated speaking as the county representative he knew the county would be against it. He claimed the farmers were making no excessive war profits, and immediately drew a good-natured barrage from the village members, who claimed the farmers were doing all right—and the offer of a swap—a hardware business for his farm, which he ignored.

Chairman Ridpath was against making a kindergarten or training ground of the school in the matter of teachers for other schools, for the sake of a few dollars and Mr. Harvey, in a final plea, emphasized that pupils' careers are often made or broken by their teachers, and lauded Mr. Minshall's work.

Decision will be made at the June session, with Mr. Harvey in the meantime to contact the College of Education regarding replacement for Mr. Aymer.

Accounts passed were: T. W. Chaplin, postage and cards, $5.00; Lakefield News, printing, $1.50; Canadian Poultry Review, $1.00; total, $7.50.

Trustees present included: B. F. Blake B. Q. Dench, F. L. Erskine, and Chairman J. W. Ridpath.

Getting Their Coal.

Public School trustees decided to order their year's coal and wood early in the former case complying with the Government's request to save transportation this fall. The order will cover some forty tons of coal and 16 cords of body maple.

Principal E. Sloan proposed the school bicycle rack be painted and on the inspector's suggestion the fence whitewashed, stating the pupils would do the work. The Board sanctioned the purchase of paint to match the school trim.

Mr. Sloan reported attendance up 2 per cent to 02.54, and outlined Arbor Day activities during which some 50 wheelbarrow loads of leaves etc., were taken off the grounds. Over 2,500 trees were distributed among the pupils for planting, representing a considerable increase over the number last year. Between $5.00 and $6.00 in flowers have been ordered for the school beds.

On the motion of Trustees Mel Kingdon and Roy Bullock an order was passed that all new pupils be examined by the Medical Officer of Health before being permitted to attend the school.

A discussion was held on new methods of teaching, during which Mr. Sloan outlined considerable of the details and problems that arise for the Board.

Accounts passed were: T. W. Chaplin, postage, post cards, $5.00; Bell Telephone, $2.60; Fred Norish, labor, $5.25; Clarke Irwin Co. books, $3.93; John C. Winston Co., 95c; Copp Clark Co., $1.61; Ryerson Press $1.50; MacMillan Co., $1.41; Richardson, Bond & Wright, 60c; all books Lakefield News, printing cards, $1.50; Green Lantern Magazine, $30c; total, $24.65.

Chairman F. L. Erskine presided, with Trustees Roy Bullock, Mel Kingdon, and Ed. Millage present.

Salvage Setup Working.

The village Salvage Committee under the supervision of the Rev. S. A. R. Wood, are rounding things nicely into shape for a real drive in the near future. Mr. Wood stated the building offered by E. W. Bailey for storage has been taken over and arrangements made for collection of some heavier articles such as stoves that the school boys were unable to handle in their last roundup.

Next week cards will be distributed to all the householders detailing the various materials that are urgently needed in this Red Cross call. Another drive will be made by the pupils before the village organization takes over.

1,000 Nipponese Slain In Crushing Defeat 25 Mi. Inside Border

CHUNGKING, May 8 — (AP).— Claiming a smashing defeat over two Japanese columns driving into China along the Burma Road, the Chinese High Command declared to-night that one force of 1,000 Japanese was "wiped out" and that half of another unit 1,000 strong was killed and the rest trapped.

The scene of the fierce counter-blow was given as the sector near Chegan, 25 miles inside the Yunnan Frontier from Burma.

(The communique might indicate the destruction and pocketing of the invasion spearheads which the Japanese claimed had penetrated past Chefang to Lungling, 25 miles deeper into China.)

The High Command said the battle occurred yesterday afternoon when the Japanese, moving up the Burma Road from the border town of Wanting with truckloads of reinforcements split into two units

Moore Stricken At Labor Rally

MONTREAL, May 8 — (CP). — Doctors today reported a "slight improvement" in the condition of Tom Moore, President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, who was taken to St. Luke's Hospital here last night after suffering a paralytic stroke of the left side. However, his condition "remains serious," they said.

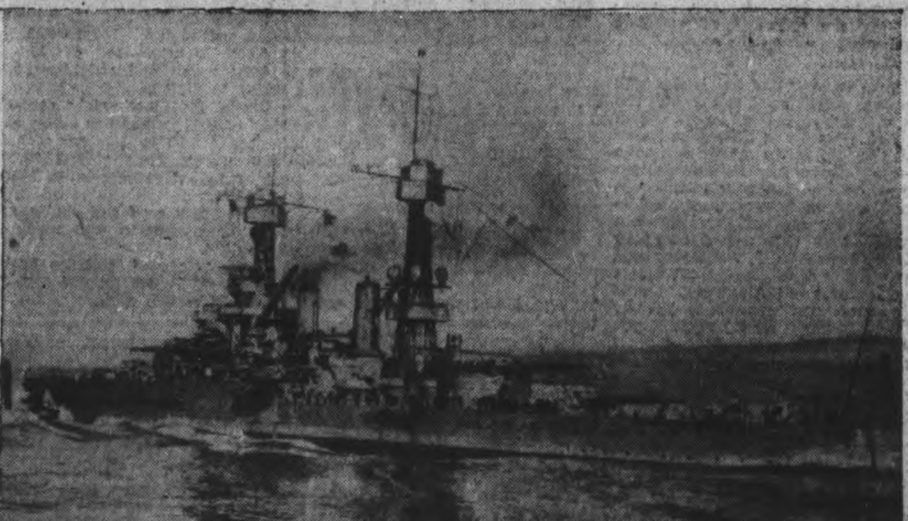
The 64-year-old Ottawa Labor chieftain was stricken while addressing a rally in L'Assistance Publique Hall, called by the newly-formed Quebec War Labor Organizing Committee.

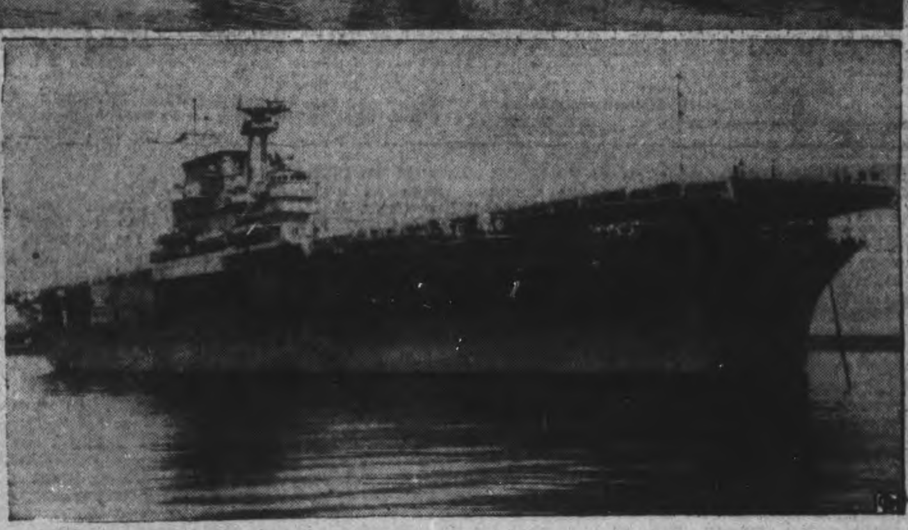
Hospital attendants said Mr. Moore was "sleeping a little more quietly" at dawn after regaining consciousness for short periods during the night. They said he was in no immediate danger.

Scheduled as chief speaker at the rally, designed to stimulate the efforts of organized labor for greater war production in Quebec province, had had barely completed his introductory remarks when it was noticed that he was not in good health. He was persuaded to sit down, and continued his address under steadily increasing strain. When his left side apparently was affected by the encroaching paralysis he was urged to take a rest, but insisted on continuing his speech.

Finally he agreed to discontinue his address, and Arthur D'Aoust, vice-president of the Congress, rose to explain that the Labor leader probably was suffering from overstrain. Before Mr. D'Aoust finished speaking Mr. Moore collapsed in his seat and was carried out by other Labor leaders on the platform.

Japanese Claim Sinking Of U.S. Battleship And Two Carriers





Against a claim of sinking of ten Japanese battleships and crippling of six others by the American Fleet in the south Pacific, Japan claims sinking five U.S. ships, one of which is a battleship of the California class and two others are aircraft carriers. U.S.S. California, shown at TOP, and the Tennessee are the only two ships of that class. Both were built in 1919 and have a displacement of 32,600 tons. The aircraft carrier Yorkton (LOWER), built in 1936, and of 19,900 tons, with space for 100 aircraft, is one of the two carriers claimed by the Japs.

Huns Retreat Over Border Badly Mauled

3 Battalions Crippled, Russ Force Nazis To Move Air Bases

By HENRY CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer.

MOSCOW, May 8 — (AP). — A German spring offensive intended to smash across the Soviet Karelian frontier from Finland at three points has been repulsed, battlefront dispatches reported to-day.

A dispatch to Pravda "from the state border" said the Germans withdrew from Russian territory with heavy losses.

This was the second enemy attempt to drive into this sector of Karelia. In the first, near the outbreak of the war, a Finnish battalion of 1,200 men supported by two German companies crossed the frontier in the same general region, but were driven back to Finland by a Russian counter attack.

Pravda said the sector remained relatively quiet throughout the winter. The new thrust, Pravda apparently was left entirely to the German troops.

The Communist Party paper said the Nazis sprung their new assault last month.

The specific location of the battle on the long Karelian border was not disclosed. The terrain was described, however, as covered with swamps, lakes and hills, apparently in the far northern tundra.

Three German battalions reported to have penetrated across the frontier were hurled back on to Finnish soil within a short time after they entered Russian territory, the dispatch to Pravda said.

"Thus, ingloriously, ended this spring visit in which they placed great hopes," Pravda's correspondent wrote.

The Army newspaper Red Star reported that generally along the Karelian front Russian troops were moving forward steadily.

Germany is pressing a futile aerial offensive against Russia's far northern rail and water communications in an effort to isolate the Soviet Union from the outside world, Red Star also said. A communique declared 500 German soldiers had been killed in the north-west.

For six weeks, the newspaper said, the reinforced German northern squadrons had executed repeated

Not Fooling

LONDON, May 8 — (CP). —The Daily Mail published today a dispatch from Madrid which said that "according to reports from Vichy," the source of which was undisclosed, United States and South African troops "are pouring into Diego Suarez," the Madagascar base just taken over by a British force.

Several hours after this report was published there was no confirmation from any source.

Sea Scrap Start Of Battle For Australia

LONDON, May 8 (CP)—Naval and military experts agreed tonight that the great sea battle raging off the Solomon Islands is the beginning of the battle for Australia and that the result would have a tremendous bearing on the whole course of the war.

The immediate objective of the Japanese warships appeared to be to sever the Commonwealth's lifeline to the United States.

The naval battle was one of the few great sea clashes in which Great Britain did not a leading role. The Admiralty's denial that the Warspite or any other British battleship had been sunk or damaged appeared to bear out what already was assumed in London—that few if any major British fleet units were operating in that area with the United States forces.

The engagement, naval observers declared, apparently resulted from interception of a Japanese invasion convoy bound from Rabaul or the Solomon Islands south to the New Hebrides or New Caledonia.

One source expressed belief that the present battle represented a final judgment and much deliberation on both sides.

The Allies Knew It

"The Japanese recently have been building up naval strength at Rabaul," he said. "There is no doubt that the Allied command, with daily reconnaissance reports at hand, anticipated the Japanese strength and move.

"It can be assumed that, demonstrating a first-class offensive spirit, the Americans have tried to intercept and destroy a Japanese invasion convoy.

"The Japanese intention appears to be to invest the New Hebrides or

Australia's Fate In Balance; 2 Jap Carriers, 2 Cruisers Already Gone In 5-Day Scrap

Six Other Nippon Warships Lost, 6 Damaged As Invasion Fleet Is Surprised; Tokyo Claims Allied Battleship, 2 Carriers

By The Canadian Press

United Nations and Japanese warships fought to the death today in a mammoth five-day-old battle in the Coral Sea, northeast of Australia, in which American, British and Australian gunners have already sunk or crippled at least 16 enemy warships.

Allied headquarters announced that already 10 Japanese ships had been sunk and six badly damaged, as follows:

Sunk: An aircraft carrier, a heavy cruiser, a light cruiser, two destroyers, four gunboats and a supply vessel;

Damaged and believed a total loss: Another aircraft carrier;

Heavily damaged: A heavy cruiser, a light cruiser, a 9,000-ton seaplane tender, a transport and a cargo vessel.

The fateful struggle, still raging, appeared by all accounts to be the greatest naval battle of the war.

It was the biggest engagement in all American naval history and perhaps rivaled in magnitude the historic Battle of Jutland, on May 31, 1916, between the British and German grand fleets.

(The Japanese located the battle in the Coral Sea s uthwest of New Guinea, saying it began Wednesday, when a powerful "Anglo-American combined fleet" was "discovered and caught.")

Some Tokyo Claims

The Tokyo imperial headquarters claimed today that Japanese naval units had sunk a United States Navy battleship and two U.S. aircraft carriers, heavily damaged a British battleship and crippled a British (Australian) heavy cruiser in a continuing battle over the Coral Sea.

(These claims lack confirmation from Allied sources.)

The cruiser—identified as of the 10,000-ton Canberra type—was said to have been "seriously crippled."

The American craft reported sunk were identified as:—

"A United States battleship of the California type.

"A United States aircraft carrier of the Saratoga type and another of the Yorktown type."

The British battleship, of the 30,600-ton Warspite type (the first Great War Queen Elizabeth class), was heavily damaged, the communique claimed.

London Denies It

In London the Admiralty denied today that the Warspite or any other British battleship had been sunk or damaged in the Coral Sea, as claimed by the Japanese.

A communique said:—

"The Admiralty announced there is no truth whatever in the Japanese suggestion that H.M.S. Warspite or any other British battleship had been sunk or damaged in action which now is reported to be proceeding in the Coral Sea."

Part of Main U. S. Fleet in Action

On the basis of the Japanese claim which completely lacked confirmation from an Allied source—it appeared that at least a section of Admiral Chester W. Mimitz's main Pacific fleet, stationed at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, was engaged in the battle.

If so, this was the first news that the United States' Pacific squadron had set out to challenge the Japanese fleet.

The running battle apparently

No Conscription Split Due Yet In Cabinet

OTTAWA, May 8 — (CP). — The recent announcement by Prime Minister Mackenzie King that he would make a statement of policy soon on what action his Government proposes as a result of the affirmative majority in the manpower plebiscite has set Parliament Hill speculaitng over the situation.

One Cabinet source told The Canadian Press that immediaate conscription has not become an issue in the Cabinet so far, presumably meaning not an issue to the extent that withdrawals from the ministry had been threatened.

A source close to a French-speaking minister said to-day that this minister had said the situation was rather tense, but that rumors of resignations were unfounded.

These rumors include a report that the Cabinet is split, with some in favor of bringing in conscription immediately and some opposed to such a course. Defence Minister Ralston and Navy Minister Macdonald are frequently named as pressing for immediate conscription. Some reports go so far as to say these ministers are threatening to resign if the Government does not embark on a conscription policy.

Martinique Gold To Be Rehidden

LONDON, May 8 (CP)—The Daily Sketch said Thursday the Vichy government is preparing to move "nearly $1,000,000,000" in French gold reserves to Venezuela from Martinique.

The Sketch reported in its "inside information" column that two French submarines are en route to pick up the treasure and that they would relay it to four neutral cargo boats chartered to take it on to Venezuela.

It has been reported from time to time that millions of dollars in French gold—but less than $500,000,000—have been cached at Martinique since the fall of France, having arrived there by way of Canada and probably the United States while the third republic was collapsing.

The latest report from Vichy sources was that Admiral Georges Robert, commander at Martinique, had orders to "blow up the gold" rather than surrender it to any other country.

Libya Safe Till Fall—Madagascar, Malta Stymie Axis

By DREW MIDDLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 8.—(AP). — The British position in Libya is secured for the summer by the occupation of Madagascar's Diego Suarez naval base and Malta's successful defence against Axis air attacks which evidently were intended to open the way for invasion, a well-informed military observer said to-day.

Capitulation of French forces in the Diego Suarez Bay area reduced the Japanese threat to Indian ocean supply lines. Dwindling of German-Italian mass air raids within the last two weeks has left the rock-based naval and air forces of Malta still preying upon Axis convoys in the Mediterranean.

Gen. Sir William Geeorge Sheddon Dobbie, 62-year-old First Great War veteran who has weathered more than 2,000 air attacks upon Malta, has been succeeded as Governor and Commander-in-Chief by Viscount Gort, 55 year old former Chief of the Imperial staff, it was announced last night.

Lord Gort is known to the British as "Tiger Gort." He led the British expeditionary force in France at the beginning of the war. Since April, 1941, he had been in command at Gibraltar.

Sir William is expected to return to England to rest.

Succeeding Lord Gort as Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Gibraltar, British base at the western entrance of the Mediterranean, is Maj.-Gen. Sir Colin Jardine.

The military observer said that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis forces are not strong enough to open large-scale operations against the British armies in North Africa

Coral Sea Battle May Hold Pacific Rule

Japs Out To Cut Australia Off — Naval Victory To See Major Invasion

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The great naval battle being fought between United Nations and Japanese fleets across the Coral Sea east of Australia is still too young for us to judge of it possible effects, but we can see the fundamental Japanese strategy which precipitated it—that is to nullify the effectiveness of Australia as an allied base and thereby protect Nippon's conquests in Indonesia.

At this writing the American, British and Australian units are reported to have sunk or damaged 13 Jap warships and three other Jap ships in this five-day-old conflict. As against this, Tokyo claims the sinking of five United Nations vessels, including a United States battleship and two aircraft carriers, the Saratoga and the Yorktown.

Prime Minister Curtin of Australia declared that this engagement is of crucial importance to the whole conduct of the war in the southwest Pacific. That seems like a fair statement of the position, for while we do not know the size of the fleets involved, it may be that they are large enough so that domination of the Pacific may be bound up in the issue. That is to say, should either side suffer a disastrous defeat, it might mean the seizure of naval control by the other.

It seems doubtful that the Japanese were bent on wholesale invasion of Australia. The probabilities are that they have been aiming (1) at the cutting of American communications with Australia so as to prevent delivery of supplies and troops, and (2) at the possible occupation of some strategic points on the north coast of Australia, or at least rendering the positions impotent. These operations would tend to nullify Australia's striking power against the Japanese left flank in the southwest Pacific and permit the Nipponese to consolidate their widespread conquests.

Of course a Japanese victory in the sea-battle now waging might bring about a complete change in Japanese tactics. They might be encouraged to undertake operations which up to this juncture haven't been feasible, including a major invasion of Australia.

However, pror to tre opening of this battle of the Coral Sea the indications were that the Japanese were pursuing the logical course of trying to consolidate the vast new empire which they had stolen. The Jap is wily, and is quite aware of the danger of letting greed persuade him to keep on reaching out for new territories until he has over-extended himself.

Japan's greatest worry has been the rapid growth of American power in the Australian base, for this has created a direct threat to all the Nipponese conquests. Not only will this base in time become strong enough to foster an all-out, major offensive against the Japanese, but it already has established a menace to Japanese sea communications between the mother country and the occupied territories.

U.S. Victory Relief Corps

Prepare Aid, Food To Rebuild Shattered Lands

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)— The United States is planning a relief corps to send into territories the United Nations reconquer. The corps will carry food, medical aid and other supplies for rebuilding the Axis-shattered world.

Authorities at the Board of Economic warfare said today that in conjunction with the army and other officials they are considering organization of the civilian professional and technical personnel for economic rehabilitation of re-occupied lands. The army would restore essential public services.

Whatever plans are agreed on may be dovetailed later with thoes of other United Nations. Thus, for example, while the United States has "reoccupation" system worked out for the day the Philippines are restored to American control, this country might also help Britain in jointly restoring order in one of their possessions.

The scheme may possibly evolve later into methods of fitting reconquered lands into the new post-war world economy.

Less Than 3 Gallons A Week

Non-essential Cars In Eastern U.S. To Be Hard Hit

WASHINGTON, May 8 —(AP)— Price Administrator Leon Henderson said today that motorists on the United States eastern seaboard, using their cars for non-essential driving, could expect no more than three gallons of gasoline a week under a government rationing system.

"I am going to say two, with no prospects of getting it above three," Henderson told newsmen just before going before the House of Representatives interstate commerce committee to testify on the gasoline and tire situation.

He said that this would apply to approximately one-third of the cars —"the cars not used for work purposes."

He said that he had been over the situation earlier this morning with the petroleum co-ordinator's office and added: "I don't see how I can avoid giving the basic rationing per unit today."

"With a 50 per cent cut (in the supply of gasoline) it is going to fall between two and three gallons a week, probably nearer two."

Canadian Navy Taking Equal Convoy Share

By FRANK FLAHERTY.
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, May 8 — (CP). — Members of the House of Commons heard last night from Navy Minister Macdonald that Canada's Royal Canadian Navy shares the duty of Atlantic convoys almost equally with the Navies of the United Kingdom and the United States.

Mr. Macdonald's revelation of the Dominion's share in the vital convoy escort work came as the House was considering naval matters in connection with the War Appropriation Bill. It was the first intimation of the extent to which Canadian ships and seamen are helping to keep the Atlantic ship lanes open.

Navy affairs remain under scrutiny of members to-day and the House awaited a statement from the minister on ship losses and the status of the Battle of the Atlantic.

In his outline yesterday of the work of his Department, Mr. Macdonald told the House that the na-

Increase Shown In Broilers

TORONTO, May 8 — (CP). — The dressed poultry market is practically unchanged, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reports, in comparison with last week.

Receipts of chicken are nil, but a few more fowl are arriving but not sufficient to meet requirements. There is also an increase in supplies of broilers.

Demand generally is being supplied from storage stock with fowl on the short side and chicken moving fairly well. Movement of turkeys is slow.

Local and out-of-town requirements have been normal.

One car of chicken was offered from the Western provinces at 29½c per lb. for Grade A milk-fed. But the idea of dealers here was ½c less, so that up to late Thursday no sales had been made.

Quotations to producers and country shippers are purely nominal at:

Broilers.—Grade A milk-fed, 29c lb; Grade B milk-fed, 28c lb.

Fowl.—Grade A, over 5 lbs. 24c lb.; 4½ to 5 lbs. 23c lb.; 4 to 4½ lbs. 22c lb; Grade B, over 5 lbs. 22c; 4½ to 5 lbs. 21c; 4 to 4½ lbs. 20c.

The theme of the worship service was "The Church the Household of Faith." Appropriate hymns were sung during the service and Mrs. Rea closed this part of the program with prayer. Mrs. Connell had charge of the business period. Secretary read letters of appreciation from Miss Lillie Brandon and Mrs. Harold Mitchell. Following the business Mrs. Rea read the Scripture lesson. The program was given in the form of a travelogue, the ladies taking part representing returned missionaries from China. Mrs. Williamson represented a business woman in China, Mrs. Lang a missionary interested in the rural life of the people of West China, Mrs. Everson representing an educationalist from China, and Mrs. Earle representing the work as an evangelist in the rural communities of China. The meeting was brought to a close by singing a hymn and repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison, after which lunch was served.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly refund your money —adv.

Lakefield WMS Sends $100 To Presbytery

LAKEFIELD May 8 — (ENS). — Mrs. J. A. Porter and Mrs. E. Smith were in charge of the W.M.S. May session at the home of Mrs. Porter on Tuesday afternoon, when it was announced that the society had sent $100 of its funds to the Presbyterail treasurer.

Theme of the devotional perioa was "The Church, the Household of Faith." Mrs. E. Millage read the Scripture lesson, and prayer was offered by Mrs. Porter. Mrs. M. Jory presided for the business period. A letter from Mrs. C. S. Tanner expressing thanks for card sent to her was read. It was decided to hold a special meeting on June 10, when Mrs. D. B. Avison of Peterborough, returned missionary from Korea, will speak on Korea, and to which the members of the sister societies of the churches are to be invited.

It was unanimously decided to cater for the supper for the Sunday School convention, and Mrs. J. McKerchar, Mrs. H. Sherin, Mrs. E. J. Millage Mrs. W. W. Yale, and Mrs. M. Jory were appointed a committee to make plans for the supper.

Mrs. McKerchar read a statement on financial aid to missionaries in enemy lands Mrs. Jory announced that the Dominion Board meets in Toronto in May and asked the members to pray for the success of this meeting. The treasurer reported a bank balance of $31.38 on hand.

Mrs. Porter and Mrs. McKerchar reviewed the final chapter in "Serving with the Sons of Shuh," which told of the political, educational, industrial, social and religious adjustments in the lives of the Chinese and the effects of the Japanese invasion of China.

On behalf of the society, Mrs. J. Reid thanked Mrs. Porter for her hospitality.

Huns Move Northern Bases.

The Russian air force is striking back heavily and has forced the Germans to shift their northern air bases to more remote regions in Norway and Finland, Red Star said.

Failure of the German offensive was evidenced by the arrival this week in Moscow of several passengers from the ice-free Arctic port of Murmansk.

Red Star said that 14 raids were carried out against five German airports in the north last month and that bombings were continuing. In the last two days, 43 German planes were estimated as destroyed in the northern fighting alone.

British and United States supplies have been flowing in increasing quantity into Murmansk in recent weeks.

German air squadrons are commanded by Col.-Gen. Hans Juergen Stumpff, who most recently was reported in charge of air fleet No. 5 stationed in Norway, the Netherlands and Denmark.

The Nazi fliers were reported concentrating on railway lines, bridges, stations and trains. They usually fly in groups of 20 bombers protected by low-flying fighters operating at between 600 and 1,200 feet. The bombers fly at between 3,000 and 9,000 feet, dropping 1,000 pound bombs, many of them delayed action types.

The bulletin declared the raid was carried out in adverse weather conditions marked by thunder storms and was a great success despite opposition by Japanese fighters.

All the United States aircraft returned safely to their bases, the communique added.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 8. — (ENS). — Three months after they held their first meeting last February the 10th Line Victory Club came to the conclusion they should have a president and secretary and to fill these two offices named Mrs. Joseph Quinn and Mrs. Nellie Green when they got together at Mrs. E. Outwater's on Wednesday of this week. Eight of the ten ladies, whose purpose is primarily to do war work, were present at the meeting, and during the afternoon they completed a quilt which will be donated to the I.O.D.E. Arrangements for a box social on May 22 were made by members of Zion Y.P.U. when they met for their regular meeting on Wednesday. This was announced during the business period of the evening and members decided that instead of auctioning boxes they would charge a flat 25 cents admission and provide as well a miscellaneous program.

Mrs. J. R. Bick, Mrs. Albert Petherick, Mrs. Thomas Fry, Mrs. M. Brunton and Miss Isobell Irwin were appointed program conveners, and at least part of the funds will be used to purchase new hymnaries for the church. The vice-president, Miss Norma Argles, presided at the opening of the meeting, and conducted a song service, with Mrs. M. Brunton at the piano. Mrs. Albert Petherick conducted the devotional period and was assisted by Gerald Barnum, who gave the Scripture reading and Miss Ferne Tinney, who contributed a piano solo. Other items on the program included a reading by Peter Hennessey, a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnum, with Mrs. A. Petherick their accompanist, a piano solo by Mrs. J. R. He said heavy air attacks against Malta had slackened since April 25 and added:

"There is no doubt in my mind that these were intended as a preliminary to a sea-borne invasion of Malta. The Royal Air Force and anti-aircraft batteries defeated the Luftwaffe just as they did in the summer of 1940 over Britain. The invasion plans were upset. Malta is still operating and Axis supplies are still begin sunk."

With a steady flow of supplies, the observer said, the forces of Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, Middle East commander, "are strong enough on the ground and in the air to halt anything Rommel can throw at them."

Confronted by British strength in excess of their expectations, the Germans may try to push through Turkey toward the oil of Iraq and Iran and a juncture with the Japanese "somewhere out there," the observer commented.

He said a "slightly-unbalanced picture of Rommel's ability is current in Britain."

"Rommel is a hard-working soldier with lots of common sense and determination," he said. "But the British licked him last Winter and would have done even more had their supply system been able to maintain more troops at the front...."

He expressed belief, "It's about the time someone tells the world the Germans pull their pants on one leg at a time like everyone else and the Italians aren't funny-page soldiers." He said:—

"The Germans I saw are no better than the British in equipment or training. By all accounts they didn't fight as intelligently. Their officers below the rank of major are much less experienced than those of the British.

"The Italians fought well last Winter. Their artillery was very good despite the age of some of their guns. They stuck it out as long as the Germans and they fought hard all the way.

"How do the Germans and Italians get on? Like the Giants and the Dodgers."

Cheesemakers Oppose Doing Testing

CAMPBELLFORD, May 8 (ENS). —(ENS).—That producers were "not too badly disappointed" with the newly set cheese price was the information gleaned by President Hector Arnold who was one of the delegates at the quarterly directors' meeting of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association held in Ottawa this week. He told this to members of the Campbellford Cheese Board at their meeting here Thursday night when he reviewed some of the highlights of the Ottawa meeting. One of the problems that was dealt with by the directors was the uniformity in the size of cheese boxes. Some are being sent out that will not hold a ninety-pound cheese and the reason for this is that makers are shading the size from 13½ to 12½ inches. (Both Crow Bay and Rylstone factories reported a few under-sizes in their late fall shipments). In discussing this matter in Ottawa, President Arnold revealed directors had been assured that action would be taken against any maker who sent out undersized boxes and any factory which got full-sized boxes last year was perfectly justified in demanding them again at the 35-cent price. Another thing that factory presidents were glad to hear was that they were exempt from paying unemployment insurance; however, the cheesemaker must contribute for any help he engages during the season.

Milk Testing.

Still to be ironed out is the milk testing question and of this the president declared there were both those opposed and those who favored the idea of the maker doing the testing next year. He said he had reported that producers in this section were, in the main, opposed to having the cheesemaker do this work. This view was affirmed by Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray and a majority of the factory presidents and makers at the meeting. Grant Anderson of Trent Valley Factory said, "It might be all right if you have lots of help, but I don't know where you will get it this year."

Sam Hobbs, owner-maker of Cedar Creek Factory, "I'm absolutely against it."

Earl McAdam, Hoards: "None of the cheesemakers want to do it. If the test is poor the producers will probably take it out on the maker."

Percy Oddie, Avonbank: "If it's a war measure we will have to put up with it."

One more thing which Mr. Arnold felt worth reporting was the attendance of Agriculture Minister J. L. Gardner to address the directors at their banquet. Reflecting among other things the increased importance with which the cheese industry is regarded, the president recalled that a few years ago when a delegation went to Ottawa "it was lucky to get a hearing with one of the deputy ministers." However, as evidence that producers are still not working entirely together, he said that while he was in Ottawa conceding satisfaction with the new cheese price, a delegation of about 100 delegates representing County Council agriculture committees was there asking among other things for thirty-cent cheese.

700 Boxes Graded.

Seven hundred boxes of cheese were graded at the local warehouse on Thursday according to District Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray, who recalled that it was mid-May before a single box had passed the grader's scrutiny here a year ago. Evidence of the quality in this early cheese is seen in the fact that 10 lots tallied 93 and 4 were in 92 class. There were some undergrades but this was largely due to flavor according to Mr. Murray. Chief Dairy Instructor for Western and Central Ontario J. M. Bain was a visitor at the grading station, while Federal Cheese Grader James L. Irwin scrutinized the cheese. Next week T. J. Hicks, chief grader of dairy products, Montreal, will assist Mr. Irwin in grading here. Mr. Bain is slated to accompany J. A. Murray on a tour of factories of the Campbellford district this Saturday.

Flying Plumber Real Scrapper

By LOUIS HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE R.C.A.F. Somewhere in Scotland, May 8—(CP).—Phil Foster, the "Flying Plumber" of Flin Flon, Man., isn't a man to let obstacles stand in his way.

Rejected as a pilot by the R.C.A.F. because of his age, the 30-year-old airman paid his own passage to Britain two years ago and "fought" his way into the R.A.F. Today, he is a Squadron Leader and a Flight Commander in the Canadian Blenheim Squadron commanded by Wing Cmdr. P. H. Woodruff of Edmonton. He has shot down one enemy aircraft.

Since he has been with this Coast Command Squadron, he has made many reconnaissance flights over Norway with Pilot Officer A. N. Briggs, 26-year-old Winnipegger, his observer; and Flgt. Sgt. J. W. James, 27, of London, Ont., gunner.

They were with him when the guns of his "Flin Flon Floozie 3rd" shot down a Junkers 88 during a reconnaissance flight in February.

They met the Junkers bombers off the Norwegian coast on their way home from Trondheim and the Nazi sent six machine-gun bullets crashing into the Canadian machine. Three of the bullets went through the nose of the observer's compartment and would have killed Briggs who fortunately had left his navigators' table and moved up beside Foster in the pilot's set.

"We scored many hits on the Nazi and he was last seen flying at sea-level," Foster said. "He dropped his bombs into the sea."

MORE ABOUT—
Australia's Fate

started Monday off the Solomon Islands and swept westward to the Coral Sea, flaming across hundreds of miles of the south Pacific.

All Australia waited tensely for news to be flashed on the outcome, realizing that the fate of the commonwealth may hinge on Allied victory or defeat.

Two United States battleships, the California and the Tennessee, make up the California class. Both were built in 1919 and have a displacement of 32,600 and 32,300 tons, respectively. The normal complement of each is 1,480 men.

The aircraft carrier Saratoga, which displaces 33,000 tons, was built in 1925. Her complement, including flying personnel, is 2,122.

The aircraft carrier Yorktown, built in 1936, is a vessel of 19,900 tons. Her normal complement, including fliers is 2,072. She has space for more than 100 aircraft; the Saratoga's normal aircraft load is 81 planes; her maximum is 90 planes.

One Long Battle

The United Nations spokesman indicated the battle is a continuation of the action announced yesterday in a Washington communique, which reported that heavy damage had been inflicted on Japanese naval units off the Solomon Islands Monday.

His statement followed swiftly the disclosure that Allied bombers yesterday had attacked Japanese shipping in the Louisiade Islands, off the southeastern tip of New Guinea, sinking one transport.

The spokesman did not give any additional information on this action or the naval battle he said is still underway, and did not indicate whether they are directly linked.

(The presence of Japanese transports, however, in the Louisiade's might mean the beginning of the long-expected assault upon Port Moresby, vital Allied outpost some 300 miles to the west on the southern shore of New Guinea. It might even mean a thrust directly at the eastern coast of Australia itself.)

The spokesman's announcement with reference to the naval battle said:—

"A great naval and air action now is taking place in the southwest Pacific area. In the initial phases our forces have inflicted heavy damage on the enemy.

"His losses consisted of: Sunk—one light cruiser, two destroyers, four gunboats and one supply vessel. Badly damaged—one 9,000-ton seaplane tender, one light cruiser, one cargo vessel.

"Our losses are slight."

Only 3 Allied Planes Down

(This announcement of the losses inflicted upon the Japanese duplicated the communique on the battle off the Solomon Islands issued yesterday in Washington, except that the latter included a transport among the vessels damaged. The action cost the United States forces "the loss of but three planes," the navy department statement said.)

The regular communique from MacArthur's headquarters also reported that eight Japanese zero fighter planes had attacked Port Moresby and that one had been shot down.

Allied reconnaissance planes flying over Lae on New Guinea Island shot down another Japanese plane trying to intercept them.

South of Solomon Isles.

It was the first test of strength between the Allied and Japanese fleets since the battle of Java last March, and first reports indicated it would far exceed that bloody struggle both in scope and aftermath.

All Australia waited eagerly for news to be flashed on the outcome of the engagement upon which it is generally believed her fate may depend.

While the exact locale of the battle was not specified in official announcements, succeeding communiques indicated it was developing into a running fight south of the Solomon Islands and extending into the Coral sea washing the shores of northeastern Australia.

The first official intimation that the Japanese were on the move along the sea approaches to Australia was given in a communique yesterday which reported that Allied bombers had sunk a Japanese transport in the Louisiade archipelago.

The Louisiade Islands are on the route which the Japanese would have to follow in launching a seaborne assault on either Port Moresby or Australia from their bases in northeastern New Guinea and New Britain — less than a day's journey to the north by ship.

A convoy could steam from the Louisiades to Port Moresby in another day or less.

Australian leaders repeatedly warned of the imminent danger of invasion, despite growing Allied air strength and continued bombing attacks on Japanese bases.

198 Jap Ships Lost To Date

Aside from the immediate outcome of south-western Pacific battle, Monday's victory in the Solomon area again pointed the course of eventual Allied superiority in naval warfare of attrition. Counting sinkings Monday and today, the Japanese now have lost 198 warships sunk to 35 lost by the United States since Dec. 7, 1941.

Big Air Base Remains To Be Taken

Half Vichy Forces At Captured Port, No General Surrender

LONDON, May 8—(CP)—Britain offered to repatriate any Frenchmen on Madagascar who "did not wish to co-operate with the United Nations" and pledged restoration of the island to France simultaneously with the first landing on Madagascar Tuesday, a foreign office commentator announced today.

The first British landing resulted in capture of the strategic Diego Suarez naval base Thursday morninf, but a military commentator said further landings would be necessary to obtain such vital strategic points as the Tulear air base if resistance continued.

The commentator said the offer was made to "avoid bloodshed" and was contingent on French co-operation with the British occupation forces.

He said, however, there was no confirmation of reports that the surrender terms at Diego Suarez included a "cease fire' order for all French forces on the island, 28,500 square miles in area.

Main Forces There

It was reported that more than one-half of Vichy's colonial troops and seamen on the island were involved in the defence of the Diego Suarez naval base, which would mean that the surrender there minimized the chances of real resistance elsewhere.

Prior to the British attack, the French declared they were able to mobilize 15,000 soldiers on the island.

British casualties in the conquest of the Diego Suarez bay area may be considerably less than 1,000, it was stated authoritatively.

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons yesterday the casualties may exceed the 1,000-figure.

A military commentator said infantry which advanced in the first attack on Antsirana and had been reported missing now are known to have established themselves in independent positions near the town.

They held on under attack until the British assault captured the town and rescued them from encirclement.

These forces took a number of prisoners in the first landing at Courrier Bay, followed by a headlong assault on coastal batteries

Dog Poisoning Case Is Dismissed

COBOURG, May 8. — (ENS) — Councillor Joseph Delanty was found not guilty yesterday afternoon when Magistrate R. B. Baxter gave his judgment in connection with a charge against Mr. Delanty of leaving strychnine poison in a place where it was accessible to animals. The charge was laid by Chief of Police W. J. Carey, after a number of dogs in the town were poisoned last January. The case came up about three weeks ago and was adjourned until last week at which time the magistrate reserved his decision. Harry Deyman acted for the Crown and defence were T. F. Hall, K.C., of Cobourg and John Callahan, K.C. of Toronto. The case attracted wide interest locally and the court room had a fairly heavy audience during the stages of the hearing.

In the Crown evidence, Chief Carey testified that Mr. Delanty had informed him that the poison was obtained for cats which had been after meat stored in the back shed. According to a druggist called to identify an entry in his poison book, Mr. Delanty bought strychnine in the latter part of January and the purpose of the poison was entered in the book as "cats" the druggist said.

Mr. Delanty denied flatly that he had told the chief of police that he had purchased the poison for cats, and declared that on the contrary he had specified its use for "rats." To the evidence of the poison book, the accused declared that he had paid no attention to the recorded purpose of the poison and had signed for it without bothering to read the entry.

In dismissing the charge, the magistrate expressed his dissatisfaction with the defence evdience.

"The evidence of the defence was most unsatisfactory and that of the witnesses was very contradictory. Your own evidence was most unsatisfactory. You didn't answer the question in the manner in which you should have answered them. There were too many 'maybe's' and 'maybe nots' and so forth. Also this matter could have been straightened out of court if you had gone to the chief of police when he mentioned it and you had taken the chief to the place and showed him where you had placed the poison and if he still felt that there was guilt on your part he could go ahead and proceed with the prosecution. However you didn't see fit to do that. I think that you should have taken that course as a councillor and a citizen of this town. On the evidence I feel there is still doubt in my mind but as it is a matter under the criminal code, you are entitled to the benefit of the doubt. I dismiss the charge against you.

"As far as the other name in the case, 'Fred Precious'—due to court rules he was not allowed to give evidence—as far as that is concerned I want to say in deference to him that this judgment is not based on any evidence that Fred Precious purchased strychnine," declared Magistrate R. B. Baxter.

P.C.V.S. Cadets Commended At Inspection

Adapting themselves to new conditions, Peterborough Collegiate Cadets who have been trained out-of-doors all spring, jammed into the auditorium of the Armories on Thursday aftern on, and put on a cadet show, that drew high praise from Captain T. C. Holmes, district cadet officer, who was making his annual tour of inspection.

Despite the cramped quarters, which necessitated a change in the routine, the garnet and gray clad students snapped through their paces with a precision that told of careful and painstaking training, and two sections, the bugle and drum corps, and a guard of [illegible] men gave the finishing touch to an exhibition of military drill that was commendable.

Rated by military men on a par with metropolitan cadet corps across Ontario, the local unit, 300 strong, showed finish in every department, and their showing undoubtedly will move them into a contending position for the special trophies being given this year in Military District 3 to the outstanding cadet regiments. The choosing of the prize-winning units rests with the inspecting officer, Captain Holmes, who, it is understood, was impressed not only by the general appearance and drill of the unit, but by the self-reliance of the officers, who seemed to know just what to do when the cadets seemed on the verge of jamming the ranks in the restricted quarters.

In other years when weather conditions permitted the cadets to have the inspection out-of-doors, the unit would be drawn up in two lines for the ceremonial. Thursday, however, the rain which continued to patter down all afternoon forced them into the Armories, and another formation, namely, companies in close column of platoons, that is en masse, was necessary. Then too they had to dispense with the march past in column of companies, merely going through the march past in column of route. Company drill by all four companies was dispensed with, and C Company was the only one to do company drill. This fact made the awarding of the I.O.D.E. shield to the best company impossible.

Major R. J. Bolton, acting officer commanding the Prince of Wales Rangers (A.F.) took the general salute, and after the inspection, and march past, the signal section, both morse and semaphore, went through its paces, while the first aid branch worked at the same time. A new feature was added the syllabus this year, with the introduction of map reading, knot tying and aeroplane identification. These subjects were taught by Messrs. Corneil, Collingwood and Richardson of the Collegiate staff.

Cadet Major Eric Taylor commanded the "guard," a company of 21 all ranks, who went through rifle drill, and the routine of changing the guard with a smooth military rhythm that was a crowd pleaser. The men had been trained by Sgt.-Instructor Tom Griffin and P.Q.M.S. Chate, and they were a credit to the two active service instructors. Sgt. Griffin trained the cadet corps in conjunction with Captain H. A. Bamforth of the Collegiate staff, who took over the duties of cadet officer when Captain H. A. Craig enlisted with the Rangers for active service.

Major Bolton addressed the cadets first, and complimented the students and officers for the fine display. "When I look out through the window it is a pleasure to me to observe the serious way the students are going about their training. We are living in grave times, and the time may come when you will be glad you received this training as cadets."

Captain Holmes said in part: "I heartily commend the officers and all other ranks who have done such an excellent job today; your work today under adverse conditions was of the highest type. The uniforms your are wearing while not a military uniform are nevertheless neat. I want to congratulate you on your steadiness, and on your marching.

"Any cadet corps with a competent instructor can become good, but only a cadet corps with a first-class band can become great, and you have that kind of a band. In my travels, and that includes viewing the famous air force band, I have not seen nor heard a better bugle and drum corps, and you would give the air force band a run for the money. On the whole the inspection has been most satisfactory."

Captain Holmes mentioned that a free cadet camp would be held at Connaught from June 20 to July 4, for cadets between the ages of 16 and 18, and every cadet who wished to go would be given free transportation, a uniform and the necessary kit bags. In closing he paid tribute to Captain H. A. Craig, D.C.M., and Captain H. L. Bamforth for the work in training the students.

Dr. C. M. Scott substituted for H. G. Walker, chairman of the Board of Education, and in his words of praise to the cadets said he regarded the cadet training as a valuable addition to the adolescent training of any boy, in that it taught discipline and co-operation, and the valuable lessons learned would be useful all through life. He said too that the boys doing first aid work had a true appreciation of their work, and had shown during the exhibition that they were well trained.

George Richardson was officer commanding the cadet corps, and Stuart Sanders was second in command, Tom Lillico was adjutant and Jim [illegible]rguson, quartermaster. Murray Metcalfe was regimental sergeant-major. The company commanders were Cadet Majors Gordon Diplock, Gordon Lupton, Max Graham and Myles Allison. Lloyd Routley was drug major, and E. (Tip) Hanbidge was orderly officer. Cadet Major Eric Routley had charge of the "guard."

Trent Crusher A Mound Of Scrap Iron

CAMPBELLFORD, May 8 (ENS). —Not what to do with it but where to get scrap iron is the problem facing the Department of Munitions and Supply which knows that a mere 250 pounds will make a 1500 pound bomb.

That is not the problem in this town, however, for here they have a supply of scrap iron, twenty tons of it in fact, and nobody knows what to do with it. The question of what should be done about it was raised by Mayor F. F. Long at the meeting of the Water and Light Commission and he thought it was time the matter was brought to the Department's attention now that decorative fences were being ripped up because Campbellford citizens don't regard their 20 tons as any decoration for the Canal bank though it has been there for nearly thirty years. Reason it has been there so long is that it is all in one piece and so far, although at least two attempts have been made, no one has been able to move it at a cost which would show any profit.

Campbellford's scrap elephant is a rock crusher of cast iron 15½ feet long and 20 inches diameter. It was left here by the late Thomas Brown, one of the contractors who built this section of the Canal and it is rumored he offered it as a gift to several friends subsequently but up to the present none of the owners has exercised his right to the property.

The town clerk, John F. McGregor, is one of those to whom the crusher was given in latter years and he told the Commission meeting he would be very glad to waive his claim in favor of the Department of Munitions and Supply. He recalled that several years ago an attempt was made to remove the crusher by first cutting it into sections with an acetylene torch. This failed after the worker had made a cut about one-third the way around not more than 3 inches deep, and then found that the torch either went out or ceased to be effective when applied to the opening made. Concluded the Mayor, "It's certainly a pity some means of using this device cannot be found."

The entire discussion grew out of a letter read by the clerk from the Department regarding the collection of rubber scrap which the commission might have. The importance of salvaging this was emphasized but Manager P. C. Denyes asserted the Utilities didn't have so much as a spare tire that could be converted into scrap. He added that all belts used were leather and not rubber.

The Mayor also referred to council's decision to purchase advertisement space in the Examiner's vacation edition and to this chairman Benor conceded the Commission would, as it had done in previous years, contribute one-half the cost. To Manager Denyes, who last Monday was re-elected president of the Rotary Club, both the Mayor and Chairman tendered their congratulations.

Hint From Mayor

Pointing out that the town had lowered its tax rate by 2½ mills to 45 (less one mill Government Subsidy making 44 mills) the Mayor declared that before the year's end the council might require a bit of extra money from the Commission if 1942 was to end with a balanced budget. He pointed out Utilities grant had dropped from $10,000 in 1941, to $8,000 for the current year and he hoped they would extend the same measure of cooperation as had been shown in the past if some extra money was needed. Chairman Benor gave his assurance that so long as the Utilities interests were not jeopardized he would be willing to extend full cooperation.

The financial statement for the first four months ending 30th April indicated no great change in receipts. Power payments were off $476.00 and total receipts from light and power for the same period were down $239.00 to $12,275.70. Actually the collections were only down $66.71 but if sale of power to the Hydro had not been off $350.00 (owing to lowered output while one of the power plant generators underwent repairs) the first four months would have shown an increase of $416.71.

Example Of Parents Important To Youth

CAMPBELLFORD, May 8. — (ENS).—Some good suggestions on what are the important components of a home were given members of the Rylstone Women's Institute who met at Mrs. F. M. Rutherford's on Wednesday. Mrs Lillie Anderson was the speaker and the topic "The Home and Its Four Walls" put into words some of the thoughts that many had been thinking about the younger generation. Warned she: "One of the greatest stumbling blocks for youth is the inconsistency of the example set by parents." Seveny-five per cent. of the criminals in the country are under 24 years of age which, according to the speaker, "shows that Christian love is failing." "Parents," said Mrs. Anderson, "should build four things into the (symbolic) walls of their home. First of them is Love; second, Authority—"where there is no authority there can be no peace—what the country needs is not more government but more home control"; three, comradeship and affection, for both fellowship and sympathy must be had in the home, and four, the consistent example of parents.

During the business members appointed a committee to take charge of the salvage effort in the Rylstone district. Appointed to this were Mrs. Hector Arnold, Mrs. James Barnett, Mrs. F. M. Rutherford, Mrs. W. T. Allan, Mrs. Charles Stewart. The money raised from the collection of salvage will, like their other funds, be used for war work. To attend the district annual at Ivanhoe on May 19th as official delegates they named Mrs. John Simpson and Mrs. Fred Barnum and it was announced the home economics projects for this year would include a lecture and demonstration on health, food and nutrition (under local leader service); a study conference. Each branch will choose its three pet subjects for presentation at the district annual.

Balance of the afternoon's program included current events given by Mrs. Sanford Meiklejohn; a reading by Mrs. Charles Stewart and in addition to this members did a considerable amount of sewing and knitting. Mrs. E. Irwin was authorized to interview the Red Cross with a view to getting a supply of yarn. She revealed that the maple syrup contributed by members of the Navy League had been boiled down to sugar and was ready for shipment. No program was announced for the next meeting as these are not arranged until the district annual has been held.

No City Slickers

EL CENTRO, Calif., May 8.—(AP) —It's pretty well agreed hereabouts that city slickers won't be helping solve Imperial Valley's farm labor shortage. "City laborers aren't worth a dime a dozen," exploded J. E. Harshman of Brawley to a suggestion that townsmen volunteer for farm work in their spare hours.

War Workers Hold Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Buckhorn War Workers was held Tuesday in the True Blue Hall.

The meeting opened with "O Canada" and the minutes were read and the roll call taken by Mrs. S. Wood. There were letters read from Norman McIlmoyle, overseas, and from the Peterborough I. O. D. E. thanking the ladies for their contributions of work and money.

The treasurer's report was given and then the knitting committee reported 1 sweater, 3 pairs of socks and a baby sweater finished. The sewing committee reported and the quilting committee announced the completion of three quilts.

A reading was given by Mrs. Walton and the meeting closed.

Corregidor Falls At Last

When Bataan surrendered the fall of Corregidor became a matter of time. The defenders of the island fortress at the mouth of Manila Bay have made an epic stand, and now that fatigue and shortage of material have forced them to give in our regret is not for an outpost lost but for brave men who have fallen into the hands of an enemy without pity and without honor.

After the fall of Bataan the Japanese were able to concentrate all their force upon Corregidor. About 3,500 men, chiefly sailors and marines, who had been evacuated from the peninsula joined the forces at Corregidor and helped to hold that heavily fortified position for twenty-eight days under a pitiless, incessant bombardment from naval vessels, from planes, and from batteries situated on the mainland. They surrendered only when their supplies were exhausted and human flesh and blood could bear no more. They could have surrendered earlier. They knew that it was out of the question for help to be sent to them. But they were not the surrendering kind. They fought as long as they had anything to fight with and only when resistance was no longer possible did they give themselves up to the enemy.

The surrender of General Wainwright and his men gives the Japanese possession of a magnificent harbor and leaves them with large forces to use in new operations. They now have an excellent base from which to make marauding attacks on shipping between the U.S. and Australia, and they have troops which they can use either in an assault on India or possibly an attack on the Australian continent. But although they have made a gain which is of the greatest value to them for attack, they have gained nothing which will be of use to them for defence, and if the bombing of Japan, which has been proved possible, can be carried on with sufficient strength, their outposts may prove an embarrassment rather than a help.

The seige of Corregidor is one of the heroic incidents of this war which renews faith in the cause and the eventual victory of the United Nations. Courage and doggedness in the face of inevitable disaster are characteristic of free men fighting for a cause dear to them. For the present the Corregidor chapter of this war's history is closed, but it will be re-opened and a triumphant finish appended to it when General MacArthur makes his return through the Philippines.

Mr. Herridge's Nightmare

Upon many occasions Canada has been grateful to the Hon. W. D. Herridge for evidences which he has shown of patriotism combined with unusual ability, but it is doubtful if many people will regard his recent speech to a service club in Ottawa as one of these. He said then that Canada must have a national government to give it leadership or the day may come when the U.S. will be reluctantly forced to take a hand in Dominion affairs. These are his words, as reported by Canadian Press: "When you get up a wartime party government and arm it with despotic powers, you prepare the way for fascism; and somewhere on the way to fascism the throat of freedom will inevitably be cut." He spoke to his hearers thus: "You must bring about this change, and men like you. You are trained to think clearly and act wisely. Your have experience. Your patriotism is unmortgaged. You are the natural leaders." But perhaps his most interesting statement was this: "If men like you decline to make a fight, there is no hope. Your country will continue to subside. Then a day may come when something unbelievable will happen. The United States may have to intervene in Canada. We may begin to take orders from Washington."

This, of course, sounds very serious and menacing, which is doubtless the way Mr. Herridge wanted it to sound. But most people in Canada will look behind the words and, will decide that Mr. Herridge's bogy is nothing but a turnip and a sheet. Canada has at present a Government which has an insufficiently powerful Opposition, and most people, including many members of the Government, agree that this is a bad thing. But it does not mean that Mr. King and his followers are drifting toward fascism and certainly the powers which they wield, considering that we are a country at war, are not despotic. Nor is it wise or polite of Mr. Herridge to impugn the patriotism of that Government and its leaders by suggesting that they put party before country. It looks as though Mr. Herridge had permitted his irritation to override his judgment on this occasion.

He suggests that the present Government would please the people of Canada by declaring that the war situation demanded a national government; we doubt if the majority of citizens would be pleased at all. And the suggestion that, unless this is done, the U.S. may intervene in Canada's affairs (presumably for our own good) is singularly naive.

The Canadian situation at present is extremely difficult, but not anything like as difficult as Mr. Herridge and many other Government critics would like to make us believe. The method which Mr. Herridge has chosen to use in order to make the situation look black is that of ignoring the statements of Government Ministers. He continues to say that the Canadian forces in England lack adequate reinforcements even though Col. Ralston, who should know what he is talking about, has flatly denied it. This simply does not make sense. The idea which Mr. Herridge seems to harbor is that Ministers of the Crown will make deliberately false statements merely in order to shield themselves and to keep their party in power. Such things are not unknown in history but we have absolutely no reason to believe that such is the situation in Canada today.

It is a pity that Mr. Herridge showed so little moderation in his speech. If he really wants a national government he has certainly not chosen the right way to get one.

What's Wrong At Bowmanville?

Most people, we think, will be very glad to hear that Colonel J. L. Ralston has ordered an investigation of the camp for captive German officers at Bowmanville. Since this camp was established last October eight prisoners have escaped from it. The escape of two prisoners is understandable, and with bad luck four might be lost, but eight escapes in as many months points to something wrong at Bowmanville, either with the camp itself or with the people who are running it, and the public want to know what it is.

The Bowmanville camp was formerly a school, and it is probably the most comfortable establishment of its kind in this country. When it was first suggested that this camp for German prisoners of the officer class be situated at Bowmanville there was a good deal of protest from the citizens of that town; not only did they not want German prisoners in their midst (which is not really a valid objection) but they thought that a place as well supplied with railroads and as near the St. Lawrence river as their town was no place to intern men who might escape to the States. Time has proved them right.

But there is more to the matter than that. Presumably great care is taken to see that the prisoners have no chance to escape and have no instruments which they should not have. Nevertheless they do escape, and with alarming frequency. Everyone knows that German soldiers are trained in technique of escape, and these appear to work very well. Why have we not developed any superior techniques of preventing escape?

No one wishes to be unreasonable in this matter, but the demand of the public that German prisoners be better controlled is far from unreasonable. The unreason is on the official side; eight escapes in eight months is the height of unreason. We sinceerly hope that the investigation which the Defence Minister has set on foot will get to the bottom of the matter and that this monotonous migration from Bowmanville will cease.

Defeat In Burma

Mandalay, the old capital of Burma, has fallen to the Japanese and it is useless to pretend that this is anything but another major defeat in the East. Holding Burma as she now does, Japan need have little fear that her tentacles will be cut, leaving any great part of her forces isolated. The conquest was carried out with remarkable dispatch, and is complete at least ten days before the rains which will make further operations difficult if not impossible.

The loss of Burma is a very serious matter for the United Nations. For the time being it will be necessary to abandon any hope of establishing bases in China from which Japan and Formosa might be attacked and which would help in harrassing the enemy's supply-lines to the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies and Singapore. It makes the business of supplying China even more difficult and hazardous. It frees Japanese forces for a new move, whether it be against India, Australia, or Russia.

These are the inescapable facts which now confront the United Nations in the East. There are other less tangible factors which must be considered. China has been at war with Japan for four years, and now she sees her enemy triumphant on all sides, and this in spite of the opposition of Great Britain and America. The prestige of the great western powers could hardly be lower than it is in the East today.

Burma has not been lost through foolishness or lack of strong resistance. But the enemy had vastly superior forces and used them with a skill which has never been equalled by any other modern army in jungle fighting. The outnumbered British and Chinese forces could do nothing but fight delaying actions and do their best to avoid being trapped. They hoped to hold the Japs until the rains came, offering a respite during which they could obtain reinforcements, but the enemy won in the race with the weather. Now all that may be hoped is that the attack on India will be slowed down by the mountainous country which the Japs must traverse.

The Battle of Burma must now be counted as lost. What will it be next: the Battle of Australia or the Battle of India? There are indication that India will be the next Japanese goal, and the bombing of Rangoon by American planes is perhaps a forerunner of an Allied attempt to prevent a Japanese invasion fleet from setting out for India's shores.

It may be that great risks were taken in Burma in order to strengthen the Near East and Russia. If that is so, it will depend on developments in those quarters whether the loss of Burma is a disaster or merely a severe temporary set-back. But at present Burma is lost to us, and Mandalay and the East which Kipling knew seem very distant and very sad.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Hitler has asked Germany for more bombs. If he hasn't enough the R.A.F. could give him a few more.

"Traffic accidents in Toronto swelled by suburban drivers" says a headline. Sounds like passing the buck.

The news that Canada is to have zippers made of a secret metal will bring no relief to those who have always found zippers a mystery anyway.

In some families, says the Detroit News, all individuality is stamped out of a child, whereas in others they have to serve five kinds of breakfast food.

Stockholm reports that Vidkun Quisling has got rid of his Norwegian bodyguard and has replaced them with Germans. It is always wiser to have a bodyguard made up of one's own kind.

A strange example of self-knowledge and frankness is shown in a sign which hangs on a service station in the western desert. It reads: "Don't ask for information. If we knew anything we wouldn't be here."

It appears that more gasoline is being used under the rationing system than was used last year when there was unrestricted sale. Obviously this proves something but what it is we are too polite to say.

It has been suggested that we all make our office supplies last a little longer, in order to prevent waste; pen-nibs especially are mentioned. We hope that post offices will not take this too seriously; they are already doing their bit in the pen-nib war.

GRAY'S CREEK

It warms my heart to see a sluggish stream
Searching its way along
Through endless fields of new-ploughed ground
Humming a whispered song.
There is a strength in swirling depths;
no sound
Intrudes upon the scheme
Of nature, and no haste, no pounding out
Of forces on a wind-shaped bank,
But a stillness of purpose, without doubt
A course sought out through dank
And tangling, tawny grass ever veering
Toward the river's call,
In quietness and peace, surely nearing
The St. Lawrence where its all
Is poured with lavish trust. And so goes on
The placid little creek,—
Goes on to touch so many shores, some bright
And shining and some bleak,
But following an immutable course
The stream slips on—is lost
In greater depths far from its gentle source.

Campaign of Ruin Preceeded Japs In Burma

By DANIEL DE DUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH the British in Burma.—Yenangyaung's $1,000,000 electricity generating plant, which powered 85 per cent of Burma's oil production, crashed in flames as Japanese cavalry and heavily-armed infantry outflanked the scorched town and temporarily cut the British Army's road of retreat.

The Japanese thus lost a desperate race to capture intact a plant which in wartime is irreplaceable.

The demolition of the power-house by two Britons hidden in a dug-out 100 yards from the three-storey structure brought to a climax a lengthy program of destruction which made an inferno of Yenangyaung's 10-mile-long oil field.

In that campaign of ruin, 3,500 derricks were destroyed and some 24,000,000 gallons of crude oil went raging skyward in black smoke and balls of fire.

A handful of Gloucester Regiment riflemen received the warning from a quiet-voiced lieutenant that if the Japanese advance guard attacked the plant before the zero hour "it will be blown immediately while we fight them off—and we'll be blown up with it."

They guarded the walls from 10 p.m. that night until 11:55 p.m. and then moved 500 yards away for safety at the signal of a pistol shot.

JAPS LESS THAN MILE OFF

On the other side of the Irrawaddy River, flowing one-third of a mile westward from the plant's entrance, the enemy's hard-riding cavalry was reporting striking on a raid.

Due east of Yenanygyaung Japanese mortar crews and machine-gunners had just slipped through broken desert badlands and continued northward where they were preparing an ambush in clumps of dwarf trees along the highway to Mandalay.

A captain of the Royal Engineers and the British Government's official oilfield wrecker, Walter L. Forster, crouched in a sand-bagged battery hideaway as the seconds ticked away.

The batteries which would supply the juice to set off the sticks of gelignite and wads of guncotton tied in bands around the huge transformers and turbines in the 20-year-old station could only be guaranteed for three days—and two days already had passed, Forster told the army command earlier in the evening.

I was standing in a hill-top garden less than half a mile away as they fired one shot—the five-minute signal; two shots — the three-minute signal; and then three — the signal that the blast would go in one minute.

There were moments of stifling suspense and then a big roar.

The entire wall of the plant facing the Mandalay Road spewed out in gushing flames as steel fragments punctured drums above the transformers which contained 6,900 gallons of oil.

There was another explosion and the adjoining machine shop and garage crumpled into fiery wreckage.

Previously laid pipes sprayed the interior of the power station with oil to a depth of three inches and long tongues of flames shot out of the roof and the windows, framing the walls still standing in a desolate silhouette.

SUBSTATIONS GO TOO

Throughout the Yanangyaung oil fields 10 big substations and 20 transformer stations already had been blasted.

Now with the main plant gone, production was snuffed out not only in Yanangyaung but in the equally important oil fields 44 miles northward around Singu and Yenangyat which were still in British hands. There was no more electricity to run the well pumps.

The demolition of the power-house was the most ominous incident since the fall of Rangoon because it had been delayed to the last hazardous minute possible by high British officers hoping against hope that the enemy might be held off by the combined British and Chinese armies.

For 36 hours an Australian, an Associated Press photographer, Charles Fenn, and I were the only newspapermen in Yenangyaung watching the death throes of the Burma oil industry.

Every hour the battle drew nearer until at last it was around us on all sides.

Japanese planes circled the red hot centre of destruction at the Burma Oil Co., tank farm where a pathway sign ironically cautioned "no smoking." They dived low on the roads leading in and out of the sprawling, smoke-covered town and sometimes it was difficult to distinguish bombs from tank explosions.

On Thursday morning the Japanese penetrated Magwe, where the central Burma airbase of the R.A.F. and American Volunteer Group was bombed out of existence late in March.

TANKS COVER INFANTRY

British tanks fought a running action, protecting the infantry's rear as another long withdrawal started.

As the Japanese bombers raided British columns arriving on the outskirts of Yenangyaung, the Australian, Bill Mundy, Fenn and I went with demolition men to the smoking, twisted shops where $2,000,000 in oil tools and equipment were wrecked beyond ever a chance of the Japanese using them in the Netherlands East Indies or Burma.

Then we went to the Burma Oil Co., plant capable of refining 250,000 only a tottering ruin.

At the main power house we were told the zero hour was at hand and exchange mutual wishes for good luck.

Five minutes after midnight, with the powerhouse a shambles, we headed northward.

Across a deep ford of the Kyaung just north of town we came upon a column of halted army vehicles.

Five miles up the Mandalay Road, the Japanese had prepared another block. Jammed in among the stout tanks and their black-bereted crews we learned the enemy had ambushed a truck with machine guns and set it on fire.

An army supplies officer and the driver escaped. A motorcycle dispatcher behind somersaulted and landed okay. One tank moved forward and got a hit on the track by a mortar shell.

The crew fought on with the turret gun and then abandoned the tank under a tree.

It was three hours until dawn and Friday's first wave of Japanese bombers would be sure to spot this concentration of British tanks, trucks, staff cars, gas trucks and mobile repair shops.

Two hearty tank commanders promised to escort our jeep. One officer said the vehicle could pass the burning truck if we cared to risk it but there was no telling what the entrenched Japanese might do.

THEY GO THROUGH

Rather than meet the bombers at dawn, we chose the danger of fire from the Japanese patrol.

With lights off and grinding along at three miles an hour we weaved in and out of the stalled column and came upon an empty, dark stretch of road with a veritable bonfire ahead—the truck.

Mundy, with a bedroll like a shield on his left side, prayed that I would not stall the sputtering engine.

Fenn crouched in the baggage behind the front seat.

We inched past the truck's flames, singeing the hair on my left arm and getting sparks in our eyes.

No shots whizzed overhead.

We cruised with lights out for three miles more. A red glow high in the sky behind us marked the doom of Yenangyaung.

We breathed easy again when we were hailed by a squadron of 14 tanks parked behind a hedge of cactus.

• New Pacific Strategy

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP)—British seizure of the French naval base on Mdagascar means that the United Nations are preparing to call a halt on Japanese aggression in the Indian Ocean and are paving the way for an ultimate two-front counter-attack, there and in the Pacific.

Prime Minister Churchill made that quite clear in announcing that the French had surrendered and that a powerful British fleet was already moving into Diego Suarez Bay. Its pivotal value in the revised Allied strategy, forced by the unexpectedly early fall of Singapore and subsequent disasters in the Netherlands Indies, Burma and the Philippines, is strongly emphasized by Mr. Churchill's statement that preparation for the Madagascar move began three months ago.

Singapore surrendered Feb. 15, but its fate had been foreshadowed as British forces back-tracked down the Malay Peninsula under Japanese hammering. It seems clear that the reshuffling of British and probably American sea power to provide the force now concentrated in Northern Madagascar waters began even before the actual fall of Singapore Island.

Coupled with Churchill's letter to a favored Parliamentary candidate—significantly enough a naval officer—the impression that the Madagascar operation implements a heartening new phase of the struggle for the Allies gains strength. The Prime Minister told Lieutenant Joynson-Hicks that "the time approaches when our accumulated strength will be matched against our enemies in every theatre of war." From a condition of "relative defenselessness," he added, the country had been moulded "into a mighty instrument of offense."

It now is revealed that the British attack on Madagascar was organized in such overwhelming force as to ensure not only the capture and secure holding of the key base, but its use offensively in due course. The size and composition of the fleet now based in Diego Suarez Bay could not be revealed if it were known. That it includes battleships and plane carriers, perhaps American as well as British, is conjecturable.

Its mere presence in the Indian Ocean has ominous potentialities for Japan. Battle odds on the Bay of Bengal flank of the Nipponese advance in Burma have been imponderably shifted in Allied favor. Madagascar serves to explain also British failure to reinforce the Burma front, where the Monsoon rains appear likely to hold up a Nipponese mass attack on either India or China.

Despite a swift Japanese advance into the Yunnan Province of China up the Burma Road almost to the Salween Gorge, it still is uncertain whether it is not primarily designed to take up a defensive position there for the wet season. The Salween and its suspension bridge offer Chinese reinforcements every chance to halt the foe should he attempt to push on. And Japanese communication lines through Lower Burma to Rangoon and the Sittang Estuary, the only available supply routes, will be through monsoon-flooded valleys within days.

There are British-held island stepping stones across the Indian Ocean from Madagascar for a sea-air advance into the Bay of Bengal. The primary concern of the Japanese Fleet in any case is on the vulnerable Pacific flank. The main Japanese Fleet, rejoined by heavy units previously in the Bay of Bengal, has been reported concentrated in the Marshall and Gilbert Islands. That would imply that the next Japanese move will be against Australia or its Pacific communications.

• Nazis Despise Partners

I CHATTED today with a little group of German prisoners captured in the desert.

Their spokesman was a sergeant major, middle-aged and unshaven, with fine blue eyes.

He said, "The war will undoubtedly be finished this year. I am prepared to bet on it."

"Who will win?" I asked.

He answered, "No one. It will be finished by negotiation. If we keep on fighting, the whole world will be destroyed.

"The human race won't stand it. There will be peace before Christmas.

Then, with that strange German emphasis on race, he burst out into a tirade against his Axis allies.

"We are Germans, you are Englishmen. We are of the same family, and we ought to be together. What have we to do with the Italians? They are an entirely different race."

"And the Japanese," I prompted gently. "Japanese," he repeated, and spat in disgust.

A significant thing was that the other Germans just stood around in agreement. — (Libyan Correspondent, London Daily Mail).

A Bible Message For Today . . .

Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were wise, and five were foolish.

They that were foolish took their lamps, and took no oil with them; but the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps.

While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept. And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him.

Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps. And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil; for our lamps are gone out. But the wise answered, saying, Not so; lest there be not enough for us and you: but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves.

And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage; and the door was shut. Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, open to us. But he answered and said, Verily, I say unot you, I know you not.—Matt. 25: 1-12.

Prairies' Flax To Fill Oil Bill

OTTAWA, May 8.—(CP).—Agriculture Department officials looked today to tens of thousands of prairie farmers to help offset Canada's shortage of vegetable oils by tripling their 1941 flax acreage.

The officials, nearing the close of an intensive campaign in which they had the co-operation of provincial governments, said all prairie farmers were being informed of the necessity for increased flax production this year to compensate for the loss of vegetable oils formerly imported from Far Eastern territory now in the hands of Japan.

Authorities said it was agreed that flax was not a highly popular crop among western farmers, but it was essential that they assist the effort of the United Nations by tripling their 1941 flax acreage to provide an objective of at least 20,000,000 bushels in 1942.

A fixed price for flaxseed has been established at $2.25 a bushel, basis No. 1 C.W. in store at Fort William.

Hastings Red Cross Plans Quilting Bee

HASTINGS, May 8—(ENS).—Officials of the ladies' branch of the local Red Cross society have announced that a quilting bee will be staged in the council chambers Tuesday, May 12. As many ladies as possible are urged to attend and as an added impetus, lunch will be served at the conclusion of the afternoon's quilting.

Only a small number of workers were on hand for the preparation of the Red Cross shipment Tuesday afternoon.

Articles dispatched to headquarters in Toronto were: 12 quilts, 10 babies' blankets, 10 babies' nightgowns, 15 mothers' nightgowns, 110 diapers, and 10 units of children's wear, each containing one coat, one cap, and two dresses with bloomers.

Copper, Brass Under New Curb

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP).—The United States War Production Board today prohibited the use of copper, brass or bronze after May 31 in more than 100 additional civilian commodities—including pins, Christmas tree bulbs, neon and fluorescent lighting for advertising signs, musical instruments, cooking utensils, and electric razors.

The drastic order, emphasizing the gravity of the copper supply situation, meant a complete stoppage of production for many of the commodities on the list for which no copper substitutes have been found.

W. P. B. predicted the greatest dislocation resulting from the ban would be a lack of pins. About one-third of all household pins produced in 1940 and 1941 were made of brass.

GunCrewsReady To Fire In 45 Seconds

By STUART UNUDERHILL

CAMP NANAIMO, B.C., May 8—(CP).—The faster the field guns can be brought into action the more efficient they are and the lads of the 21st Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, are setting records and then beating them as they train in "crash action."

Most of them Prairie boys, and all of them appraised by their commanding officer, Lt.-Col. A. B. Gilbert of Saint John, N.B., as "keen and hardy," they can get a field gun into action 45 seconds after it has stopped moving

Watch a gun from the 39th Field Battery of Lethbridge, Alta., come tearing across the gunpark at this Vancouver Island militray camp if you want to see some soldiers full of ginger.

Lieut. George D. Macaulay of Port Dover, Ont., tosses his tin hat on the ground as the Field Artillery tractor that hauls the gun comes rattling up at 25 miles an hour and Driver R. S. Parkhill of Moose Jaw, Sask., halts the gun within six feet of it. On a second attempt he brings the gun to a halt right over the helmet.

On the first attempt the gun crew, which had been assembled from men doing fatigues around the camp, were in action in one minute five seconds. On the second attempt they were ready to fire in 57 seconds.

The crew included Gnr. N. Fogliette of Montreal. Maj W. R. Bradley of Vancouver commands the battery

World's Tops, British Fire Brigades Save 4 Of Her Most Historic Cities

LONDON, May 8 — (CP Cable). —Britain's National Fire Service has emerged from the German reprisal raids against England's historic cities as one of the finest fighting forces in the world.

By the skill and courage of its men and the greater efficiency of a new co-operative system Exeter, Norwich, Bath and York were saved from destruction by fire.

Describing the welding into a national system of 1,460 separate brigades with different systems of training, different drills, different words of command, different methods of fire fighting and different standards of efficiency, Home Secretary Morrison said the task of reorganization was "immense."

The latest victim of the reprisal raids, Exeter, firmly but cheerfully shouldered the burden of rehabilitation after an attack which indelibly marked the city's historic sites.

It was the third raid in 11 nights for the city of 66,000 and the most severe test it has endured in this war. Smoke is still curling from the ruins of its Georgian houses and the rescue services are shifting the debris and searching for the bodies of those missing, but the people have accepted the loss of lives and property stoically.

2-Hour Blasting.

The attack was made early on Monday morning. The Nazis bombed and machine-gunned the city for almost two hours. Flares and incendiary bombs which set fire to trees and shrubbery gave the raiders plenty of light to find their targets.

Churches, hospitals, a college, a girls' hostel, a rest centre, an ambulance station, public houses, residential and shopping districts were bombed and burned.

Nurses who carried 167 patients of one hospital to safety were machine-gunned while they were searching the blazing building for other victims. Babies were found dead beside their mothers and the victims included one child four days old and another five days old.

Many of the homeless were aged and infirm and many had been evacuated from London's East-end when the Capital was heavily bombed. They huddled in the shelters and rest centres beside what belongings they had been able to save, some of them so tired they slept on the floors or on benches and others so exhausted they wept.

Real Tanks Coming

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—(AP).—American tanks with armor plate thicker than in any Axis tanks and with deadlier armament are rolling off production lines at the Baldwin locomotive works near here at 3½ times the rate set by War Department officials a year ago. Before the year is out, the flow of tanks is expected to be increased another three times over the original production schedules, army officials estimated today.

HASTINGS IS LINING UP STRONG TEAM FOR CITY LEAGUE ENTRY

Strong Team Holds First Work Out In The Ashburnham Softball Bowl

HASTINGS, May 8.—(ENS)—Although the playing filed in Hastings is still too soggy to engage in any softball the local entry in the Peterborough City League had their initial workout of the season at the Bowl in Peterborough Tuesday night.

Twenty players were on hand for a tryout and Manager Joe Jones expects to field a star-studded, power-packed team from this array of mushball talent. "We were nosed out by Chesterfields in the finals last year and nothing short of a championship will satisfy us this season," he said.

Jone was particularly pleased with the work of Bob Crowe, youthful pitcher, who will share the hurling duties with the veteran Dave Wilson.

Always a crowd-pleaser with Peterborough fans, the Hastings crew will be picked from the following players, all on hand for the practice session Tuesday night: "Ike" Bonds, Dave Wilson, Frank Kroll, Casey Radford, Bob Scriver, York Calberry, G. "Curly" Scriver, "Holly" Mowry, George Hawkes, Russ Scriver, Bob Crowe, Whib Starr, Owen Hendy, Bill Wood, Julian Wade and Phil Pryde.

Although chances are he won't play because of a hockey injury, Aubrey "Dit" Clapper will accompany the team in a coaching capacity. All the home games of the Hastings entry will be staged in the local Community Park.

Sport Snapshots Across Canada

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press StaffWriter

TORONTO, May 8.—(CP)—One of the most popular indoor sports to develop since Post-Office swept the country many decades ago, come twilight, is guessing what will happen to the National Hockey League.

Generally, few people care. We all know that sport will remain an important part of everyday life no matter whcih of the existing sporting organizations survive increased manpower needs. It should be plain to everyone that civilian sport is within a few months of withdrawing into the background for the duration.

The N.H.L. is a Canadian institution. It means more to Canadians than it does to Americans despite the fact that they have five teams, we have two. If the league carries on into its fourth wartime season, it may become all Canadian.

A couple of suggestions from sources believed close to the feedbox have been made to Vern (Toronto Globe) DeGeer. One has Boston moving its franchise to Ottawa, Rangers to Montreal, Detroit to Windsor, Chicago to Toronto, with Americans disbanding. More likely: two teams in Toronto, one in Ottawa, one in Montreal.

Bigger Things

Two veteran Winnipeg sportsmen have entered war work. Claude Robinson, one of the founders and a life member of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, has been appointed to the enemy alien property board with headquarters in British Columbia. Arnold Dowd, a past president of the now-dormant Western Canada Rugby Football Union, has joined an auxiliary service and may go overseas.

Incidentally:

Gordon Lawrence, Victoria swim star, smashed a couple of Halifax records in exhibition swims there... He's a rating in the R.C.N.... Tony and Pete Leswick have left Saskatoon for shipyard jobs in B.C., reports Walt (Saskatoon Star-Phoenix) Riddell...Pete was third in American Association scoring with Fort Worth last season...May 14 Ottawa Flyers will be guests at a banquet and dance in the capital... Only three non-R.C.A.F. male guests will be Defence Minister Ralston, Air Minister Power and Navy Minister MacDonald...Stu (Vancouver Province) Keate has it that Lieut. Paul Rowe, Victoria basketballer and Calgary footballer, is training in Commando work...Paul has been with the Canadian Army overseas for several months.

W. G. Barnes just can't stay away from Germany. As a cyclist he represented England in the 1934 world championship there. As a flying officer in the R.A.F. he's just been awarded the D.F.C. for bravery during raids on targets in Hitler's country.

It must amaze Hitler—2,000 pairs of football boots have been sent by the Red Cross to British war prisoners in Germany since the start of the year. British sport goes on,

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The schedule of the Catholic Softball League which appears elsewhere today indicates that the teams in that flourishing loop will have plenty of ball this summer. It has been arranged to play five nights a week so the teams will get action plus before the league championship is decided. The same officers who guided the destinies of the organization last season have been returned to office for another year. They are Ed Prete, president, John Driscoll, secretary and John Condin, treasurer and with this hard-working trio at the helm the loop is assured of sound leadship during the 1942 campaign. The setup of the league is the same as last year, the only difference being that the East City club which played under the name of Champs last season will perform under the label Barons this summer. The other four clubs are the East City Cubs, the Knights of Columbus, St. Peter's and the Sacred Heart clubs. A big roster of players has been signed up by each team in view of the large number of games scheduled.

* * * * * *

St. Peter's and the Cubs will pry the lid off the season next Monday night, May 11 with a game at Armour Park, where all the league fixtures will be staged, starting at 7 o'clock. Plans are being made to have the opener marked by suitable ceremonies and three members of the city council, Ald. John E. Sullivan, a friend of softball for many years, Ald. Max Swanston and Ald. Floyd Curtis, will take part in the preliminary exercises that will get the league under way. The Catholic League had a fine season last year, providing a lot of sport and exercise for the players of the five teams and a lot of entertainment and excitement for hundreds of fans who were regular attendants during the campaign. The playoff arrangements will be the same this year as last, the first four teams qualifying for the playoffs. The league hopes to secure the services of Max Board, Mike English and Fred Scates as umpires.

There were only two games played in the Big Show yesterday. the New York Giants and the Pittsburg Pirates breaking even in a National League double-header. Incidentally the twin bill served to confirm an impression formed a few days ago that Canada has produced another big league pitcher. This Mister Aldon Wilkie of Zealandia, Sask., apparently has everything it takes to make a winning gunner. He won his first start in commanding style and yesterday he came right back with another pitching gem, holding the Giants to five hits and winning a twirling duel from Carpenter by 2 runs to 1, a nice bit of work by the Saskatchewan youngster. The rookie triumphed while Pittsburg's unbeaten up to yesterday ace Heintzelman failed to go the route in the second game and was trimmed by Mel Ott's team 6 runs to 2. That sterling New York recruit, Dave Koslo, up from Milwaukee, spaced out seven Pittsburg hits effectively to give the Giants an even split.

Like Everybody Else

The veteran sports scribe, Jim Fitzgerald of the Toronto Telegram has the following timely comment on the calling of professional hockey players for military service: "Don't be alarmed about this whole hockey business. As a morning paper puts it, the "Bugle Calls" to four Leafs as well as other N.H.L. players. The "Bugle Call" is nothing more nor less than that the gentlemen in question come under the age and other conditions that make them subject to military summons and the preliminary physical examinations. Thousands of other young men in this fair land of ours have received similar calls, have felt the finger of military service tapping them on the shoulders. It is only fair to the hockey players hereabouts and elsewhere, not to mention the club officials, that they stand ready to do their duty when called. That they are being sent for is no more nor less than what they were expecting and waiting for and no more and no less than the average John Smith and Bill Brown of the humble citizenry is packing his bags for every day. How many hockey players and other athletes are inducted into the fighting forces before fall will be limited only by the ages, dependents, and other military conditions as govern anybody else."

* * * * * *

"Meanwhile, the American Hockey League which operates with 90 per cent Canadian players purposes carrying on next winter with such men as the army does not need at that time," continues the Fitzgerald article. "And so will the N.H.L. Those players who should be in the services, according to the rules and regulations which apply to all young men alike, will be replaced by others who do not come under that category. Newsom made Bob Feller, Hank Greenberg, Ted Williams and such like ridiculous when the army caught up with them, even if it did not get all of them. Let us be careful that we do not do the same dis-service to our hockey players and other athletes who are not side-stepping the call to arms, nor seeking this unsolicited and unwanted publicity."

Canadians Make Good

There was a time when Canadians in the higher ranks of professional baseball were as scarce as street cars in most smaller centres. The game was booming in an amateur way here but few graduates, Mooney Gibson, Bill O'Hara and Jimmy Archer were conspicuous exceptions—found their way up the professional ladder. Strangely enough the present year with amateur ball in Canada at its lowest ebb in decades the representation of Canadian ball players. particularly of pitchers in baseball's big show is probably the most imposing on record. Not only are there such outstanding outfielders as Jeff Heath and Earl Selkirk starring in the upper crust but there are five Canadian-born pitchers operating in the big leagues at the present moment, four of them products of Ontario. They are Phil Marchildon of Penetang and Dick Fowler of Toronto with the Philadelphia A's; Joe Krakauskas, formerly of Hamilton with the Cleveland Indians and Lefty Judd of Ingersoll with the Boston Red Sox. In the National League, Aldon Wilkie, Saskatchewan star, has already won two games for the Pittsburg Pirates.

* * * * * *

The announcement that the Three Rivers Club of the Canadian-American League will introduce a one-armed outfielder this season will recall to old-timers the fact that this will not be the first time that a one-armed players has starred in Quebec baseball. Peterborough's own Dan McCabe, famous at the turn of the century as a pitcher and noted for his ability to hit as well as to fire the spheroid past opposition batters performed for a number of seasons in the Quebec League. Dan, inspite of the fact that he had only one arm could certainly take his cut up there at the plate and the old guard of fans here will remember how he used to drive homers over the left field fence in the old Cricket Field grounds in East City. When he wasn't pitching the Peterborough star often performed at shortstop or in the outfield.

* * * * * *

Sporting Chili Con Corne: Ralph 'High-Pockets' McCabe, the elongated Belleville right-hander who was given a tryout with the Toronto Leafs this season is now with Harrisburg Senators in the Inter-State League. The youngster pitched a recent game against Hagerstown, Md., and although he lost he struck out eleven of the opposing batters....The Adam Hat Royals of the City Softball League will practice at the Ashburnham Bowl at 6.30 o'clock tonight....No activity has been reported from the Girls' Softball League headquarters so far this season. Last summer only two clubs operated, the C.G.E. and Westclox outfits....With hundreds of girls from out of town now working here there should be material for a couple of new teams....Dave Wilson, speed ball pitcher is lining up with the Hastings club again this season....Julian Wade is also counted upon by the Hastings' management. The young hockey star played in the outfield for Hastings last season....Sam Lo Presti, Chicago Black Hawk goalie has enlisted with Uncle Sam's Navy....And Babe Ruth wants to join the American Army....Chuck Rayner, goalie of the Brooklyn Amerks is now a sailor. He has signed up with the Canadian Navy....The City Softball League would like one more entry to round out a six-team loop. Entries close Monday night at Duffus' at eight o'clock.

Pimlico race track, Baltimore, Md.
Alsab and his owner, Al B. Sabath

Another great racing classic, the rich Preakness Stakes at Pimlico race track, Baltimore, Md., is up for decision tomorrow (Saturday) with Shut Out, the Greentree Stable's Kentucky Derby winner, the probable favorite. On Shut Out against will be Wayne Wright, not Eddie Arcaro, who had his choice of either Shut Out or Devil Diver, the other Greentree entry in the derby, and chose Devil Diver. Arcaro, shown ironically, on Shut out before the derby race was won plans to ride Devil Diver in the Preakness. Most feared horses in the Preakness are Alsab, the gallant campaigner owned by Al B. Sabath of Chicago; Colchis, who twice took Alsab's measure this year, and Sun Again, from the Warren Wright stable. Neither Colchis nor Sun Again went in the derby.

No Chicago Show

CHICAGO, May 8 (AP).—The International Livestock Exposition, North America's biggest show in agriculture for the last 42 years, will not be held this year because of the war, exposition directors decided yesterday.

The directors declared that the principal reason for postponing the 1942 show was because of the anticipated lack of transportation facilities.

In last year's show the amount of cash realized by showmen was estimated at $1,300,000, largest monetary harvest of all time. Entries were from 37 states and four Canadian provinces.

JOHN BULL SMOKES

MANCHESTER—(CP).— During 1941 Britain consumed 221,910,269 ponds of tobacco, 30,000,000 pounds more than in 1940.

We Want "SKYWAYS"!
That's the call from hundreds of pipe smokers since this sensational new brand appeared on the market. "SKYWAYS" is new (and different) made from the finest burley tobaccos grown in sunny southwestern Ontario. It's mild and mellow, yet full-flavored and richly fragrant—truly a pleasure to smoke. Step into your favorite tobacco store and ask for "SKYWAYS" in the new flavor-sealed pouch. It costs only 15c and will give you many "pipes" of real smoking enjoyment.

Switching Around

BEAUMONT, Texas, May 8. — (AP).— Representative Martin Dies (Dem. Texas) said Wednesday that his Un-American Activities Committee will conduct hearings soon in United States West Coast and Mexican Border cities instead of at his ranch home at Jasper, as previously planned. Objections of several committee members caused the change. Dies said threats have been made against members of his family recently, and he considered Washington unsafe for them.

FIRST TWILIGHT TILT OPENS BASEBALL'S AID TO ARMY RELIEF

Pirates, Giants Split Bill 2-1 and 6-2

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baseball will go to bat for war relief to-day with the first of 16 regularly scheduled major league games from which army and navy assistance funds will get all proceeds.

Appropriately this affair will be staged by Brooklyn Dodgers, whose president, L. S. (Larry) MacPhail first campaigned for the big leagues to adopt such a program, and will be unique in that it will be a twilight game and that all persons who enter Ebbets Field, including the players and umpires, will buy tickets.

Even the admission of the peanut and hotdog vendors will be paid for by the concessionaires. Tickets for soldiers and sailors will be bought by various organizations.

Brooklyn's foe for this encounter, starting at 4.45 p.m. E.D.T. will be New York Giants and later the same teams will play a companion piece at the Polo Grounds. The series was planned by MacPhail and President Horace Stoneham of the Giants last month and became the basis for the program evolved by Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis for all other major league clubs.

The present installment in the National League's hottest rivalry comes during a sort of intermission in the intersectional skirmishing of both leagues.

The first siege between the eastern and western clubs came to an end yesterday with inclement weather erasing all games except a doubleheader between the Giant and Pittsburg Pirates.

In the only action yesterday the Pirates captured a 2-1 11th-inning decision in the first half of the bargain bill at Pittsburg and the Giants came back to bag the nightcap 6-2.

Aldon Wilkie pitched five-hit ball in the first game, but a mental lapse by Shortstop Pete Coscarart kept him from a shutout and forced the fracas into overtime. With the bases loaded on two hits and an intentional walk in the fifth inning, Pitcher Bob Carpenter raised a fly to short left. Coscarart caught it, but delayed throwing the ball, and Harry Danning loped home from third base. The Pirates, who made 12 hits, finally pushed across the deciding run in the 11th on singles by Elbie Fletcher and Bob Elliott sandwiched around a sacrifice.

The second session was a tight left-handed hurling duel between Rookie Dave Koslo and the previously unbeaten Ken Heintzelman until Buster Maynard, a recent recruit from New York's Jersey City form, broke a tie score with a three-run homer in the seventh stanza.

Remember When—

Frank Patrick was appointed bench manager of Boston Bruins National Hockey League entry eight years ago today. Brother of Lester of New York Rangers fame and a hockey great in his own right, Frank lasted only one season with the Bruins. Art Ross, who had piloted the team before Patrick took over, replaced him.

Domingo Painted Dark Horse Of Preakness

By MASON BRUNSON
Associated Press Sport Writer

BALTIMORE, May 8.—(AP)—Meet the "lease-lend" colt, Domingo, the "dark horse" of the Preakness field.

English bred, America-backed Domingo is the hope of movieman Louis B. Mayer in tomorrow's 52nd running of Maryland's richest race, to be decided for the winner's purse of $60,000 or more before an expected crowd of 50,000.

As the names of 10 probable starters were dropped into the entry box at Pimlico this morning, Domingo was taking his ease with typical British nonchalance, touched by a bit of Hollywood showmanship.

He's a playful fellow, this Domingo, a handsomely built bay colt which didn't come to the races until a few weeks ago and was a maiden until last Monday.

A handler stepping into his stall to get the war refugee to pose for picture had to place a towel between Domingo's teeth to keep the colt from nipping him mischievously.

So Domingo has personality. But—can he run?

William B. Finnegan, who's in charge of Mayer's turf interests, says:

"Not a horse in America can beat him at six furlongs when he's sharpened for speed."

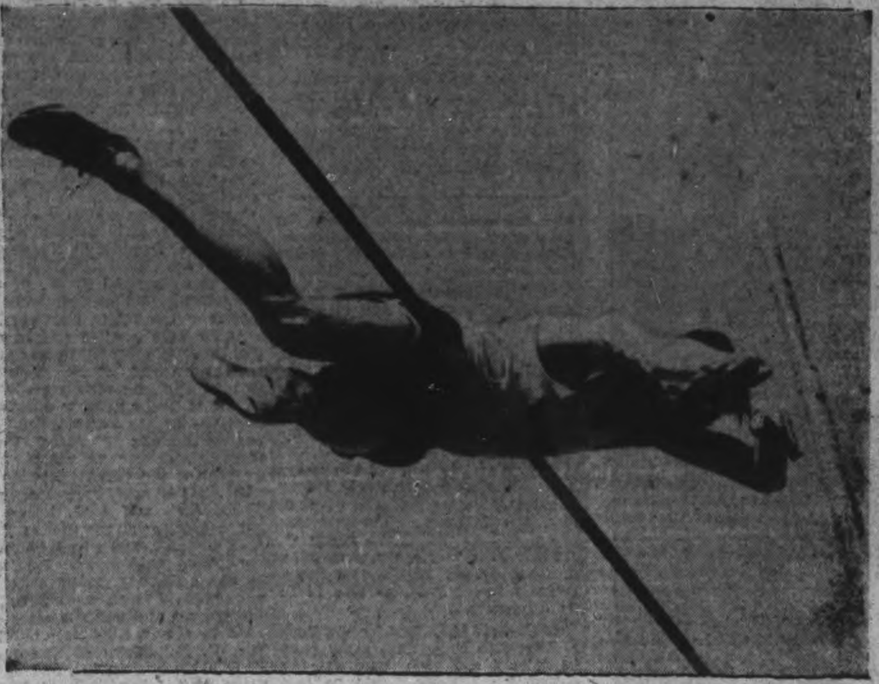
Then he qualified:

"He's still a green colt and has a lot to learn but we believe he's got it in him and is entitled to run with the best. At least, we'll know more about him after Saturday."

Domingo hasn't yet met any horses of the class of Shut Out, Devil Diver, Alsab, Valdina Orphan, Sun Again and others he'll be up against in the Preakness but the experts say his breeding is proof he'll stick it out.

The husky bay colt, which looks a lot like Alfred Vanderbilt's Impound, is the the three-year-old son of Colombo and Oronsay by Sansovino. He was bred in England by Mayer who bought the dam for 1,500 guineas at an auction.

"Flying Dutchman" Cracks Mark



Cornelius Warmerdam is shown clearing the bar at Edwards Field, where he established a new world outdoor pole vaulting record of 15 feet 6 7-8 inches. It was the 19th time in his amazing career he has leaped over 15 feet—a height no other athlete has ever attained.

One-Arm Fielder Live Cog

THREE RIVERS, May 8. — The Three Rivers club of the Canadian-American League will introduce this season a one-armed outfielder. He is Peter Gray, who plays in centre field, has a bullet-like throw and hits over .300, despite his handicap.

Hailing from Nanticoke, a little mining centre in the hills of Pennsylvania, Gray has been starring in semi-pro ball since he was 19, some ten years ago. He lost his right arm in childhood, after a railway accident, but by continuous practice and an ardent desire to play ball he conquered the almost insurmountable obstacle to a career on the diamond.

Gray will be no stranger to Three Rivers, as he played semi-pro ball here in 1938 and compiled a batting average of .306 in 37 games. He has an uncanny skill in catching and throwing the ball with one arm. His fielding style is said to be flawless and, though holding the bat with one hand, he gets much power behind his drives.

Orioles Proving Surprise Team Of Loop

By The Associated Press

The surprise team of the International League, where bad weather forced postponement of all three games scheduled yesterday, is the third-place Baltimore Orioles, who finished the 1941 campaign in seventh place.

This season Cleveland Indians sent them some players — Bob Lemon, Jack Conway, Mike Naymick and Hank Edward to mention a few.

They got off to a bad start, losing three straight to Rochester Red Wings. But then the new blood sent them by the American League club began to click.

Lemon and Edwards provided the home run punch that was sorely needed. Lemon to date has accounted for eight round-trippers, more than he had all last season. The guiding hand of the veteran second baseman Sammy Bell has held the youthful infield together. It is one of the smoothest combinations in the circuit.

Newark Bears are going along at a clip that has been their custom for the last four seasons. The Bears are leading the second-place Montreal Royals by three games. They have won 11 of their last 12 games.

The most disappointing team is Rochester Red Wings, now in sixth place. Rochester's pitching seems to be at fault. Only five hurlers have gone the distance with Ira Hutchinson going twice. Clem Dreisewerd and Matthew Surkont have not lived up to last year's performances. Surkont is bothered with a sore arm, and Dreisewerd is plagued with one bad inning every game.

All eight teams are scheduled to take the field today, weather permitting.

Wright Upsets Costantino Victory Streak

NEW YORK, May 8—(AP).—Like baseballer Joe DiMaggio and golfer Ben Hogan, boxer Lulu Costantino stubbed his toe on No. 57.

Winner of 56 straight fights as a professional, Costantino reached the end of his string of victories last night when he was outpointed by Chalky Wright of Los Angeles, recognized in New York State as world featherweight champion, in an eight-round non-title scrap.

DiMaggio, in compiling his record batting streak last season, hit safely in 56 consecutive games but missed in the 57th. Hogan finished in the money in 56 straight golf tournaments before his streak also ended in the 57th last fall.

A crowd of 6,000 was on hand at St. Nicholas Palace last night to see the California Negro gain the decision over the battler from New York's east side. Both fighters weighed 128 pounds.

There were no knockdowns and neither scrapper was hurt seriously, but Wright piled up points on his superior infighting.

Sport Equipment For Troops At Hong Kong

TORONTO, May 8.—Sports and general recreation equipment for the 1,700 Canadians held prisoners in Hong Kong will be shipped by the Sports Service League within the next two weeks, it was announced by Fred Hamilton at the 32nd meeting of the Sports Committee of the Citizens' Committee for Troops in Training held in Toronto yesterday afternoon.

Acting on a letter from Lieutenant-Colonel F. W. Clarke, Ottawa, which was tabled by Jack Porter, chairman of the Sports Committee, the Sports Service League will send softballs, bats, soccer balls, deck tennis sets, quoits, decks of cards, checkers, backgammon and other outdoor and indoor games.

The shipments will be divided into three separate classes, as it is understood that the 1,700 prisoners are located in three camps. They will be sent through the Red Cross along with shipments of medicine, foodstuffs and clothing.

Another outstanding contribution was made by Lionel Conacher, head of the Ontario Athletic Commission, who announced that the commission was going to outfit 100 softball diamonds throughout Ontario—fifty for the army and fifty for the air force.

One hundred dozen balls, sufficient bases, bats, masks and so on—all the material necessary to keep softball going on these 100 diamonds is to be supplied.

"Rather than dole out equipment, piecemeal I believe we can accomplish more for the boys by adopting such a plan, Mr. Conacher stated.

He indicated that tournaments would be held between the air force and the army to decide Ontario softball champions, with the winners receiving medals from the Ontario Athletic Commission.

Hoyt Unfolds Salary Debate

CINCINNATI, May 8. — Visiting Waite Hoyt, former pitcher, in Cincinnati, where he now is a broadcaster of the Reds' games, Jerry Mitchell of the New York Post found that Waite still likes to talk about the good old days of "Murderers' Row" on the Yankees.

Hoyt told Mitchell that he once was having trouble over his contract and was told to see Jacob Ruppert, late president of the club.

"'Vell, Hoyts,' old Jake said in his German accent, 'drouble mit you, too, heh?'" related Hoyt.... "'Ruth vants $85,000, dis fellow vants $30,000, anudder vants $25,000, und now Hoyts.'....He shook his head and tried to talk me into a bonus clause, but I wouldn't go for it and he said I'd better go into the other room and cool off.

"The four walls of the other room were covered with pictures of the various Ruppert properties and I killed time by looking at them," Waite continued. "When Jake came in he noticed what I was doing."

"'Some properties, heh? Dot one dere—dot's my country estate, cost me $800,000. Next is my building at Forty-Second street, cost me dun a million. Next is the brewery, two millions und a half. Next my place on Fifth Avenue, $500,000.'

"Then we started into the office and he asked me what I thought I was worth in salary. Twenty-five thousand?' he said. 'Vat do you tink I am, a millionaire?'"

No Reply to Proposals

The Foreign Office commentator, in explaining the British offer, declared:

"They informed authorities that the territory of Madagascar would remain French and after the war would be restored to French sovereignty.

"They further stated that if members of civil and military organizations declared their intention to co-operate with the United Nations their salaries and pensions would be provided from funds to be made available for that specific purpose.

"A guarantee of repatriation was given civil and military personnel who did not wish to co-operate with the United Nations and could claim the right to reside in Metropolitan France. Repatriation would take place when ships were available.

"The force commanders also announced the intention of the United Nations not only to restore their trade with the island but to extend to Madagascar every economic benefit accorded to French territories which already had joined the Allies.

"The condition laid down by the force commanders was that no destruction of civil or military installations, war stores, armament or other supplies must be carried out by the French on the island."

Presumably, he added, no reply was made to these proposals.

MORE ABOUT—

Canadian Navy

tion's young but growing sea force now has 400 ships and 31,000 men and by next March hopes to have another 100 ships and another 13,000 men.

"Co-operation on the Atlantic is very close as between British and American ships and our own," said the minister.

"The burden of convoying on the Atlantic is shared in about equal proportions by the three countries, Great Britain and the United States doing perhaps a little more because they are bigger and have more ships. But we are doing nearly one-third of the work.

"I am speaking of convoying now, not of engaging in any great battle with battleships because we have not the battleships. Our Navy is a convoy Navy up to the moment and the distribution of the work on the Atlantic works out nearly one-third British, one-third United States, and perhaps a little less than one-third Canadian.

Asked by John Diefenbaker (Con. Lake Centre) for a statement on shipping losses as compared with new construction and the status of the battle of the Atlantic Mr. Macdonald said he would prefer to give a considered answer to the question today. Mr. Diefenbaker emphasized he was not seeking any information which should not be disclosed.

Members of the House grew somewhat lyrical and more inclined to flights of oratory than for a long time during discussion of the navy's share of the $2,000,000,000 war appropriation bill.

Mr. Macdonald himself set the tone of the discussion by winding up his preliminary statement with a tribute to the great traditions of the Royal Navy. He recalled the exploits of its immortal commanders from Drake down to the heroes of the present war and quoted a verse from Newbolt's poem ending with the line in which he promises to come back from the grave and "gun them up the channel as we gunned them long ago."

Douglas Ross (Con. Toronto-St. Paul's) caught the poetic spirit and quoted a verse from Kipling's "Rule Britannia." John B. MacNichol (Con. Toronto-Davenport) was also moved to poetry and recited this passage from an unnamed poet:

"The sea is God's. He made it.
"But England shall keep it free."

Later Angus MacInnis (C.C.F. Vancouver East) took his fellow members to task for giving way to their emotions and used Shelley as a corrective. His quotations from the English poet started off:

"Men of England, wherefore plough
"For the lords who lay ye low."

Conservative House Leader Hanson had no poetic quotations for the debate but contributed a few nostalgic sentiments about the sea. He said he was born by the sea, sailed the stormy waters of the Bay of Fundy until he was 22 and always regretted he had to leave the coast to earn his living in the inland New Brunswick city of Fredericton.

Conveyed 9,000 Ships

Mr. Macdonald said Canada's Navy was essentially a convoy navy. It had shepherded more than 56,000,000 tons of cargo and 9,000 ships across the Atlantic since the start of the war.

Most opposition members who spoke in the discussion urged steps to place the men of the navy on a basis of parity with those of the Army and Air Force in dependents' allowances. Mr. Macdonald said he hoped to be able to make an announcement that is being done today.

He said allowances for the Navy were lower than for the other services and the matter now was before a treasury board. When he came to deal with it he found that while in some respects the Navy men received less, in other respects they received more and adjustments had to be made.

The minister also disclosed a women's branch of the Navy is being organized and that leading members of the "Wrens," the British Women's Naval organization, are coming here to help get it established. He expects several thousand women can be used to replace men in various administrative and other jobs.

The Navy's share of the war appropriation bill, said the minister, was $258,542,716. The larger items going to make up this total were pay and allowances, $53,195,000; purchase, construction, charter and repair of ships, $80,153,000; buildings, $21,965,000; stores, equipment and supplies, $52,720,000, armament stores, $84,156,000.

Officers Main Need.

The great need of the sea-going force was trained officers and petty officers. The finding of enough men for these posts was a problem and was the chief governing factor in the expansion of the force. It took time to get them qualified for responsible command posts.

So far more than 500, ratings have been promoted to commissioned officer rank and there was no bar to advancement in the navy except inefficiency.

The Minister said it was unfortunate that the old Canadian Naval College at Halifax was closed in 1923 and hoped the new college to open in September near Esquimalt, B.C., will be a permanent institution, and serve as a training place for men entering the naval profession either as officers of the navy or the mercantile marine.

"I hope also that after this war Canada will resume and even enhance her position as one of the great trading nations of the world," he said, "sending her goods to all parts of the world. If that is to be so we must have in this country an establishment wherein men to man Canadian ships can be fully trained."

Approximately half of the navys 400 ships were "shooting ships," capable of taking aggressive action, said the Minister. The shooting ships include about 75 corvettes, roughly 45 minesweepers, more than a dozen armed yachts, two dozen fairmile motor launches and 12 to 20 destroyers.

Additional destroyers for the Royal Canadian Navy were being built in Britain and some were nearing completion. Keels would be laid for destroyers to be built in Canada within the next few months.

Mr. MacDonald said progress with destroyer-building in Canada was slower than was anticipated but it was difficult to obtain the special type steel required. It was hoped at first to get it in England but that had proved impossible. Then arrangements were made to obtain it in the United States.

When the United States entered the war all the steel was held up for American requirements but recently arrangements had been made to secure a sufficient quantity to proceed with the work.

Still Fighting

London, May 8. (CP)

A military commentator said today British defence forces in Burma still are operating in the Chindwin Valley northwest of Mandalay, but whether they are under active attack by the Japanese is not known.

He said that although civilians and wounded soldiers are being removed from Burma by plane, it would be wrong to assume that British forces are trying to escape encirclement by that means.

Thomas S. Rath Dies In Tweed

TWEED, May 8 — (ENS).—Following an illness of only ten days, Thomas S. Rath, proprietor of the Tweed Hardware, and one of the most popular and respected citizens of Tweed, died at his home on Wednesday night. He was in his 69th year.

Born in the Township of Hungerford, the son of the late Henry Rath and Anne Sexsmith, he had lived practically all his life in the Tweed district. He was educated in Tweed schools and early in life apprenticed as a tinsmith in the shop of the late John Robertson, Tweed, and later was employed by W. S. Gordon. Since 1910 he had been proprietor of the Tweed Hardware.

Active in municipal and in community affairs, Mr. Rath was at one time a member of the Municipal Council and was always ready and willing to lend a hand to worthwhile activities in the community. He was a member of Tweed United Church and was an elder and a member of the Official Board.

Mr. Rath was Past Master of Tweed A.F. and A.M. Lodge No. 239, a member of the Madoc Royal Arch Chapter, and also belonged to the Tweed Oddfellows. Politically, he was a staunch Conservative and was held in high regard by acquaintances and business associates.

He is survived by two children, Mrs. C. R. Brown of Tweed and T. E. Rath of Sulphide, and by one sister, Miss Libby Rath of Tweed. His wife, the former Maggie Coyle, predeceased him in January, 1942, while a second son, Lt. Harry Rath, D.F.C., was killed overseas in the First Great War.

CLEANING UP.

The last remnants of the winter months are almost all cleaned up. The trucks are out picking up the last dead limbs and gathering up the old leaves, and brushing away the sand that still clings to some of the curb stones, but the job will soon be finished.

A WAR SLOGAN

"Wonder who writes F.D.R.'s punch lines?" Walter Winchell enquires merely as an observation. "In his speech he had one that could easily have rounded out a column or broadcast—so much sock did it have. I mean this one: 'We cannot have all we want if our soldiers and sailors are to have 'all they need!' Say, that's worth money."

CAR GOES INTO DITCH

An automobile belonging to L. H. Marsh, 183 Murray street, went into the ditch on Armour Road just north of Highway 7 after the driver who had been travelling on the highway tried to make a left turn on to Armour Road. The automobile ran along the shoulder of the road for some distance before going into the ditch. No one was hurt.

KEEPING A 'DATE'

A.R.P. Wardens are reminded of the three special lectures covering their duties next week. Wednesday night at the Lyceum, upstairs and Thursday night at Knox Church assembly hall. These meetings will complete their course, and a full attendance is expected.

380 Persons In Burnham's Point Colony

To the end of March the average family in the Burnham's Point community had burned two tons of coal, an indication of the economic effect of the insulation used in the Wartime houses. Some of the householders had exceeded two tons, but not one of them had bought four tons during the entire winter period and the first month of spring.

These are not official figures from the local Wartime Housing office, but the Examiner obtained them with considerable assurance that they are correct.

The Housing tenants almost without exception said they were well satisfied with their first winter's experience in the Little Lake colony.

The average number of occupants of the 82 houses in March was 4.62, indicating a total population of 379 or 380. A few of the houses reported eight to ten persons under their roofs, but they were the exceptions.

Friends Honor Havelock Girl

HAVELOCK, May 8 — (ENS).—Mrs. H. W. Roche and daughter, Mrs. C. W. Couch, entertained at the former's home on Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Reta Leeson, whose marriage takes place on Saturday. About 25 guests were present, including four from out of town, Mrs. Fred Watson, Toronto, Mrs. George Couch, Miss Viola Couch and Miss Jean Hendy, of Campbellford. The living-room and dining-room looked attractive with a profusion of spring flowers. A wedding contest, with all answers names of trees, was won by Mrs. Lawrence Sanderson. A game of telegrams was conducted by Jean and Joan Quinn acting as bell-boys, and every guest received a telegram which they had to read aloud, and caused much fun and laughter. The last telegram was for the guest of honor, and was in the form of an address, which was read aloud by Jean Quinn to the bride-elect, after which a beautiful round carved walnut table and a white table lamp were presented by Joan Quinn and Mrs. Charles Couch. Miss Leeson, in her winsome manner, expressed her appreciation, and the Quinn twins sang a suitable duet. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Lawrence Sanderson and Mrs. Robert Sayers in buffet style from the dining-room table, with its lovely lace cloth, silver basket of mauve tulips, mauve and yellow pansies, and tall yellow candles in silver holders.

Normal School Makes $51 For War Victims

Before an audience which taxed the Normal School Assembly Room to its limit, even requiring the use of extra chairs, the students of the Normal School repeated their recent presentation of "Cavalcade of Canada" under the direction of Quirt McKinney, supervisor of music, which in itself is direct evidence of the quality of performance given at its initial appearance. The text of this had been written by the principal of the school, Dr. J. A. Bannister, and was written with a view to portray the cultural advantages that had come to Canada from Europe. Added to this was a display of handicraft work by the students themselves, all of them designed so as to be of interest to the young people it will their privilege to guide to greater knowledge, in fitting them for the larger field of life's endeavors. These included exhibits in social studies, manual training, home economics and art studies.

Then the annual event of crowning of the May Queen, who this year was Miss Helen Foster of Campbellcroft, the outstanding girl student, and the valedictory address by the outstanding boy student who was Ellwood Moore of Castleton, also featured this most successful evening.

Such was the background for an opportunity to give some aid to the victims of air raids over Britain, and this too proved very successful, for in today's list for the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, there is listed the fine amount of $51.09, the net proceeds of a collection taken during the evening, which was turned over to the fund management by the principal of the school in person, to whom congratulations are due for the success attained by the staff and pupils not only for the success which attended the production, but also for the amount of help it has been made the occasion of giving to the people of Britain.

Lucky 13 Club

A group of ladies, who, as their name surmises, has 13 members refuting the bad luck stories associated with this number, have for a number of years been meeting bi-weekly as a bridge club, and one year ago they gave a contribution to the fund, and again have duplicated this with a $17 donation listed today in their name per Mrs. R. G. Gavine. On both occasions it was a result of the ladies putting aside a little at each meeting in a box kept for that purpose, so that in the midst of their own pleasure they were not unmindful of the needs of others less fortunately situated.

A regular contributor who gives under the name of Somerset, is listed today with a contribution of $2.70, which was made up of eight shin-plasters, and 14 small five-cent pieces, which had been saved up in years gone by, and who felt that the money could do far more good in this manner, than lying idly by as a keepsake, and in this there was really very sound judgment, coupled with a desire to do some good.

Schools Plan Community Chest Assistance

First gun in the Community Fund drive will be fired on Monday morning when all schools in the city will be asked to have individual funds started. In this way all school pupils may bring coppers, nickels, dimes or any sum to the school, and this will help swell the fund which is scheduled to get into high gear between May 15 and 22.

Committees are all shaping up, and canvassers are being trained in their duties, so that all classes in the city will be contacted and will have an opportunity to contribute the amount that circumstances will permit.

Mrs. J. R. Marshall has been named co-chairman to act with Mrs. Paige Rowell in directing the women's division. These women will canvass a special list, which would not be reached by the industrial, retail or special names canvassers, and includes teachers, nurses, clergymen, retired people and others.

Roland Krant Heads Y's Men

Roland Krant, hard-working and popular member of the Y's Men's Club, was elected president of the organization for 1942 at the annual election of officers held on Thursday evening. In this club the new year starts in September but officers are always elected at this time of the year, due to the fact that the summer vacation period usually slows down club activities.

The complete slate is as follows: Roland Krant, president; George Moore, vice-president; Bob Simmons, 2nd vice-president; Norman Henderson, secretary; and J. Errol Wilson, treasurer.

Car Is Sideswiped Driver Fails To Stop

Police were endeavoring last night to discover the hit-and-run driver whose car collided with another automobile driven by a North Monaghan man at Armour Road and McFarlane streets and who sped away after the accident without stopping.

Melville McKee, R.R. 3, North Monaghan, was driving his car south on Armour Road, he reported to police, when a northbound car sideswiped his machine in passing tearing the left rear fender and pushing it over the left rear wheel and knocking off the hub cap. The other automobile he said kept on going after the accident.

The only clue available to the police was a hub cap evidently knocked off the hit-and-run car. The accident happened at 9.40 o'clock.

No Employable On April Relief List

The regular monthly meeting of the relief committee of the City Council was held Thursday afternoon with Chairman R. M. Glover, His Worship Mayor Hamilton and Hon. G. N. Gordon, members of the committee, present.

A. G. Metheral, head of the welfare department, presented his report to April 30th. Relief for the month of April amounted to $1,405.21 as against $2,313.13 for April of last year. The total number of individuals on relief April 30th, 1942, was 166 as against 279 April, 1941. There is not one employable person on relief in Peterborough at the present time nor has there been for the past six months.

There has been an increase in hospitalization during the first four months of this year of $366.25 as against last year's costs for the same period. This matter was under discussion as it was felt that with a considerably less number on relief the amount to be paid for hospital cases would be comparatively reduced. In view of the situation that both hospitals have been and still are at capacity with patients a motion was passed suggesting that the Medical Officer of Health and Mr. Metheral use the services of the Victorian Order of Nurses wherever it was passible to do so.

It was reported that the city had on hand 500 cords of first class hardwood and that it was the intention of the committee to retain it for their own use.

Relief gardens in the city's property at the north end of the city will be in operation again this year. These lots will be laid out shortly and any person who desires a lot may have one. It is not necessary to be on relief to get one. Applications are to be made at the Welfare Office, Corner Queen and Simcoe streets.

$8.46 Per Capita

Mr. Metheral's report showed that while the monthly relief bill is again decreased the amount received by each person is up from $8.29 in April last year to $8.46 in April, 1942.

The monthly expenditure for April was $1,405.21 as compared with $2,313.13 a year ago. And the number of persons on relief has dropped from 279 to 166.

Relief distribution for the first four months amounted to $7,578.83. Rebates from the government $4,061.57 and from the Ontario Medical Association, $320, total $4,381.57, leaving $3,197.26 paid from the city's treasury.

The Council appropriated $12,000 for the year's relief, has expended already $3,197.26, and has left $8,802.74 for eight months.

Jewels Given 10 Oddfellows

Ten 25-year jewels were presented at the Oddfellow's Temple on Thursday when Peterborough Lodge No. 111 held a Past Grand's evening, and 75 members and visitors enjoyed the banquet which concluded the evening's program.

W. L. Elson of Millbrook, D.D.G.M., had charge of the presentation and was assisted by W. G. Hillier, N.G. The initiatory degree was carried out by a team headed by Sherman Rowe and composed of past grands, with one candidate.

Those receiving 25-year jewels were J. H. Anderson, Guelph; George Brown, Toronto; J. W. Patten, Toronto; W. E. Smithson, Oshawa; Percy Hooper, W. T. Jeffery, Sheldon Huffman, Charles Wiley and H. A. Sisson all of Peterborough, and William Cresswell of Lindsay.

Joseph Lancashire was chairman at the banquet which followed. The toast to the Grand Lodge was proposed by William Constable, Past Grand Messenger, and W. L. Elson, D.D.G.M., responded. J. E. Baughan, V.G., proposed the toast to the veterans, and J. H. Vallery replied. Jim Price, Sr. P.G., expressed the thanks of the men to the members of the Golden Link Rebekah Lodge for the banquet, and Mrs. J. Roberts spoke in return.

Youth Escapes From Shelter

Arrested here Wednesday and taken back to Lindsay Thursday by Provincial Constable McBrien, a fifteen-year-old Little Britain boy wanted for car theft made his escape from the Children's Aid Society Shelter at Lindsay late in the afternoon and is still at large, police here have been informed.

The youngster who had registered and paid for a room in one local hotel threw the police off the trail temporarily by going to another hotel for the night. However, he was arrested the next day when Provincial Constable L. A. McClure happened to see him on the street. Now he's at liberty again.

New Recruiting Officer At Armouries

Major V. C. Eastwood took over today from Major Ralph Honey as area recruiting officer. In future, Major Eastwood will be in charge of all recruiting at the Armories, while the actual documentation of men for the Rangers will continue to be a regimental responsibility. Major Eastwood will be assisted by R.Q.M.S. Harold Chate. Yesterday there were several applicants at the office. One man came from far west of Toronto to join the Rangers, but had to be refused as he was under age.

Personnel of the Rangers move off almost daily for special training at various camps across the country. Captain Craig will shortly leave for R.M.C., Kingston, for a three months' course for company commanders, which will probably conclude with an inspection tour of training centres across the Dominion. Captain Craig spent the first afternoon of his leave at the Armories yesterday, watching the inspection of the P.C.V.S. Cadet Corps, of which he was formerly in charge. During his absence, Lieutenant Jack Smith will serve as acting adjutant.

Early this morning C.Q.M.S. Walsh left for Long Branch to attend the Small Arms Training School there. R.S.M. Andy Jackson is already taking platoon weapon training there, and Skeeter will take the same training.

New signs of the move to Niagara appear each day at the Armories. During the week, for example, a supply of two-inch mortars arrived at battalion headquarters. Captain Morley was busy Thursday studying the new scales of rations which will come into force soon after the Rangers reach Camp Niagara. After June 1, the Rangers, like the the rest of the army, will get a more varied diet in which a slight reduction in meat, bread, rice, potatoes and sugar will be more than offset by an increase in fresh vegetables, milk and fruit. Captain Morley is planning ahead so that the shift to this new summer ration will be made smoothly.

New Red Cross Call Seeks 9 Million Of '42

TORONTO, May 8.—(CP).—The Canadian Red Cross will launch the greatest national appeal in its history May 11 when Canadians will be asked to subscribe $9,000,000 to continue the society's work in the coming fiscal year.

Since the outbreak of the war the Canadian people have given Red Cross Societies more than $16,000,000 to carry on their work. With this money the society has equipped and presented to the Canadian Medical Service a 600-bed hospital in Britain as well as providing 36 mobile kitchens, 232 ambulances, literally tons of comforts including food parcels and relief clothing for members of the armed forces, prisoners of war, British air-raid victims and relief emergencies.

Blood clinics throughout the country now are receiving nearly 3,000 donations a day to be used in saving the lives of Canadian troops on active service and victims of air-raids in Britain. The organization expects to double its output of prisoners of war parcels in the coming year.

Nearly 9,000,000 articles of comforts and supplies were sent to Britain alone since the outbreak of war, including 5,000,000 surgical dressings, 3,000,000 articles of relief clothing 77,000 cases of honey, jam, butter cigarettes and canned goods and a variety of essential supplies for the organization's ambulance service.

In Canada the Red Cross is packing 40,000 food parcels every week for Canadian and British prisoners of war and funds are at hand to feed Canadian prisoners of war in the Far East.

Order US Papers Be Ready To Cut Deliveries May 15

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP).—Office of Defence Transportation officials were reported today to be insisting that the newspaper industry in the United States must be ready to comply with an order reducing deliveries May 15.

Officials said that at present there is no intention of deferring the order of Joseph B. Eastman, O.D.T. director, to permit working out compliance programs.

The order was issued April 20, but thus far only two plans have been submitted—one by the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, and the other by the New York papers.

Both plans call for elimination of deliveries by vehicle to individual subscribers (such as rural routes), use of contract carriers where possible, abolition of overlapping routes and pooling of deliveries where possible. In addition, the New York group told Edmund Brady, chief of the local delivery unit of O.D.T., that it already had reduced the number of editions.

Informal conversations have been going on with representatives of newspapers in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, Ore., Philadelphia, and Chicago.

Eastman's order requires that, beginning May 15 an individual or company may make only one vehicle delivery a day to any one person.

Hits All Agencies

The order applies to governmental agencies as private operators of autos and trucks.

The Newspaper Guild of New York and the newspaper deliverymen's organization have urged the O.D.T. to consider the problem of decreased employment likely to result from fewer editions. Officials said the problem is being discussed, but added it is up to the newspapers to work out plans which would cause a minimum of hardship. The O.D.T. will consider any reasonable suggestions, an official said, and will not insist on a single delivery to a sales or redistribution point if a method can be worked out which will accomplish the aim of reducing mileage for delivery vehicles.

Thus, it was explained by one spokesman, if two newspapers could arrange to pool their delivery facilities, each could send out two editions. Pooling arrangements will be subject of scrutiny by the Justice Department and O.D.T., however.

Eastman has the authority to revise the order as he sees fit.

U.S. Troops Train In Own Desert For Far Fields

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE 1ST ARMORED CORPS IN THE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA DESERT May 8.—(AP)—This is "little Libya", the vast expanse of desert which the United States army has just selected as coming closest to the wastes of North Africa, Iran, Iraq and Australia.

Here the 1st Armored Corps has set up a large camp, extending for miles, and with sizeable forces of tanks, mobile tank-destroyer guns and auxiliary vehicles by the hundreds, is rehearsing the operations it will use in earnest on that hoped-for day soon "when we get a crack at the Germans and the Japs."

Here for the first time United States armored units are practicing tank-versus-tank engagements under actual desert conditions. Tanks have participated extensively in the army manoeuvres previously, but on the basis of tanks versus infantry and artillery, and in country where lare-scale operations were hampered by civilization.

Just Parched Land

Out here there is no civilization—nothing but barren, lifeless mountains, sagebrush and bare parched desert which the beating sun reduces to a uniform white glare. The space for operations is virtually unlimited. The federal land which the army has taken to work in is roughly 90 miles wide and 180 long—16,000 square miles—the largest military reservation in history.

The operations are arduous, pushing heavy vehicles, by will power, ingenuity and profanity slowly over the yielding sands for 50, 60, 70 miles against a hypothetical enemy camping out for a day or two entirely self-sustained with food, gasoline, water and repairs, and then trekking back, to review mistakes and try it again.

English Village Expects Rivals For The Quints

CULHAM, England, May 8 — If 210-pound Mrs. Emily Woodley gives birth to anything less than quintuplets, a goal doctors say she may achieve next week, this is going to be a mighty disappointed village.

To a man and woman, the village is counting on Mrs. Woodley, 28-year-old daughter of the local pub proprietor, to make it a second Callander, Ontario. It can hardly wait. In the words of rotund Frank Whitehead, owner of the Lion Inn and the prospective grandfather:

"We wish Emily would get on with the job. The suspense is killing us."

Long since X-rays have established that there was a good possibility of the fair-haired Mrs. Woodley having quadruplets. But Culham fixed its eyes on the glittering beacon of world renown only when Oxford medical men, who examined the X-rays, said the Dionne quintuplets might be getting some competition about May 12 or 15.

Jack Woodley, the bewildered but happy prospective father, is 34 and a private in the army. He was given a special leave of two months for the occasion.

The whole Thames-side community in Oxfordshire is on tenterhooks. One of the most common exclamations in the Lion Inn these days is "Look what the Dionnes did for Callander."

When Dr. J. H. Fisher saw in his X-rays that Mrs. Woodley might have quadruplets, the villagers built four cots and painted them blue at Mrs. Woodley's request. The womenfolk began the mass production of layettes and diapers.

Then came the big news, and they had to go on from there.

The soldier's wife is the youngest of Whitehead's six daughters. The pub keeper takes scarcely less pride in the prospect of becoming the grandfather of quintuplets than in the heft of his family.

"We are considered the heaviest family in Oxfordshire," he bragged. "My wife, our six daughter and I weigh 1,582 pounds among us."

Mrs. Woodley is in Warren Hospital at Abdingdon, four miles from Culham. The hospital matron said she was in fine condition. Her husband bicycles twice a day to visit her, and after the evening visit pedals back to his father-in-law's pub to help out.

Dr. Fisher said he had read and reread everything he could lay his hands on about the Dionne quintuplets, and the villagers were confident that he was ready for eventualities.

Peace Factories Doing Great Wartime Job

FERGUS, Ont., May 8.—(CP).—Ontario is fortunate in having an industrial structure so quickly adaptable to the 'great task" of changing from peace to war production, W. L. Ham to-day told the Ontario Division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

"Plants built for the production of civilian lines of goods are now with marked success turning out merchandise for war needs," said Mr. Ham, chairman of the division and vice-president and general manager of Beatty Bros. Ltd., hosts to the association at its first annual meeting outside a city.

"I have not heard of a single instance of an industry unwilling to undertake any war-production job within its capacity," he added. "Our industrial structure has been developed through the leadership of enterprising and devoted management and loyal and efficient workers."

Mr. Ham said it should be the aim of all far-seeing Canadians to see that industry "emerges from this great effort in a position to do its part in the tremendous burden of post-war reconstruction."

"The time will come when production for war will cease and swords must be beaten back into plow shares. The terms and conditions of Government contracts and the burden of taxation borne by industry should not be so onerous that industry will be left financially unable in the post-war period to carry the burdens of production and employment which will then be so vital to our country's welfare."

Single Women To Take Up Industry Slack

MONTREAL, May 8.—(CP).—The machinery of National Selective Service is being designed to be of use in postwar years as well as in meeting needs of wartime production, Paul Goulet, associate director of selective service, said Monday night in an address to the Canadian Conference on Social Work.

Mr. Goulet dealt particularly with the increasing place of women in industry. Present conditions did not indicate any sudden movement, but a gradual process with women taking up the slack as men enlisted or moved to other jobs, he said.

Problems in home conditions and the care of children would result from an increase of women in industry and would have to be met in the selective service program.

Dealing with the restricted occupations in which no able-bodied man between the ages of 17 and 45 may take new employment without a permit, Mr. Goulet said:

"A restricted occupation is not necessarily a non-essential occupation. It is an occupation at which we believe a woman or older man can be employed.

"As production demands more and more of us, women will have to take up the slack. When that occurs it should follow a reasonable and practical course. The desirable schedule is fairly obvious: Single women first. They will be followed preferably by married women without children. Lastly mothers."

This sequence would hold social welfare problems to a minimum, he said.

V.O.N. Shows Case Increase Over Last Year

In the medical and surgical cases registered for the first four months of this year with the V.O.N. there is an increase of 27 over the corresponding time last year. The increase in visits to cases in this classification is 596. This disproportionate increase is due partly to visits made to chronic cases registered and visited regularly over a period of months, and partly to the fact that patients are being released from hospital much earlier than would usually be the case, in order to release the bed for more urgent cases.

The admission of mothers and babies for educational purposes show a satisfactory increase of 47 over the corresponding months of last year, with a corresponding increase (118) over last year. During the month of April 52 new cases were registered and a total of 600 visits made, 20 night calls were answered, of which five were for confinements, four operations were attended.

Helen Roger Aux Hears Of China At May Meeting

Mrs. Thomas Taylor, Reid street, was hostess to the members of the Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox Church for their May meeting, when 25 members answered the roll call and three visitors were welcomed by the president, Mrs. H. Clegg. A communication was read from Miss Annie Crocker, Fort Erie, who is an associated member of the Auxiliary.

"The Church, the Household of Faith," was the theme of the very inspiring worship service conducted by Mrs. Irwin Oesch.

A comprehensive review of Chapter 4, "Serving with the Sons of Shuh," was given by Mrs. Clegg, who told of a former crisis in the history of China, 1922-27—the time when for the masses of the Chinese people the revolution reached its climax. It was then that Chiang Kai-Shek first came into a positon of leadership. The Chinese Christians were severly tested but they met the test gloriously.

These China programs are becoming increasingly interesting as we approach a study of present day China.

Chapter 5, "The Chinese Church Comes of Age," depicted a meeting of the Szechuan Synod of the Church of Christ in China, with its fine personalities, Chinese and Canadian, who reported the amazing progress of the work of the church.

Mrs. Ernest Mesley, as leader of the Synod, was assisted by the following members who acted as delegates: Mrs. H. Williamson, Mrs. Ian McRae, Mrs. J. Donaldson, Mrs. Ross Williamson, Mrs. W. Dale, and Mrs. I. Oesch.

An interesting feature of this Synod meeting was a "flanograph" demonstration of the Sunday school lesson, "The Baptism and Temptation of Jesus," While Mrs. E. Mesley told the story, Mrs. R. Hanscom very effectively placed the pictures on the "flanograph" board.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Stewart, 475 Albert street.

The co-hostesses for the evening, Mrs. A. Pitchford, Mrs. R. Bowen and Mrs. G. Morrison, served tea and a social half hour was enjoyed.

The following officers were elected for the year 1942-3. Rev. E. W. Rowland, chairman; Rev. J. R. Trumpour, secretary; Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, treasurer; Dr. E. W. Young, Press Correspondent. Lay delegates to conference will be the lay members of Presbytery and a list of alternates was made to take the place of those who are unable to attend.

Cost-of-Living Bonus

H. G. Walker introduced a resolution declaring that a cost of living bonus should be given to ministers to meet the increased cost of living, this would amount to $200 a year. The Presbytery adopted the resolution and a letter will be sent sent out to each official board within the presbytery.

Dr. G. Easton on behalf of the property committee proposed the sanction of the sale of Knox church manse. This was passed.

Rev. A. L. Sisco and Mr. Walker were nominated for election to the General Council. R. F. Downey reported that M. Williams be received as candidate for the ministry. Revs. J. M. Wilkinson, A. McLaughlin and others spoke in commendation, and Mr. Williams was accepted. A. E. Young, B.A., a candidate in the second year in Emmanuel College was congratulated upon his brilliant record as a student, and recommended to college for a third year.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, treasurer reported that out of 22 charges, 16 had paid their allocation. Dr. E. W. Young gave the statement on Evangelism and Social Service, and emphasized the appeal for the Red Cross, May 11th to 23rd. "Our ministers are urged to plead for generous help," he said. Attention was called to the new system of liquor advertising by electric signs and patriotic appeals. The Attorney General of the province was asked to state if this practice is legal. Reduction in liquor facilities was urged.

Commend Government

The protest of the Lord's Day Alliance against commercial advertising over Canadian stations was commended. The Ontario government was thanked for its new legislation regarding notification of venereal diseases. The government was commended also for the new rule providing free medical care for pensioners and recipients of the mother's allowances. A note of approval will be sent to the attorney general of the province.

Dr. A. E. Armstrong of Toronto spoke on the Debt Reduction Fund. If he said we had been good christians there would be no debt at all.

"We only give 5c per week per member in the United Church for outside purposes. The three churches came into union with a debt. We could not foresee the depression and drought that came in Canada. A finance committee of the general council prepares the yearly budget with great care. No department of the church can spend more than is allowed by the executive of the council. We stayed by the people in Western Canada when others left them. We did work there that we could not pay for. We have received up to date by the 7-year plan what will amount to $900,000 towards a debt of $1,700,000. We appeal to our congregations to finish the job. We have a great task ahead of us. We can complete it before next September."

It was reported that $5,585.00 had been contributed by the presbytery up to May 1st, the allocation is $20,000. Rev. H. L. Roberts, R. F. Downey and others appealed for hearty support of the fund.

Dr. George Easton said that the M. and M. Fund returns up to date show an increase over last year. Eleven churches have sent in returns and eleven have not. We must, he said, give information about the needs, team canvassers and follow up the canvass with constant effort.

The pastoral relations committee reported that Rev. I. M. Robinson had accepted a call to Cannington. All the conditions have been fulfilled. A vote of thanks was passed to Rev. A. L. Sisco, the trustees of Millbrook church, and the ladies who provided hospitality. The congregation was congratulated on the improvements that have been made in the church under the able leadership of the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco.

Chapter Hears of Current Events At May Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E. was held in the Y.W.C.A. Wednesday evening, May 6th. Regent Mrs. F. Hooper presided.

A letter of thanks was received from the 4th Anti Tank Battery for 10,000 cigarettes sent to England. Mrs. T. Carley, speaking on Empire Study gave an interesting outline of the war so far this year, referring to American activities. Sir Stafford Cripps in India, the even greater importance now the oil in Iraq and Iran, the new pro-British premier of Egypt and Hitler's secret alliance with France, Spain and Portugal to drive the British from Gibraltar—an alliance which offended Mussolini who was not consulted. The Battle of the Atlantic has not gone so well. Canadian munition supplies of the last six months exceed all Canada made during the First World War. Australian and New Zealand troops have been called home. Mrs. Carley emphasized the fact that all British paper stress that people must refrain from criticising our allies, Britain, Russia, China, Holland, United States must stick together. There must be an "International Outlook."

Mrs. C. Upper, war convener, reported that in April 225 articles had been sent to Britain, including 79 of babies' clothing and 13 quilts.

Mrs. J. K. Hughes reported on Polish relief work, and that our chapter had again entertained soldiers from the local camp at a dance at the Y.W.C.A. on April 27.

Mrs. W. Belleghem reported that members and friends of the Peter Robinson Chapter had left over 1800 magazines at the furniture store on Hunter street, relieving the chapter of having to collect them. A thousand had been sent to the navy at Halifax. Mrs. Belleghem asked for women's magazines to distribute at the hospitals when she makes her two visits a week.

Mrs. E. Thompson was appointed convener of the novelties for the chapter's Christmas tea next December.

Mrs. L. Ingram kindly invited the chapter to hold their June picnic at her home on Monaghan Road.

Mrs. J. K. Hughes, Mrs. C. L. Upper and Mrs. F. Hooper gave splendid reports of the twenty-second annual convention of the I.O.D.E. held in Hamilton.

No More Bingo Till Fall

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Kinettes was held at the home of Mrs. R. E. MacDonald. Because of the warm weather, it was decided that no further bingos would be held until the fall.

At the meeting contributions were received from Mrs. Robert Nott's bridge club to the amount of $4.00, and $18.10 was collected at the Kawartha bowling club banquet and turned over to the Kinettes for the Milk for Britain Fund. A further amount of $200.00 has been sent to the national treasurer for the Milk for Britain Fund, which now brings the Kinettes total contribution to $450.00.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Adam Sands, 484 Gilmour street, on May 18th at 8.00 p.m., when all members are asked to be present.

Girls' Council

The Girls' Council of the Y.W.C.A. held its regular supper meeting on Wednesday in the Club Supper room with about 12 members present. Plans were completed for the dance to be held on Friday, May 22 in the gym, in aid of the Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund. Tickets for this dance will be on sale shortly through members of the Council and there will be no last minute sales at the door. Miss Flora Metcalfe was placed in charge of the drinks for the dance. It was decided to sell soft drinks to help cover the expenses of the members conference to be held in June at Camp Englestane. It was also decided to procure the services of Jack Marshall's eight-piece orchestra for the dance. Plans were also discussed for a conference for "Y" members, to be held the week-end of June 20 at the "Y" Camp. It is hoped that representatives of all the "Y" groups will be present.

Mrs. Merritt, leader of the group, was in the chair, and the meeting opened with the singing of the hymn, "I Would Be True." Roll call was answered by a verse on Mother's Day and Mrs. A. White read a beautiful theme on the same subject. Mrs. J. H. Vance read a chapter from the study book, "Training for the Unexpected," and Mrs. Wood, Mrs. A. White, Mrs. J. H. Vance and Mrs. E. Wand read several chapters of the interesting book, "Serving with the Sons of Shuh." A hearty vote of thanks to the hostess was moved by Mrs. Wood. Refreshments were served by Mrs. George Staunton and her committee. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Cook, 125 Princess street.

Otonabee Chapter

Robinson, Regent, was in the chair for the business meeting, at which, after reports and correspondence, Mrs. A. Leach, delegate to the Provincial Chapter at Hamilton, gave a vivid report of all proceedings. Mrs. G. A. Borland was returned as chapter representative on the Nicholls Hospital Board. Mrs. A. A. McIntyre was received and weclomed into the Chapter. Mrs. McIntyre was a former member of the I.O.D.E. in Kilburn, Ontario. At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served, with Mrs. W. Comstock pouring tea.

LAKEFIELD

Institute Adds 20 New Members a Year

LAKEFIELD, May 8—(ENS).—Women's Institute activities had a real revival this year in the village, increasing the organization's membership from 11 to 31 ladies.

During the year twelve regular and one special meeting was held—seven were at the homes of members, the other five in the council chambers and it was found that more interest was shown and more members turned out to gatherings in private homes. Total receipts for the year were $252.76.

The term's work as reviewed in a very splendid report submitted by the secretary, Mrs. Amberson Davis, is as follows: During May and June $5.25 was collected by the Mary's of the Institute for the Mary's Spitfire Fund; $3 donated to the central fund for sugar to make jam or jelly for the soldiers. In June a tea and sale of cooking was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Kingdon, a success both socially and financially. In July the members of Hall's Glen Institute were entertained at the home of president Mrs. H. Bullock, the visitors supplying the program.

A tag day held on July 26 for the Navy League realized $29. Two booths were run at the regatta held in the park in July also.

August—the first work meeting was held. Roll call was answered by each member donating an article for a layette, sewing for the same followed the business.

September—Mrs. T. Chaplin and Mrs. R. Bullock were appointed leaders to attend the L. L. Training School to be held in Peterborough. A cup and saucer was presented as a farewell gift to Mrs. R. H. Howden who left for another parish.

October—More articles made for layette, report from local leaders on the first day of the training school.

November—Food Values in Daily Menus discussed; attended the Hall's Glen Institute at home of Mrs. G. Parsons; placed a wreath on Cenotaph on Remembrance Day. Five members attended the convention held in Toronto. Sewing was done on handkerchiefs for the Red Cross.

December—Christmas cheer for sick and shut-ins arranged, $3 donated to British Children's Christmas Fund; had a guest speaker, district president Mrs. George Miller.

January—Made annual visit to House of Refuge, supplying program and treat. Lunch was served in reception room by Mrs. Garbutt; bought material for anothe layette.

February—A successful Valentine tea, sale of cooking and jumble table was held at the home of Mrs. John Murphy.

March—Decided to give Red Cross $10 of proceeds of February's tea; papers on price ceiling of certain articles read and discussed.

April—Bought a gallon of maple syrup which Mrs. A. Windsor made into 10 pounds of maple sugar for the navy and also sent 10 pounds of sugar. Had report on the annual meeting of Local Council of Women in Peterborough by delegates, Mrs. S. Higgins, Miss M. Sanderson and Mrs. S. White. Members of the Junior Institute took part in the program. Members now are knitting for the Navy League branch at Peterborough and aiding with the salvage campaign.

Mrs. Cyril Cadwaladr of Rosemount, Montreal, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Archie Neilson, and Mr. Neilson.

WITH SOME shortages anticipated in both straw and felt, many milliners are doing wonderful things with ribbon hats. Helene Garnell is one designer who enjoys working in this medium as is shown by the above delightful creation fashioned of grosgrain ribbon in a delicate tone of petal blue. The ribbon is intricately worked and pleated and the high flange is held with black velvet ribbon bows. The blue ribbon is misted with a flattering black veil in a wide, lacy mesh.

SUGAR IS DIFFERENT

WATERBURY, Conn., May 8.—(AP).—The Waterbury Chamber of Commerce, at least, has no complaints about the scarcity of sugar. In 1930 this city missed the distinction of a 100,000 population by 98 persons. In 1940, the census takers found Waterbury 686 short of the goal. However, more than 100,000 residents applied for sugar rationing books.

FRANTIC WEEKEND

By EDMUND FANCOTT

TWO CAREERS

CHAPTER XX

The simplest happenstance, the commonest occurrence, can change the course of one person's desires and delineate his dreams. That happened to Nigel. That glimpse of Peggy in the half-light of the room, her bright face alive with animation, her slimness accentuated by the bulk of the chair in which she sat, long legs danggling over the arm, was a revelation to him.

In that one moment Nigel realized that Fay's fascination for him had been an intense young men's natural reaction to flawless beauty, but that he didn't want a girl like Fay. Not really. He didn't want someone already grown up, someone who had been everywhere, had everything, whose beauty was fundamentally serene and quiet.

He wanted—yes, he was sure of it—someone like Peggy, a half-child, half-gamin creature who was wide-eyed and excited about loving and who couldn't believe that it held everything for her. He wanted a stimulant, and wasn't she? In flashback he saw her again as she was that morning on the island, and remembered how completely easy he had been with her, how casually they had talked, how natural and frank she was. He looked at her dark hair framing her face, studied the expectant intensity of her green eyes, and contrasted this mood with the gay and sunny one of the morning.

"I'm in love," thought Nigel. It was with surprise and some relief that he realized that his restlessness of the afternoon and evening had been because he wanted Peggy with him, every moment, and she hadn't been. What a fool he'd been not to know his own mind until it opened for him with this glimpse of her in the moonlit room!

The noise of his footsteps wakened Peggy from her dreaming.

Nigel!" she cried, eager to tell someone how thrilling her dreams had been. Then she restrained herself, but the excitement in her voice had been mistaken by Nigel for pleasure at seeing him.

"I've got an idea," he said. "Let's slip away from the others and gc down for a moonlight swim."

She jumped off the arm of her chair. It was just what she needed to work off some of her excitement.

"Yes let's, she laughed.

At that moment Baldy came back into the room lighting a fresh cigar, and with an indefinable air of having arranged the affairs of the world. He couldn't live without managing somebody or something, finding himself much better at arranging other people's lives than his own. He had also found it more profitable in the long run.

Baldly saw the two standing near the window and crossed to them swaggering with assurance.

"It's all O.K. honey. Benny'll give you a break. Chorus line first, and then a tryout. Twenty-five per on my say-so and start in Monday week."

Peggy pushed Nigel ahead of her lest he hear too much. "See you in the morning, Baldy," she said. "And thank you. You're wonderful.'"

"O.K." said Baldy, "and don't forget Fay."

The night was warm. Nigel and Peggy lay on the wooden wharf under the moon. The water below was still and with a glass-like surface.

Peggy lay on her back looking up into Nigel's eyes. He was stretched the opposite way, his head over Peggy's looking down at her. He was resting on his elbows, his hands were free to play with Peggy's hair.

Nigel had just told her that he was in love with her and he had not found it hard to say. He waited hopefully for an answer.

Peggy studied his face. Brown eyes, nice eyes, the nicest eyes she had seen. Everything happens at once, she thought. It was too bad for Nigel, but she had made up her mind to go on the stage. She felt a satisfying sense of power. She could afford to be Lady Bountiful. A glimmer of a smile crossed her face, and her hands took his head between them and drew it down to her lips.

It was a gesture that she imagined would have looked well on the screen and in her minx-like way she was playing a part.

But the first touch of her cool lips on his broke his restraint, and in a swift rush of emotion his hands crushed her lips to his. Peggy struggled, thrusting him away. She sat up quickly, her self-confidence badly shaken. The blood was racing through her pulses and there was a startled look in her eyes as she faced Nigel. Something had flowed through her like liquid fire, and her breath came short with a quick rise and fall of her bosom.

"Let's swim," Peggy said suddenly, and she plunged from the wharf into the cool water and swam furiously, as if to wash from her mind the memory of that kiss and the strange power it had over her. She didn't want to fall in love and that kiss had told her she was dangerously near it.

Nigel lifted her out as she came back to the wharf easily outdistanced by his strong stroke. She pulled her hands free of his as soon as she was out, as if to pull herself free of his influence.

"Tell me," said Nigel, trying to be casual, "what was old polish-top talking about up there?"

Impulsively, as if the revelation would destroy his new influence over her, she turned to Nigel.

"I've got my chance. I'm going to New York."

A committee of four met in the rockery the next morning. Nigel presided with a gloomy expression on his face. The day promised to be of the same unbroken sunshine as the previous one, but without the same harmony that had settled on the house party the day before. It had been obvious at breakfast, although no one had been quite able to understand why.

Ferdy had gone his way as usual. If his guests would allow him to paint at leisure he would allow them to solve their own troubles in their own way. Which they were doing.

Nigel and Michael faced Fay and Myra and there was not a smile among them.

In the house somewhere behind them Baldy was putting Peggy through what he called a routine. Peggy was co-operating enthusiastically. Baldy was glad to have something to do to fill the vacuums between his attacks on Fay's resolution.

"I don't like it," said Nigel. "Here this squire drops on us uninvited and makes a plague of himself. Now he caps it by persuading a young girl to go down to New York with him."

Myra shook her head. "There's only one thing wrong with that argument. I know Peggy, and if I'm not mistaken there is more to it than a gleam in her eye."

Fay spoke: "This is the first I have heard of it. What is Baldy doing, what has he done?"

This Is Everybody's War

By MOLLY BROWN

Maybe when people realize they really can't get any more gas when those little coupons are used up they'll save their gas for something more useful than cruising up and down George street on Saturday and Sunday nights. People who have nothing better than that to do with it have no right to gasoline which could be used to help win the war. Then there was the patriotic citizen who wanted her ten cents' worth of ice-cream so badly she had a taxi deliver it. It seems that nothing but bombs will teach some people that this war is a serious business; that it cannot be won without the full and intelligent co-operation of every citizen of every country that yet remain free. These people may say that they have broken no law; that they have not exceeded their gas ration. True, they have kept to the letter of the law; but they have offended against the laws of faith and honor and plain common-sense; and everyone exceeds his gas ration who uses a single drop in needless pleasure cruising. Now, if there were only one or two traitors like that there would be nothing to worry about, but we have too many people who talk big about patriotism, criticize the government's war effort, and in the next breath, will tell you their particular plan to beat the gas and sugar restrictions. They are stupid, unthinking, petty traitors; they have neither the brains to be real traitors nor the courage to be patriots; they are parasites on civilized humanity; barnacles on the Ship of State; and it's time they were scraped off...How about your purchases of War Savings Stamps recently? Spend the money you might have spent on gas on Stamps. Then there will be more planes to fly, more tanks to roll for freedom. ...The government wants it stressed that no article which is at present serving a useful and necessary function should be turned in for salvage if another must be bought to replace it. Be patriotic but don't lose your head...Are you saving old socks for the Kinettes? They can use all you have and they prefer to cut them up themselves...How is the knitting in the beauty parlors progressing? Do you do your share? Think of the time we've been wasting under driers all these years.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

Question.—I would indeed appreciate it if you would give me a recipe for making tapioca pudding using the large tapioca that requires soaking. Also kindly tell how many hours to soak the tapioca.

Thanking you for this and for help from your column.—I. C. H.

Answer. — Tapioca should be soaked at least four hours before cooking, and preferably overnight, for the longer it is soaked the less cooking it requires.

Tapico Custard

One-third cup pearl tapioca, 2¼ cups milk, 2 eggs, 1/3 cup sugar or 2/3 cup corn syrup, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Wash the tapioca; soak several hours or overnight in cold water to cover completely. When ready to cook drain, and add milk and cook in top of double boiler over boiling water until tapioca is clear to the centre of each pearl. Then beat the eggs and add the sugar or syrup to them, salt and then pour the hot milk mixture over them slowly, stirring. Return all to double boiler and cook for about 5 minutes, to thicken egg. Remove from heat and add flavoring. This may be served hot or cold, but is usually preferred cold served with cream or strawberry or pineapple juice.

Note.—To vary this dish, beat the yolks separately and add them to the hot milk mixture with the sugar, etc., and fold the stiffly beaten whites into the mixture after it is removed from the heat. Or after hot milk mixture is added to egg-yolk and sugar mixture, fold in the stiffly beaten whites without breaking them too much and pour into buttered baking dish, and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes. The whites give the top of the pudding a meringue effect, and the pudding may be served hot at table.

For apple tapioca, do the pudding in the oven according to last suggestion, adding quartered apples when pudding is poured into baking dish, and baking for ½ hour.

Question.—You mentioned Yorkshire Pudding in a recent Sunday dinner, and I do not make it any more because mine were always a failure, too heavy and soggy. If you will send me a recipe I will try it once more, since my husband is an Englishman and would love to have Yorkshire Pudding at least once a week.

Thanks for the corn syrup recipes you sent; I plan to use one per week until I have tried them all. —Milly McM.

Answer.—A One-cup flour Yorkshire Pudding is not nearly large enough for my family, but would do for two people. It does not matter if you double or triple this recipe.

Yorkshire Pudding

One cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs. Sift the flour and salt and add the milk gradually. Add the eggs unbeaten, then beat the whole mixture at least 2 minutes with Dover beater. Chill 1 hour before baking. (If you have to strain the mixure to remove every last lump of flour, do not be ashamed of it, the best of cooks often have to, too.)

Cover bottom of roasting pan with dripping from roast; when very hot, pour in the batter to about ¾ inch depth. Put into hot oven of 450 deg. Fahr. and bake at this temperature until pudding has risen high all over—about 12 minutes. Then reduce heat to 375 deg. Fahr. It should bake 45 minutes in all.

If this recipe does not suit you I have two others that I can recommend,—one more custardy, the other contains a little baking powder and puffs higher and is drier than this one I have given you.

PARENTS UNWITTINGLY CAUSE MARRIAGES TO GO ON THE ROCKS

By Constantly Criticizing In-Laws, Mothers Plant Suspicions in Children's Minds

It is natural, nay inevitable, that parents should not see eye to eye with their children when their youngsters select their mates. Mother and father think that John must have been suffering from a brainstorm when he picked out the fluffy-ruffles little sweetie he did for a wife, instead of a sober and serious-minded young woman, with a bit of money of her own, who would have made him such a desirable helpmate. And whatever Mary saw in that lanky Jones boy that made her elect to spend the balance of her life cooking dinners and washing dishes for him, is a mystery they never fathom.

Of course, it is not strange that parents do not understand why their children marry the ones they do. The children themselves do not know why they did it. The man only knows that out of all the women in the world some particular girl happened to hit his fancy and he up and popped the question. To others she may have looked plain of face and seemed mediocre in intellect, with no charms to set her apart from millions of her sisters, but to him she was, for the time being, at least, the ONLY ONE.

The girl only knows that some lad came whistling down the street and she got up and followed him, though she knew he was leading her down a road that was going to be rough traveling. To others he was just a commonplace boy, with poor prospects and about as much allure as a ham sandwich, but she saw in him a Fairy Prince and her heart's desire.

Parents Can Break a Marriage

But while parents have little to do with making their children's matches, they have a great deal to do with wrecking their marriages, and in many and many a divorce case father and mother should be cited as the co-respondent instead of some glamorous blonde or good-looking gigolo.

The success of a marriage does not depend upon the beauty or character or efficiency of the man or woman to whom John or Mary is married, but upon John or Mary being satisfied with her or him. As long as John thinks Mary Miss Canada or an angel or the world's greatest manager, or Mary considers John a runner-up for Victor Mature or a second Solomon, all is well and everything is jake. It is only when they are awakened from their love trance and made to see their husband's and wife's imperfection that trouble begins.

And it is a tragic thing that it is parents, oftener than anyone else, who elect themselves to the office of disillusioner. It is they who, almost from the day the bridal couple settle in their new home, begin chipping at its foundation stones with their criticisms and fault-findings until they bring it crashing down upon their children's heads. They don't intend to wreck their children's marriages. They don't plan to separate husbands and wives. They don't even realize that they are responsible for little children being half-orphaned, for hearts being broken, for men and women being embittered, and for the mess of scandal that smears a family.

Picking On In-laws

They intended no harm. They were just engaging in what they considered the innocent and legitimate pastime of picking on their in-laws, and they never dreamed of what a dangerous thing it was to do, or of what its consequences might be.

Mama actually thought she was being a good mother when she pointed out all of John's little weaknesses and faults to Mary and

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, May 9

A very lively and enterprising day, with all affairs moving at high tempo. New ventures and ambitious projects may move in exciting grooves, with promise of decisive and aggressive action and gratifying achievement, providing every precaution be taken against fraud, misrepresentation and controversy. This particularly applies where writings, documents or agreements are involved. Also there may be danger in travel, in dealing with agencies and communications. Keep down nervous tension, and reckless excitement. There may be much activity and pleasure in public, social, domestic or affectional contacts.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an extremely lively and strenuous year, with all faculties and forces moving under high pressure. This applies to successful launching of new projects of major importance, providing there be due precaution against fraud, trickery misrepresentation and there is careful handling of papers, writings and agreements. Travel and change are also hazardous unless nervous tension and hasty actions be restrained.

A child born on this day should have much talent, initiative and energy bespeaking some major successes; although it may be nervous, high-strung and impetuous. However, it may have a happy and amiable private life.

IN MEMORIAM

KEARNEY.—In loving memory of our dear daughter Florrie (Mrs. George Kearney), who passed away seven years ago today, May 8, 1935.

There's a face that is haunting us ever,
There's a voice that we're longing to hear,
There's a smile we'll remember forever,
Though we try to forget every tear.
There's a sad but sweet remembrance,
There's a memory fond and true,
There's a token of affection, dear,
And heartache still for you.

warned her to keep her eye on him and not to trust him too blindly, and not to give in to him too much. It was mother who first made Mary conscious that John's table manners were not Emily Post, and that he talked too much about himself, and that he had too fambuoyant a taste in neckties.

It was mother who suggested that John should be making more money than he did and play less golf, and who said that, of course, there wasn't anything in it for Mary to worry over, but someone had seen him at lunch with his secretary.

Left alone Mary would have been satisfied with John as he was and gone blindly worshipping him, but once mother had opened her eyes to his imperfections and made her suspicious and jealous, everything was over but the trip to Reno.

And John never would have found out that Mary was a poor housekeeper and that she peeled the potatoes too thick and put things in the garbage can that should have gone into the soup pot, that that she played too much bridge, and went to too many parties, and had too many outside interests if Mother hadn't called his attention to it, but when once he perceived these faults they shut out all his vision of how pretty and sweet and jolly and easy to live with she was. And another marriage was on the dump.

The moral of all of which is that no matter what parents think of their in-laws, mum's the word.

Lovely Glass Gardens Are Easy to Grow

Cake Pan Makes "Lake" Bottom

Hills, lakes, trees and flowers in a glass box—it's easy to have a miniature of your favorite view.

With panes of glass and tape, or fish bowl, a terrarium is easy to have. Loamy soil covered with green moss makes hills and valleys. For trees use tiny spruce seedlings and budding twigs of forsythia.

In the humid atmosphere of a terrarium the forsythia flowers quickly and lasts for weeks.

To make the beautiful lake with its winding rill, fill a cake pan with water and fit it at the bottom of the terrarium. Over it place a sheet of tin, as our sketch shows from which a "lake" shape was cut with an old pair of scissors.

You may also make desert scenes using cacti and sedums, and place a tiny donkey and Mexican or pottery in their midst. Many lovely glass gardens—in jugs and jars—grow a single plant to perfection a begonia, orchid, gardenia.

Our 32-page booklet shows how to make all kinds of terrariums grow pine and palm, cactus and orchid, African violet, begonia croton and many more flowering and foliage plants. Also has directions for dish gardens.

For your [illegible] "Glass Gardens and Novelty [illegible] Gardens," send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

One duplicate declarer got just enough help on this deal to make his contract, when East's lead of the diamond Q was overtaken by West's A. North won the return and immediately knocked out the spade A. East was able to cash the diamond J, 10, 9, but could not put West in the lead again, so declarer finished up the deal, making his contract with his one trick in diamonds, three in spades, two in hearts and three in clubs when the finesse was guessed correctly.

Another declarer was set because West let the diamond Q lose to the K, playing his 5 on it. When North later lost a trick to the spade A, West let the diamond 9 and J go through, finally taking his A on the 10 and cashing the 7 for the setting trick.

3 Soft Drink Firms Merge

Announcement is made of the formation of Associated Bottlers Limited as a medium for the carrying out of an amalgamation of bottling concerns throughout Canada. The new company is already linked with Orange Crush Limited, has acquired O'Keefe's Beverages Limited (the soft drink unit of Canadian Breweries Limited), and Evangeline Beverages Ltd., of Toronto, and has entered into an agreement with Charles E. Hires Co. of Philadelphia for the bottling and distributing of Hires Root Beer throughout Canada.

All companies are well known to the Canadian soft drink trade, and it is officially stated that as time goes on it is expected that many additional businesses will be acquired. Eventual aim of officials of Associated Bottlers Limited is to build in Canada a strong national company with operating plants strategically located in the principal centres of population, and to serve less populous areas by franchizing independent bottlers.

E. P. Toylar, president of Canadian Breweries Limited, who has for some years also been president of Orange Crush Limited, will be president of th new concern. In commenting on the formation of the company and its prospects, Mr. Taylor stated: "Associated Bottlers has been organized in adversity. The soft drink business in Canada has been overdone for a considerable time, principally in the larger centres of population. Extreme competition, too many concerns engaged in the business, and high distribution costs have made it very difficult for any firms except the largest to make money. We expect to acquire many concerns and to close all plants except the better ones, concentrating volume in a relatively few plants, reduce the number of brands, and thus make substantial operating economies. In other words, I hope that it will be possible to build a successful company along national lines in the soft drink industry by adopting the same methods which were used by me and my associates in Ontario in establishing a successful brewing concern."

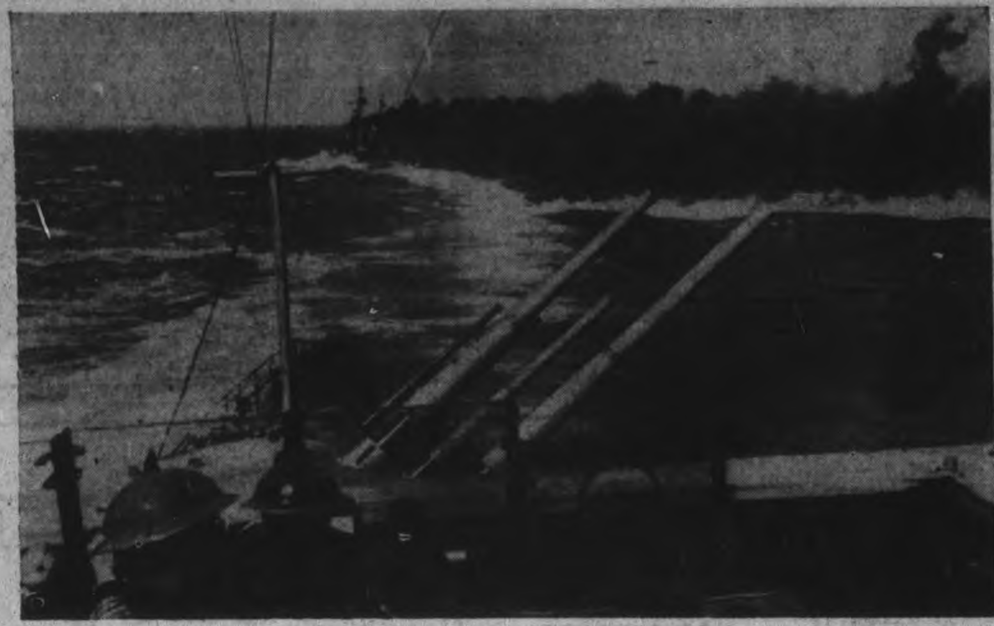
Italian Attack On British Convoy Thwarted By Escort Vessels



Attacking a British convoy en route from Alexandria to Malta, units of the Italian fleet again came off second best and were forced to flee when escort vessels of the convoy swung into action. A British light cruiser is shown, LEFT, throwing out a smoke screen to shield the convoy as another light cruiser elevates her forward 5.25 guns ready to shell the Italian fleet. These guns are pictured, RIGHT, as they challenged the Italian units with a broadside. The convoy reached port safely as the Italians took to their heels to escape the British warships.

US Group Seeks Railway In B.C.

VICTORIA May 8.—(CP).—The British Columbia Government has been approached by western United States interests regarding acquisition of the provincially-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway, it was learned in government circles here last night.

According to government sources the American interests—several different groups including a western United States Railway system — sought information regarding the provincial railway as a link in a possible railroad to Alaska. It runs from Squamish near Vancouver to Quesnel, 62 miles south of Prince George.

Defer Building Wartime Houses

The Council of the Township of Smith met at the Court House, Peterborough, on Monday, all members present, with Reeve Mann presiding.

The rate of pay for men and teams for the period May 1 to October 31 was increased to 35 cents per hour for patrolmen, 30 cents for laborers, and 55 cents for man and team.

Collector J. A. Middleton made his final report on the 1940 tax roll, which showed $1,100.51 not collected. On motion the roll was accepted and balance of arrears returned to county charged against land.

Notice was received from the City of Peterborough of an application to the Municipal Board for an order to annex another part of the township to the city, the lands as set out being composed of Wartime Housing property and four other parcels owned by S. Best, M. Franks O. Dalgleish, and F. Welsh.

The township having been informed that Wartime Housing plans to build 250 additional houses in the Peterborough area, at least 60 perhaps all in Smith, the clerk was instructed to write the city and the Municipal Board to defer considering the application until such time as Wartime Housing building plans are decided.

The following accounts were approved for payment:

Road accounts $823.30; Hydro Commission, street lights, $15.16; Mrs. Smith, from Foley Estate funds, $30.00; Miss Pammett, care of Miss Harris, $22.00; Postmaster, stamps $5.00; A. I. Edmison, old-age pension fees, $6.00; D. H. Webster, services to Miss Harris, $6.00; G. McIlmoyl, telephone account, $1.88; O. Hayward, on account salary, $10.00; J. A. Middleton, balance salary 1940 roll, $165.00; C. Whitmore relief accounts, $15.92.

Eastern States Gas Cut 50 p.c.

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP).—Gasoline consumption in the Eastern United States will be slashed 50 per cent below normal starting May 16, the War Production Board announced this week. This means that many of the areas 10,000,000 motorists probably will have to get along with as little as five or six gallons a week.

The reduction becomes effective the day the seaboard area begins using ration cards.

While the overall curtailment will be one-half, informed sources explained that it would amount to about a 60 per cent cut for non-essential users of automobiles, since necessary vehicles will continue to receive their full requirements of fuel.

The W.P.B. action, taken on recommendation of petroleum-co-ordinator Harold Ickes, came shortly after Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director, declared "every owner of a motor vehicle in public or private service should realize that he holds this vehicle in trust for the national war effort and that it should be used only for purposes of necessity."

This statement of Eastman's applied to the whole country, not mere to the East.

Simultaneously with the gasoline order, W.P.B. directed that deliveries of light fuel oil be reduced also by 50 per cent below last year, beginning May 16 in the seventeen Eastern States and the District of Columbia.

This was the first cut on fuel oil, used for house heating, and the order applied to deliveries to suppliers.

Gasoline consumption in the East and Oregon and Washington already is cut by one-third below normal by a limitation on supplies to filling stations. Today's new order made no mention of the Northwestern States, where improved supply conditions have been accompanied by speculation that the restrictions may be lifted.

On May 16, W.P.B. said, the office of price administration will place in effect a temporary emergency gasoline card rationing plan in the East, which will remain in effect until July 1 when a more elaborate rationing program will go into operation.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson previously had set May 15 as the day for card rationing to begin.

Meanwhile, officials declined to give any hint as to the possible ration allowance for each motorist under the card system.

Trent River News

Mr. M. Wight was in Campbellford on Monday attending the Seymour Township Council meeting.

Members of the Ladies' War Workers held a quilting in their rooms on Tuesday afternoon and in the evening a progressive euchre. Ten tables of cards were played. Mr. Bob Pollock and Miss Durelle Lean won the first prizes and Miss June Steenburgh and C. Ellis the consolations. Mr. James Cook won the lucky door prize.

The W.A. of Trent River United Church met at the home of Mrs. George Van Volkenburg on Wednesday afternoon. There was an attendance of thirty members. Mrs. Thomas Brown, president, was in charge of the meeting, with Mrs. John Scott, secretary, and Mrs. G. Shearer, treasurer, who presented a report on the finances.

The members decided to cater for a banquet for the Sunday school executive of the district, to be held at Trent River United Church on May 28.

The ladies decided to not hold the famous annual strawberry festival this year, and this will be bad news for those who look forward to this annual event. Instead, each member will donate $1 to the funds.

The ladies planned their four summer meetings in advance this year and they will be as follows: June meeting, at home of Mrs. Knowlton Waters for Group 1; July meeting at home of Mrs. James Longmuir for Group 3; August at home of Mrs. H. B. Woods for Group 2; September at home of Mrs. T. K. Thompson for Group 4.

It was decided to hold a fur salvage drive during the summer months to secure fur for to line seamen's jackets.

The association recently purchased a quantity of silver and dishes to replenish the supply for the church's needs.

A dainty lunch was served at the close by the members of Group 2.

The United Church Y.P.S. held a social evening and weiner roast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brown on Wednesday evening. Close to 100 attended the event and games and contests were enjoyed on the spacious lawn by one and all. The weiners and coffee were served at the close and a thoroughly enjoyable evening had by all present.

Less Bread, Meat For Army, More Vitamins

By BOB FRANCIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, May 8.—(CP)—Members of the Canadian army and the Royal Canadian Air Force will cut down on bread, meat and potatoes and stoke up on foods of higher vitamin content under an amended ration scale disclosed today by National Defence headquarters.

The new diet goes into effect June 1. One of its chief features is an increase in the fresh milk ration. Grapefruit juices and fresh oranges have been added to the old scale.

"There are only a few changes in the old ration scale, providing more of some commodities and less of others, but it all adds up to more nutrition," Lt.-Col. C. S. Jones of the supply and transport branch told The Canadian Press.

"The increase in Vitamin 'C' is the main thing," added Col. Jones, who also is a member of the standing committee on nutrition. "The daily intake of calcium for each man has been increased too."

More Meat Last War.

The 1914-18 army scale of rations, compared with today's scale and the amended scale effective next month, shows less variety in the food, but larger allowances of meat, bread and potatoes than in either of the modern lists.

The First Great War scale called for one pound each of these three commodities, as well as three ounces of bacon, two of beans and six of fresh vegetables, against eight of vegetables in both the modern compilations.

An allowance of four ounces of canned vegetables was provided for in the 1914-18 list, one ounce of milk powder and the same amount of cheese.

The troops only do half as well on the pepper ration in this war, with an allowance of 1-72 of an ounce, against 1-36 in the First Great War.

Where the present standard ration now calls for 14 ounces of beef, and the same quantity of bread and potatoes daily per man, the new scale calls for only 12 ounces of each of these commodities.

More Fresh Milk

On the other hand the fresh milk ration has been raised from 10 ounces per man to 15. The sugar allowance has been cut from three to two ounces daily for each man, but this still leaves the service man with two ounces more each week than the civilian who has ¾ of a pound.

"Be reducing the quantity of a certain commodity allowed and increasing another or substituting a different food altogether, the nutritive value of the diet can be increased."

The new scale is definitely a "garrison" ration and applies to men on active service in Canada, Col. Jones said, explaining that troops overseas were fed on a different basis with regard for local circumstances and the type of food available.

Members of the Standing Committee on Nutrition under whose direction the new scale was prepared included University professors and members of the National Research Council.

Claims Have Synthetic Rubber Formula

A Polish refugee chemist, Waclaw Szukiewicz, who has been at work in a Philadelphia laboratory for the past month, claims to have developed a process of making rubber from natural gas, grain, woodpulp or coal. The inventor of the new synthetic rubber is pictured, SEATED, with Dr. Lewis H. Markes, executive vice-tresident of the Publicker Commercial Alcohol Co., whose firm employed him as a research chemist. In testimony before a Senate committee Dr. Markes stated that the Polish chemist's formula resulted in a product without any of the drawbacks of the usual synthetic rubber, and which was in many ways equal to, if not better than, crude natural rubber.

Kidnap Hunt For Baby Rocks London

Police Get First Clue After Blank Night, Ransom Idea Unlikely

LONDON, May 9 — (CP). — Every available man of London's Police Department was mustered to-day as authorities sought to track down the first promising clue in the kidnapping of six-months-old Barbara Ann Wood snatched from her carriage yesterday in the city's downtown shopping district.

The hunt began after officers who had followed a vain quest to the nearby Muncey Indian Reserve — were informed early to-day by Mrs. John Medland of a conversation she overheard at a bingo game last night. Mrs. Medland said she heard a man tell a fellow player that he had seen another man lift a baby from a parked carriage near the City Market about the time the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wood disappeared.

Mrs. Medland told detectives she knew the bingo player only by sight but thought she could get in touch with someone who knew his name.

Meantime as the hunt for the missing child widened, Police Chief Earl Knight appealed to all Londoners to be on the alert for a strange baby in any neighborhood—especially one who cried a lot.

The 29-year-old mother provided that identification when she told authorities that her infant did not make friends easily and was liable to cry lustily in unfamiliar surroundings.

A hunt— reminiscent of the last kidnap in this district in 1934 when John Labatt, wealthy Londoner brewer, was snatched near Sarnia—started soon after the hysterical mother reported her daughter missing when she emerged from a downtown grocery store at 3 p.m. yesterday.

Putney Riding Returns Tory

LONDON, May 9—(CP)—A series of National Government reverses in parliamentary by-elections was broken yesterday by a victory of Conservative Hugh Linstead over Capt. Bernard Acworth, Independent accused by Prime Minster Churchill of defeatism at Putney.

Returns announced today were: Linstead 8,768, Acworth 2,939.

Only 23 per cent of the constituency's 49,901 qualified voters cast ballots. In 1935 the late Marcus Samuel, Conservative, polled 22,288 votes to 10,895 for a labor opponent.

In the preceding three by-election contests in recent weeks, Independents pledged to demand more vigorous prosecution of the war defeated government candidates. These defeats were generally regarded as a public demonstration against the political truce which calls for maintenance of the status quo in party strength in the House of Commons.

Still Some Fight

LONDON, May 9—(CP). —The Paris radio reported today that two centres of resistance are being maintained in Madagascar hills south of British-occupied Diego Suarez and claimed that 12 British planes have been shot down thus far in the interior fighting.

The radio said that news from the island was 'scarce' but that the resistance was being kept up by some Vichy French forces which retreated from Diego Suarez upon its fall.

Sees Huns Failing To Crush Reds, Too Many Troops

LONDON, May 9 (CP)—The publication "Free Europe," an Allied review of international affairs, said today the Germans might drive farther into Soviet Russia this summer but could not possibly inflict a decisive military defeat.

This opinion was expressed as Istanbul dispatches broadcast from Vichy said heavy fighting initiated Thursday by Red Army still raged near Belgorod, 350 miles south of Moscow, on the Arctic-to-Black Sea front.

"Free Europe" estimates the Russians have 350 divisions available while the Germans and their Axis satellites can muster no more than 285. It said the Germans might be superior in armored and aerial units but vast expanses of territory aided Russia.

Hitler's spearheads knifed 500 miles into Soviet territory last year, but they would have to go 400 miles farther to reach the Volga and another 500 miles to the Urals, where the war industries have been concentrated.

"Should the Germans succeed in gaining further ground this spring the Russians may withdraw beyond the Volga without engaging their reserves," the review concluded. "In that case the year's campaign would result in a military draw.

"For the Germans, however, this would amount to a military defeat for if they do not succeed in destroying the Russian armies, establishing themselves in the Caucasus and gaining control of Turkey they have lost the war."

(However, a withdrawal of the Red Army "beyond the Volga" would open the Caucasus to the Germans unless an army was established as well along the lower Don. Any such penetration would put Turkey under the threat of a Nazi pincer and boost prospects of a German-Japanese junction.)

Chinese Hail Victory

CHUNGKING, May 9 — (AP).—The Chinese press hailed the naval battle in the Coral Sea as an Allied victory and said to-day a strong Japanese attempt to break the communication line between Australia and the United States had been crushed.

Sao Tang Pao, Army organ, said "the democratic world has been waiting on tip-toes for this news since Japan was bombed on April 18."

Japs Are Busy Clearing Hong Kong

Believed Re-converting Big Island Into Powerful Base

CHUNGKING, China, May 9. — (AP).— Reports smuggled out of Japanese-occupied Hong Kong said to-day the Japanese are transferring all prisoners of war and civilian internees to Formosa, possibly with the intention of converting Hong Kong into a powerful naval base.

Two groups already have been moved, it was stated.

The fact that there have been a number of escapes from the island colony also was thought to have something to do with the transfer. It would be almost impossible for anyone to escape from Formosa. osa.

Loading and unloading of ships at Hong Kong is being carried out at night under rigorous curfew and blackout, the reports continued, and martial law is proclaimed on the slightest pretext.

Every time the Japanese Governor or any other important personage moves about the streets, people outdoors are unable to move about, but are forced to crouch on the sidewalks wherever they are caught, regardless of whether the 'emergecy' last for half an hour or half a day, the reports said.

Find Freighter Lost 29 Years

SARNIA, Ont., May 9.—(CP). — The freighter Charles S. Price, sunk in Lake Huron 29 years ago has been located in 60 feet of water, 12 miles out of this port it was learned to-day.

The ship, one of 13 lost in the great storm of No. 9, 1913, was found by a United Towing and Salvage Co. diver after a week's search. The operations were directed by Capt. J. T. Reid.

Raising and reconditioning of the 500 foot freighter is a possibility, but no steps have yet been taken to proceed with the work. The craft is upside down.

Trawler Whips Six

LONDON, May 9—(CP). —At least one Messerschmitt 109 was announced by the Admiralty as destroyed by the trawler Horatio which fought off an attack by six of the German planes with no loss of life and only superficial damage.

One Messerchmitt, hit squarely by a shell, crashed into the sea, a communique said, and another "was last seen on fire and losing height rapidly."

Little Opposes Freezing Of Manpower

TORONTO, May 9 — (CP). — Improved employer-employee relationships are essential to success of the Government's national selective service program and provide the key to increased production, Elliott M. Little, national selective service director, said today in an address before the Ontario and Quebec section of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association.

Mr. Little expressed disapproval of suggestions there should be blanket "freezing" of labor and told the publishers information had been received that some employers were deliberately stimulating labor movement in an effort to force "freezing" action.

Such action would have a two-way effect in not only keeping workers on their present jobs but preventing their dismissal, he warned employers who favored the idea.

Those responsible for putting into effect Canada's first selective service program were convinced that more could be accomplished by co-operation than by compulsion.

"There is no direct compulsion in the regulations and any man may leave his job," he explained. "But when he leaves we control his re-employment to assure war production first call on his services.

"The intent is simply to place all able-bodied men of military age at the disposal of heavy war industries and the armed forces."

Stampede To Farms

Aircraft Plant Left Afire, Hot Defence

Troop Shipping Point Into Norway; 19 Bombers Lost

LONDON, May 9 (CP)—Big British bombers pressed home attacks from 400 to 800-foot levels last night to leave in flames the German aircraft works at Warnemuende, Baltic port for Rostock, in heavy night operations which cost 19 planes, the air ministry announced today.

The low-level attacks were made in the face of "intense defence" by the Germans of a target which the British authorities declared to be of highest importance in their campaign to knock out the German air force in the west.

They followed by a few hours Sir Archibald Sinclair's declaration that the first task of the R.A.F. is to pave the way for invasion by crushing the Nazi air force at its bases and at its sources of machines—such large aircraft works as that at Warnemuende.

There also is a seaplane base at Warnemuende.

Resuming this campaign, fighters made almost constant cross-channel sweeps from dawn to dusk, and in the afternoon a heavy formation of escorted bombers sped home from the Calais area, from which heavy explosions had been heard.

Hold It Vital Spot

The British authorities saw in the intense defence of the plant at Warnemuende an indication of the seriousness with which Nazi Air Minister Hermann Goering regards the attack on such factories.

In contrast to the defence at the Rostock Heinkel works which suffered four heavy night attacks last month, the R.A.F. last month encountered a "fierce barrage of anti-aircraft fire and a great concentration of searchlights, including two made up of as many as 42 beams."

The R.A.F. losses were listed as the heaviest of night operations in five months, although it is believed a larger number of bombers attacked Rostock and Luebeck recently. Last Dec. 30, the R.A.F. lost 19 bombers attacking northwest Germany and in November lost 37 in bombing Berlin.

Huns Belittle It

In Berlin British air raiders attacked the Baltic port of Rostock again last night and also bombed

They Had Enough

MOSCOW, May 9—(CP)—A large group of German soldiers ran the gauntlet of fire from German guns as it crossed the Soviet lines in a mass desertion, a Soviet communique related today.

It said that only three of the deserters were killed, the remainder surrendering to the Red Army.

"One of these prisoners said he preferred to risk his life to surrender rather than fight for Hitler," the Soviet communique added.

CCF Threatening Action To Stir 6 By-Elections

TORONTO, May 9—(CP).—F. A. Brewin, Toronto, chairman of the C.C.F. provincial election committee, announced today that the Supreme Court of Ontario will be asked to intervene unless by-elections are called in Ontario's six vacant ridings.

Mr. Brewin said formal letters of demand were served by mail today on C. F. Bulmer, Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, requiring him to issue writs for the by-elections by May 18, failing which William H. Temple, Toronto, an elector in the vacant High Park riding, will apply to the Supreme Court of Ontario for a mandamus order.

Vacancies resulting from death or resignation exist in Cochrane-South, Kingston, Huron-Bruce, Lincoln and the Toronto ridings of High Park and Bellwoods.

Mr. Temple's letter said that W. A. Baird, member for High Park, died in May, 1940, and since that time "although I . . . and other citizens who are electors in this constituency have continued to pay taxes, we had had no representation in the Legislature of Ontario."

By-elections are being held during wartime in Britain, the letter continued, and in every other province. "Ontario alone has abandoned parliamentary democracy," Mr. Temple said.

Sees It Conspiracy

"We notice that by the provisions of the legislative assembly act any two members might have required the issue of a writ for the election. We can only regard their failure to do so as a tacit conspiracy among the present members not to hold by-elections," the letter said.

"Fortunately there is a remedy. Section 34 of the Legislative Assembly Act clearly imposes on you,

Armada Fails To Cut Through Australia's Defences In Major Naval Disaster

MacArthur Reports Light Allied Losses Mum On Outcome Pending Pursuit; Tokyo Admits Carrier, 31 Planes Lost

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 9 —(AP).—Announcing categorically the basic outline of a clear-cut naval victory, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters declared today that Allied losses in repulsing the invasion armada Japan sent into the Coral Sea had been relatively light, and branded Tokyo's claims false and fantastic.

In successive communiques United Nations headquarters declared:

1. "The great naval and air battle off the northeast coast of Australia has temporarily ceased.

2. "Our naval forces...fought with admirable courage and tenacity and the enemy has been repulsed.

3. "Our attacks will continue.

4. "The enemy version of the battling...is entirely fictional and has no semblance to a true communique of fact.

5. "His claims of damage inflicted on our naval forces are fantastic.

6. "Our losses compared with his own are relatively light. The only reason they have not been published at the present time is because they would reveal to him information of value."

With warships and bombers hot on the heels of the shell-marked Japanese sea force, this was the score already announced officially:

Japanese ships snuk. 11—An aircraft carrier, a heavy cruiser, a light cruiser, two destroyers, four gunboats and two cargo or transport ships.

Japanese ships damaged, 6— An aircraft carrier, a heavy cruiser, a lihgt cruiser, a 9,000-ton seaplane tender, and two transport or supply ships.

(The second aircraft carrier may also have been sunk, on the basis of unofficial reports.)

The only announced Alied losses have been three planes.

The Japanese Imperial headquarters claim which Gen. MacArthur's command declared "must be regarded in the light of propaganda" was boosted in Tokyo earlier to-day to seven ships sunk or damaged and 89 planes shot down.

The Imperial command also made its first statement of its own losses, reporting a 'small-sized aircraft carrier converted from a tanker" sunk and 31 planes lost.

Australia Jubilant

First jubilant inclinations in Australia were to hail the announcement as word of a thorough victory, but the communique was phrased cautiously and the attitude at headquarters was that it still was too soon to know whether a decisive blow had been struck.

The test of how heavily the Japanese have been hit, however, it is pointed out, depends on whether they have strength and will left to reorganize and reinforce their armada and try again.

This was not yet clear, because it still was not disclosed what original strength the Japanese sent into the fateful struggle in the sea northeast of Australia or what blows they had dealt the Allies.

Pursuit Still On.

The added announcement that

Japanese Bomb Chiattagong Area Of India

NEW DEHLI, India, May 9.—(CP)—The Chiattagong area of India was bombed and machine-gunned by the Japanese yesterday and their airmen returned again this morning in an attack which caused slight damage, it was announced today.

(Chittagong is a Karnaphuli river port near the Bay of Bengal coast 165 miles northwest of Japanese-occupied Akyab, Burma, giving its names to a large district of shorelands and hills. The city is the terminus of the Assam-Bengal railway, a steamship port of call and a logical goal in any Japanese attempt to invade India by sea.)

"A high-level bombing attack followed by a machine-gun attack was carried out by Japanese aircraft in the Chittagong area during Friday afternoon, May 8," said a communique issued by British headquarters. "Slight damage was caused and there were some casualties.

"This was followed by a further raid in the same area this morning. Details are not yet available."

A continued withdrawal of British and Indian forces in Central Burma "has been carried out successfully" without contact with the Japanese, a communique said today.

Guerillas Slay 420 In Garrison

MOSCOW, May 9.—(AP)—The Soviet communique listed more than 1,350 Germans as killed or wounded in scattered minor fighting on the eastern front today, although it again announced "no substantial changes."

The two main actions were on undisclosed sectors. In one sector, the Germans lost 700 officers and men in two days of fighting and in the other 400 officer and men, the war bulletin said.

Four German tanks were destroyed and more than 100 Nazis killed, it added, in the repulse by Red Army forces of a German attack supported by 20 tanks on the Kalinin front.

One Russian tank was credited with two other tanks destroyed and 150 Germans killed.

A supplement said Russian guerillas outside Leningrad killed 420 of the enemy in an attack on a German garrison and blew up a fuel dump and two ammunition dumps.

Struggles in Far East Saved Madagascar

Delayed Japs Enabling Allies To Nab Island First—Action Near in Russia

Written for The Canadian Press
By Maj.-Gen. Sir Charle Gwynn

LONDON, May 9—(CP Cable).—How far resistance offered in many Far East theatres of war has delayed Japanese plans is difficult to estimate.

But for that resistance, however, and losses inflicted upon Japanese shipping and other resources, the Japanese probably would have moved to obtain control of Madagascar before Britain could have taken the steps now made to forestall them. That would have been a disaster of the first magnitude, imperilling India and the whole position in the Middle East.

British control of the island will close the gap between Durban, South Africa, and Ceylon, giving the Allies both a defensive front and an offensive base in the Indian Ocean.

It will be necessary to maintain strong forces to exploit the advantage Britain has gained, but the distances from Japanese bases are prohibitive for any major attempt by Japan to reverse the situation.

Corregidor Fight Ended

The Japanese are evidently attempting to strengthen their position in New Guinea and develop a threat to communications between Australia and America. But Allied counter attacks by air continue effective.

Shortage of supplies and ammunition finally ended the gallant defence of Corregidor, but elsewhere in the Philippines resistance may be maintained and in any event the Japanese must maintain a considerable occupation force for defensive purposes.

In Burma the Japanese advance has been rapid. One encouraging feature is that the Allies have effected their withdrawal without incurring any crushing disaster.

The Chinese troops who have retired up the Burma Road should have no great difficulty in checking pursuit. Demolition alone would indefinitely delay invasion by such a long route traversing difficult, unhealthy country.

The value of the road as an inlet for war material has been lost but this may not be of immediate importance because the Japanese with many commitments are no longer in a position to conduct major operations in China. The Chinese on the other hand have sufficient resources to intensify guerilla activities against the armies of occupation.

Still Sparring in Russia

A crisis in the Russian situaton must be rapidly approaching but so far there are no clear indications of the form the initial move will take.

It is generally believed the main German effort will be made toward the Cahcasus but river still swollen by melting snow may postpone major operations in the south.

A simultaneous offensive on the whole length of the front such as Hitler launched last year seems improbable in view of demands made on German resources. It seems more likely the front will be divided into offensive and defensive sectors, varying as the situation develops.

Glancing Back 25 Years

Canadian troops, advancing in the face of heavy fire, occupied the Oppy-Mericourt line on May 3, 1917. The attack on the strong defence system running about a mile and a half south of Lens was one of the last of a series of minor operators in the battle of Arras. The Canadians suffered heavy casulties in the action, for which battalions of the 21st and 6th infantry brigades were chosen.

Reds Charge Hun Using Gas

Find Poison Fumes In Crimean Front Mines

Moscow, May 9 (AP)—The official Tass News Agency announced today:

"According to a report from Krasnodar (Northern Caucasus), on May 7, in operations on the Crimean front, German troops used several mines with poison gas. A check-up has shown that poison gas affects respiratory organs and disables men."

The official Communist newspaper, Pravda, published the dispatch under a two-column headline, immediately below the texts of yesterday's communiques from the Soviet information bureau.

It was the first formal Soviet announcement that the Germans were using poison gas, and there were indications the incident was regarded here as experimental.

A broad motor highway across the ice of Lake Ladoga saved besieged Leningrad from mass starvation last winter and preserved that vital anchor of the Soviet front, the Moscow radio announced today.

U.K. Pegs Furniture Prices

Nips Racket—Moves To Control All Prices

LONDON, May 9 (AP)—The British Government pegged furniture prices this week and moved toward control of prices of practically all goods in common use.

The freezing of furniture quotations came after a newspaper campaign against what was called the "furniture racket."

The press charged that merchants were asking $230 for a three-piece bedroom suite that cost $35 before the war and as much as $143 for a bed which in pre-war days would have cost $40 complete with mattress and springs.

Regulation committees busied themselves with studies of household linens, crockery, cooking utensils and the like in prpearation for the clamp-down.

Crow pie—of the European variety of crow, known as rook—is expected to show up on many dinner tables next week.

The rooks, one of the worst enemies of Britain's farmers, are the object of one of the nation's fiercest drives to boost agricultural production to new record highs.

Opposition to the government's plan to ration gas, coal and electricity continued but was believed too weak to prevent some form of checking use of those fuels.

PRIME MINISTER KING MOVES TO AMEND THE MOBOLIZATION ACT

Mounties Seek To Carry Out Force's Record

COBOURG, May 9—(ENS)—With a proud record earned in the early days of the force, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police of modern day were endeavoring to live up to the traditions and accomplishments of the past, declared Karl Lockwood of the R.C.M.P., Cobourg in an address to the weekly luncheon of Cobourg Rotary Club yesterday. Constable Lockwood traced in an interesting manner the history of the R.C.M.P. from the time of its origin as the North West Mounted Rifles, a few years after Confederation, to its present high state of development. The speaker was introduced by John Ewart and the vote of thanks was moved by Reuben Freeman. Joe Patterson presided.

Constable Lockwood informed his listeners that the original title, "North West Mounted Rifles" did not find favor with certain sections of the United States who objected to what they declared was an army established on their borders. For that reason it was decided to change the name to "North West Mounted Police." At that time the white traders were supplying the Indians with liquor and usually the Indian comes off second best with the white man.

The chiefs of the various tribes realized the harmful effect liquor had on their men and tried to stamp out the liquor trade. The Indian came to learn that the constable of the North West Mounted Police was fair and that he could depend on getting a square deal from the police and that although punishment was meted out to the offender, it was in accordance with established justice.

Paved the Way

It was recognized that the work of the mounted police in cleaning out the bad elements of white men and restoration of the Indian to more or less peaceful ways played a very important part in making possible the building of the first trans-continental railway, the constable stated. Had the Indians remained unruly and still inclined to pillage and in general to raise havoc, the work of getting the railway through would have been much harder, he said. Because of the service thus rendered by the mounted police the King of England decreed the changing of the name from North West Mounted Police to Royal North West Mounted Police. In 1921 the name was again changed to Royal Canadian Mounted Police. In 1932 the Dominion government preventive force was abolished and the R.C.M.P. took over that phase of duty. At the present time the law was administered by the R.C.M.P. in all provinces except Ontario, British Columbia and Quebec. The speaker asserted that he would like to see all Canada under the R.C.M.P., not that he felt that the force was better than the provincial police, but because the opinion was held that a universal police force could work better.

No Saboteurs

At the present time the R.C.M.P. was looking after the enforcement of the Defence of Canada Regulations. For the past ten years they had been compiling records of known subversive elements in the Dominion and on the strength of these records 90 per cent of the internments had been made during the present war. It was consequently comparatively easy to round up saboteurs and since the war there has been no evidence of a proven case of sabotage in Canada, Constable Lockwood said. Most of these who might be inclined towards sabotage were rounded up within three weeks after the outbreak of the war.

Discussing crime detection methods of the R.C.M.P., the speaker said that picked men were sent to Scotland Yard and to the Federal Bureau of Investigation to study scientific crime detection. Scotland Yard had gone into this sphere of criminal investigation about ten years ago, followed by a similar departure by the F.B.I. When Commissioner McBrien assumed his post at the head of the R.C.M.P. he despatched men to study scientific investigation at these two founts of information and out of it grew the splendid scientific laboratories now possessed by the R.C.M.P. Finger prints, analysis, photomicography and other methods were used.

Criminals Typed

The manner in which a known criminal worked, his habitat, peculiarities, method used in committing his crime, type of crime and all relevant details were noted and listed on a sheet which was filed for each criminal, the constable went on to relate. When a crime was committed it was a comparatively easy matter to refer to the records and narrow down to a workable basis the possible identity of the offender. Each constable was trained in this system and its operation.

Constable Lockwood gave an example by referring to a post office robbery in which a safe was blown by the customary cracksman method. The investigating offices noted that the safe was blown by the use of "nitro" in the established manner which classified the thief's way of opening the safe. Casts were made of foot prints found at the scene outside the post office. Small hairs, pieces of iron filing and other bits of evidence were carefully collected and sent away for analysis. It was learned that the thieves destroyed the marks of their own tracks and those of their car by dragging branches of a tree behind in the snow. The constables found a congealed mass which later turned out to be water from a leaking radiator. The criminals slipped up in spite of their care in concealing the tire marks through the fact that in turning, the front wheels went out of line with the back and the front tire marks were consequently not obscured by the brush dragging behind. A perfect set of tire marks were found and casts and photographs made of them. It was learned that a service station operator, who had got up to fix his furnace saw a Ford car with four men, stop nearby and the occupants removed something from behind the car. The car had a yellow fog light. Reference to the files revealed that a Ford car with yellow fog light and tires the same as those whose marks were found by the R.C.M.P. was owned by a man who lived about 15 miles from the post office, and who was listed as a criminal. Further investigation linked the small hairs as from a sweater owned by one of the men and arrests and conviction followed.

NorwegiansGrab Freighter Sail To Britain

LONDON, May 9—(CP)—A group of young Norwegian patriots has reached Great Britain after seizing the 623-ton coastal steamship Galtesund complete with crew and passengers and sailing it to a British port.

The exploit was announced proudly last night by the Norwegian Government which recalled that when the vessel was first reported missing, the German-controlled radio report assumed she had been sunk by a mine.

The youths planned their coup carefully after they learned the Galtesund, plying between Oslo and Bergen, carried adequate fuel for a sea journey. They boarded the ship as passengers at various ports of call.

The Galtesund left Flekkefjord March 15. Then the patriots acted. With pistols drawn, one group took over the bridge, another the saloon and a third detachment the engine-room.

They set their course straight into the North Sea, infested with German surface ships, submarines, mines and planes.

No opposition was encountered during the night and the next day a British reconnaissance plane sighted the ship and sent a trawler which guided the vessel through minefields.

Osler Burrison Is Awarded Testimonial In Rescue Of Drowning Man In Rice Lake

GORE'S LANDING May 9. — (ENS). — The Royal Canadian Humane Association has awarded an Honorary Testimonial to Osler Burrison of this village "for heroic action and presence of mind in the rescue of J. S. Morin from drowning at Rice Lake, Ontario, November 19th, 1941."

Osler, who is the only son of Reeve Charles Burrison of Hamilton Township, was the sole witness of the drowning tragedy last November which resulted in the death of Ronald Harris, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Harris.

J. S. Morin of Toronto, who was the companion of Ronald Harris, managed to climb up on to the bottom of the overturned square stern boat. Thoroughly chilled and numb from the icy water of the lake, Morin was almost exhausted when Osler Burrison reached him.

The many friends of Osler are gratified that his worthy action in saving the life of J. S. Morin has been recognized by the Royal Canadian Humane Association.

Kidnap Hunt

Mrs. Wood had been inside only 15 minutes and when she emerged she found the parked baby carriage empty. A number of parcels, bought previously at other stores, were untouched but the baby's covers were disarranged.

Hunt Woman Also.

Police sought the identity of a middle-aged woman whom Mrs. Wood found beside the empty carriage.

"Where is my baby?" the mother cried. But the stranger answered, "There is no baby here."

Mrs. Wood said she thought the woman told her she saw another woman hurrying along the street with a baby in her arms a minute before.

The child's mother screamed at the sight of the empty carriage, ran back into the store and asked the clerk to telephone the police. Detective Gavin Monahan was there in a couple of minutes, but by then the middle-aged woman had disappeared in the gathering crowd.

Tearfully, the mother told reporters: "We haven't an enemy in the world, so it couldn't be spite work. And we haven't enough money to pay any ransom."

That observation as echoed by the equally-frantic father, who drove around London with a friend in his car last night hoping vainly for a clue. Mrs. Wood spent some time with the police in their cruiser in the fruitless search.

Police also discounted the ransom theory. They said the parents were of moderate means and the father drove a truck for the Canadian Pacific Express Company.

Act of Maniac?

"I have no theory about it and neither have the parents apparently," said Chief Knight. "We can find no motive but it is possible it might be the act of a mentally-unbalanced person.

"In a case like this the co-operation of the public can be of enormous help and may provide us with a real clue. It may be difficult for the kidnapper to keep the presence of the baby a secret. If everyone is watchful for a crying, strange baby it might prove the lead that we need."

Detectives suggested that the baby might have been taken by a woman eager for a child or a school-girl with an advanced mother instinct.

London police cars covered every city street after the kidnapping was reported. Provincial police sent squad cars into rural districts.

Because the child was taken near the city market, popular haunt for Indians, police followed one clue to the Muncey Indian Reserve in the St. Thomas area but it was fruitless.

as clerk of the crown in chancery, a statutory obligation to issue a writ for an election in the event that the seat of a member of the assembly has been vacant for three months . . . ."

Mr. Brewin said similar letters had been forwarded to the clerk of the crown in chancery by electors in other vacant ridings: Richard Luckock, Toronto (Bellwoods); Allan Schroeder, St. Catharines (Lincoln); Ernest Fisher, Kirkland Lake (Cochrane South); J. A. Compton, Kingston (Kingston).

Mr. Brewin added that, if necessary, the application to court would be made on behalf of Mr. Temple.

E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C.C.F. leader, said five of the six seats had been vacant for two years or more.

"It is strange that other Prime Ministers seem to face frequent by-election contests without a tremor, but Mr. Hepburn cannot face them," he said.

"He has done his best to abolish by-elections, but fortunately the courts have not yet been abolished."

Freight Piles Up

SUDBURY, Ont., May 9—(CP).—Auxiliary crews are clearing the Canadian Pacific Railway right-of-way near Missinabi following the derailment of 12 freight cars there at an early hour this morning. Passenger traffic is expected to be delayed for some hours yet before the wreckage is cleared.

The derailment occurred just after midnight when an eastbound freighter left the rails. Fortunately none of the members of the train crew was injured. Seven cars of timber were scattered around the right-of-way.

This condition also extended to some other classes of workers and led to rumor and speculation on freezing.

The selective service director added that there was also misunderstanding about the place of women in selective service. Their entry into war jobs was an entirely voluntary matter.

"I have no doubt the time will come when we will have to call on women," he proceeded, "I would like to feel that there was a reservoir of trained or partially trained women workers on which we could draw when the day arrives; but until we see the whole picture and have a better understanding of our needs I would not feel justified in urging a mass movement of women to the training school and factories."

"The reason we have not yet included women in the program is plain enough. As you well know we still have some unemployed employable in this country....One estimate I have had places the figure as high as 100,000. This is only an estimates. Estimates are not good enough, and we propose to get the true story of unemployment quickly."

Better employer-employee relationships were essential to the national effort, Mr. Little said, explaining he meant more than some minor concessions for the comfort of employees.

"I will go this far," he said. "I feel certain that if the masses of our workers were permitted that interest in their plant and allowed a reasonable voice in the affairs of their plant, many of the problems now hampering our production efforts would disappear, problems such as absenteeism and the high turnover of labor."

Warnemuende, DNB announced today.

(Warnemuende is about 10 miles northwest of Rostock.)

DNB also reported that German air raiders had attacked the British port of Norwich during the night.

The attacks on Rostock and Warnemuende, the news agency claimed caused damage to non-military targets.

On the Baltic coast at the mouth of the River Warne, which leads to Rostock, the port is not only a seaplane base, submarine training station and site of the important Heinkel aircraft plant, but also the terminus of a train ferry to Denmark which the Nazis use to send troops and supplies to Norway.

The attack was a resumption of the R.A.F.'s offensive against Germany after a one-night lull.

Nazi night raiders, meanwhile, were active over East Anglia, scattering bombs which a communique said did some damage and caused a small number of casualties.

One German raider was reported shot down over Britain and another was reported destroyed by an R.A.F. fighter as it was returning to its base in Holland.

Authorities said two Messerschmitt 109's were destroyed by a British fighter after dawn today off the southwest coast.

Plan Service In Memory Of Young Flyer

CAMPBELLFORD, May 9—(ENS)—Already plans are under way to hold a Memorial Service for Sergeant Harold F. Taylor, 23, who was killed in a flying accident in Newfoundland on Monday. After learning the government regulations would not permit bringing their son's body home for burial, Mr. and Mrs. G. Victor Taylor revealed Friday that a service would be held in his honour at Burn Brae church on May 17. It will be conducted at Burn Brae for it was there Harold Taylor sang in the choir and for several years taught Sunday School.

Born In Rawdon

Born in Rawdon township, nine miles east of here the young airman was the second casualty from this district in World War II. He attended Rural school at Wellman's Corners and on passing entrance examinations attended High School at Campbellford remaining with relatives in town until he graduated. At school he was well liked both for his ability in sports, particularly basketball, and his refreshing personality which left its impression on all who came in contact with him. At the same time as he was attending high school Harold was a member of the Midland Regiment Band here and through this organization he left to take a position with the Canadian General Electric in Peterborough and in the three years he worked for that firm, advanced rapidly.

Giving up a position that would have offered excellent prospects for advancement had he chosen to remain, Harold joined the R.C.A.F. in the summer of 1940 and in June of the following year received his wings at Fingal.

Great as the shock of his death must have been to his parents, it was probably somewhat lessened by at least one of the two previous experiences their son had in the Air Force. Following his graduation from air school he was sent to Canada's east coast and there on October 3rd, 1941, he narrowly escaped as a plane he was in cracked up during a take-off with a full load of bombs. The machine took fire but both he and his companions escaped with slight injuries. It was following his transfer to Newfoundland that his parents went through their most anxious five days for it was while there on January 27 that he and three other airmen were lost in the wilds for five days following a forced landing. They survived on what food was dropped to them and the small ration that is always carried on such operational flights, until they were rescued by a road which had partly to be made some 60 miles from Grand Falls. It was three days before they were located by air but in subsequent letters he made light of the entire experience to his family. Surviving besides the airman's parents are two brothers Frank and Gerald, both at home, and one sister Margaret of Belleville.

Red Cross And Community Fund Seeking $60,000 In Annual Drive

Victorian Order of Nurses, one of the local agencies which benefits from the community fund are faced with an ever-increasing volume of work, arising out of war-time living.

A report submitted by Miss Mary Ross, Reg. N. at the regular meeting of the local committee of the Victorian Order reveals that visits by the nurses increased from 1499 last year to 2231 for the same period in 1942, and the increase in bedside nursing visits was 601.

Both the Children's Shelter and St. Vincent's Orphanage have a greater number of children than ever before and coupled wtih this is a substantial increase in the cost of living, and the various commodities required in an institution of this type. All three of these organizations need the money that will be raised in the community chest fund, and they need it badly in order that they may continue the valuable work they have been doing.

The Salvation Army workers are on the job, everywhere curbing juvenile delinquency, reducing drunkenness, straightening out domestic quarrels, giving assistance in homes where the goods of this world are scarce. These regular service channels must be kept operating, more than ever in war-time in order that children may get proper care, families may be kept together as units, and the strain on the relief department may be kept at a minimum. The Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A. and the National Institute for the Blind are handling a volume of work undreamed of in peace time, and both institutions have done remarkable work in providing social relaxation for the soldiers.

Peterborough is asking for $60,000, thirty thousand of which is for the Red Cross, and it is hoped that this sum can be raised during the time for the campaign, May 15-22.

Trucker Fined $50 Given Jail Term

COBOURG, May 9.—(ENS)—Cyril J. Gerster of Toronto was fined $50 and costs and twelve days in jail when he appeared in county court yesterday before Judge L. V. O'Connor. He was charged with presenting a forged trailer permit to Provincial Constable Douglas Wilson. He appeared in court last week, elected trial by judge and pleaded guilty on his appearance in court Friday morning. Provincial Constable Wilson testified that he was on duty at the Welcome weigh scales on March 26 when Gerster drove in with a tractor and semi, loaded with scrap metal. On being asked for the gross weight of the vehicle, he told the constable that it was 16,000 pounds. Examination of the permit card showed that although it now read 16,000 pounds for which the fee was $66, it had been altered from 8,000 pounds carrying a $24 fee, the constable said.

Ascension Was Uppermost In Mind of Risen Lord

By REV. E. R. JAMES

While they beheld, Jesus was taken up; and a cloud received Him out of their sight.—Acts 1:9.

A small group of Jews are "lifting up their eyes" and while they behold, Jesus was taken up; and a cloud received Him out of their sight." It happened on Mount Olivet, just outside of Jerusalem. With the physical eyes they saw Him no more.

"Jesus was taken up." Science tells us that there is no such thing as "up" or "down"; but on account of our limitations of thought and speech, like children, we have to say "Jesus was taken up" into the spiritual world which is all around us.

Perhaps it may surprise you that the very first words Our Lord spoke after His resurrection to Mary Magdalene was about His Ascension and His message to His Apostles is about His Ascension also. He does not mention His resurrection at all. The Ascension seems to be the uppermost thought in the mind of the risen Lord. He longs to ascend. His human soul looks forward passionately to the moment when He shall find Himself face to face with the Father. He longs for the beatific vision of the Father. Simply and calmly He said to the Apostles in the Upper Room: "I came forth from the Father and am come into the world; again I leave the world and go to the Father."

The inspired writer in using the words "taken up" would teach us that Our Lord's work on earth was entirely satisfactory to the Father. "This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." Moreover He takes up with Him that which had never been in Heaven before—our human nature. There stands in the presence of the Father, the Perfect Man; whose character had been perfected in the only possible way—through the stress and strain of temptation and trial. He had the choice of choosing the good instead of the best and He chose the best at a tremendous cost. He is clad in the Best Robe, Perfect Humanity. That best robe had been woven by Him through pain, sorrow, tears, agony and blood. It is in very truth the best robe of perfect righteousness. As the Blessed Son looks back upon that life on earth and the joy that was set before Him His human soul is satisfied. "He saw the travail of His soul and shall be satisfied." He takes the best robe into Heaven, not for Himself alone but that, through His Spirit, He may cast that robe on everyone who shall accept Him as Saviour and Lord.

Over and over again in the New Testament we are told that Our Lord sat down on the right hand of God. It is good for us to remember this truth; this symbolic language that Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of God. A Man is seated there upon the Throne of God. It means that Jesus Christ is not absorbed into the God head, as Buddhism would strive to teach. He has not ceased to be a man.

He is still a man with a distinct human soul. "He has only passed into another mode of existence" as the learned Bishop Westcott reminds us. He has the same human name Jesus by which we address Him. It is the name which brings to our mind all His tenderness, His compassion and His wisdom. He suffered and therefore can sympathize. He died and rose again. "This same Jesus," said the angels to the apostles. It is good for us to remember that He who passed through all this is the God-man—Jesus Christ. How comforting to the dying man as he looks back upon his life; its faults and its sins. And looking into the future he knows he will stand before the judgment seat of the God-man bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh. He will be judged by One who has been touched with the feeling of our infirmities and is not ashamed to call us brethren.

That is not all. "Jesus is taken up" to come back again as He never did before. The Ascension is not the end but the beginning of the new race of men and women —the New Order—whose lives are being transformed into the very image of the Lord Christ through His indwelling spirit. It is the fulfillment of the ancient question: "What is man that Thou are mindful of him?" It means that man is intended to rise to the very highest rank of created beings; to be on the right hand of God. In Christ's Ascension we get a glimpse of the glory that small be in the ascent of man. For the humanity is not separated from the Divinity. It is the fulfillment of Christ's prayer: "I will that where I am there they may be also."

THE GLORY THAT SHALL BE REVEALED IN US.

Jesus Drives from Temple Sellers of Livestock

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 10 is Matthew 21:12-22, the Golden Text being Isaiah 56:7, "My house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples.")

Jesus, going into the temple at Jerusalem, found men in the outer court selling livestock and doves for the worshippers to buy to offer as sacrifices, and haggling over prices, etc. Jesus became righteously angry, and drove them from the sacred place, overturning the tables of the money changers and the seats of them that sold doves. "It is written," He said, "My house shall be called the house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves."

Doves could be used as substitute sacrifices on certain occasions and were bought by the poor. To turn the sacred temple into a market place was to Jesus and His followers unthinkable. It would not only defame the temple for the Jews, but make it look cheap and common to the Gentiles. There is a place for buying and selling, and it is not in the temple of God.

Jesus then turned from this act of righteous indignation to His usual mericful act of healing. The blind and the lame found Him there in the temple and came to Him to be helped. Seeing His miracles performed, children (boys) in the building, doubtless having heard the cries of "Hosanna in the highest" that rang out as Jesus entered Jerusalem on the previous day, shouted, "Hosanna to the Son of David." Hosanna is an Hebrew word meaning somewhat like our Hurrah. It is a cry of joy and wonder.

Scribes and Pharisees Angered

The scribes and Pharisees, also present in the temple, did not like this demonstration, and asked Jesus if He heard what the boys were saying. Jesus answered them, "Yea have ye never read, Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?" Jesus was very familiar with the Old Testament, and frequently quoted from it—often to the confusion of His enemies, whom he was always tripping.

Jesus left the temple after this, and went to Bethany to spend the night.

The next morning He left Bethany and turned again to Jerusalem. Being hungry, He went to a fig tree growing beside the road to satisfy His hunger, but found that the tree bore leaves only, no fruit. "Let there be no fruit from thee henceforth for ever." He said to the tree, and immediately it withered away.

A gentleman who had lived in Palestine explains this tree found to be barren in this wise: "Towards the end of March (this episode took place April 3, A.D. 30) leaves began to appear on a fig tree, and in about a week the foliage is complete. Coincident with, and sometimes even before, there appears quite a crop of small knobs, not real figs, but a kind of early forerunner. They grow to the size of green almonds, in which condition they are eaten by peasants and others when hungry."

As there were none of these small knobs on the tree it was known that it would bear no figs and be of no use. The fig tree stood for the tribe of Israel, and the action was symbolic of the barrenness of the Israelites to whom the Lord had been preaching and who had rejected Him as their Messiah.

The disciples were, nevertheless, surprised at the miracle, and exclaimed, "How soon is the fig tree withered away!" Jesus answered, "Verily I say unto you, If ye have faith, an doubt not, ye shall not only do this which is done to the fig tree, but also if ye shall say until this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea, it shall be done.

"And all things, whatsoever, ye shall as in prayer, believing, ye shall receive."

None of us need expect to move mountains by our prayers. But faith, believe me, will give us strength to do many things we may think impossible. Are we sad, is our faith in our power to work, to love our enemies, to get along with others, to overcome our handicaps, weak or non-existent? Let us pray for help and have faith that power will come to us, that we will have the strength to do any good thing and to conquer, and see how we are given power to win. Of course not every wish will be granted, we must prepare to also say, "Not my will, but Thine be done," but we will be given courage to go forward, to work and fight for the Right, with our Lord's help.

Westwood Institute Raised $581 For War Work

WESTWOOD, May 9 — (ENS) The report of war work of Westwood Women's Institute from April 1, 1941, to March 31, 1942, shows a splendid year. The total receipts amounted to $581.21. A canvass of the district netted $78.68 and sale of salvage was $107.54; bingos and card parties, $155.02; sales of tickets on various articles brought $160.59.

Of this amount $419.12 has been spent, leaving a balance of $162.09.

Sixteen parcels containing 302 articles of clothing, mostly for evacuated children, and estimated value $290, have been sent to England. To the Navy League, Toronto, parcels estimated at $139.50 contained 78 pairs socks, 2 pairs seamen's socks, 28 pairs mitts 11 pairs wristlets, sweaters, and seamen's caps, and 10 suits of flannelette pyjamas.

Twenty parcels have been sent to enlisted men, each parcel containing two pairs of socks, other woollen articles, and treats. During the year 48 quilts were quilted, 30 of which were donated to the Norwood Branch I.O.D.E.

Westwood W.M.S.

St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. William Morris on Wednesday with sixteen members and visitors present. The president, Mrs. J. Clysdale, was in charge. The word Trust was chosen for the roll call for the June meeting. An invitation to be guests of Trinity W.M.S., Hastings, at their June meeting was accepted. Miss Jessie Davidson as group leader had charge of an interesting program, the theme of which was "The Church — the Household of Faith."

Keeping the Windows Open

There is a well-known story in the Old Testament of a man who kept his windows open. He was a captive in Babylon, and the windows were opened towards Jerusalem 500 miles to the west. You may say what is strange about his conduct? Most people keep their windows open at night to admit fresh air. There is, however, more in the incident than appears upon the surface. He prayed before these open windows to Jehovah and an edict had gone forth forbidding men to pray to any other gods than those of Babylon.

There are some people that keep open windows in the house of life, so that they may see things that are invisible to the eyes. These invisible realities of God and eternity mean much to them; in fact, without them they could not live.

There are other folk who keep the windows closed. They live in small compartments and seldom look out beyond the bounds of their little chambers. They are not eager for fresh light. They have their own little theories and are quite satisfied with them. Their souls, however, are stunted, and they do not grow with the years.

Some people have only one window in the house of life. It opens out generally upon the area of their chosen profession or business. These folk become one-sided and lack the broader vision that makes life interesting and noble.

A study of windows will be the subject of the address in St. Andrew's Church on next Sunday night.

"Your New Church on the Old Foundation"

Monday: The Day of Authority ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matt. 21:12-22.

After casting the money changers out of the temple, the blind and the lame came to Jesus, and He healed them.

Seeing how the Master healed the blind and lame, the children in the temple cried, "Hosanna to the Son of David."

Chief priests and scribes were angered, but Jesus said, "Out of the mouths of babes thou hast perfected praise."

Then Jesus left the temple and went out of Jerusalem to the town of Bethany, and lodged there. (Golden Text—Isaiah 56:7)

Wartime Houses And the Schools

The project of Wartime Housing, Limited, to build houses on the Park Street property owned by the city and formerly used as a civil woodyard has been abandoned as this government-formed company considers that the $250 rental a year as set by the city council too high. On the other hand it has been intimated there is a possibility that there will be a 200 to 250 house project on the Hatton estate in the west end of the city.

More houses are going to be erected, but before these are built a survey should be made of the accommodation in the various city schools.

If the houses are built in the proper sections the children coming from these can very easily be accommodated in the city schools, but if they are all erected in practically the same school areas as those here now educational authorities fear that many children will not find accommodation and possibly schools will have to be built, an expenditure which is not necessary.

The first wartime housing project was on Burnham's Point, and with a room vacant in King George School the Board of Education was able to handle the extra pupils. But with the project on Park Hill Road a more complicated situation arose for the Queen Alexandra School was already full and hence the pupils had to be sent to the Queen Mary School. A spare room was available there and with adjusting the boundaries between the Queen Mary and the Prince of Wales Schools these two will be able to accommodate extra pupils. However, children from another 200 houses in that area will never be able to find accommodation in those schools. On the other hand the King Edward School in the south end has plenty of room in all class-rooms and one vacant room. Thus it is only natural that Wartime Housing, Limited, and the City Council should look to the south end of the city for property to build the next group of homes.

Damage To German Ships

When the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau made their dash up the English Channel in March they were not stopped, although they were severely damaged. Still, it was considered disgraceful that these ships should be able to get through the British moat under any circumstances, even when the weather and consequently the visibility were as bad as on that occasion. Since that unfortunate day British air forces have been on the lookout for these ships, and now we know that they, and the Prinz Eugen as well, are out of action for some time as a result of heavy air bombardment.

It is a relief to know this, for the establishment of a strong German fleet would make the situation in the Atlantic even more serious than it is now. The fleets of the United Nations are abroad, stretched thin over hundreds of thousands of miles of dangerous water, and the protection of British supply lines, and the route by which aid is borne to Russia, would have been virtually impossible if these three important ships had been in condition to join the rest of the German naval forces in the waters around Norway. We may be sure that the R.A.F. will see that the German ships never put to sea again, for they are now in harbors where bombs may be dropped without undue caution for the surrounding area, which was not the case at Brest.

When the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau escaped up the Channel there was an understandable outcry in Britain, and a demand to know what the Navy and Air Force thought they were doing? Now we have official assurance that the situation has been set right, and one threat at least has been taken care of.

What We Are Doing

This country's war effort is the subject of so much discussion at present that it might be well to make a brief survey of what we are doing, and what we mean to do in the immediate future. Many honest critics feel that our effort is still lamentably small, and they do everything they can to bring the public to share their opinion; of course, they present the blackest possible picture, and sometimes arouse the gravest apprehension in the minds of those who are not acquainted with the available facts. A survey of the situation, we venture to suggest, will prove reassuring, though it will hardly make for complacency.

The importance of air power has been stressed ever since war broke out, and now that the R.A.F. is making great sweeps over Europe daily we realize more than ever what an adequate supply of planes and men to operate them means to our cause. The British Commonwealth Air Training Plan has been in operation in this country for four and a half months, and is now in full swing. It is capable of expansion, and that expansion will come as soon as possible. Meanwhile, a conference to be held at Ottawa this month will attempt to co-ordinate the B.C.A.T.P. with the air training programs of the United Nations as a whole.

Men are urgently needed for all the armed services. The figures for enlistments are encouraging and by the end of this year it is expected that there will be nearly 200,000 men in the combined services. The 1943 plan, however, calls for an expansion to more than 600,000 men in the combined services.

Canada's Navy has grown rapidly since the outbreak of war, when it included only 15 vessels. It now has about 400 ships and a personnel of 33,000, which it hopes to expand to 40,000 next year. The chief duty of the Canadian Navy lies in convoy duty, and since the outbreak of war more than 55 million tons of cargo have been safely escorted to their destination.

The Canadian Army is being expanded and re-organized, and when this task has been completed it will consist of an overseas service of two army corps with all the necessary ancillary units. An armored division and a tank brigade are also in preparation for overseas service. At home defence is being strengthened by the mobilization of the 7th and 8th divisions.

Members of the Royal Canadian Air Force are now in action in the Middle East, the Far East and in Britain. Hardly a squadron of the R.A.F. lacks its quota of Canadians. In addition the R.C.A.F. administers the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan already mentioned and supplies 80 per cent. of the manpower, as well as paying $800 millions of the $900 millions which the Plan costs. There are 93 schools in this country which train airmen under the Plan.

As well as men, Canada is supplying munitions to the United Nations' cause to the utmost of her ability at present, although here again critics claim that there is room for marked expansion. More than 600,000 workers are employed in the manufacture of munitions, either directly or indirectly, and by the end of this year it is expected that another 100,000 will have joined them. From the outbreak of war until the end of March last Canada has manufactured $3,447 millions of dollars worth of munitions, and of these $2,047 millions of dollars worth were for herself. Aircraft are being produced at the rate of more than 360 planes a month. About 250,000 army vehicles of all kinds have been made. Nine types of guns and eleven types of gun mountings are made here. Hundreds of tanks made in this country are now in service in Russia. Our shipbuilding program involves an expenditure of $550 millions. Corvettes are being made in increasing numbers, and the keels of two large Tribal destroyers have been laid in Canadian yards. In addition to these obvious weapons of war we produce large quantities of finished aluminum and also magnesium and synthetic rubber.

Few Canadians need to be told what the Dominion is doing in the matter of raising money. The Government needs $10 millions of dollars every day this year, and of this $9 millions will go toward the prosecution of the war. Our outlay on war this year alone will be more than twice our outlay for the whole of the Great War. Taxes have been tripled and five times as many Canadians pay income tax as was formerly the case. In addition to these monetary contributions Canadian civilians are submitting cheerfully to rationing of gasoline and sugar, and are curbing their customary extravagance by a well-organized campaign of salvage.

It sounds wonderful, doesn't it? And it is undoubtedly an amazing record of achievement for a nation of eleven and a half millions. But we are in no position to waste time in patting ourselves on the back. This is a war which demands sacrifices beyond anything of which we have yet dreamed. But the record as set forth here is a good one, and it gives the lie to those who say foolishly that Canada "isn't doing anything about the war yet." We are doing a great deal, but that is not to say that we shall not have to do great deal more, and that speedily.

Committee On War Expenditures

The Parliamentary committee on war expenditures began its work on May 1. This session it will investigate the work o. the Department of Munitions and Supply, to see if there are any changes in administration which might profitably be made or any economies which might be effected. The work of this committee is of special importance and its findings are not intended to reflect upon the departments which are investigated. The details of a department are too many and too complex for a busy Minister to master them all, and it is the work of the committee to do this for him.

The committee meets privately, as it is inadvisable for its findings to be too readily available. The Prime Minister has given his assurance to Mr. Hanson and Mr. Coldwell that the committee will have a free hand in its investigations. The Canadian people generally will be glad to know of this. We are spending three billion dollars this year on the prosecution of the war, and we do not want to feel that any of it is leaking uselessly away.

The British committee has done some fine work in tightening up administration in Departments, and the Canadian committee did very good work last year. The usefulness of such a body cannot be exaggerated.

Balm From Gilead

In some parts of this Province the shortage of farm labor is acute, and everywhere it is vexing. The same situation exists in the U.S. and the other day the little town of Gilead, in Ohio, devised a way of meeting the difficulty.

They took a census of all farm machinery, automobiles and trucks in sixteen counties; now they are working on a scheme to get the maximum of work out of the available machinery and manpower in that area. They call their plan "Production Now."

In order to make their scheme work it will be necessary to make a voluntary pool of equipment, but this is not a great hardship; certainly it is it is better than letting the machinery stand idle while the land goes to waste. Co-operative measures of this sort are no new thing. When our ancestors cleared this country they loaned their horses and oxen to one another when needful, and shared such machinery as they had. They cut crops and harvested in a communal system, and when a barn had to be raised they simply had a "bee" and raised it. In some ways they appear to have been vastly superior to us in common sense and ingenuity.

A plan to solve our farm labor shortage problem has come out of Gilead. Can we make it work here?

NOTE AND COMMENT

"The inflationary rise in the cost of living has been gathering momentum."—Leon Henderson.

"The Army and Navy can't win if the men at home produce too little or too late."—Donald R. Richberg.

"The German people are becoming more and more conscious of the defeat of Germany."—Joseph Stalin.

Every once in a while this war provides us with a good laugh: Now Vichy is urging the soldiers of Madagascar to uphold the honor of France!

It was a surprise to hear the judges in Germany had to ask for vacations. We thought that under Hitler justice had a permanent holiday.

The King of Italy is back in the news again. Do you remember the days when we innocently thought that he might be able to keep Italy out of the war?

The official index of living costs remains unchanged from April 1. Which shows that price control does work and that those who pooh-poohed it were mistaken.

FOR THOSE WHO CENSURE

But what of England when she stood alone
Daring the Nazi tiger in its lair,
Calm mid a world's degenerate despair,
Dauntless though other lands were overthrown?
And what of Britons as they are today?
The desert knows the triumph of their dead;
Forest and jungle tremble at their tread:
The seas, the skies, all feel their growing sway.
For still the bulwarks of the realm they keep Though savage hordes are rav'ning at the door.
Oh, you who jeer and jibe, go hence and weep
Knowing you know not England, height
nor deep,
As steeled in her great people's ancient lore
Steadfast she stands, battling from shore to shore.

The Disease And Death Of City of Paris

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

WHEN human beings violate every rule of health and common sense they become ill, and sometimes they die. So it is also with nations. And as the ravages of disease and folly usually make themselves conspicuous in the faces of men and women, so also they show themselves in the capital cities of sick nations. There were many such sick cities in Europe in the years between 1920 and 1939, and one of the sickest was Paris. A brilliant description of this ailing capital—once thought to be the most joyous and vivacious city in the world—is contained in Elliott Paul's book, "The Last Time I Saw Paris," which the Macmillan Company have just published. Paul lived in Paris for the greater part of eighteen years as a journalist on the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune, and he had plenty of opportunity to study the pathology of the City of Light.

Elliot Paul's book will have lasting interest for the student of social history; it is not merely another in the stream of books written by foreign correspondents who feel that they alone know the significant facts about the war. For one thing Paul is a much older man and a better educated man than the average foreign correspondent; to them wars are little more than excuses to advance in their professions, but he knows that wars are built upon the miseries and ambitions of men. We are all apt, to some extent, to fool ourselves with the idea that nations have entities other than those of the people who make them up; we speak of "Germany," and "Britain" and Japan" as though we spoke of gods, each with an unwavering, clearly distinguishable character. But Paul knows that this is childish thinking; he knows that it is useless to speak of "The French" and so he speaks only of the French people whom he knew best.
